It is an unusual record and one which could hardly be accomplished by anyone except a person of Chris Storholm's cheerful disposition. He is always the same. A twinkle in his eye, a cheery word, a warm handclasp—so he has been carrying on for 25 years making a legion of friends, and being too busy to take a vacation. Now he is going to take an auto trip to Minneapolis, to St. Paul and to Spring Grove and Caledonia. He may even take a trip over to LaCrosse, 'though there isn't much to go there any more. On the trip he will be ompanied by Mrs. Storholm and ir son, Clifford, and Mrs. Arthur len of Grand Forks. At Spring ve they will visit Mrs. Storholm's ndmother, who is past 90 years of e.

The Tribune joins with Chris' many friends in wishing him boundless joy on his first vacation, trusting he may return to his regular trips throughout northern Minnesota sufficiently refreshed in mind and spirit to take a crack at the job for another 25 years. He will be "spelled" during his vacation by John Murnane of St. Paul.

Music Not So Good.

The band concert given on the streets Friday evening by the band of the North Dakota University attracted a large crowd, which rather admired the visitors for their good looks than for their music. The boys are about to take an extended trip into the west, the concert here being for the purpose of assisting them in raising funds for the proposed trip. We suggest they practice up a bit before they start.

F. O. B.

One of our town readers saw an advertisement in the paper offering six decanters for $6 f. o. b. He sent the money and when they came he was very mad and wanted his money back, as they were empty. The lawyer he went to asked him what he expected them to contain. "Full of booze—what else does f. o. b. mean?" — Siloam Springs Herald.

ST. HILAIRE

(From the Spectator)

The small boys are wearing doleful expressions lately due to the fact that school closes this week. The old swimming hole, and fishing, will have to serve as summer attractions.

Miss Annie Stokkestad of this village, and Hans Rod Jr. of Viking were married at Thief River Falls this week. They will make their home at Viking, where Mr. Rod recently engaged in a business venture. Numerous friends in this village join in extending congratulations and good wishes.

In a deal made this week, Enoch Sundholm purchased the A. S. Wilson residence property on Water street and will occupy it as soon as it is vacated by the Wilson family. The property has a 75-foot frontage and is considered one of the finest locations in town. Mr. Wilson bought a short time ago the Mrs. Hendrickson home and lots, which were originally a part of his farm across the tracks and will move there.

A fire which has burned in the old mill refuse along the river bank near the south bridge all spring, ignited the old raceway during the high wind last week and burned it to the piling foundation. Nothing remains of the old landmark now but a huge pile of rocks and part of the plank extension put on in front of the sluice gates some years after the original raceway was built. No particular damage was done as the old ruin was no longer used as a dam, and was virtually abandoned by the lumber company when they ceased operations here.

August Moren, one of the old pioneer citizens of the community near Wylie, passed away Tuesday after a short illness of pneumonia. Mr. Moren came to this section when it was a wilderness, and by perseverance and hard work managed to build up a fine farm. He was considered one of the leading citizens in the community in which he lived, and his passing is deeply regretted by his many friends. He is survived by his widow and several grown children. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon from the Swedish Lutheran church of Black River, of which the deceased has long been a member.

Peter Arin had the misfortune last Friday to break a leg. He was employed on the Quiner farm and it is reported that the accident happened when he in some way fell off from a wagon. The injury is a serious one, especially for a man of his age, and it will no doubt lay him up for the rest of the best part of the summer. He was immediately taken to the Hallock hospital.—Lancaster Herald.

Kentucky's Most Perfect Girl

Miss Marjorie Barker

Miss Marjorie Barker, 18, of Hopkinsville, was adjudged Kentucky's most perfect girl in a state contest held at Louisville. She is 5 ft. 4 in. tall; weighs 110½ pounds; chest 30¾ inches; and waist 20¼ inches. Her health rules are, bridge, swimming, outdoor exercise—and plenty of pretzels.

National Wheat Meet at Chicago June 19 and 20

A national conference to discuss problems confronting agriculture is to be held in Chicago June 19 and 20. The call, issued last week, is signed by Governor J. A. O. Preus of Minnesota, the governors of Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Arthur Capper, O. E. Bradfute, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Aaron Shapiro, nationally known agricultural economist, and others.

"The dissatisfied condition of a large proportion of our agricultural population today is very largely due to the price of wheat, which relatively speaking, is lower than it has been for half a century," the call says.

The conference will seek a solution to this situation, which "seriously imperils the structure upon which our prosperity is built. Representatives of organized agriculture, commerce, elevators, railroads, millers, bakers, retailers and educational bodies are asked to attend.

Rasmus Aaseby, Resident of County, Dies Wednesday

Father of Iver Aaseby Called By Death at Home of Daughter Residing West of Town.

Rasmus Aaseby, 79 years old, a resident of Pennington county for a number of years, died Wednesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. K. Lockrem, with whom the elderly gentleman had made his home since the death of Mrs. Aaseby several years ago.

Deceased was well known to pioneers of this section, he having homesteaded land here in the early days, where he had made his home until the time of his death.

The survivors are Iver Aaseby of the firm of Aaseby & Burstad, local garage, and Mrs. A. K. Lockrem.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon from the Linstad church, seven miles southwest of the city, Rev. C. M. Grimsrud of St. Hilaire officiating at the services. Interment was made in the Linstad cemetery.

3,000 Acres of Potatoes Signed Up by Growers

Three thousand acres of potatoes in Minnesota already are under contract to the new co-operative sales agency. This announcement was made last week by Walter Oby of Detroit, treasurer of the state organization committee. First contracts were circulated two weeks ago, the start having been made at Bemidji, where 23 out of 25 growers present at the organization meeting signed the agreement. To N. E. Shulke of Ten Strike, Beltrami county, went the honor of having been first to sign.

By June 3, 250 growers had signed and the number was increasing daily. County committees are at work in Beltrami, Becker, Red Lake and in Clearwater counties.

Rindal Creamery Is Destroyed by Flames

The creamery at Rindal burned last week, the fire being discovered in the feed mill about 5:30 o'clock and at that time the interior was full of smoke and the fire pretty well under way. It spread rapidly as the fire fighters were shy of fire fighting apparatus and ere long the creamery was a mass of flames also. Seeing that it was useless to battle the flames, the men turned their attention to saving the contents of the building and by rapid work succeeded in getting out practically the entire equipment. Winger responded to a phone call and arrived in time to save the ice house. The building, built in 1904, was totally destroyed and the entire loss is placed at about $10,000, partly covered by insurance. The creamery will be rebuilt and that too just as soon as possible.—Fertile Journal.

HOMEY PHILOSOPHY for 1923

REMEMBER that birthday when there were twelve candles on the cake and the big piece rested on the plate of that wonderful girl whose golden curls were the most beautiful in all the world—and then that birthday, when that girl with nut brown hair glanced shyly as Dad told you you were now a man. And then the birthdays came quickly, until there were no candles on the cake, but just a touch of thoughtfulness and love reflected in the making. Now in the mellow of years we can think of birthdays and their joys just as the mirror of the only birthday—the day we pass into life—into Eternity. Smile as the hour nears.

DEER WERE TAME.

While out driving last week, G. W. Connell encountered two deer about nine miles east of the city. The two animals, a buck and a doe, showed no fright at the approach of the Connell car and remained standing at the edge of a small patch of timber until the car was out of sight. Settlers in eastern Pennington county report seeing deer at frequent intervals and indications are that the animals are increasing in numbers under the protection of the state. The deer season has now been permanently closed except in even numbered years, which means that deer may not be hunted this season.

DETHRONING GOD.

Religion, a belief in God and the worship of a supreme being are part of humanity everywhere in the world irrespective of creeds or conditions and colors of mankind—everywhere in the world except in Russia.

Governments, whether organized and national or tribial or patriarchial, recognize religion and recognize God—except in Russia.

Russian government or misgovernment hath no religion. The fools have said with their lips, "There is no God." Not with their hearts, for in the hearts of all men of all peoples the sense and recognition of God exists.

It is a penal offense to teach religion and inculcate the knowledge of God to children in Russia.

The bloody bolshevists stand the leaders of the church and the preachers and teachers of God against bullet scarred walls before a firing squad to die for their faith.

It is the blood drunkenness that grows upon slaughter, the insanity that finds its relief and pleasure in killing. Russia is dominated by a government of homicidal maniacs.

Yet it shall not endure. It passes, it dies finally of its own venom. It was so in the French revolution when innocent blood ran in rivers and the puppets beneath the everlasting dome of heaven played at dethroning God. It drowns in its own flood. It burns out like a conflagration, suffers and is destroyed at last through its own incendiarism.

For finally and always God rules and religion survives. They are in the hearts of mankind indestructible. As the grass creeps up on the scarred sides of the volcano when the eruption has ceased so always right and righteousness live and cover the scars of cruelty and passion and hide away from sight and sound the crime and horrors of a day or a period.

To recognize such a government would be to recognize murder and arson, to put an insane asylum on a par with schools and colleges and the cells of murderers row on an equality wilth the homes of a residence street.

Government founded on oppression and maintained in cruelty and by murder cannot endure. Lacking humanity, religion, and denying God, it must fall. May it fall soon.—Marshalltown (Ia.) Republican.

C. B. BRADLEY SUED FOR $10,000 BY DEPOSED CHIEF OF POLICE

Affidavit Alleging Bribery By Deposed Chief Made Basis of Action in District Court.

AFFIDAVIT COMPLAINED OF

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington, ss.

Charles B. Bradley, being duly sworn, on his oath says that at various times between August, 1920, and about February 1, 1923, he paid various sums of money ranging from $1.00 to $25.00 in amount, aggregating about $35.00 to E. O. Erickson, Superintendent of Police for the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota; the payments were made at various places in said city and to begin with upon affiant's suggestion; that such payments were made upon the understanding that he, the said Erickson, was to hold his head in the air and overlook things that might happen; that said Erickson never interfered with affiant's business in any manner thereafter; that no other official of the said city of the county of Pennington were in any way connected with said transaction, or in any similar transaction to my knowledge.

C. B. BRADLEY.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 7th day of April, 1923.

H. O. CHOMMIE.

Notary Public, Pennington County, Minnesota.

My commission expires June 18, 1926. (Seal.)

Alleging that the above affidavit had the effect of maliciously depriving him of the confidence and good will of the people of Thief River Falls and particularly its mayor, E. O. Erickson, recently deposed by Mayor Bratrud as superintendent of police of this city, last Thursday began an action in district court against C. B. Bradley, local barber, who signed the affidavit complained of.

Mr. Bradley has figured in a number of arrests for violation of the liquor laws and has repeatedly charged malfeasance on the part of enforcement officials, alleging that he and others had no difficulty in getting them to accept bribes. Evidently smarting under the vigilance of Chief Erickson he readily signed the published affidavit, which eventually led to the dismissal of the chief by Mayor Bratrud.

Mr. Erickson has engaged G. Halvorson as his attorney and proposes to fight the case to the limit. The Tribune is informed that his main object is to seek vindication to his injured reputation through the court action. The case may come up at the term of court which will be held this month, at the option of Bradley's attorneys, but in any event will be tried here next winter.

The complaint alleges that Mr. Erickson served as chief of police of the city for a period of five years. Under the law the defendenat, C. B. Bradley, has twenty days in which to make answer, and so far no answer has been filed in court. The outcome of the case will be watched with interest here owing to the prominence of the parties involved.

Lester Rolland Wins Award for Best Road Essay

"Safety on Highways" Topic Upon Which Local Student Takes 1st Prize.

Paper Will Now Be Entered in National Competition; Essay of High Merit.

Lester Rolland, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rolland of this city, has won first prize in the contest conducted by the Highway Education Board for the best essay in the safety campaign which is being worked out by the national board seeking to prevent as far as possible accidents to autoists and pedestrians upon the national highways.

Young Rolland was one of the Thief River Falls students who submitted papers in the contest and his excellent work has received the unqualified commendation of both state and national highway officials. The essay was submitted last autumn and, although the award was made some time ago, it was only recently that public announcement was made.

The high merit of the essay by young Rolland speaks exceedingly well for the Thief River Falls schools, which he attends, and indicates the wide scope of learning taught here. As a reward for his essay he will receive a $15 cash prize and a gold medal which has been sent him by registered mail.

In addition to the prizes already received, Rolland now becomes eligible for one of the three national awards. Being the best essay from Minnesota, in which students from every high school in the state competed, the paper will now be submitted to a committee of distinguished judges. They will read the best essay from each state and territory and award the three national prizes, consisting of a gold watch and a trip to Washington with expenses paid, a gold loving cup and a silver loving cup.

Stephen James of the National Highway Education board has written a letter to Rolland, in which he sincerely congratulates him upon his splendid achievement and compliments him upon the general content of his paper.

A telegram Monday to The Tribune from the St. Paul Dispatch requests that this newspaper furnish the Dispatch with a photograph of Lester Rolland to be printed in next Sunday's edition. The photograph was forwarded to the St. Paul newspaper yesterday.

Joint Choruses to Sing in City on June 22-23

Singers From All Sections of North Dakota and Minnesota to Be Here.

Event Expected to Prove of State-Wide Importance to Scandinavians.

Joint choruses from various cities in North Dakota and northern Minnesota have been invited to Thief River Falls June 22 and 23 by the local Brage chorus, under whose auspices the various choruses will sing. The gathering of singers throughout the sections mentioned is an annual event among the different Scandinavian choruses and is an occasion of state-wide importance. for some of the best-known singers in the state are expected to be present to render solos.

Approximately 175 to 200 singers are expected to be present on the two days mentioned and the local Braga chorus already is making preparations for the entertainment of their guests. It was in 1909 that the singers last convened in Thief River Falls, at which time it was agreed that they would return here at the earliest possible time.

A large number of visitors are expected in the city from points several hundred miles distant as the event is heralded as one of the important gatherings of Scandinavian peoples of the year. The gatherings of the various choruses will hold forth here for two days, Friday and Saturday, June 22 and 23, and the following day being Sunday, a committee in charge of arrangements is planning on holding a great assemblage in a picnic at Squaw Point.

A total of 30 newspapers up and down the line will next week carry advertising announcing the joint chorus assemblage here, as well as some of the state-wide and Northwestern Scandinavian language newspapers and periodicals.

Owing to the fact that the committee in charge of the Braga chorus is as yet uncertain as to the various forms of entertainment to be provided for their guests, The Tribune is unable to give full information, but as soon as these are known they will be printed in detail.

"Always I have slept with a revolver nearby but last night I couldn't sleep. Sometime after midnight I heard a noise and I located it beneath a lower floor window, and shot. I heard one agonized yelp and next morning found a neighbor's dog shot through the back just below the shoulders. I remember now that the noise was that dog gnawing a bone, but I was so nervous and worn out I shot first. I'll never carry a revolver again."

William DeParcq Is Injured When Car Tips In Sand

Disastrous Auto Mishap Occurs Near Strathcona Saturday—Wheel Breaks.

With Back Broken Local Young Man Wages Valiant Battle For Life.

With his back broken, a dislocated shoulder and bruises about the head and face, William DeParcq, 18 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. DeParcq, proprietors of the Brumund hotel, lies at the Physicians hospital waging a valiant battle for life—with the tide of battle swinging in his favor—due largely to his intense desire to get well again. And physicians attending him say that he has at least an even break.

That's all "Bill" ever asked for—an even break. Give him that and he is willing to "go" from there.

In company with J. K. Thompson, district salesman for the Liggett & Meyers Tobacco company, with headquarters in this city, DeParcq was making the territory with the salesman in a Ford roadster, leaving Thief River Falls about noon on Saturday. The two were traveling along the road about two miles south of Strathcona when they suddenly came upon a stretch of loosely graveled highway. The car struck the sand and swerved heavily to one side, breaking a front wheel. This threw the car completely over and it land right side up in a shallow ditch at the side of the road. Just how the car struck DeParcq is not known; however, he was thrown clear through the fabric of the top. Whether the steering wheel crushed his body or whether portions of the top struck him has not been made clear.

Both Mr. Thompson, who was driving, and DeParcq were thrown clear of the car, the former having his shoulder blade shattered, it being broken in three different places, according to physicians who examined him. DeParcq's back was broken and he received several other minor injuries.

The accident happened at about 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon and for more than an hour and a half DeParcq lay alongside the wreckage of the car. Although badly injured, Thompson started off for Strathcona in quest of assistance, but in the meantime a farmer residing near the scene of the accident rendered first aid to the more severely injured man.

DeParcq retained his consciousness and directed the farmer how to make him more comfortable. He remembered that the Great Northern passenger train was about due to pass and requested the farmer to flag the train and have the train crew take him aboard. The farmer, a bit wary of stopping trains, stated that he did not believe the engineer would stop should he attempt it.

"Sure they will," said DeParcq, "just get up there on the track and highball 'em and they'll stop all right."

Before the train hove in sight, however, a laboring crew aboard a velocipede came along the track and noticing the stricken man, came to his assistance, stopping the train and taking DeParcq into the baggage car and to Thief River Falls. A telegram to Mr. DeParcq advised him of the accident and a stretcher and ambulance was at the Great Northern station awaiting the arrival of the train. He was immediately taken to the Physicians hospital, where his injuries were attended to and he was made as comfortable as possible. Dr. Bratrud of Warren and Dr. H. W. Froehlich of this city attended him.

Because of young DeParcq's nervous condition, Mr. and Mrs. DeParcq yesterday requested a Tribune reporter to print the information that friends of the young man refrain from calling at the hospital and asking to see him. Nurses attending him also made the request and, while they dislike to turn his friends away, they state that too many visitors will not react in the patient's favor. He requires all the rest he can possibly get for a few days, at least.

Carl St. Onge Is Injured When Struck By Baseball

Carl St. Onge, high school student and son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred St. Onge, 618 Knight avenue north, was badly injured Sunday afternoon in a baseball game played at Rosewood, when a baseball struck him in the head. The injury was at first thought to have been of a trivial nature as he suffered no ill effects at the time. Shortly after he complained of severe pains in the head and became unconscious. He was taken to the Swedenburg hospital in this city, where an operation was performed. He is reported as recovering.

The young fellow was struck by a pitched ball from the opposing pitcher, it is said, and it struck him just over the left ear.

T. J. Austad, Times Editor, Is Near Death at Hospital

Well-Known Newspaper Man Has Only Slight Chance For Recovery, Say Attending Physicians.

Thomas J. Austad, better known on the streets of this city as "Tom" Austad, is critically ill at the Physicians hospital, and but slight hope for his recovery is held out by the attending doctors. Mr. Austad was editor of The Times up to about two months ago when the strenuous character of his labors compelled him to retire and seek other employment. More recently he has been in charge of the club room of the Elks lodge, whose secretary he has been for many years.

Mr. Austad has been gradually failing for some time, due, the doctors say, to kidney trouble. A week ago he took to his bed and last Friday was removed to the hospital, where his condition has shown no improvement. Late this afternoon he wa sreported to be sinking rapidly and his dissolution was expected any moment.

Two brothers, Edward and Carl, arrived here Tuesday from Canyon, Minn., to be with their stricken brother, who recognized them upon their arrival but has so far been unable to converse with them.

Owing to the condition of Mr. Austad the Elks' celebration advertised for this week has been indefintely postponed.

Glaring Lights Causes Car to Run Into Ditch

Auto Mishap on Holt Road Laid to Violation of Law By Unwary Motorist.

Infant Child of Carl Vinje of Newfolden Badly Injured When Car Tips.

Glaring headlights on a car traveling towards Thief River Falls caused Carl Vinje of Newfolden, driving a Ford sedan, accompanied by his wife and two children, to drive into the ditch along the Holt-Thief River Falls highway late Saturday night. All of the occupants of the car were injured, one seriously, a two-year-old child of the couple being confined at a local hospital in a serious condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Vinje were bound for their home at Newfolden after having spent the day in Thief River Falls. They were traveling along the road near Holt when a car coming from the opposite direction and traveling at what is said to have been a good rate of speed, with piercing headlights, approached the Vinje car. Mr. Vinje turned to the side of the road in an attempt to pass safely the oncoming car, but misjudged the width of the grade and drove off.

Mr. Vinje states that he was completely blinded by the glaring headlights of the car he met and that it was impossible for him to see 10 feet ahead. He attempted to stop his car and await the passing of the other, but before he could bring the Ford sedan to a stop, it had rolled over the grade. The car turned completely over and the four occupants lay alongside the road from midnight until about 4 o'clock in the morning before assistance arrived.

The party was brought to a local hospital, where their injuries were dressed, and aside from the child, none of their injuries will prove serious, according to hospital attendants.

Glaring headlights, according to many Thief River Falls motorists, is daily becoming more and more of a menace and they state that the piercing lights on some of the cars are becoming the curse of the highway, many being so bright that it is an impossibility to pass them with safety. Other autoists state that every time they encounter one of the cars with blinding lights they are compelled to drive to the side of the road and come to a complete stop.

Several bad smashups as a result of motorists violating the state law relative to the glaring headlight nuisance have been reported and it is stated that local authorities will shortly bring the offending ones to the bar of justice in an attempt to eradicate the evil. According to Minneapolis newspapers this week, police there arrested 300 automobile owners in a single night as the result of an auto mishap on one of the roads leading into the city when a young woman was crushed to death when a heavy car she was driving went over a steep embankment as the young woman attempted to pass another car with glaring headlights.

Dr. Fisher Sells Interest.

A deal was consummated this week whereby Dr. J. T. Bowers has purchased from Dr. L. F. Fisher all of his shares in the Physicians hospital of this city. Dr. Fisher, who left here some months ago to enter the government service, is now stationed at Chicago.

Early Morning Liquor Raid Is Staged by Police

John Wyss, Recent Arrival in City, Placed Under Arrest by Chief Berge.

Officers Find Evidence of Illicit Liquor on Premises Run by Conrad Vinje.

Chief of Police Berge and Night Patrolman Ralston at 5 o'clock Thursday morning swooped down on the place operated by Conrad Vinje on South LaBree avenue and arrested John Wyss, manager of the place, on a charge of having illegal liquor on the premises.

The Vinje place has been under suspicion by the officers for some time and the police were on the job bright and early Thursday morning to determine, according to Chief Berge, whether or not their suspicions were well founded. When the officers approached the front door and demanded entrance, they were deterred for a few moments, when A. H. Erickson, who has formerly been mixed up in liquor raids in this city, and who was in the front part of the building, felt himself inspired to notify Wyss, in a back room, that minions of the law were "knocking at his door." After a few brief moments, however, the door was opened and the officers entered.

Chief Berge pulled a search warrant from his pocket and asked Wyss if he wanted to go through the preliminary ordeal of having it read to him. Wyss said this was unnecessary, whereupon the officers proceeded back of the bar and through a door into a back room.

No mass of liquor was found, according to Chief Berge, but the telltale fumes of poison booze was fairly oozing from the funnel, a relic of the place. Some other receptacles, such as fruit jars, without the fruit, bottles, etc., smelled horribly like they had contained white mule and contained sufficient drippings for the officers to gather enough evidence to show that they contained fluids other than canned fruit.

The funnel, through which liquor is alleged to have been poured when the law threatens, was taken possession of by the officers and taken to court, as were the receptacles and seepage referred to above.

Wyss was placed under arrest and taken before Judge Tarrant, who released him upon the furnishing of bail in the amount of $500. The defendant was bound over for trial at the June term of district court.

Little is known of Wyss, he being a recent arrival in Thief River Falls.

Games and Sports Program to Be Carried Out According to Schedule.

Plans for the county graduation, school officers' meeting, county play day and special moving picture show have been completed. The official call to school officers has been sent out; the list of eighth grade graduates has been compiled and each candidate notified to be present to answer roll call at the Auditorium promptly at 2 o'clock on Saturday, June 16, to get ready for the graduating program, which starts at 2:30 sharp; the winners at the sectional play days have been notified to be present at the fair grounds to go at 10 o'clock, and word has been received from the moving picture concern that everything is in readiness to put on the moving picture show at the Princess, commencing at 4:30.

It is urgently requested that school officers be on hand to enroll promptly at the time set, 10 o'clock. Districts pay the officials for attending the whole day and they expect that we put in a full day, just as everyone of us expects a day's work for a day's pay from those who work for us. Come prepared to ask questions and offer suggestions. That attitude makes the best meeting.

On account of adverse weather conditions last spring it was impossible to complete the schedule of sectional meetings and to give all the boys and girls of the county a fair chance at the prizes offered, and it has been arranged to permit any pupil who thinks he has a fair chance to win to enroll for the various contests providing he is present at the fair grounds and asks to have his name entered, not later than 10 o'clock. It is necessary to start these activities early in order to have them out of the way for the graduating exercises that commence at 2:30.

A program of unusual interest for rural people has been prepared for the graduating exercises and all are urged to see that they do not miss the information and inspiration that this event is sure to give.

Don't forget your lunch, and then get your share of the free coffee and ice cream.

Lyceum Dark.

The Lyceum theater was dark last evening for the first time in many moons, the cause being a delayed film which will, however, be shown later. Usually the films arrive on schedule time, but this one went astray somehow and the Lyceum was compelled to close down for one evening. An unusually attractive program is offered for the coming week as will be noticed by the theater announcement in another column.

Best Holstein Herds Found Here in Pennington County

North Dakota Visitors Express Preference for Cows Seen Here in Buying Stock.

Five North Dakota buyers of dairy cows, namely Messrs. F. B. Kraling, J. R. Cunningham, Earl O. Nelson and J. B. Rubey of Lisbon, have been inspecting Holstein cows in Pennington county for several days and as a result this week shipped out 21 grade cows purchased in this vicinity.

To The Tribune the gentlemen made the statement that out of nearly 500 dairy herds inspected in this and other states, no such Holstein cows had been found anywhere, being uniform in looks and quality.

The above named buyers have just completed their second buying trip into this territory and expect soon to return for further purchases. We are glad to know they like our herds but we wish to whisper a word to our farmer friends—do not sell the herd down too close—for cows will be cows by and by.

Preparations Go Forth For Song Festival in City

Red River Valley Singing Association to Meet Here Two Days, June 22-23.

Noted Soloists Throughout District to Appear at Convention.

The Red River Valley Scandinavian Singing association, an organization of singers residing throughout northern Minnesota and parts of North and South Dakota, will convene in Thief River Falls Friday and Saturday, June 22 and 23, at which time several soloists of note, including H. S. Haugland and John Nyborg, both of Minneapolis, will be present.

The meeting of singers in this city will be held under the auspices of the Braga chorus of Thief River Falls and the members of the chorus are making elaborate preparations for the holding of the event and the entertainment of the hundreds of visitors from all over the Northwest who are expected to be in attendance. The gathering of singers is an annual event with the association and several years ago they had their meeting here, and the Braga chorus has been looking forward to the entertainment of the singers here again, and are making their preparations accordingly.

The meeting here will be under the direction of Dr. P. L. Vistaunet, leader of the Braga chorus of this city, and the accompaniments will be played by Miss Doris Halvorson, well-known Thief River Falls pianist. There will be a total of 12 different choruses represented among the various singing associations and it is expected that Scandinavians and others from all over the Northwest will be represented in the audiences. Most of the singing will be in the Scandinavian languages, although there will be a number of English interpretations delivered.

The committee in charge of arrangements has decided upon staging a big picnic, presumably at Eide's grove, on Sunday, June 24, the day following the close of the meeting, as it is thought a number of those attending will wish to remain in the city over the holiday, and the committee is making elaborate arrangements for their entertainment. There will be music and picnic lunches, and automobiles will be provided those who wish to make short trips throughout the county.

Rain Needed.

While rain is badly needed in Pennington county, yet close observers of crop conditions insist that no damage has resulted from the drouth up to date. Roseau county had a good rain Monday and rain fell in the vicinity of Goodridge twice this week, giving needed relief to the crops. Tame hay and rye need moisture badly.

Bible Conference at Drayton, N. D.

The Tribune is in receipt of a general article dealing with the Bible conference which opens today at Drayton, N. D. The article deals with the plan for arrangements, which includes entertainment in the Drayton Memorial park, but was received too late to have any value at this time. The conference opens today and closes next Sunday.

Fourth of July Plans Will Take Form at Meeting

Special Session of Legion to Name Committees to Take Charge of Celebration.

Mayor Arthur E. Nelson Accepts Invitation to Come to Deliver Address.

A special meeting of Elmer J. Eklund post of the American Legion will be held this evening at the clubrooms of the post to complete plans for the big Fourth of July celebration to be held this year in Thief River Falls. Committees to take charge of various assignments will also be named at the meeting in order that the event may be pulled off without semblance of confusion.

Large full-page Fourth of July posters will be off the press this week and members of the Legion will immediately start the work of posting in towns up and down the line from the city. It is planned to give the celebration wide publicity, both in newspapers and printed matter.

A letter from Mayor Arthur E. Nelson of St. Paul has been received by a temporary committee in charge, accepting the invitation to come here to deliver the principal address at the program to be given at the auditorium.

A long list of sports events has been arranged for. Some are put on by local talent, although there are many other attractions that will be booked from out of town. A $500 display of fireworks has been ordered and these will be set off during the evening at the fair grounds. Baseball game and athletic contests will be staged at the grounds during the entire day and admission to the grounds will be absolutely free to all.

Business men of the city will be asked to prepare floats for the monster street parade, and civic organizations and lodges will be requested to take part in the affair. A Legion band is practicing up for the day and there will be music galore.

Everything considered, it is expected that the Fourth of July celebration will be the best ever staged in the city. Elaborate plans are under consideration and, although the various attractions that will be brought here have not as yet been decided upon definitely, it is known that they will be many and varied.

Both a citizens committee and a committee from the Legion will be named and from this week on they will be actively engaged in laying final plans for the celebration. There will be a number of prizes offered by the stores for different competitions. What these will be is as yet unknown, but it is expected announcement of them will be made next week.

Watch for the large posters, watch for the program, watch for the newspapers, watch for the celebration. Above all, watch Thief River Falls on the Fourth of July this year.

SCHOOL NURSE'S REPORT SHOWS HEALTHY STATE IN THIS CITY

More Than 2,000 Physical Inspections Made During Term Ending May 25—Effect of Regular Visitations by Nurse Reflected in Health of Pupils.

The Tribune this week is in receipt of a report made to members of the Thief River Falls school board, made by Miss Ruth J. Johnson, who has been in charge of the health program of the city schools during the past term, which ended May 25.

The report is in detail and of some length and gives parents of school students a concise idea of the work done here during the school term. A total of 2,145 physical inspections were made by the school nurse during the year and of this number 188 were sent home for further surveillance. There were a total of 460 home visits made and the nurse responded to 486 telephone calls. Room inspections were made in the total of 486.

Parents will find the accompanying report by Miss Johnson of interest, for it pertains altogether to the health of the city schools and shows the predominant physical ailments:

The children were weighed every six weeks by their teachers and the actual and normal weight recorded on the pupils' report cards. Our aim was to secure the child's interest in health and to have him desirous of practicing health habits as a means of attaining happiness and success.

No special program for health teaching was used this year in the schools, although each teacher devoted a short time to "health" according to the need felt in her room. During the last two years, the "Health Crusade" was put on in all the rooms, but there were so many objections made to it that it was probably advisable not to have used it this year. The general complaint seemed to be the fear that it did cause dishonesty in children. My own opinion in regard to this complaint is that this crusade does not induce dishonesty, but it brings out the fact that special training is needed along with the regular school work in regard to moral facts, both in the school and in the home. I would like to know that next year the crusade will be taken up with the proper attention that it deserves.

Milk was served in the schools to the children who desired to have it. The teachers urged the underweight children to buy it and the creamery who furnished the milk also provided milk free to those children who needed it and could not afford to buy it. The teacher always ordered milk to be served at school parties for the children.

In co-operation with Dr. Biederman, city health officer, diphtheria, throat and nose cultures were taken of all the school children and teachers by Dr. Froehlich, Dr. Galen and the nurses. As there proved to be a large number of children who were "carriers" of this disease, the situation was handled by Dr. Biederman and an isolation hospital provided for at the city auditorium. No deaths occurred from diphtheria, although we had several serious cases.

The sale of Christmas seals was handled through the nurse in the schools and a report made out of the amount collected given to Mr. Simley, as the Pennington County Public Welfare association had been discontinued. A draft for the entire amount, $160.67, was sent to the main office of the Minnesota Public Health association at 300 Shubert building, St. Paul. An effort is being made to get a refund of the above amount, probably one-half, to be used locally for health promotion purposes. What has been discussed are: First, playground equipment; second, gymnasium equipment; third, couches for Knox, Washington and Lincoln buildings; fourth, emergency kits for the schools.

The children in many instances have not been properly seated, especially in the lower grades, where it is so important. In some cases foot-stools were made for those children whose feet could not touch the floor. This may tend to lessen the fatigue caused from such a position, but it cannot lessen the tendency to cause certain spinal defects. A foot-stool will not aid the child to the proper extent when his seat is too small or too large. It seems to me, as a nurse, that the purchase of better and more seats for the children would be a logical school expenditure.

Fatigue questionnaires of the pupils in Miss Larson's room were made out and sent to the state board of health for study.

A child welfare clinic was planned to be conducted here June 1, under the auspices of the state board of health and the Minnesota Public Health association. The school nurse assisted in making plans with the local people for conducting this clinic.

My work in the schools of this city has been a pleasure and I wish to thank those who assisted me in carrying out my health program.

Respectfully submitted,
RUTH J. JOHNSON, R. N.,
School Nurse.

They made the drive during the night, arriving here during the early hours of the forenoon after leaving Minneapolis in the evening. The return trip was made on Saturday.

Nils Hagen, editor of the Oklee Herald, and lawyer of that village, transacted business in Thief River Falls last Friday. He was accompanied by Mrs. Hagen and their young son. Mrs. Hagen has recently recovered from a long siege of illiness. While in the city they made The Tribune a fraternal call.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Burstad and daughter, Ethel and Ruby, left Saturday by automobile for Felton, Minn. where they will visit with Mrs. Burstad's parents for a brief period. Mr. Burstad will also attend the grand lodge of the Odd Fellows' convention at Moorhead as a delegate from the local encampment branch of the order. They intend to be gone for about 10 days.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bro of Ada, accompanied by Mrs. A. J. Lyons and her daughter, autoed up from Ada Sunday afternoon to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Keith of the Save-U-Money store. THE HEADLIGHT GLARE.

The pleasure of driving over country roads will be greatly enhanced when the authorities succeed in doing away with speeding and the use of glaring headlights. The speeder is getting his every day, but little or no attention is paid to the other nuisance. The man who drives his car improperly equipped with glaring headlights may be set down as a road hog—as one who cares very little for the legal rights or personal comfirt of others. Such a road hog was responsible for the tragic death of Kathryn Salmon, the young daughter of District Judge Salmon of Minneapolis, who lost her life when the glare of a headlight caused her to drive her car from the pavement near Lakeville one night last week.

A tragedy something like that was narrowly averted the other night between this city and Holt when two cars were reduced to junk and several persons were severely hurt as a result of the glare of headlights. The daily toll is terrible. Just now a spasmodic attempt is being made to enforce the law because of the accumulation of heart rending accidents. But in a few days this will all be forgotten and the maiming of persons and destruction of property will again go on with regularity. Another terrible accident and a few days of law enforcement.

Why not start in now an make it plain once and for all that no motorist may travel the public highways at night throwing out a glare of light which is as utterly useless and unnecessary as it is dangerous. Why not moderate headlights to such an extent as to permit other travelers to proceed in comfort and safety? Why not enforce the law impartially without fear or favor—but enforce it rigidly against all offenders.

A man in Arkansas has twenty-three children. He does not take much stock in the saying that there is luck in odd numbers.

CONQUEST OF WHEAT RUST.

Hope for a substantial reduction in the amount of loss which the farmers of this region annually suffer from the black wheat rust is held out by Dr. E. C. Stakman. This promise, however, has only limited application. The barberry campaign is not completed. There are localities where the bush still thrives and still menaces the crop. But in those districts where the eradication has been complete, there should be a distinct gain at the next harvest, other things being equal. The campaign will not have covered the Northwest until the 1924 season, and there remains enough barberry, particularly in North and South Dakota, to cause one of the dread epidemics if weather conditions are, from the point of view of the hungry fust fungus, right.

The moral is plain. The campaign must go on with all possible vigor, which means that not only must the state and Federal agents do their part, as they undoubtedly will, but the farmers must co-operate. Scientists have rarely agreed with the same unanimity as do the plant pathologists on the merits of the strategy which has been adopted against the black rust. The relation between the barberry bush and the black stem rust has been positively established, and, if science did not have all the proofs it needs in the laboratory, the experience of the European sections where eradication of the bush has been followed by a complete elimination of the disease, would be positive proof that the state and Federal governments are on the right track.

It cannot be promised that when the last bush is uprooted in this territory, the black stem rust will be no more, for the southern winds certainly do carry the disease north from the fields where the life cycle of the destructive fungus is not dependent upon the same barberry phase as here, but the danger of serious loss will have been dissipated.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

After visiting the southern and northeastern sections of Minnesota. Geo. Briggs, political writer of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, and a mighty fine fellow, concludes that his newspaper is still opposed to the candidacy of Governor Preus.

A number of the local golf players are seriously thinking of importing a flock of golf hounds. The players are losing a lot of balls in the high grass and believe that the hounds, with their ability to point a golf ball from afar, would be of great assistance to them in the search, says our friend, Fred Hadley.

Pennington county has another champion. Lester Rolland took the state championship in the highway essay contest conducted by the National Highway Educational Board. Theres' something about the air in these parts that just naturally makes champions. Watch our smoke.

The story is told of a young lady of Northwood who the other night before retiring, as was her custom, grabbed from the dresser what she supposed to be a box of cold cream, but housecleaning having been under way she got hold of a box of black shoe polish. When she turned on the light and gave herself the once over in the mirror, she looked like she was made up for the part of Topsy in Uncle Tom's Cabin.—Northwood Anchor.

Give us a few more old fashioned homes, a few more old fashioned fathers and mothers, who, without being narrow and cramped, reverence God Almighty, who know where their children are when the shades of night are drawn, who make for them a pleasant and congenial nest, and you may take most of your laws from the statute books, because more and more there will be less and still less desire to transgress the laws of God or man, says an exchange.

The endorsement of the co-operative movement by Senator Brookhart of Iowa, the man the farmers of that state put over last fall in the face of the most stubborn resistance on the part of the special interests, should bring conviction to the hearts of the faint and unbelieving. Mr. Brookhart did not take snap judgment but rendered his decision after exhaustive investigation of the system which put Denmark on the map as the foremost agricultural nation of the world. Think what could be accomplished in this country with its splendid resources under the right kind of co-opeartive effort.

The action of Governor Smith of New York in signing the law which wipes out the liquor enforcement act of that state will make little difference so far as New York is concerned, for the liquor laws never have been enforced down there and never will. New York is the haven for all law breakers, but the action of Gov. Smith constitutes an invitation to the lawless element to make that state permanent headquarters under legislative protection. If the Democrats care to nominate the governor of New York for president on the strength of his latest act, we are sure the Republicans will not object.

METHOD OR RIDDING CATTLE OF HORNS WITHOUT CUTTING

Preventing the growth of horns on cattle, says the United States Department of Agriculture, is much more satisfactory than cutting them off later, and is much less painful to the animal. The method of prevention is simple. As soon as the budding horns of the calf can be felt as small "buttons," they may be stopped by clipping off the hair over them and rubbing the spot with a moistened stick of caustic potash, which has been wrapped in paper to protect the hands from burning. The caustic must not be moistened enough so that it will run, for it will remove the hair and cause unnecessary irritation. A spot about the size of a dime directly over the "button" should be made raw by rubbing with the caustic stick. Calves must be protected from rain to keep the caustic from running over the face.

THE NOXIOUS WEED LAW.

In line with the well known song and poem, "Laws may come and laws may go but weeds grow on forever," the Legislature of 1923 has again made a change in legislation affecting the control of noxious weeds. This change in the passage of the Noxious Weeds Act, chapter 318, session laws of 1923. In the passage of this act the law under which weed control work operated in 1921 and 1922 has been repealed.

Probably never in the history of the state has there been so much general interest and talk on the subject of weeds as in 1922; farmer, merchant, public officials, all were interested in the cause and expressed freely an individual judgment in regards to the several phases of the project. Naturally the people of this state, especially those who may be directly concerned, will be interested to learn the effect of the new act and how it differs from the other one.

In a general way the act requires that the noxious weeds must be destroyed whenever found standing, being or growing on any land anywhere. Specifically and other than was provided by the repealed act, this new law provides as follows: (1) That the administration is vested in the commissioner of agriculture. His duties are identical with those of the state weed inspector designated by the old act. (2) The state trunk highways are to be kept free from noxious weeds by the state commissioner of highways and the cost shall be paid from the state highway maintenance funds. (3) The chief executive and the governing boards of each city and village shall destroy weeds within the municipality upon the thorofares. (4) The lot owners of cities and villages are responsible for the destroying of weeds between the sidewalk line and the curb line. (5) The county boards "may at their discretion" appoint local inspectors for the county the same as was done in 1922; but, if the county boards do not make such appointments, then the town chairmen are the men designated by the law as the local weed inspectors. (6) In cities and villages of 5,000 or more inhabitants, when the commissioner so directs, the mayor or president as the case may be shall appoint one or more weed inspectors. (7) The duties of the local inspectors are identical with those of 1922, except that if weeds are found on nonresident owned lands, the inspector posts a notice on the lands, publishes a similar notice in the nearest newspaper and mails the owner a duplicate copy. Then if the weeds are not destroyed as noted the inspector proceeds to destroy them. If weeds are found on tax exempt lands, the official or person in charge thereof is held responsible for the destroying of the weeds. (8) The reporting of local inspectors to the commissioner and to local officials as a check on the service is provided for in section 11 of the Act.

These in brief are the high points of the new law:

In the old act the cost was paid by the county auditor when the local inspector hired some one to cut weeds not cared for by the party chiefly interested in the land that harbored the weeds. The auditor then put the cost plus a $10 penalty on the tax statement against the property, the owner paid it and the county was reimbursed. The new act provides in the case town chairmen are the local weed inspectors the cost of destroying plus other expenses connected therewith shall be paid by the clerk of the town or municipality in which the lands involved are located. The clerk then reports the items to the county auditor, who spreads the amount of the account on the tax books and collects the following spring, the item together with the other taxes. When so collected the auditor reimburses the town or municipality.

To make this work and the funds expended most efficient and effective it will be necessary to have the co-operation and assistance of those vitally concerned in the control of noxious weeds and such factors, educational and otherwise, leading thereto.

SAY BILL!

The
I met a fellow who had
DIAMOND CORD TIRES
on the rear
of his car
and two undersized,
frail looking, skimpy
on the front.

They had been used two weeks
and looked
in another
two weeks.

He had paid
$8.00
apiece for them
like they would give $2.00
worth of service.

He bought them on account of
in the investment.

They were tires built

I wouldn't put a set of them
on a baby carriage.

They would cheapen
the appearance and I'd be afraid
tire trouble.

He promised to come in
with me when he needed tires
but didn't expect he would need anything
till in the fall.

About
he drove up with those skimpy,
undersized
front of his car
and the other
slipping.
He bought
two
that he would
merchandise
again.
The
of his car
he claims
like they are good for 5 or 10,000
of my
is that
you can buy
Next time you buy a
and it will
before you need another.

Highway Bonds Sold and Work to Begin Soon

Right-of-Way Concessions Being Secured—Bids to Be Let in St. Paul.

Minnesota Loan and Trust Company Takes Entire Block of $90,000.00.

At a special meeting of the board of county commissioners held at the office of County Auditor T. P. Anderson Friday, by resolution the Minnesota Loan and Trust company was allotted the entire block of the $90,000 refundment bond issue, ordered by the county board at their last regular meeting.

Men are now engaged in the work of securing right-of-way concessions for the highway. Many of the concessions already have been secured. and as soon as contracts are let by the state highway department, which will have entire charge of the construction, the work of completing the road will commence. It is expected that all construction work outside the city limits will be completed this fall.

The right-of-way inside the city limits has not yet been definitely decided upon. However, it is known that the road will enter along the highway running parallel with the road to Oakland Park sanitarium. After crossing the ditch, it will swerve toward Riverside boulevard and connect with Main avenue and into the business section of the city.

P. O. Landeen of Warren, who had secured the contract for the construction of the Highlanding-Goodridge road, appeared before the board and asked permission of the members to have his contract taken over by H. P. Lund of this city. Permission was granted by unanimous consent of the board and the work of construction is expected to start in the near future. The contract calls for two miles of construction on the north side of Red Lake river and two miles on the south side of the bridge at Highlanding. When completed, the road will be an all-graveled highway south to Oklee.

FOUR ADMIT HANDLING STOLEN CO-OP. BUTTER

Suspended Sentence Last Chapter in Creamery Association's Fight.

Frank Koch, Carl Brauning, Agnes Casey and A. J. Casey last week in Ramsey county district court pleaded guilty to receiving butter stolen from co-operative creameries in the vicinity of the twin cities. Each was given suspended sentences of six months in the workhouse. In the case of Koch, a fine of $100 was imposed. This was paid.

The four were charged with receiving butter stolen by two men named Bladd and Meyers, each of whom is serving a sentence of ten years.

Sentencing of the four was the last chapter in an extended campaign on the part of the Minnesota Co-operative Creameries association to round up a gang that has been stealing butter from co-operative creameries for more than two years. Through the association's efforts, butter traced to these parties will be paid for, so the local creameries will sustain no actual loss.

Swedish Players Please.

The "Skansen Salskapet," which gave a musical and vaudeville entertainment at the Sons of Norway hall last evening in the Swedish language, is composed of artists of high order. They gave an entertainment which was meritorius far above ordinary traveling troupes and it is to be regretted that only a comparatively small house came out to hear them. Should they again visit the city they may be assured of much better patronage. The company started from Chicago this spring and is making a tour of the entire country.

SEEK NATIONAL PLAN TO HELP PRODUCERS

Outstanding Leaders on Program of Wheat Conference at Chicago June 19 and 20.

Senator Capper, O. E. Bradfute, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and other well known leaders are on the program for the national wheat conference, which opens a two-day session at Chicago June 19.

Though the project, which has for its object a national program which will bring relief to farmers and the industries which they support has been under way but two weeks, widespread interest is manifest in all the farming sections of the country, according to James F. Bell, prominent in Minneapolis milling circles.

"The conference is a broadly planned effort to bring together all interested in wheat from its raw state up through the many processes of manufacture to the finished product," said Mr. Bell. "It will give all these interests, allied industries and producers of staple products of the farm that are carried into consumption by wheat, an opportunity to co-ordinate their efforts in restoring the purchasing power of the farm for its own sake and for the sake of the general industry."

Advertising Pays.

The editor was a believer in "yellow" journalism and ran thus a leading item:

"The business man of this town who is in the habit of hugging his stenographer had better quit, or we shall publish his name."

The next day 37 business men called at his office, paid their subscriptions a year in advance, left 37 columns of advertising to run indefinitely and told the editor not to pay any attention to foolish stories.—Judge.

Large Crowd Attends Community Picnic at Highlanding Sunday

Senator C. L. Hansen Reviews Work of Last Legislative Session Before Enthusiastic Gathering.

A large crowd attended the picnic held Sunday under the auspices of the Community Welfare club at Highlanding, an annual event, when one of the largest crowds in the history of the club gathered to enjoy the cooling breezes of Red Lake river, the sports events and a splendid program which had been arranged by the committee in charge.

Senator C. L. Hansen of this city delivered the main address of the day and dwelt mostly on the accomplishments of the last legislative session at St. Paul. The senator commended the spirit of the farmers of the Northwest and stated that their determination to win success along agricultural lines would surely be rewarded and that prosperity would soon return in the form of increased prices and a better understanding between producer and consumer.

Mr. Hansen stated that the last session of the legislature was, in his opinion, one of the most successful in years and that more legislation calculated to be of benefit to the farmer was placed on the statute books last winter than has been accomplished at any former session in the history of the state. He pointed to the rural cerdits law and the co-operative marketing law as two of the most important laws of the last session.

O. R. Sande, county superintendent of schools, sang two solos, and a baseball game between Highlanding and Grygla ended in a victory for the latter by a score of 22 to 8. A number of Thief River Falls people attended the picnic.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wagner returned Friday from a seven months' motor trip to Texas. They covered some 5,700 miles and saw lots of country but none they liked any better than Minnesota, at least for spring and summer. Most of the time they visited with relatives at Mission, Texas. Mr. Wagner was laid up for some weeks with blood poisoning as a result of catching his arm in a fish hook. No state that they covered in their travels has better roads than Minnesota, Mr. Wagner states, although Texas has some fine highways. Oklahoma and Kansas roads leave much to be desired, he says. Enroute home they visited at West Union, Iowa, with relatives, and at Bemidji.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

SOUND, WELL-CURED HIDES ARE WORTH MORE MONEY

Only sound hides, free from cuts on the flesh side, well taken off, of regular even pattern, properly salted and cured, can command a high price and make good leather. Greater care must be taken in summer than in winter in salting, curing and marketing hides, especially by the farmer or country butcher who has only an occasional hide to cure. Partly decayed hides are practically useless.

Definite directions for the skinning, curing and marketing of hides are given in Farmers' Bulletin 1055, a copy of which will be sent on request by the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Kern Olson Injured While Bathing in Red Lake River

Well-Known Salesman Recovering at Local Hospital, Where He Is Confined For Observation.

Kern Olson, salesman for the Gamble-Robinson company of this city, was quite severely injured Sunday afternoon while bathing in Red Lake river at the foot of Tindolph avenue, his back being wrenched and suffering other ill effects of his plunge into the water from the diving board. The injured man, so far as is known, struck no obstacle in the water and it is thought that he will fully recover.

Mr. Olson, is company with friends, had taken several plunges from the springboard into the river when suddenly he complained of dizziness. He emerged from the water without assistance and was taken to his home, and was evidently recovering from the stunning he suffered in the water. He ate his supper and retired about 10 o'clock. At about 2 o'clock Monday morning he awoke and complained of severe pains in his back and neck and hospital physicians were called in. They ordered his removal to the Physicians' hospital, where he is now confined for observation. To a Tribune reporter yesterday morning the injured man stated that he was still suffering from his experience. However, physicians attending him state that he will fully recover and that they look for no complications.

Engineer Wolff to Advise Council on Filter Plant

Alfred Rasmusson Granted Refreshment License By City Council.

New Dance Ordinance to Be Drafted—Former Election Judges Named.

When City Clerk A. H. Akre called the roll at the council meeting last night at 9:15, Aldermen Froseth and Ness were absent, both being out of the city. The meeting had been scheduled for 8 o'clock but it was impossible to secure a quorum until later in the evening.

C. M. Carlson inquired as to what the city council was going to do in making final settlement of his account in connection with the erection of the filtration plant. A letter from Engineer L. P. Wolff was read, in which he stated that he thought Mr. Carlson might be paid, inasmuch as Mr. Carlson offered to fill up the crack in the walls without cost to the city although he might not be to blame in the matter. The aldermen decided they would ask Mr. Wolff to come up and inform the council as to where the blame in the matter should be placed before they would allow any more bills in connection with the erection of the plant. It was brought out in the discussion that while the rear portion of the building had settled three inches altogether, there had been no further widening of the cracks in the past three weeks.

Alfred Rasmusson sought a refreshment license in connection with his present business, and this was granted by the council. It now goes to the mayor for his approval.

A building permit was granted to Chas. Nelson for repairs to a building on lot 9, block 40, Red Lake Rapids addition, at a cost of $800. C. M. Carlson was granted a permit to remodel the interior of the building recently damaged by fire when the Times plant was destroyed, the estimated cost thereof being $6,000.

The application of the Northern State Oil company for the installation of two curb gasoline pumps at the C. Gustafson corner, and of the White Eagle Oil company for Rambeck & Stone on Horace avenue were again laid over without final action being taken.

The bill of Ralph D. Thomas for $2,504.22 for his work in connection with appraising the value and cost of installing a new power dam was laid over until the next meeting.

The regular judges of election were reappointed for the special election next Monday for U. S. Senator. The various monthly reports were also presented and ordered filed. The report of the city clerk showed receipts of $24,267.60 and expenditures of $1,572.39, which left a balance the first of the month of $20,701.76.

The board of review will meet June 25, 26 and 27 to hear any objections to the assessment as returned by City Assessor P. J. Keating and now on file.

The first application for permission to conduct public dances under the new state law was made to the city council last night, Phil Zeh being the applicant.

City Attorney H. O. Chommie stated that the council had better be careful in granting such licenses and advised that an ordinance covering such matters be drawn and passed at an early date. However, in order not to deprive Mr. Zeh of his source of income, he was granted a license for three months at $8 per month. He had told the council that eight dances a month would in all probability be all that he would hold, and the aldermen thought that a dollar per dance was as low as they could go in the matter.

In addition to this, Mr. Zeh has to provide police inspection, the police to be named either by the mayor or chief of police.

Another phase of the matter that came to the attention of the aldermen was the fact that no one could hold a public dance without first obtaining permission from the city council, and as the council meets only every two or three weeks, applications nearly always must be made a considerable time in advance.

Mr. Chommie also pointed out the fact that lodges and organizations which sell tickets for dances to others than their own immediate body come under the new regulations and must secure permission the same as individuals.

Bears Numerous.

G. A. Murray, who came down from his ranch at Manitou early in the week, reports bears very numerous in that section. The marauders have been invading farm yards, drinking milk and doing other damage.—Baudette Region.

Bear Starts Tour of Rainy.

Last week Emil Olson, who lives near the Engler mill site, saw a log floating down the river and on it was a dark moving object. Getting a boat he started in pursuit and as he got near it his eyes told him that a bear cub was the passenger. He took a second look, which verified the rumor started by the first look, and in a few minutes Emil had the bear in the boat, headed for shore. He now has the little fellow in his yard, but he has no use for a bear and wants to sell it. —Baudette Region.

Intertype Salesman Here.

George C. Tiffany, formerly head machinist on the Minneapolis Tribune, now Northwest salesman for the Intertype Corporation of Brooklyn, N. Y., spent Wednesday afternoon in Thief River Falls in the interests of the Intertype company. Mr. Tiffany came here from Fargo, where he had installed several typesetting machines. While in the city visited with S. V. Arneson of The Tribune.

Baudette Raided.

Prohibition Enforcement Officers Herman Miller and Benson made formal calls on several soft drink parlors in Baudette and Spooner Wednesday night and rumor has it that they secured samples of stuff stronger than water at Camp No. One and at the Van Hotel, Spooner. The visits to the Baudette places were without result. There were several prohibition officers in town all week, according to rumors that have been flying through the air. After the local raids the officers left for Williams about 11 o'clock and routed Price Wagner, proprietor of the hotel, out of bed. They found a quart of liquor in the ice box and they took it along.—Baudette Region.

Glad to note the growing appreciation of the birds. The robins, couriers of spring, have increased largely in numbers the last two or three years. This is because the Federal government took them in charge and prevented the annual winter slaughter of robins in the southern states. The birds destroy worms of all kinds, and other noxious pests that prey upon crops, and are a very valuable ally for mankind.—Winnebago Enterprise.

Beauty is worth its weight in gold, probably because it is so expensive. Payments of luxury taxes reveal that our national beauty bill is around 750 million dollars a year, for face powder, toilet water, perfumes, hair tonic and other cosmetics. After all, it's the most sensible way of wasting money. Give us prettier women and more attractive men, and life will be endurable even under almost any economic setback. Beauty, like friends, is cheap at any price.—Winnebago Enterprise.

A couple of 18-year-old boys have been arrested and stand an excellent chance of going to prison for a crime they committed two years ago when they shot holes in a farmer's mail box while returning from a hunting trip. Uncle Sam is very severe with those who damage his property, and mail boxes on the rural routes or in the postoffice are sacred.—Ceylon Herald.

It's too bad men don't have to live with their affinities. It would send them back in a hurry to their wives.

Baudette Man Dies Here Sunday From Tuberculosis

Anton Melhus, 42 years old, a resident of Baudette, Minn., who had been confined at the local sanitarium for some time past, died Sunday morning from tuberculosis. Deceased was born in Norway on June 20, 1880, and came to this country when a young man, having resided in the vicinity of Baudette for a number of years. He was married and the widow and three children survive him. The body was prepared for burial Monday and shipped to Baudette, where interment will be made.

Miss Esther Gjertson, employe of the Great Northern, left Wednesday afternoon for a three weeks' vacation, and will visit Minneapolis and Chicago before going to her home at Sandstone. She plans to visit briefly with Miss Inez Johnson, formerly of this city, who now makes her home in Minneapolis.

A VICTORY FOR AMERICAN MOTORISTS

The Crude Rubber Monopoly weakened when it came into contact with aroused public sentiment. The press of the country today reflects the determination of the American motorist that tire prices shall stay at a reasonable level—and that America must produce its own rubber.

Firestone

CUTS TIRE PRICES 10 PER CENT

EFFECTIVE JUNE 11

We announce a ten per cent (10%) reduction in tires and tubes effective June eleventh (11). The lowered cost of crude rubber and the special Firestone manufacturing and distribution advantages make this possible.

Firestone factories are organized on a basis of large volume and effective production. Costs are down but quality is at its peak. Stockholder workmen are daily building many thousand of Gum-Dipped Cords—the best tire Firestone ever produced and, we believe, the leader on the market today.

Firestone Cords took the first four places and eight of the ten money positions in the Indianapolis Sweepstakes, May 30th, without a single tire failure.

Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords have set new standards in mileage, traction, comfort and safety. Car owners have expressed their approval of the extra value in Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords by increasing their purchases one hundred ninety-four per cent (194%) in the past six months.

We have replaced many expensive branches with warehouses. We now have one hundred and eight (108) distributing points which are delivering Firestone tires to the consumer at the lowest cost in our history.

Follow the tide of economical tire buying—equip with Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords—and learn what Most Miles Per Dollar means to you today.

"U" Experiments With Wheat-Flax Mixture

The growing of wheat and flax in combination will be tested this year on ten farms in Goodhue county in southeastern Minnesota, on one in Blue Earth county in the southern part of the state, on two in the west central counties of Renville and Stevens, and on three in the Red River valley, in Wilkin, Clay and Polk counties. In addition, the combination crop will be tried out on peat land in Marshall county.

The work is being financed by the National Flax Improvement Committee and is being done under the direction of A. C. Arney of the Minnesota Experiment Station, assisted by the agricultural agents in the various counties. Experiments conducted at University Farm for several seasons and farm practices followed in Goodhue county, where wheat and flax have been grown together with much success for many years, have resulted in some distinct advantages in growing the two crops together instead of each alone. There are also some disavantages in growing the combined crop.

This new experimental work is started largely to determine what the mixed crop will do in central and western parts of the state where the rainfall averages less and soil conditions are different than at University Farm and in Goodhue county.

Farmers Want Extension Work.

A number of progressive farmers of Winsor, Greenwood, Pine Lake and other townships of the county appeared before the board of county commissioners at the June meeting of that body Tuesday at Bagley and urged an appropriation of funds to continue extension work in agriculture and home economics.

Under a new law passed at the last session of the state legislature, counties are enabled to have the full benefit of extension work at but very little cost. A great many counties are taking advantage of the new and improved plan offered in the legislative measure and extension activities are being renewed through the state.

Clearwater county commissioners welcomed the hearing on the matter but deferred action until July 9th.—Gonvick Banner.

The Avery Company, makers of farm tractors and threshers, says in a recent letter to its dealers: "A consistent local advertising campaign will produce business for you. Our own surveys made every year show conclusive proof that advertising Avery dealers do from six to 30 times as much business as the non-advertising Avery dealers. Statistics show that 16.000 business men fail every year in the United States. Of this number 85 per cent—13,600—never advertised."

In Tarrant county, Texas, says a report received by the United States Department of Agriculture, about 150 beef animals were canned by housewives during the year. The beef has been made up into stews, roasts, steaks, soup stocks, and chili. Most of the people attending demonstrations by extension agents have given demonstrations to their neighbors and friends, and have thus spread the work.

American Eggs Abroad.

Notwithstanding that chickens are common to every section of the world, civilized and otherwise, the fruit of the American hen is a factor in world markets. Exports of American eggs in the present fiscal year, ending the 30th of this month, will approximate half a billion, with a value of $12,000,000, according to the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York. Trade reports show that these eggs go to every continent and all of the islands and colonies of the world. Canada, Cuba, Mexico and Great Britain are the largest importers of American eggs, with price ranges from 32.5 cents per dozen to 27.6 cents per dozen.

PIG MAKES GETAWAY.

A most unusual occurrence happened here Saturday afternoon when a farmer was bringing some pigs to market. In some way one escaped out of the box in which it was being conveyed and the farmer and some of the townspeople were driving the pigs to the stock yards, and this 220-pound pig ran along the bottom of the ditch east of the Elscholtz garage and instead of climbing out of the ditch as was expected, it dodged into the drainage pipe at the end of the ditch.

The drainage pipe is about a quarter of a mile long and is used as a sewer and in places is between six and seven feet deep and eventually empties into the river.

As it was thought possible the animal would work itself out, no real effort was made to get it out the first day. But on Memorial Day two of the employes of the Hawley Motor Co., attracted by a $10 reward for getting the pig, tackled the job and entertained with their operations a large crowd of bystanders all day. The sewer pipe was cut into with an acetylene torch. Finally the assistance of the fire department was called and with the hose the men managed to get a line past the pig from one of the holes to a man hole and then they pulled a rope through and fastened one end with a hook, but each time as the hook was pulled through it slipped over the pig. A. L. Travincek took charge of operations in the evening, but with no success. In spite of the best minds in Hawley, no one has been able to suggest a practical way to get the pig out of the sewer and it is still there.—Hawley Herald.

THE JOY OF LIVING

(Anonymous.)

"The world is so full of a number of things
I am sure we should all be happy as kings."

Admitting that Stevenson knew what he was talking about when he spoke of kings being happy, I subscribe to his philosophy.

Most men haven't time for it.

I have lots of time. I have an office where I do a lot of writing, some of which pays me. I am an officer in several organizations, I am on half a dozen committees. I own a car, the principal use of which is to take me out in the country to loaf, and I have a wife with whom I foregather, and go places and enjoy amusements and theatres and picnics and trips. I am unjustly regarded as a first aid to the jobless by a large number of people who have indigent relatives who want work, and I have certain civic duties which I perform after a fashion. I read much and I paint some pictures with results that give me pleasure and the office boy a lot of amusement. I am fond of sleeping and, of course, I eat several meals a day.

When I have nothing more important to do, I go to the country club or take a walk, or tease my cell-mate from his work to go to an art gallery.

What? Certainly not! I will never be rich. I haven't time to be rich, but I have time for everything else.

The reason for telling you all this is because so many men I want to entice from their desks "haven't time." They have a board meeting or they have to go over the bills, or they must attend a conference, or do their daily correspondence or something. And a lot of them really mean it; they haven't time for anything except their business.

They are in business to make money. Some of them make a lot of it. But what bothers me is, what do they make it for? What does it profit a man if he gain the whole world only to leave a rich widow?

Most of us have three score years and ten. We use twenty-five of them growing up and getting ready to work. We work madly for thirty or forty years and then sit down to enjoy the last five or ten years, with a big roll in the bank.

What for?

Life is only so long. You can't do all the things life offers in five or ten years. Some of them you can do only when you are young. You can't flivver across the continent at seventy and enjoy it as much as if you were thirty. Seventy cant' enjoy a ten-mile tramp and fall in a creek and wet its feet and roll in the grass and climb a tree and run a race with a rabbit or a squirrel as well as forty. The young traveler learns; the old one sniffs!

Why wait?

If the world is so full of a number of things as to make us all happy as kings, why in time don't we make time, take time, shake time, fake time, to enjoy them?

Money is a fine thing. It buys steam yachts and model farms, stables full of motor cars and suites at expensive hotels, hot house flowers and French cooking. But I'll bet I can row an old leaky row boat over the fishing grounds and have more fun than any steam yacht owner; I can work in my two-by-four garden and have more fun trying to make a tomato vine bear a catsup berry, than the owner of the model farm can, trying to come out on the right side of the ledger; my little car doesn't worry me like a stable full of Rolls-Packards, because if she doesn't go right I throw her away and drop in and buy another on my way home, and no man ever slept in a whole hotel the way I sleep in a tent in the woods when I go nature-crazy and camping. Show me the hot-house flower that gives the joy that the wild arbutus holds when you hunt it out for yourself, or the French cookery that beats a plate of beans you cook over a fire in the open!

What's the use of so much money? Life is just so long, and there are just so many seconds in a minute, minutes in an hour, hours in a day. The fellow who hasn't time to enjoy the "number of things" in the world has a life which yields him but the chance to labor and pile up a surplus.

I haven't time for a surplus. I want to spend it now. I don't want yachts and motors and farms and things; I want to spend my time learning new thoughts, thinking new ideas, getting new impressions, touching as many other lives as possible, seeing all of God's sunshine I can stand in, feeling as much of His rain as I can let wet me, gathering His flowers, touching hands with this glorious world, loving, laughing, living.

Man, I want to LIVE, not just labor. Aye, we must all labor, that we may rest, but God never gave us mountains and blue sky, streams and speckled trout, fire in the open, stars in the sky, white cap on the wave, eagle in the air, without meaning we should see them, be with and of them, love them. He never gave us little children, the woman of our heart, the soul satisfaction of a real friend, without meaning we should listento their laughter, hold them in our arms, clasp their hands. He never gave us music and meant us to deafen our ears from it with the clink of gold; He never let us learn to paint and intended us to close our eyes to the beauty of art with a billhead or an invoice. He never gave us all the "number of things" in the world and intended we should forget them to pile up pieces of round metal or pretty stock certificates, because we "haven't time."

For entirely selfish reasons, I have lots of time for everything in the world I like; what's left over I give to the necessary labor of making a living, but not a bit more time than is required to provide the necessities and a few simple luxuries for me and mine.

Life is too short. The only thing for which I haven't time is the too steady application to mere work.

I have to have time to LIVE.

The Farmer and the Plasterer.

Down in Virginia the other day, a farmer sat down with a pencil and a piece of paper and compiled a few statistics which illustrate better than columns of learned economic discussion why farming is not profitable.

Here they are:

It takes 63½ dozen or 726 eggs to pay a plasterer for one day of eight hours work.

It takes 17½ bushels of corn, or a years' receipts from half an acre, to pay a brick layer one day.

It takes 23 chickens weighing three pounds each to pay a painter for one day in New York.

It takes 42 pounds of butter, or the output from 14 cows fed and milked for 24 hours, to pay a plumber $14 a day.

It takes a hog weighing 175 pounds representing eight months feeding and care to pay a carpenter for one day's work.

It doesn't make much difference what eggs are actually worth in dollars and cents. What really counts is their exchange value.

On the basis of the foregoing statistics, a farmer's time is worth but a fraction of what the plasterer's or plumber's is worth. The farmer would doubtless put in several days labor. It represents the product of half an acre approximately, for an entire year. The actual labor of cultivating half an acre of corn would vary according to conditions, but if plowing, seeding, cultivating and harvesting, and marketing, are all included it would represent several days' labor, not to mention the actual cash outlay for seed and the overhead represented in machinery, lands and buildings.

That may explain why there has been a material decrease in the agricultural population of America during the last few years, while the total population has steadily increased.

No one formula will provide a solution for the problem, and certainly passing a law won't do it. The bricklayer doesn't get a guaranteed government wage. He has learned how to market his labor to the best possible advantage. And the farmer's problem can be solved by a combination of better and cheaper transportation, more diversification, co-operative regulation of production, better farming methods and improved marketing systems.

That may not be a popular program with the farmer who impatiently demands immediate action and a ready made solution, but you can't cure tuberculosis with pills, and you can't cure a deep-seated economic condition with the specific prescribed by a cheap politician.—Duluth News-Tribune.

Eagle Killed in Kittson County.

Last week W. H. Hawkyard of the town of Thompson had a novel experience. Coming from his house he heard a very peculiar squealing sound, and on looking around him he noticed the chickens about the yard all scampering for shelter. It was an eagle. A genuine American Eagle soaring over his farm buildings. He returned to the house and hurriedly made for his 250-3000 Savage rifle, and when Mr. Eagle attempted to soar or otherwise show his exceptional ability as master of the air, a sharp crack from the rifle placed a well directed bullet in a vital spot and down came the bird. He measured five feet eight inches from tip to tip of his wings.—Hallock Enterprise.

The typewriter is making poor penmen of a great many. The number of personal letters—even social and love letters—written by typewriters is legion; until multitudes use the pen so little as to be indifferent in penmanship. It is a graceful accomplishment to be able to write a beautiful hand—an accomplishment once quite common in this country. But typing machines have relegated the pen, in large measure. That famous aphorism, "The pen is mightier than the sword" might be revised to read, "The typewriter is mightier than the pen."

J. G. Johnson's farm home in Malung is a "mosquitoless" place. The reason is that swallows have started a colonization scheme under the eaves of his barn, and it appears that swallows and mosquitoes are not congenial. Last Sunday there were two hundred and eight swallow nests under the eaves and more were in the process of construction.—Roseau Times-Region.

ARE RAILROAD EARNINGS GUARANTEED?

Members of a certain political group have been charging that the "Transportation Act, 1920" (the Esch-Cummins Law) "GUARANTEES" the railroads six per cent earnings on the valuation placed on their properties by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Transportation Act, 1920, provided that the rates should be fixed high enough by the Interstate Commerce Commission to allow the roads to earn a FAIR RETURN, after September 1st, 1920, on the valuation placed on their properties by the Commission.

In 1920 the Commission declared that six per cent on the valuation adopted by it would be a fair return. In 1922 it declared that five and three-fourths per cent would be a fair return.

As a matter of fact, the rates fixed by the Commission yielded the roads as a whole only THREE per cent in 1921 on the valuation adopted by the Commission; and only FOUR per cent in 1922.

If it were TRUE that earnings of six per cent were guaranteed, the Government would have been obliged to pay the roads many millions of dollars for the years 1921 and 1922. No such payment has been made or will be made to any railroad.

THE GOVERNMENT DOES NOT GUARANTEE RAILROAD EARNINGS.

Locals Tie With Red Lake Falls In Baseball Tilt

Game Goes 11 Innings to 3-to-3 Deadlock—Contest Called Off by Umpire.

St. Hilaire Takes Measure of Thief River Falls in Game Played Wednesday.

Thief River Falls tied with Red Lake Falls in a baseball game played at the fair ground diamond Sunday afternoon, and in a contest that went 11 solid innings neither team could come across with the winning run. At 6 o'clock the game was called off by the umpire.

The contest was one of the best played games seen here in some time. A feature of the game was the pitching of "Spider" Yost for the locals and Eddie Keifenheim for Red Lake Falls. Orville Herron started for Thief River Falls and pitched two good innings, when he asked to be relieved, stating that his arm was tiring. He held the visitors scoreless for the two innings. Yost then went to the slab and pitched a masterful game, holding the visitors to a measly five hits. Keifenheim allowed but six hits for the entire game and was going good when the end came.

Thief River Falls was not quite so successful in their contest with St. Hilaire here Wednesday evening, the southern neighbors taking their measure by a score of 8 to 5. The game, the first of the season, was loosely played and errors were frequent and costly. St. Hilaire bunched hits at times and ran almost at will on the bases when poor fielding on the part of the local club gave them almost free access to three bases, including home plate. The box score for the Red Lake Falls game follows:

Fosston Comes Sunday for Game With Local Heroes of Diamond; Team Better

Fosston, reputed to possess the strongest team in the entire northern circuit so far as is known, will come to Thief River Falls Sunday to butt up against the local tribe of baseball performers. Fosston this year has rung up a clean record, having defeated everything that plays ball, and are coming here determined to keep up the work.

The local management has booked up almost every open date for the summer and all teams representing towns tributary to Thief River Falls will be seen here at one time or another during the season. Darby Anderson, the manager, hasn't picked the easy ones, either, as witness the following: McIntosh, Climax, Crookston and East Grand Forks have been put down as certain opponents of Thief River Falls, and Anderson is arranging games with Baudette, Warroad, Gonvick, Bemidji and Roseau.

The local club is giving Thief River Falls the best there is in them, and it is expected that by the time the Fourth of July arrives, the city will have a team that can safely be put up against the best in this section of the state. The management asks for the continued support of the fans of the city, which so far has been generous enough, and it is only a continuation of that attitude the management asks.

Remember, Fosston Sunday. Every Wednesday and Sunday thereafter the local club will be engaged either at home or out of town. Local fans are scheduled to see as good baseball as is exhibited anywhere in the northern part of the state.

Rambeck Home Remodeled.

Oscar Rambeck of the Rambeck & Stone implement company is having his residence on the east side completely remodeled. A new basement has been dug and the house is being moved onto a new foundation. When completed it is expected that Mr. Rambeck will be the possessor of one of the choice residence properties on the east side. The residence property of L. H. Larson is another of the homes on the east side taking on style. A commodious front porch was this week completed by carpenters and is ready for occupancy.

Special Film Is Highly Praised By Clergyman

"The Ninety and Nine" Is Regarded By Divine as Advance in Thought Behind Amusement.

Of all the texts used by ministers, perhaps none is as frequently chosen from the Bible as the parable of the lost sheep, Luke xv. It is a text that sends out a direct appeal to the weak, to those who have gone astray, to the homeless man or woman in the cities who has let misfortune undermine the morale. This parable is the theme of the great Vitagraph Special, "The Ninety and Nine," which comes to the Lyceum theatre here on Sunday and Monday.

The evangelist has found the words of Jesus, "I say unto you, that likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance," perhaps the most positive promise of forgiveness of sins that can be quoted to one who has taken the easiest way. A prominent clergyman, when interviewed on "The Ninety and Nine," said:

"I am glad that such a text has been used in motion picture. It shows a remarkable advance in the thought behind the production of these amusements, and Vitagraph is to be congratulated. I shall see it gladly when it is shown for certainly there is no more powerful medium of promoting good, of bringing to the homeless and straying man a sense of his own importance in the scheme of things, and, most of all, the new opportunity just beyond the way, than the motion picture that is honest and moral.

"If in addition to hope of material betterment aroused in him, there be brought home to him also the spiritual redemption that awaits, then the sin and disease abroad in the land will diminish at a greater pace than it grows.

"The great problem is to reach the man and woman who really needs the words of Christ. The evangelist reaches the smaller town communities and the various religious denominations make an effort to get to the man in the street, but it isn't just the idler and the down-and-outer who needs sympathy and the restoration of hope. It is the man who is just at the edge; the man of intelligence who is slipping over the moral bulwark which has barred him from sin and disaster.

"The motion picture can reach those sort of men and women. The motion picture theatre is attractive to the lonely man and the lonely woman, and if the pictures send out to them the comforting thought that there is awaiting them a fair chance and even a little edge on the percentage of things as against those who need no repentance, then the story is one to be praised.

"I shall see the 'Ninety and Nine' with pleasure, and I congratulate Vitagraph for making a picture on so great a theme."

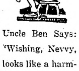
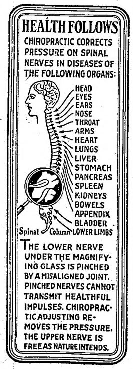
"And So, It Was Kidney Trouble"

Few of us know that when the kidneys are healthy they filter the blood and eliminate fluid impurities.

When the kidneys are weak these functions fail, gradually the health declines and the kidney weakness may take the form of rheumatism or Bright's disease. And so, these are kidney diseases. Before chiropractic became known these diseases were "treated" for the purpose of helping the kidneys to do their work. But nothing was done which restored the power of the kidneys to do their work without help. This is what chiropractic does.



Uncle Ben Says: "Wishing, Nevvy, looks like a harmless pastime, but it isn't—it's a disease."



HEALTH FOLLOWS
CHIROPRACTIC CORRECTS PRESSURE ON SPINAL NERVES IN DISEASES OF THE FOLLOWING ORGANS:

THE LOWER NERVE UNDER THE MAGNIFYING GLASS IS PINCHED BY A MISALIGNED JOINT. PINCHED NERVES CANNOT TRANSMIT HEALTHFUL IMPULSES. CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTING REMOVES THE PRESSURE. THE UPPER NERVE IS FREE AS NATURE INTENDS.

WOMAN IS WELL AGAIN

"Early in 1919, due to weakened kidneys, my family physician put me to bed with knees drawn up so badly I could only sit upon my feet.

"Several years before I had an operation which it was intended would rid me of this trouble.

"Seeing that the family physician now had nothing new to offer, I tried chiropractic.

"I was frankly told chiropractic would take time. In a year I could get about on crutches. Early in the second year I began to walk alone. Today my recovery is complete." — Mrs. Frank Mallory, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1359G.

200 Singers Arrive in City for Sangerfest

Historical Society

Program for Important Event Completed; Stage Set for Songbirds' Meet.

Picnic to Take Place at Squaw Point Sunday; Expect Many Visitors.

The program for the meeting of the Red River Valley Scandinavian Singers association has been completed by the arrangements committee and the stage is all set for the opening chorus at the Auditorium Friday and Saturday, when 200 singers, members of singing societies in various parts of the Northwest, will be heard in Thief River Falls. Hundreds of visitors from out-of-town are expected to arrive in the city tomorrow and Friday to take part in the activities.

The singers' association is about 15 years old and most of the singers have had wide experience and much training and it is expected that the great Scandinavian classics will be rendered in an artistic manner.

The Bjarne chorus of Grand Forks will come in full complement, together with their large orchestra, and there will be at least 75 singers from Fargo and Moorhead. Fertile also has a well-trained chorus.

H. S. HOUGLUM
Tenor Soloist

Local people who have charge of the gathering of singers have not been content to offer the chorus work alone but have engaged the Grand Forks orchestra to play in all of the great songs along with the ensemble singing.

Three soloists also have been engaged. John Nyborg of Minneapolis, a pre-eminent baritone, who will render a group of solos, will also sing the solo parts in some of the choruses. Henry S. Houglom, a well-known tenor, will also do solo and chorus work. Miss Doris Halvorson will render a piano solo both evenings, and will also do accompanist work for the above-named artists. Miss Halvorson has gained an enviable reputation as a piano soloist and improvement is being noted in her work on each appearance.

The Auditorium stage is being enlarged to care for the large number of participants in the program.

Rev. Reuben Aga, Recently Ordained, Takes Young Mill City Woman as Bride Last Week.

Rev. Reuben Aga, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Aga of this city, who has recently been ordained a minister and will take charge of a congregation at Wynot, Neb., in the near future, was married Wednesday, June 14, at the St. Lawrence English Lutheran church of Minneapolis, to Miss Irene Juell of that city, the young bride and groom arriving in the city early this week and will spend some time visiting among friends and relatives before leaving to take charge of his congregation in Nebraska.

The double ring ceremony was used at the wedding, the ceremony being performed by the Reverends Christie of Minneapolis and Sorenson of Moorhead, Minn. Rains Sunday and This Morning Benefit to Crop Downfall During Last Night Comes at Right Time and Grain Will Take on New Life.

A light rain Sunday afternoon and evening and a generous downfall last night will prove of inestimable value to crops of Pennington county and the Northwestern region of the state. Although but little damage had been done because of lack of moisture during the past two weeks, the precipitation this week will give the growing crop a new lease of life.

A strong southwest wind on Monday was so ferocious at times that trees were uprooted and other slight damage done. It also dried up what moisture was available and the rain today will prove highly beneficial.

Some rye fields in this section are very good. Others are thin and were in great need of moisture. Rye is in a healthy state and with rain and some cool weather will turn out good.

Corn and potatoes benefited greatly from the rain this week and today showed the results of moisture.

Ned Cannon, Well Known Traveling Man, Is Drowned

Drug Salesman Loses Life Saturday While Wading in Cass Lake River.

Wife Sees Him Sink But Is Unable to Render Assistance to Husband.

Ned Cannon, well-known drug salesman of Crookston who has been calling on the trade in Thief River Falls for the past 16 years, lost his life last Saturday while wading in Cass river. Mr. Cannon, who was unable to swim, had been wading for minnows and stepped into a deep hole. His wife saw him sink but was unable to render assistance in time to save her husband's life. One theory is that Cannon was stricken with apoplexy. He was very popular in this city and the news of his death was a shock to his many friends here. The Crookston Times yesterday carried the following account of his death:

"Ned Cannon, 52, a resident of Crookston for nearly 20 years, was the victim of drowning early Saturday afternoon near the dam at Cass Lake when he stepped into a deep water hole while wading along the shore of the Cass river and was unable to regain the shore, not being able to swim.

"The accident happened at about 1:30 o'clock shortly after Mr. and Mrs. Cannon and two children, Edgar, 4 year, and Billy, 2 years old, and Mary Lausche had been walking along the shore catching minnows for fishing. In explaining the accident Mrs. Cannon stated her husband suddenly stepped back into an unseen hole. Seeing he was in danger she attempted to aid him, but she, too, got into deep water and nearly drowned before regaining the shore.

"The body of Mr. Cannon was recovered about 30 minutes later. Efforts were made to revive him but to no avail. The body was brought to Crookston last evening.

"Mr. Cannon had been connected with the Noyes Bros. & Cutler drug company of St. Paul as traveling salesman for about 16 years. During the past four years he had represented the Duluth Drug company in this territory.

"He was a member of the United Commercial Travelers and the local Elks lodge. The Elks will have charge of the funeral services which will be held tomorrow afternoon at the house and later at the Presbyterian church at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. F. J. Hibbard officiating. Members of the U. C. T. and Elks will attend the services in a body. Interment will be made in Oakdale cemetery. The remains may be reviewed by friends at the family residence, 515 Elm street, tomorrow morning between the hours of nine and 12 o'clock."

Haakon Hanson, who has spent a few weeks at Ortonville with friends and relatives, returned yesterday.

PREUS, JOHNSON AND CARLEY ARE NOMINATED IN MONDAY PRIMARY

Governor Far in Lead, With Hallam Second: Lindberg Makes Good Showing in State Contest.

Late returns from the senatorial primary held in this state last Monday show Governor Preus far in the lead over his Republican opponents, while Magnus Johnson easily captured the Farmer-Labor nomination over Lindbergh and Fritsche. Senator Jas. Carley of Wabasha is the Democratic nominee.

The vote was exceedingly light in all parts of the state, probably not more than 20 per cent of the voters going to the polls. In Pennington county only 1,162 votes were cast, or a little more than 25 per cent of the vote cast at the last general election. The Republicans cast 501 votes, while the Farmer-Labor party cast 814. Only 23 Democratic votes were cast in the county.

Governor Preus leads Judge Hallam, his nearest opponent, by 30,000 votes, according to reports from St. Paul, the balance of the field trailing far behind. Hallam made a good run in St. Paul, where carried all but one ward, while Preus rolled up a comfortable margin in Hennepin county.

In Pennington county the governor received 227 votes, or nearly as many as all his opponents combined. Schall received 99 votes; Hallam, 61; Steenerson, 58; Anderson, 31; Lundeen, 11; Burnquist, 8, and Power, 4.

Magnus Johnson received 553 votes; Lindbergh, 209, and Fritsche, 52.

The general election will take place on July 16th, and promises to be quite spirited.

Final Plans Are Made For Fourth of July Blowout

Program Is Completed and Committees Named to Manage Events.

Preparations Made to Care For Immense Crowd Expected in the City.

All the important details for the holding of a monster Fourth of July celebration in Thief River Falls this year have been worked out by committees in charge of arrangements and program, and the stage is all set to handle one of the largest crowds in the history of Fourth of July celebrations in this city.

At a special meeting of Elmer Eklund Post held at the clubrooms of the Legion last Wednesday evening, various members of the post and citizens were named to take charge of important committee work and these were privileged to name their own workers. Roy Lambert will have charge of the racing program and already has most of his entries booked. M. T. McFarland will have charge of the motor races, and Alvin Holzknecht has been placed at the head of a committee to arrange for the big dance that will be held during the afternoon and evening. "Ted" McGinn will have the last word in all things pertaining to the grandstand at the fair grounds and the concessions, all of which will be under the management of the Legion. Oscar Paulson, commander of Elmer Eklund post, is the pilot of the whole thing and has named S. V. Arneson as his publicity manager and advertising man. This week three-color Fourth of July posters were distributed about the city and sent to towns up and down the line from Thief River Falls. Press notices have also been sent to newspapers published in the northern part of the state.

A big street parade will be staged, led by the Legion band under the direction of H. S. Snyder, and all merchants of the city have been invited to prepare floats for entrance in the pageant. A silver loving cup has this week been purchased by the Legion and will be awarded the local business house judged as having the prize-winning float in the parade. A competent committee will have charge of the judging of the entries. Service men will be in uniform and will take part in the parade.

A $500 display of fireworks will be a feature of the evening's entertainment at the fair grounds, admission to which will be absolutely free throughout the entire day. There will be a small charge made for entrance to the grandstand, but outside of this all admissions will be free. No one has as yet been chosen to take charge of the fireworks display, but it is expected that some choice will be made this week.

Mayor Arthur E. Nelson of St. Paul, who will deliver the main address at the Auditorium in the early afternoon, has stated in a letter sent to a local committee that he expects to arrive in Thief River Falls on the evening of July 3, and that he will be accompanied by Mrs. Nelson, with whom the mayor is making an extensive tour throughout northern Minnesota. Plans for their entertainment while in the city have been completed.

Fun-hunters on July Fourth will come to Thief River Falls this year, sure as pop! Citizens and the Legion are determined on showing everybody the best possible kind of a time in the line of races, dances, baseball games, fireworks, sports events, etc. and in this connection are doing everything possible to make the hundreds of visitors expected in the city as comfortable as possible.

Posters announcing the final program and individual events will be printed this week and sent to neighboring towns, so that visitors will know just what they are going to see.

Several other Legionnaires of prominence will be in attendance, including Thos. F. Rodwell of Mahnomen, district commander, and R. A. Rossberg of Crookston, state vice commander.

The program is scheduled to open at the clubrooms at 11 o'clock, when delegates will register. The convention will be called to order at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and an invocation will be delivered by Rev. Chas. Gerilnger, chaplain of Elmer Eklund Post. An address of welcome will be delivered by Mayor John Bratrud and Commander Oscar Paulson of the local post. Karl Sundahl, local singer, will render a solo, after which the business sessions will be held and appointment of committees on constitution and by-laws, rules, post activities, next time of meeting and place, finance and such other committees as the convention may designate will be made.

Thos. F. Rodwell of Mahnomen, district commander, will deliver an address, as will R. A. Rossberg, state vice commander, and Stafford King, state adjutant, and Henry Klaus, a member of the state executive committee.

At 6 o'clock mess will be served by the local branch of the Woman's Auxiliary at the clubrooms of Elmer Eklund post. At 7 o'clock there will be a parade of Legionnaires and candidates for initiation, led by the post band. The convention will again assemble at the clubrooms at 8 o'clock when new members from all over the district will be initiated, to be followed by a Dutch lunch.

Morlan Bishop, northern division commander, and O. R. Sande, adjutant, are in charge of the arrangements for the convention, and are busily engaged in laying final plans for the convention. Posts throughout the district are requested to advise Adjutant Sande of their visit, so that the committee will have ample time to make provisions for their entertainment. Approximately a hundred delegates are expected in the city.

Jury Is Drawn for June Term District Court

Seven Criminal and 11 Civil Cases to Engage Attention of Jurors June 26th.

Judge Andrew Grindeland to Preside; Three Local Men Are Impanelled.

The June term of district court will open at the Pennington county courthouse on Tuesday morning, June 26, at 10 o'clock, Judge Andrew Grindeland presiding. According to the court calendar prepared by Clerk of Court Adolf Eklund, there will be a total of seven criminal cases and 11 civil cases that will engage the attention of the jurors.

One of the criminal cases is an appeal from a decision handed down at the last term of court, held here in February, the other six being continued cases dealing with violations of the liquor laws.

The calendar of cases for the coming June term opening Tuesday is the smallest in the history of the court since the incumbency of the present clerk, Mr. Eklund. The total of 18 cases, however, does not mean that only that number of cases will be tried, for legal disputes may be entered upon the calendar up to the time of the convening of court.

Three Thief River Falls residents have been drawn on the jury list for the June term, namely, Olof Ramstad, Delman LeSage and E. K. Aasen.

Thief River Falls Is Represented at Wheat Conference

W. J. Brown, President of American, to Speak at Big National Meeting.

Low Price of Wheat Deemed National Calamity by Governor of Minnesota.

This city is represented today at the National Wheat conference being held at Chicago, in which prominent men from various sections of the country, including the governors of seven states are participating. It has been announced that among the speakers on the two-day program are W. J. Brown of Thief River Falls, president of the American Wheat Growers, and George Jewett of Minneapolis, manager of the American.

Mr. Brown left last week for Chicago, stating to The Tribune before leaving that he considered the conference as of utmost importance and having the greatest bearing upon future wheat prices.

"I would be glad," said Mr. Brown, "if something tangible could be accomplished by the conference in the direction of getting better wheat prices for the farmer. It seems to me that $2 per bushel is none too high and I will willingly give my aid to any movement to bring about such a stabilized price."

W. J. BROWN
President of American Wheat Growers Marketing Association, and one of the speakers at the Chicago conference.

Wheat growers, according to Governor Preus, one of those scheduled to attend, are in the midst of the greatest slump in prices in 50 years.

"Two million farmers will be faced with the impossible task of finding immediate profitable employment for their land and equipment in producing something else unless the wheat industry is stabilized," said Governor Preus.

"The ruin of the wheat farmers will knock down one of the central props of our prosperity, bring widespread unemployment and affect every branch of production by cutting off the purchasing power of the farmers."

The program for the two-day conference included addresses by Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas; O. E. Bradfute, president of the American Farm Bureau federation; F. Edson White, president of Armour & Co.; Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor; Dr. Royal S. Copeland, senator-elect from New York, and reports from Governors Preus of Minnesota, Len Small of Illinois, J. M. Davis of Kansas, A. M. Hyde of Missouri, R. A. Nestos of North Dakota, A. V. Donahey of Ohio and J. C. Walton of Oklahoma.

Ask Your Chiropractor for "The Last Word"

there is a something that stirs at times and breathes upon the dying embers of our souls and fans them into flame; that touches the stringed instrument called our mind, and produces a single note of genius—and then recedes again. It is the divine in us. It is the power that ever urges us onward and upward along the path that no man sees. It built every home and lit every fire upon every hearth. It glorifies the names of father, mother, husband, wife and friend, and sheds a soft effulgence around the names of those who died that we might live. It bends in reverent awe over every cradle and bedews the falling clay of every grave. Through all the circling threescore years and ten it drives us over the billowy fields of life and lulls us into our last sleep with the dream of immortality.

Suspended Firm Barred Forever

Gibbon & Carnes Can Never Again Operate on St. Paul Livestock Market.

Shippers Losing Money By Irregularities May Be Reimbursed.

Gibbon & Carnes, one of six livestock commission firms at South St. Paul suspended and fined because of unfair practices and improper accounting, has been barred forever from doing business on the market, either as a firm or as individuals.

Gibbon & Carnes was suspended for 30 days, a month ago, and fined $250, when an audit of their books by federal agents operating under the Packer and Stock Yards control act, revealed practices which had prevented farmers from getting all the money their shipments had brought.

The Stock Yards Control act is one of the many remedial measures for which the Washington office of the American Farm Bureau Federaton waged a long and determined fight.

Gibbon & Canes recently appeared before directors of the Stock Yards company, asking for permission to resume business. The directors decided that the 30-day punishment and fine imposed by the South St. Paul Exchange was not sufficiently severe and passed a resolution which prevents the firm from ever again using the property of the Stock Yards company.

In addition, officers of the Stock Yards company served notice on the federal authorities that all books and records of Gibbon & Carnes should be kept intact, in order to permit farmers who may have shipped to them to determine whether reported connivery between that firm and association managers had resulted in their loss.

Federal stock yard control officers at Washington have been asked to send to South St. Paul enough additional auditors so that all records may be examined to determine the extent of such losses, not only with respect to Gibbon & Carnes, but all other firms which have been or may be suspended.

An official, high in the stock yards company and in a position to speak authoritatively, said it is "extremely doubtful" whether any of the suspended firms will be reinstated.

Co-incident with this announcement, N. J. Holmberg, commissioner of agriculture, and H. J. Hughes, director of markets in his department, sent a long letter to the presidents of all shipping associations in the state, informing them of the situation in South St. Paul, as revealed by the federal audit, and calling their attention to the fact that if they believe their farmers have been defrauded through commission firms having bribed or in any other way entered into shady negotiations with association managers, an investigation should be instigated at once.

GROWERS WARNED OF SALES ON CONTRACT

Unlicensed Potato Buyers Never Return, if Prices Go Below Agreed Price.

Potato growers of Minnesota are warned against contracting their 1923 crop to unknown, unlicensed and irresponsibel persons, in a statement issued this week by N. J. Holmberg, commissioner of agriculture.

In years past, it has been a general practice for persons operating with little or no capital to go into the potato growing sections of the state about this time of the year and obtain contracts for potatoes at a given price, usually somewhat above the market at the time. If, at delivery time, the market is above the agreed price, the fellow with the contract is on the ground to demand delivery but if the market drops, the producer is left to sell his crop as best he may.

Mr. Holmberg's statement explicitly states that the warning had no bearing on contracts between farmers agreeing to sell co-operatively by means of their own organizations. The new Minnesota Potato Growers Exchange is offering a contract which has the endorsement of the state department of agriculture.

Farmers are asked to bear in mind that dealers are required by law to obtain a license and put up a bond. Anyone without such a license is operating illegally and should be reported to proper officials. If persons offering contracts can show a license, the producer has the assurance that the license is backed by a bond which will assure fulfillment of such terms as the grower is able to obtain.

High-Priced Guernsey.

At the National Guernsey sale, held recently near Philadelphia, a cow sold for almost the highest price ever realized in this country. The cow was Jeannette of the Prairie II, and she brought the sum of $9,000, an exceptional price for an adult cow. This animal was consigned to the show by W. W. Marsh of Waterloo, Ia., and last year was the grand champion cow at the National Dairy show. It is of interest to local dairymen that a half brother of this famous cow, Dot's Cherub, is owned by Sheldon's dairy farm in Grand Rapids, and that this animal heads the Sheldon and Sisler herds this summer. This indicates that as good Guernsey cattle are found in Itasca county as anywhere in the United States.—Grand Rapids Herald-Review.

Richard Lloyd Jones Says

UMPIRE YOUR OWN GAME

Boys have the greatest respect for the fellows who play square. The boy who cheats, who breaks the rules of the game, may seem to be successful; he may claim the fruits of temporary victories, but once he is discovered in wrong-doing, he has lost more than in all the hollow victories he seems to have gained. His playfellows view him with suspicion; he has lost the priceless possessions of confidence and trust.

The world is ever ready to cheer for the fellow who will honestly lose and find victory in losing. The world has nothing but contempt for him who seeks victory by a conduct that short-circuits character.

When the New England baseball league brought its season to an end a few years ago excitement ran high among the fans. The two teams that played off for the pennant had each won two games in the final contest. The bleachers were packed to witness the one last struggle that should decide.

In the last half of the ninth inning, the score stood 2 to 1 against the team at bat. There were two out; two men on bases; the batter up had twice fanned the air; the grandstand was tense.

The pitcher delivered; the batter swung; the grandstand sprang to its feet—a phenomenal hit. The ball shot upward and outward as if started on a journey to Mars. The fielder raced to the corner of the grounds; it was a desperate race.

The keeper of the grounds had not calculated that any ball would ever be driven so far. Along the fence there was a margin of tall grass. Into this the fielder raced. He sprang for it, and with it fell into the grass. The crowd stood breathless. Then from the grass the fielder rose and held high the ball in his hand, an evidence that he had made the catch, that he had made an out, completed the inning, won the game, gained the pennant for his team.

The moment was his. The fans of his city spent their wild enthusiasm in maddening cheers. Then all changed. The hand that held the ball high was lowered and the head that had risen defiantly out of the tall grass sank and was shaken negatively. The cheering ceased; funeral silence lay over the bleachers like a cloudy blanket.

The fielder had won a victory that was above the pale of pennants. He who hung his head in humiliation was lifted into the glory of heroism by men who admired a man who dared umpire himself honestly, who could be as fair by his opposing team as by his own team, who could put the Golden Rule upon a baseball diamond and make it a thing of matchless glory.

Every man is instinctively honest. Every man wants to be honest. But the hunger for success, the ear that aches to hear his fellow men cheer, ofttimes dulls the conscience to compromise with self to shade the truth with shallow falsehood. But each such compromise makes more blunt and bending that conscience which is the prop of character. And victory, real victory, comes only to those who have made character the Gibraltar of their lives.

The boy who learns to play the game squarely will become the man who plays the game of life squarely, who will take no mean advantage, who knows that no game is ever won unless it is rightly won.

L. L. Convention Will Be Held in Roseau June 23-24

Next Saturday and Sunday Are Dates Set For Meeting—Noted Churchmen to Be in Attendance.

The fourth annual convention of the Young People's Luther League of the Thief River Falls Circuit will be held at Roseau, Saturday and Sunday, June 23 and 24. The English Lutheran congregation in the village will be host to the visiting delegates and pastors.

Prof. C. M. Weswig, head of the department of Historical Theology at Luther Seminary, St. Paul, and Prof. J. A. Aasgaard, president of Concordia, College, Moorhead, will be there for the convention. Both men stand high in the educational work of the church and are able speakers.

In brief, the program of the convention can be outlined as follows: On Saturday afternoon there will be the business session, and in the evening the convention theme, "Loyalty to Home, Church and Country," will be discussed. Sunday morning divine services will be held, with Prof. J. A. Aasgaard preaching the sermon. Prof. C. M. Weswig will deliver an address in the afternoon, after which a choral concert will be given by the combined choirs of the district, directed by Dr. P. L. Vistaunet of Thief River Falls, and accompanied by Mrs. C. A. Stormo of Roseau. At the evening session Prof. Weswig will speak.

The district includes the territory from Baudette south to St. Hilaire and from Grygla west to Halma. Fourteen pastors serving about thirty congregations are included. Preparations are being made by the members of the Roseau congregation to entertain at their homes the sixty delegates and the pastors who are expected to attend and to give cordial reception to the fifteen hundred other visitors who, it is anticipated, will attend the meetings if the roads and weather are favorable.

The present officers of the Thief River Falls Circuit League are Rev. C. M. Grimsrud, St. Hilaire, president; Mr. John Nystul, Middle River, vice president; Miss Ethel Oie, Roseau, secretary, and Mr. J. Steffanson, Strandquist, treasurer. Last year the convention was held at Middle River.

John Barrymore's New Film Role at the Lyceum

John Barrymore, whose screen appearances have been marked by quality rather than quantity, is to be seen at the Lyceum theater on Sunday and Monday in a characterization which he has declared to be the most interesting he has ever made—none other than fiction's greatest detective—Sherlock Holmes.

"Sherlock Holmes" was directed by Al Parker. Perhaps no other character in fiction is so universally liked and known, and from all indications, the same universal interest is attaching itself to the picturization of the famous detective story. Aside from the magnet of having so distinguished an actor essay the stellar role, the supporting cast has been chosen with such definite care and detail that it reads like a roster of the best known players of the stage and screen. In fact, the making of the picture was delayed until every character down to the most unimportant super, was perfectly cast.

In the cast of players occur such distinguished names as Carol Dempster, who plays the role of Alice Faulkner; Roland Young, who is the faithful Watson, and Gustave von Seyffertitz, who gives an amazing portrait of the despicable Professor Moriarty. Hedda Hopper, Anders Randolph, Percival Knight, Lumsden Hare Louis Wolheim, John Willard and Reginald Denny are also in the roster.

President Off on Alaskan Trip

The President will spend two weeks in Alaska; returning, he will speak at Vancouver, British Columbia, July 26th; Seattle, July 27th; San Francisco, July 31st; Los Angeles, August 1st, and San Diego, August 4th.

Angry Sky Puts Kibosh on Fosston-Thief River Falls Contest on Sunday

Game Ends 1-to-1 After Little More Than One Inning of Play; Game Featured by Much Delay.

Thief River Falls was on the baseball diamond in plenty of time Sunday. In fact, they had more than an hour to spare before Fosston showed up with half a team and announced that they were ready to go on in the event the local team could furnish them with three or four extra players. Had they arrived ten minutes later, all the delay might have been eliminated, for soon after the start of the game, clouds—threatening ones—loomed on a southern sky, and everybody hit for the road and their automobiles in anticipation of a deluge, which didn't materialize at all.

Anyhow, Thief River Falls did something quite out of the ordinary. After the visitors had scored in their half of the first, Sidney Schutt, second up for the locals, pounded a terrific swat into the center field bleachers and ran clear around before the ball was recovered. The score was tied through the instrument of the homer and the fans secured their money's worth.

The Lady Foresters entertained on Monday evening in the form of a double shower in honor of Miss Ilet LeSage, who becomes the bride of Jerome G. Coupie of Michigan tomorrow, and Mrs. Sam Plough, formerly Miss Esther Soards. The party was given at the lodge rooms of the Foresters in the I. O. O. F. hall. As a token of love and esteem the honor guests were presented with a neat purse by the lodge. A pleasant evening was spent at dancing, followed by refreshments served at 11 o'clock.

Surprise Party.

Miss Ruth Larson was pleasantly surprised by seven of her girl friends Friday evening at her home, 315 Arnold avenue north. The diversion of the evening was music and games, followed by a dainty lunch brought by the guests and served at 11 o'clock. Those who participated were Misses Olga Olson, Edna Stageberg, Lillian Erickson, Rose Erickson, Mabel Hendrickson, Ragnhild Klapp and Gladys Remmem.

Engagement Is Announced.

Saturday morning at seven o'clock twelve of the intimate friends of Miss Lela Ennis were invited to breakfast on the porch of the G. A. Murray home. The ladies were all curious to know the meaning of such an early invitation, and they soon discovered it. Between the first and second courses a special delivery letter was given to Mr. John Morris and on opening it a little black bag which contained a paper cat fell out. On it was the announcement of the engagement of Miss Ennis and Mr. H. C. Lende, county agent. The date of the wedding is a secret until another similar letter is received.—Baudette Region.

HOMEY PHILOSOPHY for 1923

Once there was a wise boy. He was wise, not foolish, because he bought a car, and wiser still because he used it. Whenever he got into a jam he'd go into the garage and take a long look at that flivver. And his eyes would fix themselves on the shock absorbers. He'd paid about $20 for them. When he first drove the car he found out he'd better dodge the bumps and soften those he couldn't dodge.

Nowadays he sees that life is just a village roadway calling for improvements, and not a very long roadway either. A little cautious driving and we can reach the end without much shaking up. Then we can go into neutral without worrying.

Gilbert Benson and son, Orrin, of Malcolm, a town in the northwest part of Beltrami county, were in Bemidji this week on their way to Duluth, St. Paul and points in South Dakota. They had built a special body for their Ford automobile which had sleeping and dining accommodations, in fact it was a home on wheels. Various signs and scenic views adorned the body of the car. "Tom" Austad, the talented and whole-souled editor of The Times, is no more. So far as we know he did not have an enemy on earth, and certainly not in the sanctum of The Tribune, where he was held in the highest regard by every member of the force from editor to office devil. He left no legacy so far as we know except the fine traits of character which endeared him to his associates. He wielded a trenchant and facile pen, which he chose always to use as the champion of the oppressed, and he possessed a fund of knowledge and droll humor which stamped him as one of the really great country editors of the state. "Tom" will best be remembered as one who strived hard to mind his own business and be a good member of the community in which he lived, and we believe he will be so cherished in the memory of all who knew him.

A storm of protest has gone up all over the country over the action of Chairman Lasker of the shipping board in sending the new ship Leviathan on a trip to Cuba with six hundred invited guests, the projected trip being to "try her out." Lasker should not be blamed for entertaining his friends at the expense of the government. They are all doing it. Secretary Denby took a party of his friends to China and Japan. There have been congressional junkets to every part of the globe, all necessary and important to the participants, and all more or less expensive to the tax payers. No wonder people are showing a preponderance of sentiment for Henry Ford for president. He would grab a lot of the junketers by the scruff of the neck and the seat of the pants and throw them out in the middle of the street.

The wheat conference now being held in Chicago is of minor importance—when compared to that prize fight at Shelby, for instance—but there are a lot of people just the same who will some day wake up to the fact that unless the farmer gets a fair price for his products, calamity will overtake the country's greatest industry.

The farmer will be prosperous in the future to the exact extent in which he can fix the prices of everything he raises on the farm. This thing of paying what he is asked and taking what he can get will not work out in the long run.

Who said the men quit singing when the country went dry? Come out to the Sangerfest this week and hear the greatest warblers in the northwest make the countryside resound with tone and harmony.

Those who remained at home and were too lazy to vote will do most of the kicking when the final results are made known. To kick seems to be the highest prerogative conferred by citizenship.

It seems that 80 per cent of the people don't give a damn who the other 20 have for United States senator.

WHAT IS A SHEIK?

Must be brainless.

Must wear bell shaped trousers well creased.

He must wear his hair in marcel wave, well greased.

Wears silk shirts—that is, front and sleeves are silk—balance being cheap cotton.

Spends entire salary of $15 per week on improving personal appearance in order to attract his counterpart—the flapper.

Spends leisure time in beauty parlor.

Spends rest of time looking for a cheap place to eat.

So says one of the sheiks who recently left the employe of the Narcotic department after being employed looking for violators of the drug act. The 5,000 sheiks in Minneapolis could not scare up a $5 bill after Friday any week, says this informant, but must look to their dear lady friends for an occasional meal until pay day comes again. Many of them are married and more of them would like to get married to most anyone who can keep them in the style in which they have been accustomed to live.

Criticism Becomes Noble When It Seeks Not to Antagonize but to Foster a Good Work

Learn A Lesson from the Hen

Reasons which seem of real import move us to urge every reader of this newspaper of voting age to cast a ballot in the Presidential Voting Test being taken to learn, so far as possible, public sentiment regarding the coming election. If every country town in which the vote is now being taken measures up to a proper standard of interest the effect may be far-reaching.

This newspaper, by reason of its exclusive franchise in the Publishers Autocaster Service of New York, will record the voice of small towns and country America when the final figures are announced, and it is important that our town should supply a representative expression of local opinion.

Quite apart from the interest that all of us take in learning what our people think of the Presidential Contest, a very vital interest will be taken by politicians. It is the small towns and country America that finally must decide this Presidential issue. The big cities seem wonderfully important, but only to those who live in them. Only one-third of our population lives in towns of over 25,000 inhabitants. The balance is distributed as follows: In towns of 10,000 to 25,000 6.6, in towns of 5,000 to 10,000 4.7, in towns of 2,500 to 5,000 4.3, in villages of less than 2,500 8.5, in other rural territory 40.1.

A really representative vote from small towns and the country is likely to have a marked influence on the handful of men who as leaders play so important a part in deciding on the future government of America. Astute politicians ever have their ears to the ground, and they are not apt to fly in the face of public opinion if it be definitely and aggressively asserted.

Vote for your choice for President regardless of party. Keep your identity secret if you wish, but cast your vote.

Let Our Town Be Heard From

If the great American hen could talk, the principles of democracy would soon be spread over the globe, for there is scarce a land under the sun where the cackle of our barnyard fowl is not heard.

The fiscal year of 1923 will show that approximately thirty-nine million dozen American eggs were shipped abroad in that period, and if we include those sent to our own colonies and not included in the government figures as exports, then the number will exceed forty million dozen. To this must be added the eggs and yolks, frozen, dried, or canned, which brings the sum total up to quite a half billion, having a value of $12,000,000.

In the year preceding the war the value of eggs, dried and frozen, entering the United States, chiefly from the Orient, advanced $37,000. In 1919 it had risen to $8,000,000. Then Uncle Sam's scientific department workers perfected the methods of preserving the product and in two years our importation dropped to $3,000,000.

These silent and poorly paid workers in bare looking experimental rooms in the national capital every now and then add a million or two of dollars to the income of the nation. They should take a lesson from the hen and let themselves be heard from.

THE BEST HIRED MAN.

In an obituary of a working man who died some time ago, Gunnar B. Bjornson, editor of the Minneota Mascot and the brainiest editorial writer in the entire state of Minnesota, made the following statement:

"He had the reputation of being the best hired man in the country."

If he had written a column of eloquent eulogy—as only Gunnar can write—he could not have said more than he stated in those two lines.

The man had been working for someone all his life. You may ask why didn't he work for himself? Why was he content to work for someone else all his life? Did he lack ambition? Not necessarily. Perhaps he felt that he was better qualified as a hired man than as a boss. All men are not equally endowed and it is a wise man who knows his own limitations. No, a man can not be blamed for his own limitations!

The point is just this: He made good in the job at hand. He did the best he knew how. Although he did not sit at some mahogany desk and direct (or sometimes misdirect) the destinies of a million men, he really succeeded for "he was the best hired man in the country."

We have a false idea of success in this country. We seem to feel that a person doesn't count unless he is featured every day on the front page in our newspapers or fits on the silver screen. It seems that everybody wants a white collar job and the common everyday jobs in life are being deserted. Nobody cares to learn a trade any more. We feel that a man is not a success unless he has a million or two, a half dozen automobiles and can take a vacation any time he wants to. No one wants to quarrel with a man who has made his money honestly. He has had to pay the price and make sacrifices. If he hasn't made the money himself the chances are that he won't be able to save it, for it is a bigger job to hang onto a thousand or a million dollars than to earn it.

Happy is the man who has found his work, for if he doesn't get any happiness out of his work the chances are that he won't get any happiness anywhere. The biggest joy that comes to a person is the joy of achievement, and if he can't achieve in the job he is in he had better change his job.

One cold wintry night in England an old evangelist was holding a meeting and only one boy turned out to hear him. He had gone through a series of disappointments and he died that night feeling that his life had been a failure.

The little boy who sat through the services that night turned out to be Toplady, who wrote that wonderful piece, "The Rock of Ages," which has perhaps influenced and converted more people than any other song in history.

The man who does the very best he can does enough. He is a success regardless of whether a bulging bank account proclaims the fact or daily headlines in the newspapers advertise the fact.

What would be a finer epitaph to place on a man's grave than one which said he did the best he knew how with the abilities God gave him and that he stood first in his line of work.

For when the one great scorer
Comes to write against your name,
He writes not what you won or lost,
But how you played the game.

—Waseca Journal.

The Tribune is inordinately pleased to note that the big fight at Shelby will not be called off because of the threatened shortage of funds since those Great Falls bankers stepped into the breach and made up the second installment of the $300,000 guarantee for Champion Dempsey. In our travels through Montana we have noted the extreme poverty of the thousands of drouth stricken farmers of that state, and we feared that perhaps the big fight might suffer for want of funds in a state that seemed so hard up, but it appears the country is safe once more. Hats off to the financial interests who have so nobly come to the rescue of fisticuffs though the people in many quarters are crying for bread, and we sincerely trust the cheers for the victor on July 4th will further bolster up the courage of those who have been waiting for these many years for a decent crop in order to enable them to live.

The Tribune has been convinced for some years that the farmers of the state were being skinned by the livestock firms of South St. Paul, and has not hesitated to say so. They are not all crooked, but enough of them are to call for a thorough house cleaning. When the state weighing system was the bone of contention the South St. Paul commission firms wanted to do their own weighing on the theory that the farmers were paying for something that should be given free. The cause for this solicitude on their part is now evident—being nothing more nor less than their desire to continue the skinning of the farmers by short weights in addition to the system of rebating by which the farmers have lost thousands of dollars. Here is another strong reason for co-operation on the part of the farmers—a system of co-operative marketing which will enable the producer to get as near as may be every dollar paid for the produce by the consumer.

Not only is the Ford Motor company the greatest automobile manufacturing institution in the world today, but it stands alone, a stupendous industrial marvel, into every activity of which there permeates the personality and genius of its founder and guiding spirit, Henry Ford.

LET THE BIBLE ALONE

Heretical, rationalistic forces do not seem to be satisfied with the wreck they have produced. They are responsible for the late war. They are also responsible for the crime wave sweeping this country and Europe. The orgy of sin and crime can be traced directly to false teachings.

Like the vultures they make a feast of the decaying carcass. Not satified with the murder, expense, wreck, and ruin produced, they have written a shorter Bible which will perpetuate the orgy.

The astonishing thing is that there are leaders connected with the certain religious organizations who have lent their names and their influence to the infamous, hell-born production called the Shorter Bible. If these organizations permit their names and the names of their leaders to be attached to this abortion, then the righteous, orthodox Christian forces of America should crush them. Our boys and girls cannot be entrusted to the leadership or to the educational and club features of institutions drawing their sustenance from the churches of the living Christ, to have the faith of those children undermined by such infamous attacks upon God's infallible Word.

The Shorter Bible, so called, is one of the most blasphemous attacks that has been made upon God's Holy Bible.

Orthodox, self-respecting, consecrated men and women will not be insulted by such attacks of the rationalistic forces.

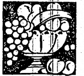
FRUIT WAYS



In the selection of fruit do not let appearance weigh against weight and flavor. An apple of attractive skin may be flat and tasteless. In judging oranges and grapefruit, the weight, if heavy, will denote a fruit full of juice. Thick-skinned, pulpy fruit will be light when tested in the hand. A pineapple should be heavy and its center leaves easily removed, to prove its ripeness.

Bananas may be purchased and ripened at home by keeping them in a paper bag. Bananas are not good food when firm and crisp. The skin may be black, but if the fruit is still mellow, not soft or mushy, they are in fine condition for eating. Fruit kept in the home will keep much better if separated; it is the fact of contact and often the weight pressing into the fruit which cause decay.

Wash all fruit that has been handled, such as apples, oranges or grapefruit, as well as the smaller fruits. Bananas are protected by their covering. Grapes should be dipped, a bunch at a time, into a large dish of cold water.

An abundance of fruits in season will be found to be a good investment, for the family who serves it plentifully will be less liable to disease.

An attractive way of serving bananas is to peel them at the end and, using a potato cutter, cut the fruit into balls; drop into a dish with a little lemon juice and mix well, but lightly, then sprinkle with sugar; add a little pineapple juice or a few cubes of pineapple, some maraschino cordial and a cherry or two to garnish the top of the sherbet cup after arranging the banana balls. One thing important to remember is to remove the fibers or strings from the sides of the bananas when peeling them; this substance is astringent and causes trouble in some stomachs.

Baked Apples.—Wash and core good-flavored apples; core carefully, not to go through the apple. Fill the cavity with raisins, butter and a little brown sugar. Bake in a baking dish with a little water, basting occasionally. Serve with cream and sugar.

Bulletin on Production and Handling of Milk Issued for the Benefit of Teachers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Methods of producing and handling milk so that it will be clean may be taught in schools, as well as other features of farm practice. For the benefit of teachers in farm communities, the United States Department of Agriculture has a bulletin on the use of Farmers' Bulletin 602, "Production of Clean Milk," as a textbook.

Topics of study in connection with it are the reasons why cleanliness is important; first, to the consumer, because of its effect on the wholesomeness of milk as food; and second, the producer, because of its influence on the financial value of milk; bacteria and their effect on milk; health of cattle and human handlers of milk; disposal of waste; how to combat flies; style and care of dairy utensils; stable and milk houses; the process of milking, and subsequent care of the milk. As a preliminary to the lessons, a survey of conditions in the locality is advised, and suggestions for it are offered. Geography and arithmetic are studied in their bearing upon the dairy business; and written work on the subject can be used as language study. The bulletin which gives suggestions on teaching the subject is Department Circular 67.

SUPPLY DRY COW GOOD FEED

Many Men Make Big Mistake in Neglecting Animal During Her Resting Period.

The question of feeding a dry cow is one of the many important factors in successful dairying. Many men make the mistake of paying little or no attention to the cow while she is dry, the idea being that so long as she is not producing, it is a waste of money to keep on feeding her nearly as well as when she is producing. While a cow should not be given as heavy grain ration when dry as when she is producing, at the same time during the six or eight weeks while she is resting from her heavy work of production, she needs to keep her body in vigorous condition. She should, in fact, always gain in weight during that period and should be fed such feeds as will enable her to produce a well-developed calf.

Big Attendance at County Play Day Celebration

Sports Events and Business Sessions Provide Busy Day at School Officers' Meet.

Free Ice Cream, Coffee and Lunch for Kids Proves an Interesting Feature.

The Pennington county play day celebration held here last Saturday under the auspices of O. R. Sande, county superintendent of schools, and Bertha Hastad, was a distinct success in every way. Schools from all over the county were represented at the meeting and the various sports events at the fair grounds and at Tourist park went off as per schedule.

The forenoon was occupied by business meetings of representatives from various school boards throughout the county. There were 121 board members present. During the afternoon graduation exercises were held at the Auditorium when a large number of graduates received their diplomas from the eighth grade. The pupils graduating are as follows:

Arnold Aakre, Erie; Ida Aldrich, St Hilaire; Hannah M. Local Men Take Charge of New White Eagle Oil Station on Main Avenue

Carl Angell and Ed. Ness to Operate Old Manhattan Station in Conjunction With New Plant.

Carl Angell and Ed. Ness, well known Thief River Falls business men, have taken charge of the two White Eagle oil stations in this city, the new station at the corner of Main avenue and Fourth street having opened last week.

The old Manhattan station on Horace avenue, formerly operated by Ben Erickson, has also been taken over by the White Eagle company, and Mr. Angell will have charge of that branch while Mr. Ness will confine his time to the new station on Main avenue.

The Main avenue station is said to be one of the most modern oil stations in this section of Minnesota, all the new contrivances and equipment being installed in the plant. It has the visible measurements scales and the building is designed for the comfort of patrons and others as well as housing the business offices of the plant. The grounds surrounding have been beautified, a small flower garden having been planted in front of the building, in the center of which is located the official trade-mark emblem of the company, a white eagle done in sculpture. A free air plant has been installed and drinking fountains and automobile water supply are easily accessible to motorists.

A large advertisement in this week's issue of The Tribune announces the opening of the new station, and readers are requested to look it over.

Gun Man in Trouble.

Sheriff Slind went to the country north of Williams yesterday and arrested Clyde Doke, who was accused by Frank McGuire of pointing a revolver at him. The men got into an argument and it became decidedly heated, according to McGuire, who claims Doke threatened him with the revolver. Doke appeared before Judge Schmidt and put up bonds to again appear next Tuesday.—Baudette Region.

Big Clearwater Drainage Project Now Legally Dead

The Clearwater project is now as dead as the Red Lake, according to the Gonvick Banner, which says:

"Fate of the Clearwater river improvement plan was sealed last week when counsel for petitioners and attorneys representing those opposed to it, reached an agreement by which it is declared dead and buried.

"Bert Nelson, who has been among those farmers who fought the undertaking most bitterly from the start, was advised of the compromise Saturday by C. G. Dosland, Moorhead attorney who has handled the case for the opposition. Below is Mr. Dosland's letter to Mr. Nelson:

" 'I have just secured the signatures of Chas. E. Boughton and E. E. McDonald to a stipulation vacating the order establishing the Clearwater drainage project and dismissing the proceedings without cost to either parties. The stipulation will be sent to the other attorneys for their signatures. When it is returned to me I shall secure an order from the judge based upon this stipulation. This procedure will save you people a great deal of money as it will not be necessary to try the case in the supreme court. The case or proceedings are now pending in the supreme court.' "

Ford Motor Co. Twenty Years Old Last Saturday

Truthful Story of Development of Industrv Reads Like Pure Fiction.

Success of Biggest Motor Plant Due to Honesty and Courage of Henry Ford.

The Ford Motor campany was twenty years old last Saturday.

And this birthday anniversary finds it enjoying the greatest prosperity in its history and engaged in carrying out an extension program of enormous magnitude, necessary to bring manufacture up to meet the ever increasing demand for Ford products.

In the score of years which have passed since its incorporation on June 16, 1903, the growth of the company has been amazingly rapid and now its activities extend to nearly every country on the globe and the Ford car is in use in practically every land on earth.

The capital originally subscribed in the company was $100,000 of which only $28,000 incash was actually paid into the treasury. Among the twelve stockholders with the company in its infancy Henry Ford held 25 per cent of the stock.

Ford "sold" his car fo the public at the very first start by practical demonstration for he piloted he first Ford racer himself and won race after race in all parts of the country. Driving old "999" on an ice track at Baltimore Bay, Mich., he was the first to break the mile-a-minute record.

In 1907 Mr. Ford acquired additional stock sufficient to bring his holdings in the company up to 58½ per cent.

Development of the company since 1908, when the Model "T" Ford car was first placed on the market, has been marked by unusual success until now it occupies the foremost position in the industry.

In 1913 Mr. Ford set a new standard for the industrial world when he announced his now famous $5 a day minimum wage and the $10,000,000 profit-sharing plan, a move that gained him international fame.

Many will remember, too, a year or so later when announcement was made that if sales went to a certain figure every Ford purchaser would receive a rebate. The sales passed the figure and checks went out by the hundreds of thousands.

When in 1919 Edsel B. Ford assumed the presidency, his father turned over to him all the responsibility of that office and he has taken an important part in all developments of the company since that time. Upon becoming president, Edsel Ford purchased the remaining 21½ per cent held by outside stockholders and on July 9, 1919, the company was reorganized under the laws of Delaware for an authorized capitalization of $100,000,000.

In his ambition to do the greatest amount of good for the largest number of people, Henry Ford has always kept the Ford car within the reach of the person of average means.

Last October the price of Ford cars was again reduced, bringing the various types to the lowest level in the history of the company. And only recently the inauguration of the Ford weekly purchase plan has opened the way to automobile ownership for additional millions of people who can now buy Fords on weekly payments as low as $5.

The first car manufactured by the Ford Motor company was on the road in June and sold the early part of July, 1903. In the initial year, 1903-04, the company produced 1,708 cars and each year has seen a steady expansion until in 1922 production totaled 1,351,333 and this year will pass the 1,500,000 mark, a figure which it is estimated will equal if not exceed the combined output of all other automobile companies in the United States.

Since its start the company has produced more than 7,750,000 Fords and sent them to all parts of the world, and more than 6,000,000 are now in use in the United States alone.

Manufacturing methods of the Ford Motor company have been and remain the marvel of engineering experts of the world. All are based on the most scientific principles, distinctly individual in their advanced steps and they bring quantity production with high quality coming automatically in the process.

Under its present expansion program the company is carrying out on a larger scale than ever before its policy of effecting every manufacturing economy possible. Thus with costs cut to the minimum all along the line, from primary raw materials to finished cars, trucks and tractors, it is able to give the purchaser a high-quality product at a very low price.

It has its own coal mines in West Virginia and Kentucky and iron ore mines and forests in northern Michigan.

The Ford railroad, the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton, connects with practically every transcontinental line, affording unusual shipping facilities.

At River Rouge, with a plant area of 1,200 acres, the company besides having the largest foundry in the world, operates its own blast furnaces, machine shops, body plant, saw mill, coke ovens, cement plant, paper mill, power plant, locomotive repair shops and the Fordson tractor plant.

The parent plant of the company in Highland Park occupies nearly 300 acres, of which 123 are under roof. Here are the general offices, the Detroit sales branch, the boys' industrial school and the world's largest individual automobile plant.

The company has a glass plant at Glassmore, Pa., another at Highland Park and a third is under construction at River Rouge.

There are also manufacturing units at Hamilton, O., Northville, Mich., Troy, N. Y., Iron Mountain, Mich., and several other points in and near Detroit.

A $1,200,000 building under construction at Dearborn, Mich., will provide a new home for the Ford engineering laboratory. It will also house the plant of the Dearborn Publishing company, publishers of the Dearborn Independent, the Ford International Weekly.

There are 34 branches of the Ford Motor company in the United States, of which 28 are assembling plants. These have all been improved and enlarged within the past year and today are producing cars and trucks at the rate of 6,700 every eight-hour working day.

There are more than 9,000 Ford dealers in the country and over 15,000 authorized Ford service stations, making a total of more than 24,000 points of contact with the motoring public.

Foreign branches and associated companies are located at BuenosAyers, Sao Paulo and Montivedio, South America; Havana, Cuba; Copenhagen, Denmark; Antwerp, Belgium; Manchester, England; Barcelona, Spain; Boreaux, France, and Trieste, Italy. There is also a manufacturing plant at Cork, Ireland.

The Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., located at Ford, Ontario, just across the river from Detroit, has an annual output of 75,000 Ford cars and trucks and does business not only in Canada but in the British possessions.

The Fordson tractor was brought out in 1917, during which year 254 were produced. It was developed after years of work and experiment by Henry Ford and his engineers and presents a most sturdy and dependable power plant, easy and economical in opeartion. Like other Ford products, it met with almost instant success and at present the Fordson plant at River Rouge is producing tractors at the rate of 500 a day to keep pace with the growing demand.

The Lincoln Motor company, organized in 1917 to produce motor cars of exceptionally high quality, was acquired by the Ford Motor company at a receiver's sale February 4, 1922, for $8,000,000, and only recently Henry Ford paid to the creditors of the company an additional $4,000,000 to make up their losses, though under no obligation to do so.

Speeders Draw 90 Days in Jail at Crookston

Polk County Authorities Determined to Make Motorists Observe All Traffic Regulations.

A couple of drunken drivers wil. have time to reflect over their recklessness by the time they get through serving sentences imposed upon them Monday by Judge Hendricks of Crookston, who gave a couple of drunk transients 90 days in jail with no option of a fine. This is an account of the affair in the Crookston Times:

"First victims of the war on speeders and traffic violators declared by the local police department were sentenced to jail terms by Municipal Judge J. A. Henricks this morning and were not given any choice of a fine or probation, as has been the case up to this time.

Pandelo Tunaro, 28, of New York city, and William Hoskins of Alexandria, Minn., each drew a sentence of 90 days in the Polk county jail after having been arrested at about 9:30 o'clock last evening on charges of speeding and reckless driving while intoxicated. Tunaro, it is alleged, was driving Hoskins' car, which bore a Minnesota license, about the city and in Central park in a reckless manner. He struck one tourist's car and had hit several trees, reported Chief of Police David Sanders. The men were lodged in the city jail over night and appeared before Judge Hendricks this morning for trial. They were found guilty and given 90 days on the hill.

"Daniel Smith, 23, of Grand Forks, but a former resident of Crookston, was taken into custody on Saturday evening on the charge of speeding. It was stated that he drove a car 40 miles an hour through the city streets. Smith was also given a hearing in Municipal court and drew a jail sentence of 30 days.

"Chief Sanders declared today that the war on speeders and reckless drivers would continue throughout the summer months as a move to safeguard lives of pedestrians and sane motorists."

WHAT THE WORLD IS DOING

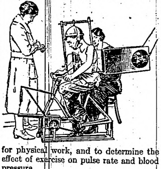
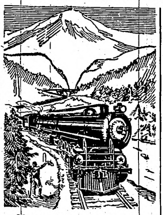
X-Raying Heart Action of School Children

Impressed by the fact that 50 to 70 per cent of school children are to some extent physically defective—a portion having curvature of the spine or other less obvious deformities, while fully two per cent suffer from diseases of the heart—physicians of Minneapolis have introduced a new system of physical examination. Chief among the new devices for this purpose is an X-ray camera for taking pictures of a child's heart while he is engaged in pedaling a stationary bicycle.

By means of a metal framework the body of the child is made to support the picture-taking apparatus, so arranged that the box containing the X-ray tube hangs on his back, whereas the film holder is suspended in front of the heart region. The child is then directed to "ride" the bicycle as fast and hard as he can, and the picture of the heart is taken while he is in action. Changes in size and shape, which help to tell the story of health or disease, are thus easily recorded. The bicycle is also used to measure the child's capacity for physical work, and to determine the effect of exercise on pulse rate and blood pressure.





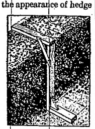
Monster Locomotive Pivots on Front Truck

"Double headers," "helpers" and "pushers"—the first named of which, in a railroader's language, means two locomotives at the front end of a train, and the last two designating the locomotives coupled on the rear end, to move trains up steep grades—probably will become only memories, if monster locomotives like the one illustrated are to be generally used.

When this big Mallet-type locomotive takes a curve in the track, it cannot make the turn as its smaller brothers do, as it is 108 feet long—one of the largest ever built. Its boilers swing on pivots independently of the wheels. It has 12 driving wheels, weighs 850,000 pounds—425 tons—and carries 12,000 gallons of water and 4,000 gallons of oil. Its use has largely been confined to freight hauling on a western road, and it easily handles a hundred cars through the Rocky Mountains.

A Gauge for Clipping Hedges

A little time spent in making the hedge-clipping gauge shown in the drawing will go far to improve the appearance of hedge fences by making it possible to clip the hedge uniformly.



The perpendicular member of the gauge is made from a piece of 2 by 4-in. material, but the horizontal parts may be of lighter stuff, the dimensions to which such a gauge is made depending upon individual requirements. In use, the trimming is begun at one end of the hedge, the gauge being held in an upright position by standing upon the bottom member. Clip as much of the hedge as projects above the top of the gauge, moving it along as the work proceeds.

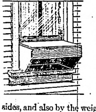
Keeping Out the Rain

The drawing shows a good method of keeping rain out of the open window of a sleeping room, where it is essential to have fresh air at all times, even during rainy weather. A wooden box is made to fit between the window jambs and rest on the sill. It is held in place by means of thumbscrews on the sides, and also by the weight of the window on top. The opening is made on the underside of the box, so that rain cannot enter.



Dusky Maiden Purloins Purse From Nybakken

Member of Wandering Band of Gypsies Is Fast Worker in Geeting Money.

Sheriff's Office Halts Band at Middle River and Recovers Lost Bills.

Quick action on the part of the sheriff's office last Thursday resulted in the arrest of a band of gypsies who had invaded the city early in the morning, remaining only long enough to gather in a few small pieces of coin. One of the women then grabbed four ten dollar bills and ran, the whole aggregation then moving north at a fairly good pace until intercepted at Middle River.

About 11 o'clock the band of gypsies had their dinner on Atlantic avenue a short distance north of the Soo station. Just beyond, one of the women asked Peter Nybakken, 703 Atlantic avenue notrh, for permission to tell his fortune if he would place a dime in the palm of his hand. He consented and pulled out his purse and opened it to take out a dime. While he was doing so the gypsy spied some currency in the pocketbook and made a grab, securing four ten dollar bills. She proceeded to run and the whole caravan ten started north.

Mr. Nybakken immediately got in touch with the sheriff's office and Deputy Sheriff Geo. C. Stein started in pursuit. On arriving at Holt he learned the band had continued on toward Middle River. He called that place on the phone and Emil Hallquist volunteered to get a few men and halt the band. This they did, keeping them in custody until Mr. Stein reached the village.

On arriving there Mr. Stein ascertained that one of the cars in which the gysies were traveling had stopped just south of the town. He retraced his steps and located the auto, but the woman he wanted had disappeared in the brush. On returning to the place where the others were he told them to hand over $55 or the whole outfit would be taken back to Thief River Falls. They parlied and endeavored to get off with the payment of only $50 but failed, and then paid the $55 and were released. The money was then brought to this city and $40 returned to Mr. Nybakken.

Local Firm Receives Carload of Chevrolets

Kohn & Fiterman, local agents for the Chevrolet Motor company, this week received their second shipment of cars, which will be distributed in territory surrounding Thief River Falls. There are both enclosed and open models in the shipment, fully equipped and ready for the road.

Ride Offer May Be Expensive.

The following dispatch from Fergus Falls to the Pioneer Press tells of an Underwood man who surely appreciates the offer of a ride in an auto. The dispatch says: "Dr. F. E. Conyngham of Underwood recently invited E. A. Engebretson, a jeweler in that village to take an automobile ride with him. The automobile overturned and Engebretson was injured. Monday he filed suit in district court asking $10,300 damages from Dr. Conyngham. The complaint alleges that the doctor is a reckless driver, and the plaintiff further declares that at the time he accepted the invitation to be the physician's guest he did not know this to be a fact."

Impoverished Agriculture Calls for Better Methods

(By GEO. E. DUIS)

[Editor's note: This is the first of a series of six articles on various phases of co-operative marketing, written by Geo. E. Duis. Mr. Duis pioneered the wheat pooling movement in North Dakota and is now president of the North Dakota Wheat Growers Association. He also took an active part in the formation of the American Wheat Growers, Inc., the national sales agency.]

ARTICLE I.

At no time in the history of North Dakota has interest in co-operative marketing been more intense than at the present time. The reasons are three-fold; first, because agriculture in this state as well as elsewhere has reached such a stage of deflation that all are agreed something must be done to improve the financial conditions of farmers in this state; second, farmers and businessmen alike have learned that co-operative marketing has worked wonders in improving farm conditions in other sections, and therefore they look to this new economic movement as one of the prime factors that will better conditions among the grain growers of the northwest; third, co-operative commodity marketing associations, established on the principle of the 100 per cent compulsory pool, which has proven so phenominally successful in California and other states, have sprung up in the wheat growing states.

According to a recent statement of the United States department of agriculture, the farmer's dollar will buy only 69 cents worth of the other men's goods. He must pay them $1.31 for every dollar's worth of goods he needs, and sell them $1.31 worth for every 100 cents they give him. How long can the farmer continue to do this without going broke? Many contend that he is broke. One thing is certain, that at the present time agriculture in the northwest is on the down grade, both in dignity of position and rewards for labor, until we have come to a time when investments of money and labor in production yield lower returns than similar investments in any other of our great basic industries.

Just the other day I received a report from the United States department of agriculture, which showed that the average cash return of over 6,000 representative farms in this country was only $715 on a capital investment of $16,400, during the year 1922. That makes a return on investment of slightly over 4 per cent. I venture to state that if this survey had been confined to grain farms of the northwest the balance would have been on the other side of the ledger.

What is this condition leading us to? Farmers in the northwest are finding their debts piling up until we dread looking into the future farm mortgages in North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, and Montana, have increased from $169,000,000 in 1910 to $530,000,000. Delinquent interest in the Ninth Federal Reserve district is now $75,000,000. Short time loans increased from $600,000,000 in 1921 to $1,200,000,000 in 1922.

It is the sheerest folly for the farmers to continue the individual distribution in competition with each other. The individual is confronted with the strongest kind of buyers' organization when he sells his products. In fact he does not sell; he humbly begs the buyer to take his produce at the buyer's own price. We farmers pride ourselves on our "independence," while in truth, as individuals, we are the most hopelessly dependent class of people on the face of the earth.

What would happen if the stockholders of a flour mill were given sacks of flour as their share of the proceeds of the business, and were then required to sell this flour themselves? How much would they get for this flour? Do you think the price would be uniform and net a profit? No, indeed! Middlemen would scurry around among the stockholders and buy up the flour at the lowest possible price and make big profits from the resales.

This is what happens to the growers of grain. They toil from sunup until sundown producing foodstuffs that the world may be fed, and no one can accuse the American farmer of being an inefficient producer; but notwithstanding his skill as a grower, he is hopelessly helpless, as an individual in moving his farm products into the channels of commerce on fair terms.

This handicap can only be overcome by the grower adapting himself to the new conditions, and using the modern methods of merchandising similar to that used by other industries. Stockholders of manufacturing plants pool their interests and hire experts to sell the goods. They share the profits equally and all are benefitted as a result.

In the next article I will give a résumé of what the wheat growers have accomplished along co-operative lines.

Emil Norquist brought in the other day a most remarkable misformed specimen of a young bird, which had been hatched in the hay loft of the barn. It had no down or feathers and the skin was bloated out to a big sack and transparent. Through this transparent bag the inner organs, like the heart and lungs, could plainly be seen working. The little baby bird was also otherwise deformed with one leg leg projecting through the skin balloon on its back, nor had it any eyes. It was alive and took nourishment when fed to it.—Roseau Times-Region.

Tourist Gets 1046 Miles to Gallon; Doesn't Need Oil; Eats Oysters Fresh Joys of Tourist Traffic, if True, Should Prove Boost to Future Traffic Into California.

George Baken, who left here last week in company with his wife and family on an automobile trip to California, in a letter to his former fellow journeymen at the Crown barber shop, speaks in glowing terms of the joys of tourist travel. It is thought that this letter will have a good effect on other Thief River Falls people who contemplate making triups through the west during the summer.

Baken says they have had fresh oysters at Valley City, N. D., right along. Local friends are unable to understand this as they had always been under the impression that Valley City was in the throes of summer and that oysters positively do not appear in any other months than those which somewhere in the course of their spelling contain an "R." But as Baken has always been noted for his veracity, it is difficult to question the authenticity of the report.

Again—and even worse—champagne was even served him at the tourist camp in that city. Jumpin' Jupiter! And his friends were laboring under the illusion that even cigarettes were purchased with extreme difficulty out there. He says he makes 1,046 miles to the gallon of gasoline. He fails to state, however, where he purchased the unusal benzine that burns up so slowly in his new flivver. It must have been on account of the steam carburetor which he had attached to the regular gas mixer a few days before he started the long jaunt into the west.

Baken's car doesn't use any oil, according to his letter. He must be using Denver mud in the crank case of the brute, say his friends, for they cannot conceive of an engine that will function perfectly mile after mile of bad roads without a lubricant.

Grub is free! That's what he states in his letter. Can you imagine getting eats out among strangers for nothing? Neither can his friends, unless bread lines have been established out westward. There's only one thing left, and that is to publish the missive he sent back, and here it is:

"I got here at noon today (Valley City) and will stay until tomorrow, as we have shower baths, etc., here. We went as far as Fargo yesterday. We didn't get started very early. ......

"We got 1,046 miles to the gallon of gas and we don't need any oil. Our grub is free and we get presents along the way. We haven't had any car trouble. Right now I'm going to have some fried oysters, quail eggs (poached), champagne, mashed potatoes, corn on the cob, mince pie, coffee, and a two-bit cigar. Good-bye. George."

The Tribune has Georges' word for it. Perhaps had he known when the letter was written that it would be published he might have been more careful as to its contents. Take it for what you will. The Tribune hasn't stated anything that Baken did't relate.

Fishing Was Fine.

G. Howard Smith, accompanied by Mr. Wride, spent several days at Twin Lake in Mahnomen county on a fishing trip. They returned the first of the week and report fishing in that section exceedingly good.

He Had a Little Still.

Judge Schmidt handed out a fine of fifty dollars and the trimmings Monday to Arthur A. Cooley of Norris township, who pleaded guilty to having a nuisance on his place. The nuisance was a still that turned out moonshine in large quantities. Sheriff Slind got wind of Mr. Cooley's operations, and armed with a search warrant he paid him a call, with the result that the apparatus was discovered. The alternate to the fine was a stay of fifty days in Mr. Slind's castle with the iron mosquito bars, but Mr. Cooley planked down the cash.—Baudette Region.

Emil Hallquist Electrocuted at Middle River

Restaurant Proprietor Killed in Trying to Fix Fuse in Transformer Box.

Body Falls From Top of Pole in Presence of Two Companion Helpers Present.

Emil Hallquist, restaurant proprietor of Middle River, met with instant death last Thursday afternoon while attempting to repair a fuse in the transformer box located on a light pole at the south end of the city.

It seems that Hallquist was called upon to repair a fuse earlier in the day, but the fuse blew out and at the second attempt he was instantly killed upon reaching the top of the pole, his body falling heavily to the ground when the current fairly leaped out from the high tension wire and coming in contact with his body. He was said by his companions to be warm and sweaty when he climbed the pole and this may have had something to do with his electrocution. He was considered fairly well experienced in electric work, having repeatedly made minor repairs in the electric light system at Middle River.

Mr. Hallquist was well known in Thief River Falls, being a member of the local lodge of Elks, which he had joined while a resident of Lancaster. He came to Middle River about a year ago when he purchased the restaurant and confectionery formerly operated by Thompson brothers of this city.

Mr. Hallquist was 37 years of age, being a native of Sweden, which country he left at the age of 16. He is survived by his wife and two children, the oldest of which is three years and the youngest six months.

The funeral took place Sunday afternoon at Lancaster, the former residence of the deceased, Rev. Parkander of the Swedish church officiating at the obsequies.

Goodridge State Bank Increases Its Capital

Enlarged Capital of Institution Necessary to Properly Care For Growing Business.

Amended articles of incorporation of the State Bank of Goodridge show an increase in the capital stock of the institution from $10,000 to $15,000, such increase being made necessary according to the officers of the bank by the growing demands upon it.

Among the local men who have subscribed for the new issue of stock are Carl B. Larson of the Larson Furniture company, Lars H. Larson of the Thief River Music company, H. O. Chommie, Roy Halseth and H. S. Dahlen of the First and Peoples State bank, and president of the Goodridge bank.

Roy Halseth, formerly of the Thief River Music company of this city, is one of the new stockholders who has associated himself with the bank, having recently taken a position as assistant cashier with the institution.

The "Has-Beens" to Play "Would-Bes" on Friday

On Friday the "Has-Beens" are scheduled to meet the "Would-Bes," the first team of the city. The former claim to have good baseball material and several of them are known to have flung a nasty game at some time or other during their lifetime. Some are former members of clubs here and others are known only for their own egotism and have been talking a lot about their abilities. There will be practice at the fair grounds some time during the week and Charles Nason, sponsor for the "Has-Beens," is going to size them all up and weed out the "undesirables." The regulars are taking the game seriously enough, however, and know they have something to contend with.

Meeting of Red Cross Members.

Members of the Red Cross will please meet in the Commercial club rooms Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The Red Cross has been requested to have an exhibit at the county fair, together with demonstrations by an expert swimmer and diver, of the proper steps to be taken to save from drowning. Please attend and help to decide whether or not such an exhibit is wanted.

Elks and Masons Conduct Austad Funeral Rites; Burial Is Made at Duluth

Former Editor of Times Laid to Rest at Forest Hill Cemetery Last Saturday Afternoon.

Funeral services for Thomas J. Austad, former editor of The Times, whose death occurred last Wednesday evening at 10 o'clock, were held Friday evening at the Elks' clubrooms in this city under the auspices of the Elks and Masonic lodges.

Rev. J. B. Smith of the M. E. church preached the funeral sermon and the eulogy for the Elks' lodge was pronounced by H. O. Chommie, who paid a well-deserved tribute to the good qualities of the deceased editor. Several beautiful selections were rendered by a quartette composed of Miss Maude L. Johnson, Mrs. Christenson, Messrs. Karl Sundahl and E. M. Bennes. The Elks' lodge conducted the main service, followed by the reading of the ritual ceremony of the Masonic order by F. F. Haynes, W. M.

Following the sermon at the hall, the Elks and Masons formed a funeral escort which accompanied the remains to the Soo depot. The remains were taken to Duluth by G. W. Connell and William BonDurant, where the funeral was held Saturday afternoon.

Many beautiful floral designs were placed upon the bier of the deceased by various organizations of the city, to which he belonged, notably the Elks, the Masons, the Odd Fellows and the Typographical union. The chair and desk of the secretary of the Elks lodge remains draped in mourning for the departed, Mr. Austad having occupied that position for a number of years.

Mr. Austad was born in Norway on December 10, 1872. He came to this country with his parents at the age of 10 years and was a resident of Canyon, St. Louis county, until manhood, when he engaged in the newspaper business. He was connected with Duluth papers during the early stages of his career, but his longest continuous service with any publication was at Grand Rapids, where he was connected with the Herald-Review. He was editor of The Times in this city for a period of seven years. His failing health compelled him to retire about two months ago.

The immediate cause of his death was Bright's disease, with which he had suffered for a number of years. Since his demise it develops that Mr. Austad had suffered with a disease caused by excessive red corpuscles and which considerably undermined his health.

As a newspaper man Mr. Austad had ability of a high order, being recognized by the editorial profession as one of the best writers in the state, his editorials being frequently copied by the metropolitan newspapers.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Rustad and children returned Monday evening from a motor trip to Detroit and Lake Park, where they had spent a few days with Mrs. Rustad's parents.

Has Interesting Relic.

Ross Walley of Wirt, when hunting deer 18 years ago, stuck his open knife into the trunk of a tree while engaged in dressing a deer he had killed. He went away from the knife and failed to remember where he had lost it. Just recently while in the same part of the woods, Mr. Walley recognized the handle of the knife projecting from the roughened bark of a tree and remembered the occasion when he lost it. He cut the tree down and split out the block on which the knife was imbedded and has it on exhibition at his store at Wirt. During the 18 years in which the knife remained in the tree, the four-inch blade had been covered with successive rings of growth. Mr. Walley was elated at finding this interesting relic of his hunting experiences many years ago.—Grand Rapids Herald-Review.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernhard Knudsen left Tuesday morning for Moorhead, where they will attend a reunion of old friends, after which they will go to Glenwood to meet with the Nordlandslaget. They expect to return to the city next Sunday.

Governor's Speech at Auditorium Last Night Marked by Definite Stand on Every Issue Before Voters

To say that "Jake" Preus, governor of Minnesota, was delighted with the reception accorded him in Thief River Falls last evening when he opened his senatorial campaign at the Auditorium is to put the case mildly. The governor didn't knock, but on the other hand made a constructive speech all the way.

He was "too tickled to properly express his appreciation," he told a Tribune reporter as he boarded the Soo flyer for Minneapolis following the meeting.

In his address the governor made it plain that he has been thinking mainly of the plight of the farmer and the rehabilitation of agriculture as the chief issue before the statesmen of the country, and no matter how one views the remarks of the governor, whether one happens to be in sympathy with the political party he represents or not, whether one likes his looks or his style, his mannerisms or characteristics, it must be admitted in all fairness to Mr. Preus that he takes a definite stand upon each and every issue before the people. He does not sidestep, or quibble, or dodge, or fail. He makes himself perfectly clear in each instance. "Jake" Preus made a lot of friends in Thief River Falls last night.

Upon his introduction by F. F. Haynes, who presided at the Auditorium meeting, the governor immediately plunged into a discussion of the problems of the farmer, stating his belief that the interests of the agri-

Singers Elect G. Halvorson as Next President

Red River Valley Association Will Meet in Grand Forks in 1925.

Concerts Here Called Musical Treat—Banquet Is Tendered Visitors.

G. Halvorson of this city, who has been unusually active in promoting the welfare of the Red River Valley Singing association, was honored at the business session held Saturday by being elected president for the ensuing two years. The association, which meets biennially, voted to hold its next convention at Grand Forks in 1925.

The two concerts given here by the singers Friday and Saturday were voted musical treats by the audiences which were fortunate enough to be present. While the attendance at the first concert was somewhat disappointing, yet the large auditorium was so well filled on the following evening as to dispel all doubts as to the fine feeling which exists in the hearts of the people here for the singers.

Both concerts were exceptionally fine and the work of the soloists was of such an outstanding character as to make it difficult to differentiate. Suffice it to say that upon each occasion when Henry S. Houglum, tenor, Miss Doris Halvorson, pianist, or John Nyborg, baritone, appeared before the audience they were greeted with tumultous applause, testifying to the meritorious work performed by each of these classy artists. While Thief River Falls is very naturally enamored of Miss Halvorson as a pianist of the highest attainment, yet full credit was given the two singers who appeared in the nightly concerts. Mr. Houglum, by the way, is a brother of Mrs. P. L. Vistaunet of this city, and he made a fine impression upon all who met him, not only as a singer but as a gentleman of the old school.

The convention opened with a parade on Friday afternoon after the visiting singers had registered at the Auditorium headquarters. The parade, led by the Thief River Falls band, marched through the principal streets and wound up at the Auditorium, where a large "Welcome" sign had been suspended over the thoroughfare.

On Saturday night following the evening concert a banquet was tendered the visitors by the Brage chorus at the Sons of Norway hall, the Daughters of Norway providing the delicious repast. A number of visiting singers responded to the call of the toastmaster for brief remarks.

The Brage chorus is entitled to the greatest measure of commendation for bringing the convention to the city. The members worked hard for the success of the affair and while they unquestionably have to "dig down" for substantial sums to make up the deficits, yet they may feel the satisfaction of knowing that their efforts brought here one of the finest aggregation of visitors it has ever been the pleasure of the city to entertain.

Delegations were present from Grand Forks, Fargo, Hatton, Petersburg, Moorhead and Crookston.

Prof. W. P. Rognlie of Grand Forks, who directed the chorus work as well as the Bethany church orchestra, came in for the whole-hearted commendation of music lovers who attended the concerts. He is a musician and director of marked ability and the work of the various organizations in concert reflected the painstaking effort which the director gave to his work.

University of Missouri to Study Tribune Makeup in Classes of Journalism

Faculty Chooses This Newspaper as One of Five Best Minnesota Weekly Periodicals.

The Tribune has been chosen by the faculty of the school of journalism at the University of Missouri as one of five Minnesota weeklies that will be regularly placed before students of journalism as the ideal kind of publication in cities upwards from 5,000 population.

Notification to this effect reached The Tribune this week, it having been recommended to the University of Missouri by the University of Minnesota as a newspaper which was all that could be desired in the country newspaper class. Its makeup and news heads were active and alive, it stated, and recommended its study among those desiring to take up newspaper building and editing as a profession.

The Tribune received special mention for its style of newspaper writing, giving various news stories the exact proportion of prominence on its front page to which it is entitled, and giving thoroughness where it belongs, explicit in detail and simple in form. Its headlines were classed as being the best among the hundreds of weekly newspapers represented at the University.

"We want to commend The Tribune on its superior style, and it is plainly seen that the makers of your newspaper know what the people desire most in the country weekly. We want ten copies of The Tribune sent to the University each week."

Dalquist Millinery Is Sold to Mrs. Luella V. Fladwed of Minneapolis

Deal Consummated Tuesday Whereby Well-Known Craftswoman Disposes of Business Interests.

A business deal was consummated this week whereby Mrs. Esta I. Barton, proprietor of the Dalquist Millinery, which she has conducted for the past two years, disposed of the store to Mrs. Luella V. Fladwed of Minneapolis, a milliner of wide experience. Mrs. Fladwed was formerly of Lake City, Minn., where she conducted a similar business.

The new proprietor of the Dalquist establishment will take charge of her property on July 15, the business until that time to be in charge of Mrs. Barton who, during her management of the Dalquist store, has built up a wide reputation among discriminating hat buyers.

Mrs. Barton's plans for the future have not been made known. She states that she will take a short vacation at some Minnesota lake after the new proprietor takes charge, but what her business plans are for the future she did not divulge.

Car Crashes Into Girl on Horseback and Leg of Animal Is Broken

Frances Conklin Slightly Injured in Mishap Occurring Near Bridge Late Saturday.

Frances Conklin, daughter of F. B. Conklin, residing on a farm southwest of the city, was slightly injured late Saturday afternoon when an automobile driven by Norman Voldness, farmer living four miles west of the city, collided with the horse which she was riding, the animal suffering a broken leg in the crash. The injury to the horse was of such serious nature that it was made necessary to shoot the animal.

Voldness was driving east along Bridge street at a rate of speed said to have been between 10 and 12 miles an hour and when closely approaching the young woman astride the horse, the animal was said to have reared and stepped in front of the oncoming car. The sudden impact threw Miss Conklin heavily to the ground, one of the cinch straps of the saddle having broken. She fell clear of her mount, however, and suffered only a slight flesh wound.

Mrs. C. H. Lund returned this morning to her home at Greenbush after having been a guest at the B. Falk home for a few days.

Highway Held Up When Bond Attorney Balks

Building of Jefferson Highway South of Town Delayed Temporarily.

Expect to Smooth Difficulties When County Board Meets Early in July.

The work of reconstructing the old Jefferson highway between Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire received another setback this week when the bond attorney for the Minnesota Loan and Trust company, buyers of the $90,000 bond issue authorized by special meeting of the board of county commissioners held in this city several weeks ago, balked at signing warrants for the bonds, stating that it would be necessary first to determine the status of security.

As a result the entire road program so far as the highway in question is concerned is being held up, and in all probability will not be smoothed out until the next meeting of the county board, which will be held early in July.

The question has arisen whether Pennington county is not already overbonded, the law authorizing county boards to issue bonds up to the amount of 15 per cent of the assessed valuation of the county issuing the road bonds. According to the letter written to County Auditor T. P. Anderson by the bonding attorney, the financial statement of pennington county for this year indicates, in the belief of the attorney, that this county already has over-bonded itself, there being at the present time approximately $700,000 interest bearing bonds outstanding against the county.

There the matter rests—and will rest—until County Auditor Anderson returns from his vacation trip to Minneapolis and southern Minnesota points. Deputy Auditor Axel Risberg declined to state to a Tribune reporter who called at his office Monday what would be the next move on the part of the county officials. Mr. Risberg stated that nothing would be done until the return of Mr. Anderson this week and that in all likelihood the difficulties encountered in the road matter would have to be ironed out by the county board meeting early in July.

It is expected, however, that the entire matter will be satisfactorily disposed of and that if nothing else is accomplished the state highway department may lend a hand and see to it that the needed road improvement is pushed to early completion.

Sixty-Day Option on Dam Issued to Math Barzen

Previous Option to City by Schreiter & Kretzschmar Has Expired.

Barzen Offers Current to City on Basis of Fair Investment Return.

The Tribune learns that a sixty-day option on the dam has been issued by Schreiter & Kretzschmar, the owners, to Math Barzen, the deal following the expiration of the option to the city which has been in force for some time. The city's option expired June 9.

Mr. Barzen has already made a tentative offer to the city which calls for substantial improvements of the dam property along utility lines as suggested by engineers who have investigated the matter for the information of the city officials, providing of course he can enter into a deal with the city for the sale of current to be manufactured at a rate which will insure a fair return upon the investment.

The matter of the purchase of the dam came before the city many months ago, and a citizens committee was selected several weeks ago to investigate the merits of the proposition outlined in the report of the engineer recently hired by the city, and to make further recommendations which might be a guide to the council in submitting the matter to the people, but up to this time the committe has apparently been inactive and the option of the city was permitted to die a natural death.

That the situation is one which demands early action will be apparent to all, and The Tribune sincerely hopes some action looking to the solution of the light and power situation is taken at an early date. It is a problem to which the tax payers of the city should give earnest thought in order that the council may be well advised in taking action which means so much to the city as a whole.

"Billy" DeParcq's Fight For Recovery Continues Encouraging to Mother

Victim of Automobile Accident Takes Nourishment and Converses Freely With Visitors.

"Billy" DeParcq, son of Mr. and Mrs. William DeParcq of the Brumund hotel, who suffered a broken back in an automobile accident occurring two miles south of Strathcona a fortnight ago, is resting easily at the Physicians hospital and is taking regular nourishment, according to a statement made to a Tribune reporter late this afternoon by his mother. Young DeParcq converses freely with friends coming to the hospital to visit him and he feels confident that he will fully recover from the serious results of the automobile mishap.

Since Sunday night the young man has been showing gradual and steady improvement and his conditions remains encouraging.

DEMPSEY-GIBBONS FIGHT RETURNS OVER RADIO AT FAIR GROUNDS AT BIG FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION

Completed Program for National Holiday Announced by Committee—Plans Are Made for Handling Enormous Crowd.

The completed program for the great Fourth of July celebration in Thief River Falls next Wednesday is "on ice" and ready for the immense throng expected in the city on the anniversary date of the nation's birth.

Everything under the sun has been done to make the day a pleasant one for all, and program galore—entertaining, instructive, exciting and inspiring—has been arranged to give Thief River Falls visitors the biggest celebration that has ever been staged anywhere in the Northwest.

Fourth of July will officially be declared on at 1 o'clock, when the monster parade led by the American Legion band, will file through all important streets of the city. About 20 of the leading business institutions have prepared floats, having gone to a large expense in making the individual vehicles characteristic of their businesses and in making it beautiful as well.

Fight returns from the Dempsey-Gibbons contest at Shelby, Mont., will be relayed from the arena over the radio right to the fair grounds and blow by blow will be recorded at the instant they are delivered from the fists of the two contestants. This feature is expected to draw hundreds to the fair grounds, and the announcements will be made over the magnavox during the course of the program. This feature is in charge of Alfred Borry.

Mayor Arthur E. Nelson of St. Paul will deliver the main address at the fair grounds, starting at 1:30 o'clock, after which the various attractions will be presented. The mammoth George E. Engesseer Railroad Show will be presented during the afternoon and evening. The show is under canvas so as not to interfere with the numerous other attractions before the grandstand.

The racing program, in charge of Roy Lambert, will consist of four and possibly horse races, as follows: Running race, one-half mile; pony race, ¼-mile dash; relay race, 1½-mile, changing saddles three times; potato race. It is requested that all entries for the horse races be in the hands of Mr. Lamber by July 1.

The motor racing program, in charge of "Packy" McFarland, will consist of there automobile races, including several novelty races. These entries must also be in by July 1 in order that the director may complete all his bookings.

A large number of other sports have been arranged for the boys, such as running races, all of which will be for purses, and it is expected that there will be a great deal of enthusiasm shown by the juvenile contenders for honors. There will also be a baseball game, admission to which will be free, between Grygla and Thief River Falls. Two husky tug-of-war teams will tussle for honors.

During the evening there will be a water polo match between two teams of the Thief River Falls fire department, at which time thousands of gallons of water will be shot from the great fire hose in an effort to force a barrel across the goal of the two opposing teams.

In the evening the crowd will again convene at the fair grounds to witness the spectacular fireworks display. More than $500 has been expended on this attraction alone and it is believed the best display ever seen here will be witnessed.

The committee in charge of arrangements wishes to make it plain that admission to the fair grounds will be absolutely free and that outside of a charge for admission to the grandstand, all will be passed.

J. S. Arneson Appraiser For Rural Credits Bureau

Applications For State Loans to Be Acted Upon Immediately—Money to Be Available Soon.

With the appointment last week of J. S. Arneson, editor of The Tribune, as local appraiser for the State Rural Credits Bureau, the work of fixing valuations to be acted upon by the rural credit bureau will go forward at once.

Mr. Arneson has had considerable experience in this line of work, and has in past years familiarized himself with soil conditions in most of the counties in the state, being also well conversant with comparative values. He began on Monday the work of appraising lands in this county upon which loans were sought, and it is his intention to take action upon all applications returned to him thus far by the bureau. Some forty applications are ready for action at this time.

Mr. Arneson is advised by officials of the credit bureau that owing to technical objections entered by attorneys for the large purchasers of state bonds, no money would be available for at least thirty days, but appraisals will be made and loans prepared for final payment as rapidly as possible in order to expedite business.

Knut Wefald One of Speakers at Big Sunday Picnic

Ninth District Congressman LaFollette Admirer, Judging From Remarks.

Annual Event Under Auspices of Sons of Norway Draws Large Crowd.

The big picnic at Eide's grove last Sunday proved a good drawing card as hundreds of people from town and countryside began arriving early in the forenoon. When the program opened with a song at one o'clock several thousand people had assembled. The principal speaker was Knut Wefald, ninth district congressman. When he says principal speaker, the writer means to say that he was the principal attraction, being the man who beat Steenerson last fall.

There were several good speakers at the picnic, notably Bj. Bjornaraa of Wanke and Prof. Aaker of Moorhead, but very naturally Knut Wefald was the big toad in the puddle, or big gun, or whatever you choose to call a man who has acquired high office. And in all fairness it must be admitted that Knut gave a good account of himself. He injected a little politics into his speech but did it so cleverly that the rankest partisan could hardly take offense.

His first reference to politics came during his description of a recent visit to Wisconsin, where he was the guest at several community gatherings held in his honor, and in his tribute to the hardy Norsemen who settled in Wisconsin he especially lauded the intelligence they displayed in supporting LaFollette in the election last fall. He said that while he had often differed with the late Senator Nelson, yet he considered him one of the great men of the nation, admired everywhere for his sterling qualities. The congressman took a left handed slap at the senatorial candidates by asserting his belief that none of them were big enough to fill the late senator's shoes.

During the course of his remarks Congressman Wefald subscribed to the principle of true co-operation as a solution of the farmer's dilemma. He stated that in Wisconsin, where enormous strides had been made in dairying, the success of the co-operative creameries was responsible for the greatest measure of prosperity. In many places he found that although the centraliing plants had offered to pay as much as ten cents above the creamery prices for butterfat, yet they were unable to get a single pound. He told The Tribune that he considered the Minnesota co-operative marketing law quite drastic, and yet he considered it a step in the right direction, and he expressed the hope that great

CRIMINAL COURT DOCKET FOR JUNE TERM HEAVIEST IN YEARS: LIQUOR CASES CLOG CALENDAR

Two Bond Forfeitures Made for Nonappearance Before Bar of Justice—Rasmusson Booze Trial Is On.

The criminal calendar for this term of the district court, which is being presided over by Judge Andrew Grindeland of Warren, is one of the longest in years, due to the large number of liquor cases, of which there are 14. There are also two for grand larceny, one for forgery, one for gambling, one for selling mortgaged property, and one for driving an auto without proper lights.

The first case to come up for hearing this morning at 9 o'clock was that of Alfred Rasmusson, on the charge of having liquor in his possession, the case having been tried at the last term of court in which the jury disagreed. Mr. Rasmusson is also to be tried on another count, that of the sale of intoxicating liquor, this case being the fourth on the calendar for today. Two other cases were also scheduled for hearing today, that of Ole Ystesund, charged with selling liquor, and that of Richard Prestebak, charged with driving an auto without proper lights. Prestebak pleaded guilty and paid fine and costs amounting to $44.56. Inasmuch as Mr. Ystesund did not appear yesterday to plead, his bonds of $500 were declared forefited and the case will not come up today. The bondsmen are Ole A. Heltredt and Kittel Knutson.

Another case of bond forfeiture is that of Axel Anderson, who is charged with gambling, his bonds having been $300 and signed by Alderman Andrew Ness and John A. Jacobson. This was the outcome of one of Sheriff Ole L. Ihle's first moves in law enforcement, and resulted in the arrest of Alderman Ness and four others and their conviction in municipal court, Mr. Anderson being the only one who pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge N. W. Tarrant.

The other liquor cases to come before the court are as follows: O. W. Carlson, charged with selling intoxicating liquor; also Adolf Amundson, Fred C. Brendecke, Glenn Farr and James Farr, and Frank McGinnity, for the same offense. The last case named has been continued until the next term on the request of the county attorney. Mr. Brendecke, when arraigned yesterday, stated that he was too poor to have an attorney, and the court will provide one for him. C. B. Bradley, Conrad Vinje, John Wyss and Oscar Anderson are charged with having intoxicating liquor in their possession.

Oscar Anderson, arrested three weeks ago by Sheriff Ihle when the officer discovered a water bottle filled with moonshine in Anderson's car, pleaded guilty late today and will be sentenced by Judge Grindeland when the time for sentences comes up.

Ernest J. Gilmet has two charges against him on the charges of grand

Locals Tie With Red Lake Falls, Defeat Climax

12-Inning Contest Sunday Is Pitchers' Duel, Yost and Keifenheim.

Good Game at Fair Grounds Last Evening Ends in 1-to-0 Victory.

Thief River Falls made a good record in its two games of baseball played during the week, ending in a tie with Red Lake Falls Sunday by a score of 4 to 4 after 12 innings of the finest kind of baseball. The game developed into a pitchers' duel between Eddie Keifenheim of Red Lake Falls and "Spider" Yost of the local club.

A total of six hits were garnered by the locals and of these Jonas secured two, Schutt two, and Yost two. The same number of hits was made by Red Lake Falls.

The game here last evening between Climax and Thief River Falls went seven innings to a victory for the locays by a score of 1 to 0. It was one of the cleanest exhibitions of baseball seen here this season and the only regret is that there were not more spectators out to see the contest. Yost allowed but three bingles.

Another baseball game that stirred local fans to fever heat transpired at the local diamond last Friday evening when the "Has-Beens" and the "Would-Be's" clashed to find out who was best. The "Has-Beens" found out, but only after the former had received the battle of their lives. The managements of the two teams promise something exciting in this line within the next fortnight after the old-timers have had an opportunity to get out and throw the kinks out of their soup bones.

American Legion Unselfish, States Stafford King, State Adjutant, in Address Before District Convention

First Annual Meeting of the Northern Division of 9th District Held Friday at Clubrooms of Local Post. Middle River Man Elected Commander and Ole R. Sande Is Named Adjutant.

"Staff" King, state adjutant of the department of Minnesota, American Legion, and leader of the "Gopher Gang," the most active and dynamic thing within the Minnesota organization, delivered a stirring and masterful address before the district convention of the northern half of the Ninth district of the American Legion held in this city last Friday afternoon and evening, at which time a district organization was perfected and officers named to go ahead with the work of putting the Ninth in the class of other active districts in the state.

While the delegations sent here from posts in the district were small, what was lacking in numbers was made up for in enthusiasm, and it is expected that the newly-organized district will go forward with its program irrespective of the southern section and bring the district up to a better standard. There are approximately 40 posts in the district, about half of whom were represented with delegations. G. Howard Smith and S. V. Arneson were delegates from Elmer Eklund Post of this city.

"Tony" Yngve of Middle River was elected commander of the Ninth district by unanimous vote of the delegates. The other officials named are: O. N. Thoe, Lancaster, vice-commander; O. R. Sande, Thief River Falls, adjutant; W. M. Nieland, Red Lake Falls, finance officer; Rev. Charles Gerlinger, Thief River Falls, chaplain; S. V. Arneson, Thief River Falls, publicity manager.

The afternoon was taken up with the registration of delegates and the business session, adoption of new by-laws and hearing advise of Stafford King, state adjutant, on how best to proceed with organization and committee work.

Preceding the evening meeting, the Woman's Auxiliary served a banquet to the delegates and local members of the Legion, pronounced by those partaking as "fit for a king" and referred to by "Staff" King as the best "ham what am." Mrs. Dave Robinson, head of the Auxiliary, and Mrs. J. M. Bishop, in charge of the menu, were introduced to the assemblage, which rose and lustily cheered the two women for their efforts and the appreciation of the Auxiliary as a unit.

A splendid musical program was furnished by Karl Sundahl, well-known local tenor, and Mrs. Thelma Erickson, accompanist on the piano. Two solos were given by Mr. Sundahl in his rich tenor voice, and the "buddies" present accorded him a rousing and boisterous "thank you" for his renditions. Both the tenor and his accompanist made a distinct hit with the ex-service men.

Preceding the address of the evening, Mayor John Bratrud welcomed the delegates to the city and stated that he spoke the sentiment of Thief River Falls when declaring the American Legion's efforts in behalf of civic betterment were always well received by its citizens. R. A. Rossberg, state vice-commander, and Frank Klaus, a member of the state executive committee, also delivered short addresses.

Mr. King opened his address by stating that the program of the American Legion is misunderstood in many quarters and lamented the fact that some thought the organization a selfish institution organized largely for the benefit of ex-service men and women. He recited figures showing that thousands of dollars had been spent in rehabilitation of former soldiers and sailors, aid and assistance given widows and children, playgrounds and swimming pools built, men and women in all walks of life fed and clothed, hospitals built and cared for—all at the expense of the Legion. Mr. King deplored the fact that many people judged the Legion as being selfish in face of this program of sacrifice on its part and believed that were they to investigate its purpose and intent, their antagonism would subside.

"The American Legion has never asked for a bonus from the United States government," stated the adjutant, and repeated it. At the close of the war there were 58 different varieties of adjusted compensation and soldier legislation before congress, introuced by various representatives determined that something should be done for the defenders of America. The soldier bonus bill is merely a consolidation of this large number—many of them ill-advised and impractical—and while he stated he believed a soldier bonus law would some day be passed, he insisted that the American Legion had never asked for it.

Mr. King denounced the war profiteers in scathing terms and stated he believed that the next war would find all implements of war drafted in the same manner as Uncle Sam drafted man power in the recent conflict. Capital, labor, industry and all should be drafted in the common cause, he stated.

After the conclusion of Mr. King's address, a 30-minute recess was declared by Commander Morlan Bishop, after which the initiation of members and a Dutch lunch was put on. A large class was taken into the Legion, many of them from out of town. The Dutch lunch capped the whole thing and the convention was declared over. Thief River Falls was again chosen as the meeting place next year.

PRIZES FOR HORSES AT MINNESOTA STATE FAIR

Prizes totaling $19,025 are offered exhibitors of horses at the Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Dairy Exposition, September 1 to 8, Superintendent N. K. Carnes announced this week.

The premiums offered for horses in the breeding division amount to $9,140. The breeds included are Percherons, Belgians, Clydesdales, Shires, Standard Bred Trotters, Morgans, Shetland and Welsh ponies, and Hackneys. Of these the bulk of the money is alloted to the four big draft breeds.

The night horse show classes are awarded $9,885 in prizes. This has come to be one of the big features of the State Fair, and is growing steadily in importance and position on the program. The interest in light horses in the twin cities and outlying towns and cities is growing each year. Many of the noted stables from other parts of the country will be exhibited.

The best judges who could be found have been engaged to judge the horse classes. The judges will be Carl W. Gay, Ohio State University, former head of the State Fair horse department; E. A. Trowbridge of Columbia, Mo., and John W. Sifton of Winnipeg.

The livestock show will be the biggest feature of the fair this year. The dairy show will be as big as the National Dairy Show at Syracuse, N. Y.

During the war, 200 acres of land north of Sioux City, Iowa, belonging to Gustav Fessel, was seized by Uncle Sam because Fessel was then living in Germany, and was classed as an alien. He was on a visit to Germany, and missed the last ship home before the war. Now Fessel has received a check for $11,402.51 from the United States alien property custodian, the accumulated earnings of the property during the time the government had possession of it. He also received a clear title to the land. Old Uncle Sam is surely a "skuare shooter."

According to data collected by the U. S. Department of Agriculture there are 2,000 farmers' mutual fire insurance companies now in existence, carrying aggregate risks of between seven and eight billion dollars at an average cost of a little over 25 cents per hundred dollars. Of this cost, three-quarters goes to pay losses and one-quarter to pay operating expenses.

Alfalfa Crop Makes Impressive Showing

Alfalfa was knee high on May 28, says the Houston county agricultural agent. Trial patches of sweet clover stood up even higher than the alfalfa. At the same time the meadows were very short—not more than six inches high—on account of the dry weather. Another object lesson is reported by L. V. Wilson, dairy extension specialist, who waded recently in a heavy stand of alfalfa which was more than knee high, while separated from it by only a barbed wire fence was a timothy hay field which, as Mr. Wilson expresses it, "wouldn't yield enough grass if cut with a lawn mower to supply the scratch pen in the chicken yard."

Time Yet to Grow Good Forage Crops

Dry weather in May and early June ahs greatly shortened the hay and pasture crops in many localities and every farmer would do well to consider carefully whether he will have sufficient hay and forage for his needs. "There is still the possibility of planting emergency forage crops," says F. R. Crim, extension division, University Farm. "Among the best that can be planted now are fodder corn and millet. Seeding should be done at once for best results. Those who are short of hay may also profitably give attention to caring for the oat and barley straw so as to keep it in good condition. tI has considerable feeding value if run into the barn at threshing time or if put in well shaped stacks. In cases where there is a good stand of medium red clover but a poor yield due to dry weather, the yield of the second cutting may be materially increased by early cutting of the first crop. Beyond the corn belt sunflowers cut at the right time should be conserved for winter forage feeding."

Happiness is not a heritage, but a wage.

MORE LIVESTOCK FIRMS SUSPENDED

Three at South St. Paul Forced Out of Business—Two Quit on Own Accord.

Three more livestock commission firms at South St. Paul have been forced out of business. Directors of the St. Paul Stockyards company last week denied for an indefinite period, the use of its pens and other physical property to The Farmers' Commssion Company, Rodgers, Amundson Commission Company, and the Drovers' Commission Company. The Stock Growers' Commission Company was suspended some time ago. All, as members of the South St. Paul Exchange, had been suspended for 30 days, for violation of trade practices as revealed by a federal audit of their books. The audit was made by the Federal Commissioner, under provisions of the Stockyards control act.

The Independent Commission Company and McKissick, Alcorn & Magnus, both of which were penalied as a result of the federal disclosures, have voluntarily retired from the market.

In the case of Chandler, Krost Company, which firm was fined $250 by the exchange, Herbert Chandler has been expelled, according to the Stock Yards company officials.

Further investigation of the books of firms that have been fined, without suspension, is in progress.

Federal investigators are continuing their audit of the books of firms not yet probed.

"There will be no let-up in the investigation until we have rid the market of dishonest commission men," said a prominent official of the Stock Yards company. "We look upon dishonest dealing with shippers as no less a crime than bank robbery and are determined to make full use of such police powers as we have. Our only regret is that we cannot be more severe."

FARM HELP SUPPLY NEARS THE DEMAND

All Calls Now Being Met by State Agency—Wage Averages $50 Per Month.

The farm help situation in Minnesota is improving rapidly, according to J. D. Williams, industrial commissioner. Mr. Williams is in charge of the free employment agencies in St. Paul and Minneapolis and has been working in close co-operation with the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation and the county farm bureaus to solve the farm labor problem.

"Last week, for the first time this year," says Mr. Williams, "we were able to fill all calls for farm help. This is partly due to an increase in the number of men who are willing to work on farms and partly to a decrease in the demand.

"Farmers of the state are paying on an average $50 a month for satisfactory help. This averages up well with wages in the cities, because at this price men get their board, room, and, as a rule, washing."

Requests for farm help should be sent either to the office of the local farm bureau or direct to the employment offices. The St. Paul office is located at 343 Minnesota street. In Minneapolis the address is 212 South Fourth street, and in Duluth, 519 West Michigan.

At present, the twin city offices are sending 75 to 100 men weekly. For the season, 2,316 men have been sent to farmers of the state. Of that number 1,184 have been reported placed.

Under the plan of operation, the farmer is assured of getting help, started from the twin cities, as the state offices send all baggage to the employer.

Harding Picks Iowa Dirt Farmer

AUTOCASTER

E. H. Cunningham of Cresco, Ia., was last week appointed "dirt" farmer representative on the Federal Reserve Board by President Harding. Born in Wisconsin, Mr. Cunningham was left an orphan when 12 years old, and forced to leave school to shift for himself.

"I will give Minnesota creameries just ten years of life if they do not get together in a co-operative selling body in greater numbers than at the present time," declared E. T. Winship of Owatonna in an address at the picnic of Freeborn and Steele counties creamery officials and patrons at Beaver Lake. "Minnesota creameries must co-operate, standardize their products, advertise them and sell them under their own brand so that they will be known by every housewife if they are to compete successfully with the big centralizers," he continued. Mr. Winship is one of the state's foremost dairy farmers.—Albert Lea Tribune.

HEAT IS TAKING HEAVY HOG TOLL

Minimum Losses Only in Cars That Have Been Properly Sanded and Iced.

With the coming of excessively hot weather, the annual toll of hogs lost in transit to markets is beginning anew. According to officials of the South St. Paul Stockyards company, losses are light only when animals are shipped in cars that have been properly sanded and equipped with suspended ice bags before leaving the point of origin.

"If shippers could see the dead hogs in cars as the trains pull up to the unloading platforms, they would insist upon shipments going forward in cars that have sand on the floors and at least six burlap sacks filled with ice suspended from the ceilings," says T. E. Good, president of the Stock Yards company.

Thus far this year 3,396 hogs have died in transit. On June 4, the hottest day this year, an average of five to a car which was neither sanded nor iced. In one car, 17 dead hogs were found. In cars that were property prepared for hot weather, the loss has averaged less than one aimal per car.

Shippers should follow these suggestions:

Haul or drive the hogs to shipping station in time to allow them to become rested before loading.

Insist upon a clean car, bedded with sand.

Wet down the bedding and interior of car before loading.

Give only a light grain feeding before shipping. Heavy feed means body heat generated.

Load not more than one hour before the train is to depart.

Load slowly and carefully. Avoid excitement and do not beat or bruise the animals.

Load not to exceed 16,000 pounds in a standard 36-foot car.

Have the cars drenched at available point immediately after the train stops.

Clover or Grass Sod Boosts Potato Crop

"Fertilization of the potato crop by clover sod is a matter of major importance on ney clay soils low in humus," says M. J. Thompson, superintendent of the Northeast Experiment station. A summary by Mr. Thompson of seven years of potato work shows that clover or grass sod is the cheapest and most important factor in potato production on heavy clay soil. "When pastured the previous year," says the superintendent, "the largest yield occurred; when the hay crop was plowed under, the yield dropped nine bushels, and when the hay crop was harvested, the yield dropped 25 bushels." An experiment made in 1922 indicates that early planting is to be preferred. Potatoes planted June 5 produced only 86 per cent as much as stock planted May 20; the June 20 crop was 55 per cent and the July 1 crop 50 per cent of the yields from the May 20 plots. Not only were the yields of the later plantings inferior, but the quality was below standard.

WHAT PRINTER'S INK DOES.

The first batch of Coca-Cola was put on the market back in 1886—only 25 gallons of syrup, which sold for $25.

The Wall Street Journal comments that "the present company paid the original owners $20,000,000 for Coca-Cola good will."

"Goodwill" is another word for reputation.

Reputation, in modern business, is the direct result of three things—merit of product, methods of doing business, and advertising.

Coca-Cola, of course, has been about as well advertised as humanly possible.

The $25 realized from the first Coca-Cola sale was immediately invested in advertising, for which the first bill was $46. From that small seed grew $20,000,000 worth of "goodwill."

It pays to advertise.

The Wm. Wrigley Company's first advertising appropriation was $32—its entire capital—writes John Allen Murphy in Printer's Ink magazine. The L. E. Waterman Co.'s first ad bill was only $62.50. Hupp Motor corporation started with $100.65 of publicity. The Borden Co. started with an advertising appropriation of $513 back in 1980; today it spends for advertising nearly a million dollars a year. So on, a long list.

It pays to advertise.

Murphy tells the story of Royal baking powder. The company started in a small drug store in Ft. Wayne, Ind., as a side line. "Its first advertisement appeared in local papers. The campaign then gradually spread throughout the state until the company was able to move to New York. Soon after that it became the largest national advertiser of its day." The Mennen Co. started similarly—as a druggist's side line.

What fertilizer is to farm soil, advertising is to business. It makes the seed grow, the acorn into a giant oak.

"It pays to advertise" is the best slogan to hang over the sales managers' desk.

WHAT THE WORLD IS LOOKING FOR.

The world today is looking for men who are not for sale; men who are honest, sound from center to circumference, true to the heart's core; men with consciences as steady as the needle to the pole; men who will stand for the right if the heavens totter and the earth reels; men who can tell the truth and look the world right in the eye; men who neither flag nor flinch; men who can have courage without shouting to it; men in whom the courage of everlasting life runs still, deep and strong; men who know their place and fill it; men who know their business and attend to it; men who will not lie, shirk or dodge; men who are not too lazy to work not too proud to be poor; men who are willing to eat what they have earned and wear what they have paid for; men who are not ashamed to say "No" with emphasis and who are not ashamed to say "I can't afford it."—Selected.

Airship Hangar Could House Large Office Building

At Scott Field, Ill., the Army Air Service has erected, at a cost of more than $2,000,000, a large airship hangar. The huge structure could contain a 10-story office building with a 50-foot tower on the roof. The hangar, which is built of steel, concrete, and glass, is 825 feet long and 225 feet high. At the end are large steel doors opened and closed by electric motors that travel on railroad rails.

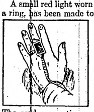
Red Finger Light to Aid Night Auto Signaling

A small red light worn on the finger like a ring, has been made to aid night signaling by motorists. As the driver extends his arm and hand to signal a turn, or whatever it may be, the lamp is automatically lighted by the outstretching of the fingers. The cord connection can be plugged into the dash-board or under the driver's seat.



Modern Jove Juggles Million Volts

At an electrical show held at a western university not long ago, one of the students mystified the crowd with a display rivaling the mythical feats of Jove, who was believed by the ancients to be the wielder of the thunderbolt. Seated in a chair separated from a table by seven-ply insulators, the youth grasped a zigzag rod in one hand and in the other a wand with which he made contact with a ball from which the lightning effect was emitted. The impunity with which he handled the 1,000,000 volts is explained by the low amperage value of the current passing through his body and the insulators under the chair legs, which prevented the electricity from going to the ground and thereby establishing a flow of current that would have been disastrous to the daring young experimenter.

¶A variation of the "dunning" letter is used by a Western firm, with agreeable results. Its notice is headed with four bars of music. The words are also given, being a parody on an old Scotch folk song. They read: "May a body ask a body, Please remit today."

Attachment on Spade Saves Shoes

The illustration shows a simple attachment for a spade, to save the shoes while digging. The attachment consists of a short length of ¾ or ⅝-in. pipe, about 4 in. long, with a hacksaw slot cut through it lengthwise as shown, to permit it to be pushed onto the spade. The slot should, of course, be of such a width that the spade will be gripped firmly. The use of this attachment not only saves the shoes, but it is not so tiring on the foot.

World's Largest Cable for Atlantic Ocean

Completion of the laying of a new cable in the Atlantic Ocean, between New York and London, is expected by August 1, next, according to a recent announcement. It will be the largest ever laid in the Atlantic, or anywhere else in the world, and will have a capacity twice that of any other cable now in service between the United States and Europe. Engineers charged with the design of the new cable estimate that it will permit a sending speed of approximately 600 letters per minute in both directions at the same time, or a total of 1,200 letters per minute, making it the fastest cable in the world.

Its conductor requires an average of 1,100 pounds of copper per mile, as against an average of about 700 pounds of copper per mile for the heaviest now in service.

IN A COUNTRY TOWN.

Editor Fred Hadley of the Winnebago Enterprise expresses our sentiments exactly in the following lines:

"We meet, now and then, on the trails and highways of life, men and women who say that they 'just don't see how anyone could live in a country town.'

"It is the difference of opinion that makes a horse race, so it is said, and it is difference of opinion, likes and dislikes, tastes and distastes, that make the whole world what it is.

"Those who crave the metropolitan existence can have their share—and welcome to it. We have no desire to live in a place where we don't know the people who reside next door, and faces, when we meet them, are about as expressive of good fellowship as is a carload of frozen codfish. The little town is full of friendliness, sympathy and neighborliness. Its residents are just plain folks—folks with warm hearts and helping hands. The cities are necessary, and we are proud of those we have. But when it comes to real living, give us the little country town with its tree bordered streets, gardens full of singing birds, and its homes full of whistling kids."

The servants of mankind waste no time in calling attention to their virtues but their living is their only publicity.

Toad Mountain Tattle

Need of More Traffic Laws—Erick Otto this week purchased a misused sick cylinder car. Erick's old horse will get a week's rest out of this but there will be some changes along Main street.

Stripped His Gears—During a pathetic scene at the movies Saturday night, Lige Willett's adam's apple back fired into his tonsils and shot his differential through his adenoids. This is unfortunate as he had been slated for a speech at the laying of the cornerstone of the bootlegger's exchange Monday night.

Not a Success—Aunt Viney Vial took a correspondence course in felt hat making during the winter and put her first lot on sale at McNutt's this week. Zeb Hardy was the first victim and his resemblance to a giraffe with a horse blanket over its head rather discouraged the sale. However, Ike Sawyer swapped a jar of butter for one and getting caught in a shower on the way home came near being asphyxiated. He will take no further chances and has converted the thing into a stone boat for farm use.

In Line For a Medal—At the trial of Mrs. Tuffy, charged with shooting her husband, it developed that she had him to see how he would look when sober. The jury was out two minutes and rendered a not guilty verdict, and being composed of bachelors and widowers, recommended that she be given a pension.

Business Is Good — Our hardware men are on the jump these days replenishing broken stocks in Toad Mountain homes. The car of scrap iron shipped from here this week contained everything from horseshoes to stoves and ranges and the homes were pretty well cleaned out by the kids. The Presbyterian church lost a good bell and to announce time for services last Sunday Deacon Spudds resurrected an old Indian tom-tom, crawled into the belfry and pounded for ten minutes. At the end of that time the brush was full of Indians ready to do battle and it took all the dandelion dew and choke cherry cordial in town to restore peace.

Mixed on Dates—Uncle Joe Vial came down town yesterday to vote for state senator. He wore his old stove pipe hat and a white vest. The hat was with him when he voted for Grant and has more pleats than an accordeon. On the left side of his vest was what appeared to be a medal of some kind, but close inspection proved it to be a fried egg dropped there at breakfast and the warm rayse of the morning sun finally induced it to seek his pocket. A wad of crushed strawberries nestled near the belt and the mayor, believing Uncle Joe had been hurt, got a taxi and hurried him to the hospital, where it took two hours to unbutton his vest. The election will some off the 18th and Uncle will undoubtedly vote by proxy. — Frazee Press.

Many young people amount to little in this world because they do not want to start at the bottom and work their way up. They want to begin where their seniors, old in the service, left off. They want big pay without doing anything to justify it. Those who are unfortunate enough to begin at the top are badly mangled in their tumble to the level from which they can make progress according to their actual worth. They should understand, if possible, that hard work is the price of their success.

There is enough coal still underground in our country to last us 633 years at the rate we are using it now, says R. Z. Virgin, editor of the Coal Trade Review. That's not counting coal to supply the states west of the Rockies for 1000 years. In the face of this enormous supply, we have periodical coal shortages, a ridiculous paradox that can be partly eliminated if householders this summer will buy their coal supply for next winter.

Beware the reflex action of the hammer.

THE AMERICAN FLAG.

It is no fabric of silk or bunting—no mere beautiful cloth woven by human hands. It is a living thing, pulsing with the throbbing ardors of humanity, glowing with the fervor of immortal hopes, leaping out in ecstasies of love and dream. It is a song—the song of upward-looking men. It is an altar fragrant with sacrifice. It is a garden wherefrom a nation grew, nourished by the pure blood of heroes. It is a heaven wherein the sanctified are gathered. It is the Home where freemen dwell. It is the battlefield whereon Honor strikes its blow for the cause of God. It is a flame springing up to consume injustice and wither the hosts of wrong. It is a voice that speaks with the eloquence of graves where sleep those who died to make it mean Purity and Righteousness. He who looks upon that Flag with ransomed eyes beholds within its folds the valor and the faith of Lexington and Gettysburg—the blazing eyes of the embattled farmers at Concord bridge—the fierce splendors of the ocean that was the cradle of Paul Jones—the clarion of death cry above the ruined Alamo—the prayer of Washington at Valley Forge—the agony of Lincoln as he paced the midnight hours—and, crowning all, the wind-swept faces of boys who died along the thunder-smitten hills of France. The Flag of the United States is the Glory of God shining in the faces of those who dream of a world made clean enough to be the dwelling place of God. It turns our sorrows into exultation and our sacrifices into melody of service. For such a Flag true men will always gladly die—for such a Flag good men will always nobly live.—L. C. Hodgson.

Matitoba voted wet last Friday by an overwhelming majority and as a result the government will now conduct liquor sales under certain restrictions. The law will be administered by a commission of three men who may determine which towns outside of Winnipeg may have licensed dispensaries. Liquor will be sold under the new order of things to residents or visitors and such liquor will in all cases be delivered by the government agents. One rule which will be rigidly enforced is that all liquor must be consumed in the home and may not under any circumstances be removed from the premises where delivered. All buyers are forced to purchase a license, and infractions of the rules under which the liquor is sold will result in revocation of the license. The operation of the law will be watched with interest.

Representative Davis of Minnesota is among those who will travel up and down the west coast from San Diego to Puget Sound seeking a naval fleet base. This is one of the hundreds of cruises and junkets taken this summer under one guise or another, when the plain facts are that such trips can be considered only as another method of grafting from the government. Lasker took 600 to Cuba, Denby took hundreds of his friends to the Orient, Harding took seventy of his friends to Alaska, and so it goes from one week to another, the government officials vying each with the other in figuring out attractive summer trips for their friends at government expense. The final trip will take place in 1924 when the whole outfit will be sent up salt creek by the people of the United States.

Prohibition Director Quale says Minneapolis is the dryest city in the country, it being next to impossible to get anthing there at the present time to wet your whistle. For that little joke he ought to be compelled to sit in a reviewing stand with nothing to drink while the Minneapolis bootleggers march past him in single file.

We note that other counties in speaking of their road expenditures take Rice county as a basis for comparison. It is a merited compliment. Rice county may well boast of its roads. The expense may have been heavy, but we have gotten results. Most of our important roads will soon be so far improved that surfacing will soon be the only care they require. When that time comes a few years hence we may look for a considerable drop in road expenditures. The initial cost of road construction in Rice county is perhaps heavier than in most counties on account of the hilly nature of the country, necessitating many expensive cuts and fills. But when the main road expenditure becomes maintenance, our costs will be practically the same as those of other counties.—Northfield Independent.

Governor Jake Preus Who Spoke Here Last Night

There may be better places than Pennington county but we do not happen to know where they are. We have had no storms, while other parts of the country have literally been blown to pieces. While other sections of the country are suffering from lack of moisture we are favored most lavishly. Weather conditions here have been ideal. We have neither suffered with heat nor cold, but have enjoyed ideal growing weather, and our personal comfort has been 100 per cent, while people residing elsewhere have sweltered beyond endurance in torrid heat. The way to escape hell on earth is to reside in Pennington county.

A few of the state papers have taken a slam at the rural credits board for its seeming delay in getting the state loan system started in the state. The Tribune understands that the board has done everyhting in its power to speed up action, but legal technicalities have entered into the sale of the bonds and this has greatly hampered the work of the board. It is understood that money will be made available within thirty days, that appraisals are now being made and that no time will be lost in closing up loans so far as the board is concerned. The Tribune sincerely hopes there is no foundation for the charge that the law is a farce, as we did have great hopes for the act as a means of salvation for the financially harrassed farmer, and so far we have had no reason to change our views.

Commissioner of Immigration Husband now proposes to do away with Ellis Island as a government institution and force the steamship companies to maintain their own detention places. Just as well. No matter how inefficiently the steamship companies conduct such places they can never hope to sink so shamelessly low as has the government in this respect.

This is a good time to re-establish friendly relations with our chance acquaintances in Winnipeg.

The city of St. Cloud as well as several other good towns in Minnesota is all worked up over the question of admitting carnivals. Such a subject should cause no discussion anywhere, since the safe and sane method to pursue in any instance is to shut out the carnival. Certain it is that no good can come of a carnival. There never has, there never will be, and take that from one who knows.

If it is so terribly important that all world war slackers be kept in jail, then why this fuss over the most prominent slacker of them all who is to receive $300,000 for a few minutes exercise at Shelby on July 4th. This country of ours is probably the greatest inconsistent one on earth, bar none.

If Magnus Johnson is elected to the senate we hope to be present when he greets Hank Lodge with a friendly slap on the shoulder.

Positively the best joke of the season is the statement of the three secretaries of President Harding that they are going to Alaska with him to look for possible evidences of red tape in the administration of the affairs of that country. Isn't it rich when Washington officialdom goes out looking for red tape?

The Tribune received in the mail this morning a lesson in rhetoric from one of its valued subscribers, and we hasten to extend our sincere thanks to the thoughtful reader who has thus indicated a genuine interest in our welfare. But alas and alack, the task of reforming newspaper writers is a thankless one, a useless one, an impossible one, for experience has taught us that it simply cannot be done. It is like trying to make a saint out of the devil—or turning the moon into green cheese, or making wine out of water. Every newspaper office is a law unto itself, and its supreme tribunal dictates new ideas in grammar and rhetoric which are no doubt puzzling to the scholar, but which constitute a daily solace to the busy newspaper worker. Sic Semper Tyrannis—whatever that means.

For reasons which we shall not at this time disclose, The Tribune hereby nominates Winnipeg as the best place to hold the next summer meeting of the Minnesota editorial association.

In justice to Knut Wefald, the new congressman from this district, it must be admitted that he made a good speech Sunday at the Sons of Norway picnic, and he made a fine impression upon his large audience.

The night cop ordered the visiting singers off the streets when they serenaded their friends the other night. He offers the excuse that he thought, judging by their raiment, that they were bartenders.

An exchange remarks that every town should provide proper sparking space for its young people.

We advise those who are so convulsed with mirth over Henry Ford's candidacy for the presidency to do their laughing early.

The Tribune is absolutely neutral concerning the fight at Shelby on the Fourth. We don't care how soon Tom Gibbons kills his opponent.

Washington correspondents have an avid interest in the outcome of the Minnesota election.

Public Picnic to Be Held at Squaw Point Sunday

A local committee is at work arranging a program for a picnic to be held at Squaw Point on Sunday, July 1st, when prominent speakers will address those present and amusements will be furnished the children. Free coffee, cream and sugar will be furnished by the co-operative store and it is requested that you bring your dinner and cups. The Tribune this week printed posters announcing the picnic and it is requested that all come and enjoy the day and secure some valuable information, according to the committee.

A Correction.

In the news writeup concerning the death last week of Mrs. Carl Olson mother of Alfred Olson, residing on North Markley avenue, at whose home she died, The Tribune stated her name as being Mrs. Paul Olson whereas it should have read Mrs. Carl Olson, and this newspaper is glad to make the correction. The survivors are: Carl Olson, Alfred Olson and Mrs. J. Lundgren of this city; Mrs. R. Samuelson of Warren, Minn., and Mrs. J. McLean of Adams, N. D.

Dinner Party.

Miss Viola Blom, who for the past week has been a guest at the M. Barzen home and returns this week to her home at Milwaukee, was honor guest at a 6:30 three-course dinner given by Mrs. Barzen Tuesday evening. Besides the family circle, the following were included: Miss Eileen Arneson, Miss Myrtle Krohn, Ernest Zeh, Harold Smithers and Norbert Holzknecht.

"Water" and Railroad Rates

Certain politicians are spreading claims like this among voters whose poltical support they are seeking:

"If the water was squeezed out of railroad capitalization and valuation, rates could be reduced fifty per cent."

Official figures filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington prove that EIGHTY-FIVE PER CENT of all the money taken in by all the railroads—eighty-five cents out of every dollar—is paid out for LABOR, MATERIALS and TAXES.

In 1922 the Soo Line took in from operations a little more than forty-seven million dollars. It paid out over thirty-nine and one-half millions (84 per cent of what was taken in) for labor, materials and taxes—over six millions (13 per cent of what was taken in) for interest on Bonds and Notes—altogether NINETY-SEVEN CENTS OUT OF EVERY DOLLAR EARNED.

Suppose that the Government should CONFISCATE all Soo Line Bonds and Stock—all its four thousand four hundred miles of railroad in Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Michigan, Illinois, South Dakota and Montana, purchased with money paid in by the Stockholders and Bondholders—all its millions of dollars' worth of locomotives, cars, stations, shops, roundhouses, etc.—so that nothing would be paid for the use of all that property.

IT WOULD STILL BE NECESSARY TO TAKE IN EIGHTY-FOUR CENTS OF EVERY DOLLAR THAT THIS RAILROAD NOW RECEIVES IN ORDER TO PAY FOR LABOR, MATERIALS AND TAXES.

G. R. HUNTINGTON,
President, Soo Line.

"Jake" Preus Gives Strong Pledge to Farmers in Talk

culturist, the merchant, the banker, the professional man and the laborer are identical in that if agriculture is prosperous—then, and then only—are others who depend for their living upon the patronage of the farmer, sailing on safe ground; otherwise all must go down together.

"The sooner all realize this situation and stand shoulder to shoulder in the common effort to secure for the farmer a fair return for his labor and investment, the sooner will prosperity return to the agricultural regions," asserted the executive, and the way the audience applauded him indicated a responsive approval on their part.

The question of taxation occupied the attention of the speaker to a considerable extent. Taxation is largely a local matter, said the governor, citing concrete examples of how the taxpayers vote improvements—both necessary and unnecessary—but all expensive, and when the tax burden becomes oppressive they blame the state administration. He cautioned his hearers to proceed within the limits of their ability to pay in all matters of taxation.

In his discussion of the recent decision of the supreme court of the United States upholding the state iron ore tax, the speaker rather faceciously referred to the incident which occurred two years ago when the governor opened his campaign in this city and a man in the audience asked him, "How about the steel trust?" The answer he asserted he was ready to make was in the shape of a law which would bring into the Minnesota state treasury an annual tax of $6,000,000 from the special taxes levied upon the iron mines of the state, such tax having been vetoed by two preceding executives of the state. The audience saw the point and applauded him to the echo.

Co-operative effort on the part of the farmer was his only remedy in the face of depressing prices, said Mr. Preus. In support of this he argued the success of the fruit growers of California, the cotton growers of the south, and the tobacco growers. The farmer must so organize himself and so ordain his marketing efforts as to get the most out of his produce and must place himself in position to demand a fair price for everything he sells. He cited his support of the Minnesota co-operative marketing law and urged his hearers to study and abide by its provisions.

His recital of the benefits which would accrue to the shippers of the Northwest from the building of a canal through the St. Lawrence river, giving Minnesota an open port to the sea and accomplishing in this manner a saving of eight cents per bushel on all grain exported and a corresponding saving upon imports. He held the building of such a waterway to be of the greatest importance to the middle west and pledged his best efforts to the building of the project.

Rural credits was briefly discussed by the governor, who deplored the temporary delay in the sale of the bonds, but which he asserted would be of lasting benefit to the farmer in that it would greatly reduce his interest burden. The governor said that if the state did acquire a farm or two in the operation of the law, no great harm would result, for no tillable state land was ever held by the state for any great length of time without a ready purchaser being found.

In summing up the governor pledged himself to the service of down-trodden agriculture, to the upbuilding of the state and its magnificent institutions, promising equal devotion to every interest in the state.

At the conclusion of his address the governor was given tumultuous applause. It was the greatest political meeting ever held in the city and those who came out were rewarded by hearing a sincere and thoughtful discussion, the equal of which has seldom been heard in this city.

During the afternoon Governor Preus addressed a gathering of farmers, Legion and business men at Greenbush, returning here at 7:30 o'clock, when a banquet was served at the Evelyn hotel. He made a few short remarks at the banquet table, after which the parade was formed to the Auditorium, led by the American Legion band, which furnished peppy cadence to the line of marchers. The big Auditorium was soon filled to capacity and ready for the address of the governor.

larceny, while Fred DuChamp is charged with the sale of mortgaged property, Nick Baker with the manufacture of intoxicating liquor, and Carl Hahner with forgery in the second degree. Mr. Hahner was arraigned late Tuesday afternoon and pleaded guilty.

The judge reserved decisions in the cases pleading guilty until later in the term, when sentence will be pronounced. The case of Fred DuChamp has been continued by mutual consent until the next term of court.

Of the six continued cases and five new cases on the civil calendar, four have been continued to the next term of court, namely, Richard Hall vs. George D. Snyder, with Zella Snyder as substituted defendant; R. C. Whisett Coal and Mining Co. vs. Thief River Falls Iron Works; S. M. Erickson vs. W. C. Nichols and William Nichols, and Casper Iverson vs. J. B. Howe and Goodridge State Bank.

The case of C. Calvin Modisett as administrator of the estate of Calvin Modisett vs. Tessum Seed, Grain and Supply Co. was settled by stipulation, as was also that of Amelia Ericksen vs. Soo Railway company. The case of August H. Glewwe vs. M. N. Gergen has been passed for the present.

This leaves only four cases set for trial at this term of court, these being the Security Bank of St. Paul vs. Martin Kotrba, Frances Kotrba, his wife, and Josephine Kobetsky; the Union Plumbing and Heating Co. vs. F. J. Dudley and the Kelly-How Co.; the Prichard Co. vs. Holt & George and M. C. Harlow, garnishee; and the matter of vacating Duluth avenue in the rear of the Lincoln school.

Tribune to Print Its Next Issue on Tuesday; Crew Will "Celebrate"

See "The Trib's" Force in Action on July the Fourth—No Charge, Don't Crowd.

Wednesday, the regular publication day of The Tribune, falling on July 4th, this newspaper will be issued one day ahead of time in order to allow the proper observance of the day on the part of its composing room and editorial force. Fact is, it would be hard to put on any kind of a celebration without the talented and versatile Tribune crew. Snyder leads the band, Schuster squirts water for the fire department. "Matt" tends bar at Sheedy's on off hours, and Frank, who talks all the time, must absolutely be there to keep things sized up and going right. Clara will be on hand to get all the scandal and gossip.

But you'll get a good paper next Tuesday just the same. The temporary editor and his staff of reporters will be on the job early and late and the printers have promised to work late Tuesday evening if necessary. You're getting 12 pages today and have for the past several weeks. Chances are—if plans of the celebration committee mature—the police department will be so busy on "the Fourth" that The Tribune will have to get out an extra edition on "the Fifth."

benefit would come to the farmers from its operation.

Bj. Bjornaraa was the first speaker on the program. His remarks, which were very well received, were directed toward the preservation of the language and traditions of the Norsemen. He eloquently pictured the true Norseman whose devotion was centered about America but who did not forget the language and sagas of his forefathers, asserting that such citizens were the better for thus having preserved in memory the knowledge of the culture and exploits of their forebears. Mr. Bjornaraa is a powerful and convincing speaker and his remarks always carry great weight.

Prof. Aaker and Mr. Berget, both visitors at the picnic, were called upon by Chairman Bernhard Knudsen and their brief addresses were liberally applauded by the audiences.

The visiting singers, members of the various organizations which participated in the concert the evening before, rendered several appropriate songs at the opening of the program, and John Nyborg, the baritone soloist, showed his versatility by singing unusually well and then winding up the program with a story which convulsed the audience with laughter.

It takes a very successful artist to draw a valid check.

Coupie-LeSage.

A wedding of much local interest occured in the city last Wednesday morning when Miss Ilet LeSage became the bride of Jerome G. Coupie of Standish, Michigan. The ceremony was solemnized at St. Bernard's church by Rev. M. J. Noesen, with Miss Mamie Votava as bridesmaid and Delman LeSage, brother of the bride, as best man.

The bride is well known here, having attended the local schools and graduated with the class of 1916. During the past year she taught school at Radium. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. LeSage, pioneer residents of Thief River Falls. The groom is engaged in farming near Standish, Mich., where the happy couple will reside after an extended visit in Minneapolis, Chicago and Milwaukee.

Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Coupie were honor guests at a reception to about fifty friends and relatives, given by the bride's parents. A two-course dinner was served on the lawn, and at 4:30 the wedding cake was cut. The newlyweds were the recipients of a large number of pretty gifts. The guests at the reception included Mr. and Mrs. John Halvorson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Halvorson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Nels Halvorson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Halvorson and family, Miss Emily Halvorson, Mrs. Josie Lund, Mr. and Mrs. A. [illegible], Misses Celina and Leona Bourque, Misses Mamie and Rose Votava, Mr. and Mrs. Halvor Halvorson, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sheedy and family, Mrs. Mary DuFoe and Mrs. James Smith.

Our Flag = What It Stands For and How to Treat It

Readers: Study this, then clip it out and save it.

Symbol.

"The flag of the Unied States symbolizes that freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which our forefathers sacrificed their lives and personal fortunes. Today this flag represents a nation of over 100,000,000 free people, its constitution and institutions, its achievements and aspirations.

"The national flag represents the living country and is itself considered as a living thing.

Pledge.

"I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States and the Republic for which it stads, one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

Salute.

"During the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the flag or when the flag is passing in parade or review all persons present should stand at attention facing the flag. Men's headdress should be removed with the right hand and held at the left shoulder. Those present in uniform should salute with the right hand. Women should stand at attention facing the flag or as the flag is passing in parade should salute by placing the right hand over the heart. If the national anthem is played and no flag is present all stand at attention and salute at the first note of the anthem, retaining the position until the last note is played.

Anthem.

"The Star Spangled Banner" is recommended for universal recognition as the national anthem.

Flag Law.

"There is but one Federal statue which protects the flag throughout the country from desecration. This law provides that a trademark cannot be registered which consists of or comprises, among other things, the flag, coat of arms or other insignia of the United States or any simulation thereof. (33 Stat. L. p. 725, Feb. 20, 1905.)

Display.

"The flag should be displayed from sunrise to sunset only or between such source as designated by proper authority on national and state holidays and on historic and special occasion. The flag should always be hoisted briskly and lowered slowly and ceremoniously.

"When carried in a procession with another flag or flags the place of the flag of the United States is on the right.

"When a number of flags are grouped and displayed from staffs the flags of the United States should be in the center or at the highest point of the group.

Platform.

"When used on a speaker's platform the flag should be displayed above and behind the speaker. It should never be used to cover the speaker's desk nor drape over the front of the platform.

"When used in unveiling a statue or monument the flag should not be allowed to fall to the ground, but should be carried aloft to wave out, forming a distinctive feature during the remainder of the ceremony.

Church.

"When the flag is displayed in church it should be from a staff placed on the congregation's right as they face the clergyman, with the service flag, state flag or other flag on the left wall. If in the chancel the flag of the United States should be placed on the clergyman's right as he faces the congregation."

Don'ts.

Do not let the flag of the United States touch the grond or trail in the water.

Do not use the flag of the United States in any form of advertising nor fasten an advertising sign to a flag.

Do not use the flag as drapery; use bunting.

Do not drape the flag over the hood, top or sides of a vehicle, or of a railroad train or boat. If it is desired to display the flag on a motor car affix the staff firmly to the chassis or clamp it to the radiator cap.

Do not use the flag of the United States as a receptacle for receiving, holding, carrying, or delivering anything.

The average American now lives 55 years, or 15 years more than when the Civil war started, and by 1950 the span of life may be raised to 69 years. So predicts Dr. Haven Emerson of New York City. The joker in the modern prolongation of average life is that the gain has been largely by reducing the death rate among children. People who pass maturity still die at about the same age as they used to.

The way to be happy is to give no thought to being happy, but by plugging along contentedly from day to day, and accepting what life brings with thankfulness.

DUNTON RESIGNS AS POTATO SECRETARY

Severs Official Connections With Committee as Aid to New Movement.

A. M. Dunton, who recently addressed the Pennington county potato growers and who has been serving as a member of the general state potato organization committee and secretary of the executive board, has resigned. The vacancy has not been filled, although negotiations are under way to obtain the services of Edward Barr, secretary of the agricultural sub-committee of the St. Paul Association.

In resigning, Mr. Dunton told the board that for the past year he had two objects in mind. First, he wanted to see the potato marketing problem in Minnesota solved, and second, he wanted the affairs of the old Minnesota Potato Exchange placed in such shape that it could retire from the field honorably. Inasmuch as both objectives appear about to be realized, he desired to be relieved of official connections with the movement.

Another reason for his resigning, he he said, was to remove any implications of connections between the Old Exchange and the new movement. Because he was general manager of the Old Exchange, it has been but natural for pesrons dissatisfied with the service rendered by the that institution to blame him, as an individual, rather than the organization, for its shortcomings. While Mr. Dunton is no longer officially connected with the movement, he will continue to urge it as the only solution of the potato marketing problem in the Northwest.

In accepting his resignation, members of the board complimented Mr. Dunton for the manner in which he worked to straighten out the affairs of the Old Exchange and his efforts to make it possible for the new work to get under way.

PROPOSE ROAD BONDS EXCEEDING $4,000,000

Counties Begin Lending Credit to the State for Highway Improvement Under New Bond Law.

Although the plan for state highway bonds for needed improvements was not made a law, the last Legislature did authorize more than $11,000,000 more county reimursement bonds for trunk route work, and a highway bulleting this week states that twenty-two counties already have voted or are considering issues of more than $4,000,000 under the new law.

The first issue of $90,00 has been sold by Pennington county. Others exceeding $1,400.000 have been voted by Betrami, Carlton, Carver, Goodhue, Meeker, Nicollet, Steele and Wabasha counties. Blocks ranging up to $250.000 each are proposed in Becker, Dodge, Douglas, Grant, Kittson, Morrison, Ottertail, Pope, Sibley, Stearns, Traverse, Waseca and Wabasha counties. No reports of action have been received from remaining counties sharing the authorization, the bulletin states.

While more than $11,000,000 is authorized by the legislature and $4.000,000 already is up, the highway department is fighting to hold the grand total for the two-year period to $4,000,000.

"The department stand on bonds is consistent," said Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner. "It advocates bonds for needed trunk highway improvements—knowing the economy of paying interest on good roads instead of larger amounts for constant repairing on inadequate roads. Reimbursement money must be used in the county issuing the bonds, and the law opens the way for improving roads serving few users ahead of those used by many, contrary to fairness and the spirit of the highway plan. So where motor vehicle receipts would be encumbered to build minor betterments before those most necessary, department approval will be withheld."

Experience in the next two years will demonstrate the necessity of providing a way of financing needed improvements, he intimated, although insisting that the agreed tax on motor vehicles will pay for the improvement and maintenance of the big trunk highway system.

GRAVEL ROADS SLUMP AS TRAFFIC RUNS UP

Record Travel Reported on All Sections of State Trunk Highway System—Situation Serious.

Minnesota highway travel fully a third heavier than last year—actual counts showed it nearly doubled on one important route—is fast battering away the primary roads of the state and serious situations loom in some localities, according to a highway bulleting this week.

Following reports of big traffic increases in all parts of the state, checks were made at a few points and the actual counts showed that the daily average on the entire system may exceed 1,000 vehicles a day this year, against 710 in 1922 and 565 in 1921. Only frequent rains to lessen travel and make maintenance work more effective will prevent many sections from ruin before the season's end, highway engineers assert.

"Trunk routes in general are excellent now and probably will so continue except on the gravel-surfaced sections already subjected to overloading," said Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner. "The latter are the stretches which should be hard surfaced and hose to which traffic is diverted from unimproved paralleling routes. Unfortunately they are the sections serving the largest number of Minnesota people and tourists as well and the states' reputation for good roads may suffer as a result.

"Until these more important roads are adequately improved, the plan will not justify expenditures on cestions used by smaller numbers. Maintenance funds are ample, but no amount of money or care will keep up a gravel road after traffic passes a certain point. It is a matter of construction on these more important arteries."

The highway commissioner referred to many voluntary statements from citizens of their convictions that paving must be built on some sections to stop waste of money on ineffective maintenance and that the fact is becoming appreciated by the public generally.

Pooling Plan Continues To Find Favor Among Growers

(By GEO. E. DUIS)

[Editor's note: This is the second of a series of six articles on various phases of co-operative marketing, written by Geo. E. Duis. Mr. Duis pioneered the wheat pooling movement in North Dakota and is now president of the North Dakota Wheat Growers Association. He also took an active part in the formation of the American Wheat Growers, Inc., the national sales agency.]

ARTICLE II.

For years grain farmers have been groping about trying to find out why their business was not as profitable as other industries. We have noted with alarm that the price of commodities that we buy has gradually increased out of proportion to the price we receive for the products which we sell. This has been most noticeable of late years, and still continues.

While looking for a practical solution, we heard about the splendid success of the commodity marketing associations in California. We decided that a similar organization would serve the wheat growers just as well. Organization committees in the various middlewest states, including North Dakota, adopted growers' contracts very similar to the contract signed by the California growers. Then we heard that Wheat Growers associations on the Pacific coast had actually been functioning as selling agencies under this plan. We investigated and found the results so satisfactory that we in North Dakota decided to cast our lot with the Pacific coast growers, and pool our sales with those states. For two years the state units of Washington, Idaho, Oregon, and Montana sold their pooled wheat through an agency, known as the Northwest Wheat Growers, associated. This agency was established by representatives of the different state units involved and is now governed by a board of trustees composed of representatives of the associations which it serves. The North Dakota Wheat Growers association became affiliated with the Northwest Wheat Growers, associated, in May, 1922.

In order to serve the North Dakota members, the Northwest Wheat Growers, associated, established branch selling agencies in Minneapolis and Duluth. Pooled wheat from Montana is also consigned to these two points. Geo. C. Jewett, general manager of the Northwest Wheat Growers, associated, is in direct charge of the sales and divides his time between the main office in Portland, Ore., and the Minnesota branches. Mr. Jewett is directly responsible for much of the success of co-operative wheat marketing in the northwest, and wheat growers are indeed fortunate to have such an able and zealous leader. He was formerly secretary of the Federal Land bank of Spokane, Wash., and has always been intimately connected with and taken an active interest in agricultural problems.

The Northwest Wheat Growers, associated, acquired seats on the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce and the Duluth Board of Trade in order to facilitate selling. Before these seats were acquired our salesman was forced to peddle his wares about by samples, or deal through commission firms which had memberships in the Chamber. This was manifestly unsatisfactory, and hence we regard it as a distinct achievement to be admitted to membership on the boards of trade. We take absolutely no part in, nor do we approve of the speculative side of the Chamber of Commerce, and we use it merely as a convenient meeting place of buyers and sellers. It means that the farmers are using the same methods for their own gain that have been used by the grain dealers for their own profit. Grain marketing has at last been placed on a business basis—the grower has become a merchant as well as a producer, and he no longer must turn over his produce to private dealers at a price that they choose to name—a price that has netted the grain dealers millions of dollars in profits these many years. However co-operative wheat marketing is in its infancy, and no one should deceive himself in thinking that all the problems are solved and that growers can now sit back and wait for a golden flow of dollars into their laps.

Our biggest problem, which should be our simplest, is to place the bulk of the volume of the wheat raised in this country under the control of a single farmer-owned selling agency. This must be the ultimate result to get the greatest benefit. We are now in a fair way to realize this aim. During the last few months plans have been maturing to amalgamate all the state units of the wheat growers associations into one national organization to serve as a selling agency for the wheat of the different associations. These plans culminated in the incorporation of the American Wheat Growers, Inc., and twelve state units stand ready to affiliate with the central agency.

In the next article I will deal with some of the fundamental principles of the commodity marketing associations as applied to the marketing of wheat.

SUGGEST YELLOW LIGHTS ON REAR

Motorists Liable to Confuse Signals Along Roads to Indicate Danger.

ENGINEERS APPROVE SCHEME

It Will Take Some Time to Make Change as Laws in Many States Require Red Lamps—Replacement Won't Be Costly.

Automobile engineers are considering the advisability of using yellow in place of red tail lights so as to minimize the danger of motorists confusing lights placed along highways to indicate dangerous road conditions with automobile tail lights.

Many accidents occur owing to motorists being confused in this way.

The red light on the rear of the railroad trains is probably the origin of the red tail light of automobiles. The railroad train operates on a track and the rear end of that train is dangerous because a train following cannot turn out to avoid the preceding train. As automobiles do not operate on tracks, however, an automobile following another can generally turn out and pass it. It will thus be appreciated that the rear end of an automobile is dangerous only when it is slowing down or standing at the roadside. The use of red lights in automatic or manually operated stop signals for the rear of automobiles is therefore logical.

The members of the passenger car and motor track standardization committees of the Society of Automotive Engineers, a national engineering society of over 5,000 engineers and executives of automobile and other automotive manufacturers, have studied this proposed change and generally approve of it. The fact, however, that the use of red lights is required by law in many states will mean that the change to yellow tail lights cannot be made until the laws in these states are revised.

It will, they point out, take some time to bring about any complete change from red to yellow tail lights, but once the wisdom of making such a change is fully appreciated by motorists, legislators will see that the state highway laws are revised to permit the change. The use of existing tail lamps will in no case be affected, as it will be possible to obtain yellow lamp glasses to replace the red lamp glasses now in service, if such replacement is wished by the individual owners.

The use of yellow as an automobile tail light will have an exact parallel in railway operation, inasmuch as yellow is used by the railroads as a caution light. This is really what the tail light of an automobile is intended to be, to caution the following machine that care must be exercised in overtaking and passing other automobiles.

Tribune want ads bring best results

When you fight or work, don't make a fuss. The hen cackles only after she has laid an egg. The noise and sizzle of a locomotive are not force. All force is silent. The bray of a mule may startle, but it is not as dangerous as his hind legs. It is the empty wagon that makes the noise when in motion. The noise of the drum is due to the fact that there is nothing in it.

This would be a much more pleasant world if folks would only adopt the tactics of Opportunity—knock but once.

University Will Confer Degrees Upon 45 "Vets"

Graduates Were Awarded Courses in Vocational Tarining Because of War Disabilities.

Forty-five disabled veterans of the World War will receive degrees at the University of Minnesota on June 30. These men were all awarded courses in vocational training because of their war disabilities and have been doing their work under the auspices of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau.

It is a fundamental principle in the rehabilitation work of the Bureau, in granting a course in vocational training to a disabled man to enable him to overcome his handicap, to retrain him into some new line of work suited to his disability and his aptitudes and in which his was disabilities will not operate as a handicap. The purpose of this is to restore him to the economic status he would presumably have occupied at this time if there had been no war. When this is done he can safely be declared "rehabilitated."

Of course, many of the young fellows who went into the service were men of good mental ability and already well along in their plans to complete various professional courses. Because of their aptitude and intentions they were permitted to go on and finish these courses when awarded vocational training under the U. S. Veterans' Bureau.

Forty-five of these are about to receive their degrees from this one institution. They are now ready to plunge into the world's work on a par with other men and work out their own destinies.

These men, as a group, have given a good account of themselves during their university course, in spite of their injuries and the mental unrest created by their military service. Several of them have won distinct recognition and honors. They have averaged better grades than their strictly civilian fellow-students.

They will serve society, in peace times, with the same loyalty and courage they served the country in war times.

Four will receive the degree of bachelor of science in business, one in civil engineering. four in mining engineering, one in mechanical engineering, one in industrial chemistry, and one in general science. Sixteen will receive the degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery, six that of Bachelor of Laws, two that of Doctor of Medicine, one as Master of Science in Business. and one in industrial chemistry.

Wood Duck Hunting Prohibited.

Wood ducks may not be hunted in Minnesota or in any other state at any season, according to the Biological Survey, United Department of Agriculture, which administers the migratory bird treaty act. This is a federal law under which the hunting, killing or possessing of wood ducks is prohibited at all times throughout the United States and by treaty throughout Canada also. This game law, having been upheld by the United States supreme court, makes inoperative the amendment to the game laws of Minnesota passed at the last session of the state legislature, providing an open season on wood ducks. Thus, hunters will not be allowed to exercise the privilege accorded them by the state law, and persons found hunting, killing or possessing wood ducks at any time will be subject to prosecution in the federal courts.

Among the slickers following the circus were several well-dressed middle aged professional-looking men, selling rosy tinted goggles to the unsuspecting. They would nail their prospect on the street, generally a man well advanced in age, and slip a pair of glasses on him before he could protest. The confederate stood in the background. "Don't they feel easy and restful on your eyes?" the first slicker would inquire. "I have worn this pair for years and they give mighty good satisfaction. No need to pay up to $30 for glasses when you can buy a pair like these for so much less." That was the cue for the second slicker to appear. "Hello, there," he would hail the vendor of the goggles. Then speaking to the prospect, he got this off his chest: "I am a doctor at Fon du Lac, and bought this pair of glasses from my friend twelve years ago. I have never had to have the lenses changed. They are right—absolutely. Anything my friend tells you is O. K., and I will stand back of it." Two sales are reported to have been made in fifteen minutes. Barnum underestimated it. —Sentinel.

OUR NEXT PRESIDENT Who Will He Be?

AUTOCASTER

RICHARD LLOYD JONES SAYS

Doing Our Duty Leads to Power

DUTY.—This is a positive world. Upon every living creature is imposed an obligation. Duty demands that this obligation be met. He who fails to meet it is a drone. The world discards its drones. Do not let yourself be cast into the discard.

Duty is a stern taskmaster. It commands us to be useful, not according to our desires, but according to our powers.

Duty will tolerate neither slight nor neglect. The more you shirk it the higher it piles up before you.

If you break the thread in the loom by being false to your duty today you may confront the flaw tomorrow, when you will have forgotten its cause and are helpless to mend it.

Duties seldom come through choice. They are the lot of destiny. The reward for doing one duty is the power to fulfill another.

The arm that swings the hammer grows strong. The conscience that, soldier-like, pursues duty daily develops character.

Duty is the acid test of manhood. It marks heroes and shows the shame of pretenders.

Duty is not spasmodic,—it does not confront us occasionally; it is constant. Some duty meets each of us face to face every day. We cannot meet it by long jumps. We must follow it step by step.

Duty measures time cautiously. With every duty we are given the time in which to do it. But we are not given time to spare. Neglect will forfeit fulfillment. Do your duty now. Take no chance. Duty delayed spells failure.

Pleasure often appears to be in conflict with duty because in attempting to discharge our duty we do only what we are strictly obliged to do and we feel we are seldom praised for it. Yet the pleasure a man of honor enjoys in the consciousness of having performed his duty is a reward he pays himself for all his pains.

The first, the last, and the greatest pleasure in life is the sense of having discharged our duty.

Poem by Uncle John

Oh, a dainty job is the Sailor lid, as she perches o'er ruins old . . . when the large, pink ears that can't be hid, are tanned to a russet gold. . . . And a torso red, adds vehemence rare to the scenery ferninst the bean. . . . It's the old boy, fresh from the barber-chair, that's flirting with sweet sixteen!

I dote on the guy in the damp sweat-shop, who turns out the sailor lid . . . for the old galoot with the egg-shell tops, is vain as the average kid. . . . He parades Broadway in a manner gay, and takes on the goo-goo eye,—He's a masher bold—though a rooster old,—can't somebody tell me why?

I darsn't go near to Lover's Lane, topped out in a sailor new . . . for fear I might addle some Dearie's brain—which my wife wouldn't want me to. . . . So, I stick around my vine-clad porch, to keep my attractions hid. . . . For, nothin' will kindle flirtation's torch, like a bran'-new sailor lid!

STOMACH SUFFERERS READ THIS LETTER ABOUT STO-LI-GAL

Sansby Bros. Drug Co.:

St. Paul, Minn. Will you please send at once $5.00 worth of your Sto-li-gal. Can truthfully say that my mother's in better condition than for five years. This will make $45 worth of your Sto-li-gal, and when mother began taking it she was in an awful condition, had pains in stomach and back, could not sleep or eat. We did not expect Sto-li-gal to benefit her inasmuch as the doctors said all they could do was to give her temporary relief. It has been five weeks now since mother has felt any distressing symptoms as heretofore, and we thank the Lord for your remedy, as it is through Him we received the knowledge of Sto-li-gal. I remain, yours truly, Mrs. J. E. McDonough, Barronet, Wis., Box 99. Thousands of sufferers everywhere have been relieved of stomach disorders by the use of Sto-li-gal, so don't delay. Go to your druggist at once and demand one box of Sto-li-gal, which will do wonders, and if directions are followed entire relief is usually obtained in attacks of gallstones, stomach ulcers, chronic appendicitis, torpid, lazy liver, indigestion, dyspepsia, gassy, sour stomach, heartburn, pains in stomach and back, dizziness, shortage of breath and habitual constipation. Sold by druggists everywhere, also sent direct on receipt of $1 by Sansby Bros. Drug Co., 800 University Ave., St. Paul, Minn. Circular sent free on request.

Sold in Thief River Falls at Dr. Newell's drug store and Roy Lambert's drug store.—adv.

Dining

If a guest spills salt at a table, should he clear it up or let the maid do it? At a dinner where there is no maid, when passing the food, should a man help himself first if he is next in line, or let the girl next him help herself first? Thank you.

GEORGE B. PENN.

1. It is the maid's place to clear anything spilt at a table.
2. He should offer it to the lady next to him, just saying, "May I help you?" Then she will see he is served before it is passed on.

In the Theatre

DEAR ALEDA:

My husband and I attend the movies a great deal, and I should like to know the answers to the following questions: (1) Should a wife precede her husband down the aisle? (2) Also leaving the theatre. (3) Which should go in the row to take their seats first? (4) Does the same rule apply in church?

MRS. E. M. S.

(1) Yes, whether married or not, a woman should always precede a man down the aisle.

(2) The same rule holds good if there is such a crowd one must leave in single file. Otherwise a man may step into the aisle, wait for the lady, when they can go out together.

(3) The lady.

(4) Yes.

As a general rule, every person should drink at least six glasses of water every day, preferably one upon arising in the morning, one at meals and one between meals, says The Delineator. Ten glasses would do even better work. Excessive water drinking has no merit as a curative or preventative measure, and should be avoided, especially where heart or kidney trouble exists. (By excessive is meant twice or three times the normal quantity.) But it is by no means necessary to limit anyone to six glasses. A healthy thirst induced by exercise can safely be slacked at any time, bearing in mind the caution that copious drafts of very cold water when overheated are to be avoided. Water is always easily available almost everywhere, and anyone who neglects to take his proper quantity has only himself to blame.

Fourth of July Celebration.

The Fourth of July will be celebrated this year at the Albert Hanson farm east of town. The celebration will be given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society and the Young People's society of the Telemarken congregation, and the two societies promise a general good time to all attending. Romme graut, lefse, coffee, cake and ice cream will be served. There will also be baseball games and sports events.

"Look out for July 1," reads a card which this office has received from Mike Holm, Secretary of State. The penalties for delayed registration and delayed transfer of automobiles have been made more severe. The new registration law that becomes effective July 1, 1923, leaves the registrar no discretion as to penalties. Transfers must be made within three days after the car becomes subject to the tax. The penalty for delay in either case is 25 cents per day for 20 days, and $2 per month thereafter for not to exceed five months. This means a possible penalty of $15 for delayed transfer and $15 for delayed registration, with no power to waive either under any circumstances.

A farm paper we picked up the other day contained a headline which took our eye, "Do Hogs Pay?" We have been in the newspaper business for some twenty years and every once in a while we run across one that does pay. We have found some, too, that borrow their neighbor's paper, read it, then put in a big holler about something that he read that didn't suit him. Hogs don't always pay.

We are anxiously awaiting for some inventive genius to turn out a spring chicken with the running gear of a centipede.

Why are not weeds like gardentruck, growing only when cultivated?

Many a man who thinks he is a good American citizen and is ever ready to assert his right to be accounted a good citizen, does not even know what the flag stands for, or what is the proper form of respect to show to this emblem of the nation's liberty and power. It is my opinion that if more time were devoted to instruction in the schools upon the subject of the flag, and less on folk dances, it would be more to the benefit of the education of the children to fit them for the duties and responsibilities of citizenship when they take their places in the world.—Mankato Ledger.

Crookston to Play Here Next Sunday; Baseball Fans Plan Rejuvenation

Small Attendance at Last Few Games Cause of Alarm on Part of Local Management.

Crookston will play the Thief River Falls baseball team at the fair grounds diamond Sunday afternoon, the game to be called at 2:30 o'clock sharp. Crookston is said to have a fast organization and to have its team well groomed. The local team has not yet met Crookston this year and fans are wondering about just what they've got.

The small attendance at the last three games played at the fair grounds diamond during the past week is the cause of much alarm on the part of the management. The last two games played by the home team have been splendid exhibitions of baseball and they deserve better support. The boys played Red Lake Falls to a 4-to-4 tie last Sunday at Red Lake Falls and won from Climax here yesterday by the close score of 1 to 0. No kick coming on the class of baseball. It's as good as they get any place where an entirely home team is played. If big league ball is expected, go to the Polo grounds, because it can't be looked for in towns up here in the north, argue the management and the loyalists.

And the sports editor agrees with that kind of logic. Win, lose or draw, stick to the home team. Somebody has got to manage. Someone has to play. Don't get sore if you're not one of them 'cause if you're a good ball player, show it, and the town will feel proud of you.

Remember, Crookston here Sunday; game called at 2:30 in the afternoon. Let's pack the field and holler our heads off.

Two Meetings of City Council Prove "Short and Snappy" Sessions

Contract For Paving Postoffice Alley Awarded to C. M. Carlson in Sum of $1,970.34.

The meetings of the city council last night and a week ago were both short ones, not much business appearing before the aldermen at either time.

The council awarded the contract for paving the alley from Lambert's drug store to the postoffice to C. M. Carlson at last week's meeting, his bid for $1,970.34 being the lowest of the four received. The others were all over the $2,000 mark as indicated herewith: The Prichord Co., $2,231.70; L. D. McAdams, $2398.40; E. S. Christie, $2,639.70.

At last night's meeting the regular list of city bills for the two weeks was allowed, as was also the fourth estimate of the J. G. Robertson company of Minneapolis for the installation of the filtration machinery. This still leaves a 15 per cent balance unpaid, which amounts to $2,275.50 and which amount is being held up pending the O. K. of the engineer in charge, L. P. Wolff of St. Paul.

Airplane Lands at Fair Grounds and Spends Night

Reports reached The Tribune this morning that an unknown aviator spiraled down at the fair grounds late Monday evening, set up a tent, cooked his supper, packed up again the next morning and hopped off without as much as coming into town and revealing his identity, his business or anything concerning himself.

And Thief River Falls people are wondering who he might be and "what's the idea."

An airplane landing in this city is not of frequent occurrence, hence the speculation. The airplane was said to be of the ordinary biplane type and carried but one passenger, the pilot. The landing was said to have been made without trouble. It come from a southerly direction, but what leaning it took the next morning no one seems to know. It is thought probable that some "joy-rider" was out trying his skiff and that he wasn't aware that his visit here would occasion so much wondering.

Fourteen Cars in Tour to Red Lake Sunday; Bathe and Bask on Sand Beach

Large Number of Local Tourists and Visitors in City Make Up Automobile Party.

A cortege of 14 automobiles, all of Thief River Falls, made up a large touring party that visited Red Lake Sunday and spent the day there, bathing, fishing and basking along the excellent sandy beaches afforded there. The party went to the outlet by way of Thorhult and the Sawmill location, making a distance in all of 73 miles, and every car in the party negotiated the distance without trouble.

Members of the party have informed The Tribune that roads by way of Thorhult are now in good condition, as is generally the case unless rains have intervened. However, roads out there are always easily passable. The most favorable route is through Goodridge, 20 miles; north to Ditch No. 20, a distance of eight miles; along Ditch No. 20 to Sawmill location, 23 miles; south on sand ridge to outlet, 22 miles, making a distance of 73 miles.

Those that comprised the tour to Red Lake were: Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Haug, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Mogensen and daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kline and children and Mr. and Mrs. C. Sjoberg and children; Mr. and Mrs. G. Stein, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smithers, son Harold, and Ernest Barzen; Mr. and Mrs. Perl W. Mabey and children, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Two Arrested on Charge of Selling Liquor; One to Come Up for Forgery

James Farr and Son, Glenn Farr, and Frank McGinnity to Appear for Trial This Term.

Upon information furnished County Attorney Theo. Quale by Francis Strupp, special officer, two warrants charging violation of the liquor laws were sworn out by the attorney's office Friday and Saturday of last week, one against James Farr and his son, Glenn Farr, and another implicating Frank McGinnity, local taxi operator.

The special officer charged that he had purchased liquor at the soft drink establishment of James Farr and that liquor—one gallon of it—had been sold to him by Frank McGinnity, for which he paid the sum of $12. Both cases will be heard at the present term of district court before Judge Andrew Grindeland.

Carl Hahner, living near Thief River Falls, was arrested during the week charged with forging a check against the account of Hans Anton, the check having been cashed at the Lieberman store. The check was drawn in the amount of $30. Hahner's trial will also come up at the present term.

There is at least one ray of hope on the horizon—the season for sliced tomatoes and green corn is approaching.

JURORS IN DISTRICT COURT RETURN "GUILTY" VERDICTS AGAINST FIVE; ACQUIT ONE

Jurymen Deliberate Twelve Hours in Case of State vs. Glenn Farr — Gilmet Is Acquitted of Charge.

Jurors in district court this week returned verdicts of "guilty" in five separate instances against infractors of the prohibition laws, a record number of convictions in Pennington court history. Three cases for violation of the liquor laws are yet to be heard before Judge Andrew Grindeland, presiding.

There are several cases of violation of the prohibition laws yet to be heard at the present term, sentence in the cases of those already convicted having been deferred by Judge Grindeland until most of the cases on the docket have been disposed of. This will probably will be early next week.

The case of the state against Glenn Farr for selling intoxicating liquor went to the jury Monday night at 6 o'clock, the jury deliberating for 12 hours before returning a verdict of "guilty" this morning at 6 o'clock, having been in session throughout the night. It is understood that the case will be appealed to a higher tribunal. Attorney Boughton of Red Lake Falls appeared for the defendant. The case of the state vs. James Farr has not been reached on the calendar, Mr. Farr being ill.

Ole Ystesund was acquitted by a jury on Monday. The bonds for Ystesund's appearance had been declared forfeited last week, but when Ystesund appeared for trial and was found not guilty, the court ordered the restoration of the bonds.

The case against Ernest J. Gilmet, accused of selling mortgaged property, held the attention of the court Friday and went to the jury during the late afternoon, which found him not guilty of the charge. Gilmet was accused of selling some horses and harnesses belonging to William McGinnity.

Alfred Rasmusson was found guilty on the liquor charge preferred against him by the state. Upon conviction on the first charge, County Attorney Theo. Quale made a motion that the second case against Rasmusson be dropped, which was ordered by Judge Grindeland.

The liquor charge against O. W. Carlson has been continued until the fall term of court on request of the county attorney, illness of state witnesses preventing prosecution of the case. C. B. Bradley was found guilty by a jury Saturday, the case having engaged the attention of the court most of the day.

Axel Anderson, accused of operating a gambling house, pleaded guilty before Judge Grindeland on Saturday and was assessed $25 and costs amounting to $7. The judge did nothing regarding the bond forfeiture question, but it is expected he will before court adjourns. The bonds were declared forfeited last week when Anderson failed to put in an appearance when his turn came for arraignment.

The liquor cases against Conrad Vinje, Nick Baker and John Wyss, the latter having been arrested several weeks ago at the former Vinje place, are yet to come up, but it is expected juries will be selected the latter part of this week and the fore part of next.

The case of the state against Jack Brendecke is before court this afternoon, a large part of the forenoon and afternoon sessions being occupied in the selection of jurymen. However, it is believed the case will be in the hands of the jury before evening.

Prosecution of the liquor charge against Frank McGinnity has been postponed to the fall term of the district court on motion of Theo. Quale, county attorney.

Robbery at Stephen.

Carrie's Restaurant and the A. Wik confectionery store were broken into about midnight on Tuesday. A small amount of cash was obtained from the cash register at Carrie's place, but at Wik's the proprietor, whose sleeping quarters are directly over the store, was awakened by the entrance of the thieves, who left hurriedly when Mr. Wik arose and started an investigation. Entrance to both places was gained by boldly forcing the locks of the front doors. Several local youths who are in the habit of prowling around alleyways at night are said to be under surveillance, although there is nothing to definitely connect them with the larceny mentioned. Considerable petty thievery was also reported at the Avery barn dance the same evening, a number of coats and caps and other articles of clothing having disappeared at that time.—Stephen Messenger.

Charles Ray to Be Seen Soon as Romantic Lover

Treat in Store For Local Public in His New Picture, "The Girl I Loved." Lyceum Sunday-Monday.

If all the world loves a lover, a treat is in store for the patrons of the Lyceum theatre next Sunday and Monday when Charles Ray's second United Artists production, "The Girl I Loved" will present that favorite star as one of the most ardent and dramatic swains that ever sought a woman's hand. Mr. Ray is said to reach acting heights in this picture never surpassed and seldom equalled on the screen.

The star began his stellar career in a very dramatic role seven years ago. In the years since his versatility in comedy has almost obscured his great ability as an actor of finer parts. In "The Girl I Loved" this ability comes out, it is said, with tremendous force before a picturesque background that is lively and gay.

The events occur among the happy rural people of Indiana from 1840 to 1860, and compose a panorama of typical American life that is now seen rarely. Through this panorama runs the personal love story of the poet James Whitcomb Riley as he related it in the verses from whose title the picture takes its name.

Under his United Artists contract Charles Ray is now making only big calibre productions, two a year, and this he regards as the greatest of his career. It is the tale of two men who sought a maiden's hand, one of them with tragic ardor. It is clean, like all Ray stories; but carries a tremendous punch. The girl is Patsy Ruth Miller, and it is predicted that the beauty and talents she displays in "The Girl I Loved" will make her a star forthwith.

Joseph DeGrasse, who is responsible for Ray's previous United Artists picture, "A Tailor Made Man," one of last year's big hits, also directed his latest. The cast also includes Ramsey Wallace, one of the stage's actors of international celebrity.

The Misses Tlinor and Lydia Dahlen, Phyllis and Lucile Curtis and Mabel Mathews of Blue Earth motored to Crookston Wednesday. They returned the same day via Maple Lake.

Dam Matter Is Referred Back to Committee For Action; New Proposals

Recommendations Made at Meeting Thursday to Have Storage Batteries as Auxiliary Units.

At a meeting of the committee on the dam proposition held at the Commercial club rooms Thursday evening for the purpose of reaching some decision as to future electrical power for the city, the entire matter was referred back to the committee in charge with the recommendation that it investigate the feasibility of installing one or two large storage batteries to be used as auxiliary power units.

It was pointed out at the meeting that the storage batteries may solve the power problem and permit of the use of but one engine to furnish power with the assistance of the power obtained from the batteries, which would be charged while the two engines are being used.

As the matter now stands, according to a member of the committee, one engine will not carry the load, necessitating the operation of the other. The two large storage batteries would serve the purpose of furnishing the extra power required and would enable one engine to do the work.

August 1-2-3 Are Dates Set for County Fair

Twenty-Second Annual Exhibition of Pennington Agricultural Society.

Novel and Interesting Attractions to be Shown at Exposition Grounds.

The premium list for the twenty-second annual exhibition of the Pennington County Agricultural society has been issued this week from The Tribune office and is ready for distribution by J. J. McCann, secretary of the fair. They will also be mailed out to various sections of the Northwest.

The fair this year, according to plans of the society, will be the largest in the history of the organization. A larger premium list, more free attractions, larger livestock exhibit, more varied general exhibit, an interesting school exhibit has been decided upon, and the exhibits afforded fair visitors will be the best ever shown here.

A much better racing program than has been seen here in years will be the rule this year. Considering that the public has grown somewhat tired of the modern automobile and motorcycle races, the fair management has already booked a large number of entries in all kinds of horse racing, such as trotting, running and harness races, including a pacer of national prominence who will race against time.

The attractions generally are novel and attractive, as well as educational. For the children there will be trained dogs, ponies and animals of all kinds. There will also be shows of various kinds, including the Marriott troupe presenting an original aerial act. The Sterling Rose troupe will also appear at the fair in two distinct acts and a comedy acrobatic act. The Lachman Exposition shows include six of the newest riding devices, two bands, 12 novel attractions, 25 cars and 300 people. Everything that constitutes a first-class amusement exposition will be shown. In addition to the list of attractions advertised in the premium list, there will be the usual ball games, races, etc., and it is planned by the fair officials to have the American Legion put another sham battle similar to that witnessed here last fall, when thousands watched local Legionnaires put on "No Man's Land." Commander Paulson already has laid preliminary plans for the sham battle.

Advertisements setting forth the various exhibits and free attractions will appear in the county newspapers from time to time between now and the dates for the fair to open. Large posters announcing the fair will be broadcasted throughout the northern section of the state.

School District Receives $12,188.15 in State Aid

Amount Constitutes Balance Unpaid in Last Year's Settlement With State of Minnesota.

County Treasurer Gullingsrud received this week from the state treasurer a check for $12,188.15, which is the amount due District No. 18 under the state aid law.

Owing to the depleted condition of the treasury last year the district received only 74 per cent of the state aid and the check received this week is the 26 per cent which makes up the difference.

The only other check received was one for $2.79 due two rural districts which receive small amounts of state aid.

Fourth of July Celebration Is Order of Today

Entire Citizenry to Take Part in Great Demonstration on Anniversary.

Huge Crowds Expected in City to Enjoy Holiday and Fine Program.

Thief River Falls is all set for the big day of days—the Fourth of July—when citizens, business men and the American Legion join hands to put on the largest celebration held this year in northern Minnesota. An immense throng of visitors is expected in the city and elaborate preparations have been made for their entertainment and comfort.

Stores of the city will be closed all day the Fourth by order of the closing committee of the Merchants association to enable clerks and employes to take part in the activities, which are scheduled to begin at 1 o'clock in the afternoon with a monster street parade, led by the American Legion band. This event will officially "set off the works" and from then on there will be a continual stream of attractions at the fair grounds during the afternoon and in the evening on city streets.

The address of Mayor Arthur E. Nelson of St. Paul will commence at 1:30 o'clock at the grandstand at the fair grounds, and it is requested that all who wish to hear him be in their seats by that time so as to eliminate as much as possible all interruption. Mr. Nelson will speak into a magnavox in order that all may be able to hear.

Fight returns from the Dempsey-Gibbons contest at Shelby, Mont., will come over the radio each five minutes and important aspects of the famous battle will be announced at the instant they occur at the arena. The feature is expected to prove a great drawing card for the immense crowd expected at the fair grounds, and is being put on by Alf. Borry of the Borry garage, who has arranged with the Thief River Music company to use their Zenith receiving set, one of the best radio sets in town. So it all depends upon how much "static" will be in the air on the Fourth as far as the big fight is concerned. With good atmospheric conditions, one should be about as well off as "sitting in the ring" at Shelby.

There will be an array of shows at the fair grounds, one, "Let Ole Do It," coming here with the best of recommendations. There will be a charge for the shows under canvas and to the grandstand, but admission to the grounds is absolutely free to all. A total of 21 races are scheduled to be run and one of the best racing programs seen here in years at a Fourth of July celebration will be staged. They include both motor and horse races, as well as a number of boys' and girls' races, for which substantial cash prizes are offered. The baseball game between Grygle and Thief River Falls will commence at 3:30 o'clock.

A water sports program is another of the features included and will be a contest between the Thief River Falls fire department and the American Legion. This will be held at the corner of Horace avenue and bridge street.

A $500 display of fireworks will be set off at the fair grounds at 8:45 p. m., and will be in charge of the fire department. The display is in all respects one of the best collections ever fired here and the committee in charge requests that all be at the fair grounds to witness the spectacle.

A monster dance will be staged at the bowery at the corner of Main avenue and First street during the evening. A six-piece orchestra will furnish the music. Programs will be distributed about the city during the day for the convenience of visitors.

"Hello, Boys, Didja Get a Skull Cap With Your Cone of Puritas Today?"

Kiewel Products Company to Offer Attractive Souvenir to All Purchasers of Ice Cream.

"Hello, Skinny," didja get your skull cap with your Puritas ice cream today? They sell ice cream at 12 different stores in town and it's the best ever."

According to an announcement by the Kiewel Products company, made yesterday, and an advertisement which appears in this issue of The Tribune, every store in town selling ice cream—of which there are 12—will give every purchaser of Puritas ice cream on the Fourth of July a free skull cap. The "lids" are tastily decorated and just the thing for the kids on holiday, and chances are every boy—and even the girls—will appear on the Fourth with a dome decorated with the Kiewel Puritas sign.

The Kiewel company requests that all make inquiries about the free skull cap on the Fourth. They are neat, light, cool and everything a kid wants in a skull cap.

Sheriff Is Killed By 20-Year-Old Grand Forks Lad

Slugs Officer and Makes His Escape From G. N. Passenger Train.

Two Posses Search Country For Slayer; $500 Reward For Capture.

Two posses today were searching for Edwin Rust of East Grand Forks, 20, who shot and killed Sheriff I. C. Fulkner of Brown county, South Dakota, on a Great Northern passenger train near Wolverton last night. After shooting the Aberdeen sheriff with one of his own guns, the slayer leaped through a window of the train and escaped.

One posse of 20 men was working south from Fargo, and the other, headed by Sheriff James Fitzgerald of Wilkin county, Minn., was going north to cut off escape in that direction.

A reward of $500 was offered last night by the Brown county commissioners for the slayer, dead or alive.

Rust is wanted at Aberdeen, S. D., for burglary and robbery. He was paroled from the Folsom prison near Sacramento, California, and is said to have a long record in that state, despite his youth.

Shortly after his escape from the train, gun in hand, he held up a motorist on the King of Trails highway, getting a hat and $1.10 in change. He did not steal the automobile.

The body of the sheriff has been taken to the Wilkin couty seat, and will later be taken to Aberdeen.

Fargo, N. D., July 2—Posses of three states today were searching for Edwin Rust, alias C. B. James of East Grand Forks, who shot and killed Sheriff I. C. Fulkner of Brown county, S. D., on a Great Northern train east of Moorhead last night, and made his escape. The posses are from Minnesota and North and South Dakota, and hourly are being added to.

After escaping from the train Rust held up Fred Olson, a Moorhead dairyman, and relieved him of a small sum of cash and a hat. Olson reported to the officers that Rust had forced him to carry him to Moorhead at the point of a gun.

When Moorhead was reached Rust left the car. From here the trail was lost. Reports here are that Rust, after the shooting, forced a passenger on the train to obtain from the wounded sheriff the keys with which to unlock the handcuffs binding his hands. The escape from the train was made at Finkle siding, four miles south of Moorhead.

Rust was arrested late last week at East Grand Forks on advices from the South Dakota sheriff. He was visiting at the home of his mother there. Rust's wife lives in Short street, St. Paul.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 2—Frank Gorman, brakeman on the Great Northern train carrying Edwin Rust and Sheriff Fulkner of Brown county, S. D., said today that when the train left Moorhead the two were sitting across from one another in a madeup berth. He declared that Rust struck the sheriff over the head with his handcuffs and secured his gun.

He then directed one of the passengers to secure the keys and to unfasten the hand and foot manacles with which he was secured.

Still holding the revolver on the brakeman and the other passengers he walked to the rear and leaped off the train.

U. S. Senator Lynn Frazier to Talk Here

Newly-Elected North Dakota Solon to Appear in Behalf of Party.

Former Governor of Flickertail State and Proficient Public Speaker.

Lynn J. Frazier, former governor of North Dakota and newly-elected United States senator from that state, will speak at Thief River Falls next Thursday evening, July 5, at 8 p. m. the meeting to be held at the city auditorium.

Senator Frazier was elected to the United States senate last fall and is one of the actual farmers who will occupy a seat on the floor of the upper house of congress when that body reconvenes in December. Since retiring from the governorship Mr. Frazier has been living on his farm near Hoople, in Pembina county, N. D. He is a forceful speaker and one who is thoroughly familiar with conditions and problems confronting farmers and business people residing in agricultural sections of the country.

The newly elected senator will make a tour of the state in the interests of the candidacy of Magnus Johnson, farmer-labor nominee, to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Knute Nelson. The special election will be held on July 16.

Arrangements are under way by a local committee of the farmer-labor party to attract a large crowd to the auditorium on the evening of July 5 to hear the address of Mr. Frazier.

Wilbur C. Roth Takes Miss Charlotte Erhardt as Bride; Wed June 29

Well-Known Local Young Man, Graduate of Lincoln High, Is Married in Minneapolis.

Fremont Avenue Congregational church was the scene of the wedding last evening, according to the Minneapolis Journal of Sunday, of Miss Charlotte Erhardt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Erhardt, 2108 Fremont avenue N., and Wilbur C. Roth of Thief River Falls, Minn. Palms, ferns, peonies and cathedral candles banked the altar before which the service was read at 8 o'clock by Rev. J. G. Duling, pastor of the church. Mrs. A. H. Cheese, organist, played and accompanied Miss Genevieve Naegele, a cousin of the bride, who sang "Oh Promise Me," "At Dawning," and "I Love You Truly."

Miss Erhardt's bridal gown was of white satin with an overdrape of Spanish lace. A cluster of orange blossoms and pearls held the satin train which extended from the waist line. Orange blossoms held her tulle veil in bandeau effect, and bride roses and lilies of the valley formed her shower bouquet.

9,400 Acres of Timber Land Is Thrown Open

Ex-Service Men to Be Given Preference in Filing For Homesteads in Minnesota.

Announcement has been made by Martin Widsten, United States Land Office Register for the Crookston district, that the federal interior department had reported the opening of 9,400 acres of timber lands in the Crookston, Cass Lake and Duluth districts on September 19 this year. Eligible applicants must file their entry claims in person and the local office will be open for this purpose at nine o'clock on the date and the days following.

The land in this district is widely scattered but the larger portion of it is in Clearwater and Lake of the Woods counties. The land is mostly wooded with pine, the prevailing timber.

Mr. Widsten states that the government will give ex-service men preference right in filing. The homesteads will be thrown open for filing by ex-service men on September 19, but other citizens must wait until December 18 to make an entry on the land then remaining.

It has also been announced that the soldiers and sailors may apply their period in the service, up to two years, on the time required to prove up on their filing. This will enable an ex-service homesteader to prove up his claim in seven months.

The land now announced for opening is said to be the last of the government's domain in this district. The land in Clearwater county is a part of the government timber reserve in the southern part. The land to be thrown open for entry is located in Beltrami, Clearwater, Mahnomen, Polk, Koochiching and Cook counties.

PREUS FOR SENATOR.

In all fairness The Tribune believes Governor Preus to be entitled to the support of this section of Minnesota in his candidacy for the senatorship for the very good reason that the governor has thrown himself into the breach in an effort to do something for the farmers of Minnesota.

This is a farming section pure and simple and every human being who reads this newspaper, no matter what that person is engaged in, is dependent upon agriculture for a living, and we contend that a newspaper would perform mighty poor service for its community if it should support a candidate for office simply because that candidate happened to belong to its favorite political party.

Let us see what Governor Preus has done to merit the support of the farmers of Minnesota.

He advocated the enactment of a co-operative marketing law which is the most drastic now on the statute books of any state in the Union. A law which opens the way for the farmer to so organize his business as to enable him eventually to put a price tag on every pound of produce that comes from the farm, the only means by which the farming industry can ever hope to put itself on a permanently paying basis. He not only advocated such a law but personally went before the legislature to urge its passage when sinister influences were threatening its defeat.. The law was passed and farmers are now turning to it as their last hope of salvation.

He urged the passage of a rural credits act which is the most progressive law of its kind in the United States, a law which gives the debt harassed farmer a new lease of life, enabling him to immensely reduce the interest burden which has been weighing him down. The editor of this newspaper can give the names of numerous farmers who will be reinstated in their homes by virtue of this law. Furthermore the governor has plainly indicated his belief in a liberal interpretation of the law.

He signed the school aid law which will greatly relieve over-taxed communities, who now receive greatly more money from the state than they pay into the treasury.

After two governors had vetoed a tonnage tax on iron ore, Governor Preus signed such a bill, and the law, which has now been sustained by the supreme court of the United, will bring six millions of dollars into the state treasury.

Under the Preus administration no state taxes for revenue purposes have been levied for two years.

He is an intelligent and staunch advocate of the St. Lawrence deep waterway which is distinctly beneficial to the farmers of the Northwest, giving them water transportation for all exports and resulting in an immense saving in freight rates.

Mr. Preus has been instrumental in more ways than one—in lending a hand, so to speak, in the great work of placing the farming industry back on its feet.

This newspaper is well aware that he has been called the "steel trust" candidate and that his good intentions and sincerity have been subjects of much sneering, but we submit that he has not demonstrated any "steel trust" leanings, not so one can notice it, and that his detractors have failed utterly to point out a single instance where he has betrayed the common people of Minnesota.

We have not always supported Mr. Preus, in fact we have often opposed him, but, in the present instance he deserves the support of all those who have been thinking about conditions in the agricultural sections. It may be said of him that he has done his level best to assist the farmer on the right road to emancipation. If he has failed it cannot be charged to lack of effort, and no right thinking farmer can afford to be misled by purely political propaganda.

In other words, we feel sure that the farmers of Minnesota do not insist that their problems must be solved by any particular brand of politician. They are fair enough to give credit where credit is due, and under such circumstances Mr. Preus has nothing to fear from the voters.

When Magnus Johnson asserts, as he did in a speech the other day, that Governor Preus is talking about little things when he "talks about co-operative marketing," we must conclude that our friend Johnson fails to understand the temper of the farmer at the present time. If there is a bigger question before the farmer today than that of organization, which will give him adequate prices for his products, we would like to know what that question is. Mr. Johnson has had much to say about the federal reserve act, a law which he probably knows very little about, but which he seems anxious to repeal. Now, it is the best judgment of those who have given that law any study that its liberal loan provisions are absolutely sound and of great benefit to the country, and the law would probably work out if properly administered. Such legislation as the federal reserve act has had much to do with taking the financial control of the country out of the hands of the interests, and when men of the radical type simply want to do away with such laws instead of amending them, they are playing into the hands of big business.

While out driving on one of the highways that leads to this city the other evening we had the pleasure of meeting the man who owns the universe. That is, we thought it must have been the owner, but he may have been the ruler of the lower regions, for he was going like the devil. He had a big new car, shiny all over, and traveled in the middle of the road. We took to the ditch with our flivver as his majesty went by in a cloud of dust, thanking our lucky stars that ordinary folks are permitted to use the roads once in a while even though one has to take to the open prairie when royalty passes.

The Tribune is not much concerned over the outcome of that argument at Shelby, Montana, this afternoon. Since Tom Gibbons is a Minnesota man and a pretty decent sort as prize fighters go, we would prefer to see him win, but the controversy which arose last week at Shelby over the payment to the champion of the balance of $300,000 shows how little sport there is in prize fighting and how absolutely mercenary the game is, and for that reason this newspaper shall be glad to see the promoters taught a lesson that will last them for many years to come. The promoters seem to have miscalculated the number of fish in the country.

Abuse is a poor substitute for argument, and with that idea firmly in mind this newspaper will have no word of disapproval to utter against any of the candidates in the senatorial contest. Each of the candidates has his good points but in this instance it is our belief that Mr. Preus can best serve the people of Minnesota.

The poll of the country now being taken by Collier's Weekly and the American Press shows Henry Ford to be a prime favorite in all sections of the country. This newspaper is convinced that the political party which has sense enough to make him its standard bearer next year will triumph in the election.

The practice of bringing foreign railroad cases into Minnestoa for trial was given a blow by Judge A. B. Gislason in the district court at Marshall when he refused to allow the case of Kapenznyski versus the North Western railroad to be tried in his court. All of the parties connected with the action live in Milwaukee, Judge Gislason was told. He ordered the action stricken from the calendar, stating that in fairness to taxpayers of Lyon county the case should be tried in Milwaukee.—Dawson Sentinel.

The city of Hutchinson has just abandoned and caused to be dismantled the horse trough which was placed on the public square of that town 35 years ago. The old horse troughs have been replaced by the modern gas filling stations and people move around faster than they did 35 years ago. Whether they are so much happier than in the days when the driver handled dobbin with one hand while the other encircled the waist of his best girl we will leave for our readers to determine.

No one will deny that Mr. Preus can accomplish more for the people of Minnesota than any other candidate for the senatorship. No matter how good the intentions of Magnus Johnson or Jim Carley, they belong to a minor faction and the need now is for immediate action which will assist agriculture in getting back on its feet.

How foolish it seems when men get angry over politics. All of these things are subject to discussion like religion or crops or children or predestination or evolution or foreign relations or home economics, but there would be less abuse and a better understanding would result if every man in expressing his views conceded to his neighbor the same right to differ with him. Let us be friends and love one another.

In approaching the coming election, let us bear in mind that time-worn injunction to the effect that "whom the Gods would destroy they first make mad."

This week's Tribune is issued a day early in order to afford the force an opportunity to properly observe the Nation's Holiday. It will be noticed that The Tribune is sometimes early but never, never late.

How would you like to sit at St. Peter's right hand when he passes judgment on the road hogs and whisper the name of the place he ought to send every one of them to?

Here it is the Fourth of July and no sign of a Great Northern depot. And there was I a waitin' at the church, a waitin' at the church.

Maybe the Great Northern will move one of those cinder platforms down from Shelby next week. Even that will be an improvement over what they now choose to call a depot.

The moonshiners may be pardoned for their lack of enthusiasm over the present term of court—which has so rudely interfered with their personal liberties.

From one of our reliable exchanges we learn that Fairmont is about to lose its commercial club. The memmers have refused to pay up and the president has decided to abandon the quarters of the club. And here we were under the impression that Fairmont was a live town.

Thief River Falls may not be the best town in the world, but we would not live here for five minutes if we knew of a better one.

Mayor Nelson of St. Paul, who delivers the address at the fair grounds today, is one of the promising young men of Minnesota. If he continues to keep his feet on the ground he will reach high places, and it should be the pleasure of all to hear him this afternoon.

Amid the tumult and noise this day do not forget the significance of the event which led to the annual observance of the Fourth of July.

Truth is the Only Safeguard to Human Welfare and the Only Protector of Human Liberty

The Two-Thirds Rule

By DANIEL F. COHALAN, Supreme Court Justice, State of New York.

As 1924 approaches, the interest of the country is naturally beginning to centre upon the next National Election and upon the selection to be made of candidates by the two major parties.

Much of the strength of the answer, particularly in the Democratic party, depends upon the disposition to be made by the Convention of the two-thirds rule by which many of its predecessors have consented to be bound.

It is hard to find any Democratic reason why this rule—a survival in a way of autocracy—should continue to control the actions and cripple the freedom of the party.

The rule is the antithesis of Democracy in that it makes possible the rule not of a majority but of a minority. It violates the theories of Jefferson and the practices of Jackson. It is a survival of the times when the Party had ceased to be national and had become sectional. It was born out of fear of the South and has been made the instrument of power for the corrupting and reactionary forces that control the great delegations from the largely populated manufacturing States. It enables so-called leaders—who represent only the powers of money and greed for office—to control the Convention. It enables a clique of bosses to dominate and places a veto power over the majority in the hands of the minority. It cannot continue unless the majority of the Convention so decide—for each Convention is an absolute law unto itself and the first act of the next Convention and one that would strongly appeal to the country—should be to abolish this undemocratic rule with its twin monstrosity—the unit rule.

Our Villages Must Watch Their Steps

While the public mind quite willingly agrees on the wisdom of thrift and saving as applied to individuals and general business operation, it is strangely indifferent to wasteful practices in government, and unless there be a rapid awakening to individual responsibility hundreds of small towns and villages will soon be reaping the whirlwind.

Reports from many sections show that the amount of money being spent on public improvements is such as to cause the gravest apprehension.

Most of our public improvements in the rural districts are handled by bond issues spread over a period of time long in excess of the life of the product. In many villages fifteen and twenty year bonds are issued for the building of roads whose natural life is not in excess of ten years.

Communities are apt to follow lines of least resistance, the people refraining from any criticism of men in public office. This may be explainable because most of these men serve without pay, and usually are conscientious in their effort at community building. The fact remains, however, if the people are to protect themselves they must develop a stronger moral courage and cease to resent criticism of this kind.

Rose Has No Other Name.

Is it not strange that the emblem flower of England should have a Latin name? For there is no other name for a rose than the Latin word rosa, which the Romans brought us. What did the countryfolk of Kent or Sussex call the dog-rose before the Romans came? "Eglantine," another old name for it, is French, derived from a Latin word which takes you back eventually to acus, a needle. Was there never another name to set beside such English names as cowslip, buttercup, daisy?

Right Confined to Few.

In Great Britain the exclusive right to print and publish the Bible or Prayer Book belongs to the crown, and to such persons or corporations as the crown permits by grant. These are the universities of Oxford and Cambridge and the king's printer.

Timepieces.

Putting the cat out is a job that is not so much with us. But clock winding is all that it used to be. There is the tin alarm clock to wind, the wrist watch, the pocket watch, the ticking wedding present on the desk, and the large eight-day clock, all in one family. And it is seldom that any two of them agree as to what the time is.

Minnesota Needs Representation

The Republican Party is in control of the government of the United States—certainly for two years more, probably for a much longer time.

Minnesota must be represented in the councils of the dominant party in the U. S. Senate. We must not step out of the position of influence we have so long held in the nation.

The Republican Party took over the government at a time when dustry is busy everywhere and there are half a million jobs in excess of the supply of workers.

The war debt has been reduced by several billion dollars, government there were 5,000,000 unemployed in the United States. Now in ment expenses reduced and taxes re-adjusted so as to interfere as little as possible with those activities by which people make their living.

We recognize the fact that the farmers of Minnesota are not getting their share of the general prosperity. Labor and the industries are organized along economic lines and are able to name the price of their products—within reasonable limits. The farmers take the price offered for what they sell and pay the price asked for what they buy. Gov. Preus was among the first to advocate organization for agriculture. He stands for co-operative marketing as the best and only means for bringing general prosperity to the farmers. The Republican party stands squarely behind him on that proposition, and Congress and the Legislature have already passed laws to clear the way and assist the farmers to organize. Well paid labor and profitable agriculture is necessary to keep the nation permanently prosperous.

The Republican Party invites you to come out on July 16th and vote for J. A. O. Preus for U. S. Senator. He is an able man. He is a clean man, He has the welfare of the people at heart. The son of a minister—which means comparative poverty and a mind trained from infancy to helpfulness to the people—he worked his way through the schools largely by his own efforts, and as a young man has become governor of Minnesota. You will make no mistake in voting for him.

Yours respectfully,

REPUBLICAN VOLUNTARY COMMITTEE,
Chas. R. Adams, Chairman.

TODAY'S WORLD TOPICS

A Political Parallel Predicted.

With the probability of four candidates for President at the next election astute political observers are practically unanimous that no one will have a majority and Congress will elect the President. It is pointed out that the Middle and Northwestern States, primarily North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Iowa and Kansas, and to some extent Idaho, Montana and Colorado where the direct primary is generally used, the contests in 1922 were, in almost every instance, between conservatives and progressives, with the old parties merely tools.

The feeling is universal among the masses of the voters that there has been gradually imposed upon the electoral system of the Nation a method of selecting candidates which denies to the people their proper voice, and which nearly always leaves to political bosses the actual choice of presidential nominees. If the national contest shall be between progressives and conservatives, and the conventions of both great parties shall be dominated by conservatives, it is wholly probable that there will be a sufficient reaction of dissatisfied voters to prevent either of the traditional tickets from getting a majority. For the two old parties are very narrowly balanced in the Nation as a whole as shown in the 1922 elections, and any considerable defection will deprive either party of a majority of the electoral college. That these are symptoms of revolt similar to that which finally elected Andrew Jackson 100 years ago, both Republican and Democratic leaders admit. If another revolt shall be headed by a man of such national fame as Jackson possessed, the outcome is likely to be similar. And should such a candidate be successful in the popular vote, but be denied election by a Congress chosen in 1922, the ultimate result would be disastrous not only to the individuals concerned, but to the party system in the United States.

Rum on Foreign Vessels Cause of Trouble.

When the Supreme Court decided that the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act extended to all merchant vessels, foreign and domestic, within the territorial waters of the United States and possessions, it plunged the State Department into international complications growing out of French, British and Italian laws respecting the use of liquor on ships flying their flags. France has a law under which every French sailor is entitled to his daily ration of wine. According to Italian law, it is necessary for a steamship company employing Italian sailors to furnish each one with a stipulated daily allowance of wine.

Foreign governments argue that when they seal their liquor cargoes the American law is not violated even though the vessels carrying these cargoes enter the maritime jurisdiction of the United States.

The State Department asserts that there is a fleet of foreign vessels outside the three-mile limit which, under the protection of foreign flags, is aiding in the violation of the laws of the United States and causing the United States much inconvenience and embarrassment.

Secretary Hughes has submitted a new treaty which would extend the right of visit and search to a distance of twelve miles for all nations. The British government declared a year ago that it was difficult to accept the proposal as it had "consistently opposed any extension of the limit of territorial waters." The contention has been put forth in some quarters that even if such a treaty were negotiated and ratified by the Senate, it is possible that when submitted to the Supreme Court for construction that body would hold it unconstitutional. As the matter now stands a large part of the liquor on foreign ships may remain unmolested if sealed for medicinal purposes, but all surplus will be seized and confiscated. An effort will be made in the next Congress to modify the law to meet the ideas of foreign governments.

The War Department has discovered a new surplus property account, which it is having trouble clearing up in its post war activities. It has on hand 2,119,000 victory medals for which no claimants have appeared. The medals were authorized by Congress to be issued to every man who participated as an American soldier in the great war. Up to date 1,223,000 of these decorations have been given out, and the War Department officials are wondering how many years it will take to clear the victory medal account if it took nearly five years to dispose of about one-third of the decorations.

Today Africa is the big gold-producing region. In 1922 Africa produced 53.3 per cent of the new gold. North America produced 29.3 per cent, the continent's grand total of $90,043,000 including $49,096,000 from the United States, $25,447,000 from Canada and $15,500,000 from Mexico. Of the rest, South America gave 3.6 per cent, Australia 6.5 per cent, Asia 6.4 per cent, Central America 0.7 per cent. In the United States, California is the chief gold-producing state, its 1921 total having been $15,000,000, twice as much as that of Alaska. Colorado and South Dakota were close behind Alaska, with Nevada and Arizona well to the rear.

Just a Little Steamship Company Graft.

Commissioner of Immigration W. W. Husband strenuously assails the prevailing system at Ellis Island and other points, of the United States treasury paying for the upkeep of detained immigrants brought here by steamship companies regardless of the fact that the quotas have been exhausted. Mr. Husband proposes a remedy which he will lay before the next Congress, putting on the steamship companies which profit by the transportation, the entire expense of caring for them. He says: "Let us give up providing hotels for the passengers of foreign ships. The carrying of immigrants is a commercial proposition. The United States does not provide storehouses for freight nor piers for the examination and storage of baggage, but the steamship companies provide these things for themselves."

Why should the United States spend its good money housing and taking care of the passengers carried for a profit by the steamship companies? We have $5,000,000 invested at Ellis Island, which is of no practical value to the United States except that we use it to detain the aliens to be deported under departmental warrants. We also have large investment in stations at Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and San Francisco and pay large rentals for buildings used for these purposes at Seattle.

Until 18 months ago the only money paid by the steamship companies for such service was the bare cost of food, with no charge for detention service and sleeping quarters. The United States government stood the expense at great cost. Beginning July 1 this year a supercharge of 50 cents will be made for service, but this will not begin to cover the cost of caring for these immigrants.

Amnesty Board Cries "Favorites."

President Harding's action in pardoning 7 of the federal prisoners convicted of violating war-time laws will be welcomed as most auspicious and opportune by hundreds who have watched the fate of these men for many months past. The joint Amnesty Committee is not satisfied with President Harding's release of 27 out of 50 so-called political prisoners. "All are free speech cases," the committee says, "and the selection of certain ones results necessarily in unfair discrimination." George Wharton Pepper, United States Senator from Pennsylvania, who first reviewed the Chicago case involving 21 of the men who were ordered released, said, after completing his review of the case, that the men were convicted at a time when public sentiment was such that it really prevented a fair trial. Mr. Pepper repeats the statement regarding the trial held at Sacramento. He recently said of this case that the presence of these men in jail is a challenge to an American lawyer's loyalty to his profession.

Marvelous Results of Burning Coal Twice.

Henry Ford is erecting, at Walkerville, Ont., a plant that will cost approximately $25,000,000, which is designed to burn coal twice, as it were, or distill it for gas and by-products. For many years chemists and government experts have sought a system to save the large per cent of valuable gas and other products that now go to waste. Under this process, it is claimed, a ton of coal will yield over 50 pounds of pitch, about 13 pounds of ammonium sulphate, 8 gallons of motor fuel, 7 gallons of lubricating oils, 7,000 cubic feet of high grade gas, and leave 1,500 pounds of coke that will be put into briquettes for domestic use, or utilized under boilers. The plant under construction will handle 12,000 to 15,000 tons of coal per day, and other plants will be erected close to the coal mines to save expense of hauling and handling. Mr. Ford and his engineers have been conducting experiments for many months and are completely convinced that the process will not only revolutionize the fuel business, but the gasoline business as well, and provide a cheaper and better product for all purposes. It will be remembered that Mr. Ford has repeatedly stated that coal should be burned twice, and this is one of the causes of his recent purchase of vast coal fields and mines. Scientists and inventors assert that, if successful, this invention will take its place as the greatest benefit to mankind of this century.

Anglo-Turk Development Company.

When Lausanne announced the signature to an agreement between the Turks and a British corporation for the control of Turkish imports and exports, one naturally awaited further particulars with considerable interest. Now it appears that the Scottish financier, Leslie Urquhart, has formed a syndicate called the Corporation for the Economic Development of Turkey, Limited, with himself as chairman and Lord Goschen and Rustem Fehmi Bey among the directors. This British company is to represent exclusively a national Turkish company which, including among its members 115 deputies of the Angora Assembly, several ministers, a number of officials and highly placed officers, has apparently secured a monopoly of the aforesaid Turkish imports and exports.

The two companies are to be interested one in another to the extent of a quarter share of the capital respectively and are to co-operate in the closest possible fashion, and it is reported that the National Assembly has already granted the organization permission to exploit valuable coal fields of Songuldak on the Black Sea. Warehouses are to be established in the principal Ottoman ports. Incidentally, French financiers are to be offered participation in the British company. It is a very remarkable scheme, which not only proposes monopolization of the Turkish Nation's entire commerce by one joint organization, but also places the members of Parliament in a semi-private capacity in virtual control of the commercial development of the country. The scheme has obviously been inspired by Bolshevist methods, but there is introduced a certain democratic element, which opens up an entirely new vista.

Conditions Are Critical in Germany.

Mr. Irving T. Bush, builder of the big Bush Terminals, New York, has just completed an extended survey of Russia and Germany. He says: "The conditions of Germany are so critical today that the voice of the American people should be raised in favor of finding a solution of the difficulties of Europe and ending a situation which is bringing ruin to the next generation of hard-working people. I am convinced that France demands the crippling of Germany and the creation of a series of Balkan states from the former German empire. England is struggling against such disaster and Belgium hangs in the balance. At least America can voice its disapproval and exert its moral force against the creation of a situation which will breed trouble and revenge for generations to come."

Celebrating Independence Day.

In these days so replete with arguments for unity of nations, so pregnant with international social and commercial relationships, it is good that we once more gather around the flag for which our fathers fought and died, and once more read the Declaration of Independence that has made these United States not only a power in the world, but an example which more than half the nations of the world are ager to emulate.

Tennyson says: "Men may rise on stepping stones of their dead selves to higher things." It is also true that we may rise on our dead ancestors, our dead patriots, to higher things of our civic life. This is emphatically true of the freedom that we enjoy today. It has been purchased at a very great price, and deserves to be cherished as a sacred boon.

There was a day when right did not make might, but when might made right. Liberty of action, speech, or even thought was unknown. Lips were padlocked. To criticise the king meant the headsman's axe. To criticise the church meant the dungeon. The many were the tools of the few, to be used in war or in peace as suited the fancy of the lordling.

There is not room for two opinions regarding present tendencies among us, but whether the point to which we are now drifting is held as ideal in the public mind is a more open question. We are inclined to doubt whether pure democracy is now presenting itself to the public intelligence as idealism so much as logic. Truth to tell, the people of the United States are being driven toward pure democracy. The growth of political machinery has been a heavy weight for our American system to carry, and we of this generation know that it is too often seized upon by office-holders and used to promote their ends.

There are those, and a steadily growing number, who openly assert that our American representative system cannot endure, that monarchy is the only correct plan. But it is safe to assert that if it has to change

Visitin' Around Among the Farmers

Being afforded an unusual opportunity to observe what is going on in the country, and learning from the farmers what many of them are doing and thinking about, the editor of The Tribune will, as time permits from the strenuous task of appraising lands which come under the rural credit act, give his impressions in this column.

That is, the pleasant impressions, forgetting the other kind. But the fact is that one does not get many poor impressions while traveling through Pennington and adjoining counties. If anyone thinks the country is going to the demnition bow wows let him go out with the writer for a few days and such a person will have occasion to change his mind. The writer does not mean to say that everything is so good among the farmers—far from it—for many of them are really hard up.

But it is surprising, to say the least, to find as one travels through the country that very few farmers are discouraged. Most of them are the victims of hard luck. Among the settlers in eastern Pennington county who lost their 1918 crop by hail and were victims of the disastrous flood which followed the next year, few are to be found who bewail their fate. Two successive crop failures left many of them destitute, and those who were not actually forced to abandon their farms have endured much and have made a fight to retain their homes which should challenge the admiration of everyone. They have denied themselves, have scraped and saved as few people are ever called upon to do in the struggle for existence. Following the two years above mentioned came lowered prices, but in spite of all this those hardy pioneers of eastern Pennington stuck to the ship, and the writer verily believes that with the changed farming methods which has resulted in a widespread trend towards dairying, backed by that dauntless spirit which has kept the settlers on their farms when many a city man would have dug out in the middle of the night, the farmers are waging a winning fight.

If the state and its public servants can assist these people in keeping their farms by adopting a fair policy which will at least lighten the burden by reducing the interest rate, that much ought to be done, and the writer feels that that much will be done.

This does not mean that the state can render assistance to the man who is hopelessly in debt, but it can assist the solvent farmer in getting his debts concentrated in one place and at a greatly reduced interest rate. The man who has a first mortgage on his farm and owes the bank and storekeeper and the machine dealer, much of which carries ten per cent interest, is laboring under a handicap of enormous proportions, and when such a man has a good equity in his farm which is useless for credit extension in the ordinary course of business, the state can actually help him.

But here I am discussing the rural credits act, which is a hobby of mine, when I really intended to talk about the country. It is a pleasure and a privilege to travel through eastern Pennington county. It is a sight for sore eyes to see the well improved farms around Erie, Kratka and Highlanding. Which brings me to say there is no poor land in eastern Pennington county. It is not spotted like in many counties of the state. The soil is here and with the dawn of a new era—namely, the era of intensified dairying—Pennington county will blossom like a rose. Good people on such good land cannot fail—and I defy the croakers to prove otherwise.

While traveling through eastern Pennington county last week I found a new industry. While taking dinner with Ed. Singer at the Erie store he showed me a stock of "snake-root" which he had stored for drying. He had $1,200 worth on a comparatively small floor so I should judge it is quite valuable. The Indians do most of the picking, being very adept at detecting the little white flower and getting the roots out of the ground. The roots are thoroughly dried before shipment and are then baled and shipped in sacks like wool. The roots are utilized in making medicines of various kinds. It was a new one on me but I assume many of The Tribune readers know all about the industry.

Almost every farmer you talk to is interested in dairy cows, but I find a wide divergence of opinion as to the best breed. I find Holsteins and Guernseys predominate but many of the farmers are very fond of Shorthorns. All agree, however, that cattle rather than small grain is the salvation of the farmer. Thoroughbred sires are to be found on many farms and the practice of several farmers jointly buying a blooded sire is a common one, and, it seems to me, a sensible one.

Most of the roads in Pennington county are good, but I will be goldarned if I didn't find one road last week where a lot of work had been done in the direction of plowing or scraping loads of sod into the middle of the road. The only excuse I can think of for such road work is that the man who did it had nothing else to do.

I found one woman in Highlanding who has 420 turkeys and scads of fine white Leghorn chickens. I may say her husband will have no difficulty in getting the loan he asks from the state, for if he fails the lady of the house will pay the interest and taxes.

Oh, girls, I found quite a number of eligible bachelors in my travels last week. Since this is not a matrimonial journal I cannot disclose any names but I might suggest that a little scouting around in that territory northeast of Goodridge will bring to view several fine prospects. They are unmarried, in my opinion, because they have been too busy to ask anyone to share their joys and sorrows, but believe me they are both good looking and prosperous, and their greatest need, as I see it, is some prepossessing young woman to cook their meals.

Strandquist Wants to Incorporate.

A petition for the incorporation of Strandquist as a village was accepted and approved by the Marshall county board at a meeting held Friday and a special election was ordered to be held at that place on July 23, when the voters will vote on the proposition. Strandquist is in Lincoln township.

The Senatorial Campaign

As the senatorial campaign gets under way reports from over the state indicate that the voters are keenly interested in "Why" as well as "Who." The need of the special election, with its resulting expense, has been questioned widely.

The question was answered by F. A. Pike, chairman of the state central committee of the Farmer-Labor party, in a statement appearing in the Minnesota Daily Star, May 4. Mr. Pike declared, after reviewing the law in the matter: "It is clear that the duty devolves upon Governor Preus to call a special election to fill the senatorial vacancy now existing." He points out:

"The seventeenth amendment which, of course, now controls, provides that vacancies shall be filled in the senate by a special election, to be called by the governor, unless the state legislature shall have empowered the governor to fill the vacancy by appointment, until the next election. This authority was not given to the governor of Minnesota, as I have shown, thes tatute of 1913 is void, and no other law has been passed by the legislature relating to the filling of such vacancies." The Farmer-Labor leader holds that Chapter 520, Laws of 1913, was "unconstitutional and wholly void, because it provided a method for senatorial elections contrary to the constitution of the United States."

It is the expressed opinion of State Senator James A. Carley, Democratic candidate, as quoted in the press, that "The calling of the election by Gov. Preus was a fair and square move. I didn't think the Democrats were to be given any consideration."

In a statement answering an inquiry from a Minnesota editor, Attorney General Hilton gives reasons why "If precedents were followed, as they doubtless would be, a person appointed by the governor of Minnesota to fill the vacancy could not be seated."

Chapter 520, Laws of 1913, as passed by the state legislature, included a section empowering the governor to fill a senatorial vacancy by appointment. This law was passed before the ratification of the 17th amendment to the federal constitution. Attorney General Hilton states "It follows that at the time of its passage Chapter 520 was unconstitutional, being in direct conflict with the then existing provisions of the federal constitution."

Further: "The supreme court of numerous states and the supreme court of the United States have uniformly held that a law which is unconstitutional at the time of its passage does not become effective by a subsequent amendment to the constitution, unless such amendment expressly so provides. The 17th amendment does not do this."

The United States Senate, in considering credentials of men elected to it, has in previous instances decided, says Mr. Hilton, "in favor of elections and against appointments under circumstances similar to those now existing in Minnesota."

Thousands of dollars are being tossed carelessly about in guesses at the cost of the special elections. Those who seek to establish heavy expenditures and to place blame for them talk generously in terms of a half million dollars as the cost to the people.

An estimate by a student of election costs puts the total expense of both elections at about $230,000. He allows $30 for conducting each of the 3520 election precincts in the state. This figure includes an average rental of $10 for polling place, which is a liberal average. For the entire state the election precinct cost is placed at $211,200. Most of this sum remains in the 3520 precincts to be paid to local election officials. The cost to county auditors for handling election detail is placed at $8,600. Printing is given at $10,000.

A state employe who has had many years of experience with state election costs has a different idea. He places the cost considerably less. Give him $200,000, he says, and he will pay all costs of the election to the state and other governmental units. There will be left enough to enable him to go on a nice vacation to a number of Minnesota's lakes.

Whether the cost be $200,000 or $230,000, the people of Minnesota have declared that they prefer to fill the important position of United States Senator by their own direct vote. They are evidently prepared to pay the cost of exercising that right.

Hazel Creamery Booming, Extra Equipment Needed to Care For Big Volume

List of Checks to Patrons Indicates Healthy Prosperity of Institution. Business Steadily Growing.

The May report for the Hazel creamery made this week indicates beyond all question that the creamery is one of the going institutions of Pennington county. The list of checks for the month shows a large increase over previous months and the management has been compelled to buy added equipment and put a helper to work to care for the increase in volume.

The list of patrons has also increased and several of the dairymen received checks during May that reach considerably over the $100 mark. Thirty of the patrons received vouchers totaling more than $50 for the month and there is a long list with $40 or over. Following is a list of the $50 patrons:

Security State Bank at Mahnomen is Closed

Inability to Make Its Collections Fast Enough Results in Depleted Reserve.

The Security State Bank of Mahnomen was closed by W. A. Smith, examiner in charge of liquidation, state banking department, at 8 a. m., Monday morning, says last week's issue of the Mahnomen Pioneer.

Inability to collect fast enough to offset shrinkage in deposits brought about a depleted reserve.

Every effort has been made by Vice President Qually and the Superintendent of Banks office to induce the Iowa stock holders, who own the control of stock in the bank, to supply a sufficient amount of cash to restore the required reserve and see the bank through until the 1923 crop could be realized upon, but this they have failed to do.

Examiners Daily and Riggs will be in charge for a few days until a special deputy examiner is appointed.

It is hoped that arrangements can be completed for the early reopening of the bank.

Gov. Smith of New York has earned the undying love of the moonshiners of the country.

FARMERS, ATTENTION!

I had intended to sell my pure bred Percheron stallion, but have decided to keep him another year. This will give the farmers a chance to save five or ten dollars by bringing your mares to town and have them bred to a pure bred stallion that is well known. He has been on the same route for three years and has a good record. His name is Luverne No. 73979. Charges are $10 for a live colt. See

CO-OPERATIVES WORKERS' HOPE, SAYS UNITED STATES SENATOR

Montana Progressive Back From Study of Successful European Systems.

Washington, July 2. — Convinced that in co-operation lies the hope of the American farmer, wage-earner and consumer for relief from continued exploitation by the trusts, Senator Burton K. Wheeler, progressive Democrat of Montana, is in Washington today after a three months' study of co-operative systems in Denmark, Sweden, Finland and Russia.

Senator Wheeler left Washington in March fully informed regarding the co-operative movement in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Montana and other states of the northwest. He found the systems inaugurated in those states carried to complete success abroad and returned with definite opinions regarding what the next session of congress can and should do to promote the co-operative movement among producers and consumers in the United States.

The Montana senator is one of the most picturesque and interpid progressives who will serve in the new congress. He has given his allegiance to the small group of "fighting" progressives, including La Follette, Shipstead, Brookhart, Frazier and Norris, who expect to carry forward the progressive banner at the next session, without regard to party lines.

Studies Euorpean Trend.

"I went to Europe in March impressed with the possibilities of the co-operative movement for America," Senator Wheeler said at Washington today. "I return after a three months' study abroad, fully convinced that American producers and consumers who have attempted co-operation are on the right track and cannot fail if they will heed the lessons which experience has taught in the co-operative countries of Europe.

"The co-operative idea has probably been carried farther in Denmark than in any other country in the world. It is true that Denmark enjoys certain advantages because of its homogenuous population and its concentration of certain staple products.

"At the same time, I belive the Danes have overcome tremendous obstacles which do not confront the co-operatives of this country.

Producers Organize.

"In the first place, Denmark organized all her producers of farm products on a co-operative basis. Since the country exports most of her products, it was necessary to organize her export trade into a co-operative system. Then the import trade was organized co-operatively. Finally, consumers' co-operatives have been organized, until the co-operative system has become the dominating economic factor in Denmark.

"I found no trusts in Denmark as we know them. The co-operatives dominate the country, but there is no exploitation of the people. Prices have been stabilized, and the producer is receiving a fair return for his labor but the great milling companies, elevators and packing houses which thrive in this country as middlemen are not known in Denmark.

"Take the packing industry, for instance. Every slaughter house in Denmark is a co-operative. The farmers belong to these organizations and through them slaughter their own pigs and cattle. These Danish co-operatives have competed successfully with the "Big Five" packing trust of this country and are given the preference in the great market in Great Britain. Armour and Swift have suffered great losses in foreign trade wherever they have had to compete against the co-operative packing houses of Denmark, Sweden and other European countries.

Co-operative Bank.

"In Copenhagen, I found a co-operative bank, housed in one of the finest banking structures in Europe. This bank loans money to the co-operatives but the latter are not limited to one institution for their credit. I was told that in the first stakes of the co-operative movement, the big interests of Denmark opposed the new system just as they have in this country, and resorted to discrimination in the extension of credit to stamp it out. Today, the banking houses of Denmark concede that co-operation has made the country prosperous and the are competing for the banking business of the co-operatives.

"I asked one of the biggest men in the co-operative movement in Denmark to what he attributed the success of the system in his country. He replied:

"'We have had our hard knocks in Denmark and we have been taught in the bitter school of experience. The farmers finally came around to accepting the slogan of "All for one and one for all." Every farmer backs his co-operative with everything he has, whether his farm is a large one or a small one. He is liable, in the final analysis, for the debts of the co-operative. Thus the aggregate economic power of the farmer has been placed behind the co-operatives and they can get all the credit they require. In addition to that, we have succeeded in eliminating sentiment in our movement and have selected capable, experienced men to manage the co-operatives, paying them good salaries and giving them full authority to act. These two factors have made us successful.'"

Senator Wheeler was asked if he found the co-operative movement reflected in better conditions for the mass of the people.

"I found no such extremes of wealth and poverty as we have in this country," Senator Wheeler replied. "Of course, the great estates amassed in former years remain, but at an increasing rate the co-operative system is disseminating prosperity more generally among the mass of the people and the exploitation in the necessaries of life from which big fortunes are built is being eliminated.

"Not only that, but the farmers and wage-earners of Denmark have learned a big lesson from the successful use of their economic power. They are learning to apply their political power. I was told that the next election in Denmark will either put a farmer-labor party in control of the government or will make it the opposition. The masses enrolled in the co-operatives will be the backbone of this movement."

The senator declared that the Danish co-operatives have grown up almost entirely independent of the government anad of state aid.

"I think that will be true in this country in general," the senator added, "but at the same time congress can do certain things which will stimulate the co-operative movement in the United States.

Would End Discrimination.

"For one thing, all discrimination against co-operatives in the extension of credit should cease. The federal government should see to it that the co-operatives entitled to credit receive it at reasonable rates of interest. In addition, I believe congress should make it possible for the federal trade commission, the department of commerce, the department of labor, and other agencies to give the people the benefit of real studies of the co-operative movement both at home and abroad."

The senator declared that in Russia the co-operatives are powerful and that the soviet government has restored the machinery of the movement to those who have built it up from the beginning. This movement is going forward independent of the communist party and is one of the most promising factors in Russian life, according to the senator.

Senator Wheeler returned to Washington convinced that Russia should be recognized by the United States.

"My enemies will say I am a bolshevist," the senator said with a laugh, "but that clap-trap does not bother me. The truth is that those who have supported and financed the invasions of Russia have given the communists their present power. That power will end and Russia will get back to normal when the United States takes the lead in recognizing Russia."

form, the change will be on the forward line; Americanism can never turn backward.

The United States is admitted to give the nearest approach to freedom in government that the world has ever known; we have of necessity come far short of what may have been the ideal of free citizenship in a democratic government, but eternal vigilance is still the price of liberty.

Our flag is the emblem of equal rights. It means universal education —light for every mind, knowledge for every child. It means that it is the duty of every citizen to bear his share of the public burden. It means that all distinctions based on blood or birth have perished from our laws; it means that our government stands between the weak and the strong, between want and wealth, with a guarantee of simple justice to each and all. That flag shields and canopies alike the loftiest mansion and the rudest hut. It represents the sufferings of the past, the glories yet to be, and, like the bow of heaven, it is the child of storm and sun.

It is the duty of every man, woman and child who cherishes the things our flag stands for, to keep in mind the real mening and purpose of this National holiday—the anniversary of our American independence.

Controlled Sale Means More Profits To Growers, Says Duis

(By GEO. E. DUIS)

[Editor's note: This is the third of a series of six articles on various phases of co-operative marketing, written by Geo. E. Duis. Mr. Duis pioneered the wheat pooling movement in North Dakota and is now president of the North Dakota Wheat Growers Association. He also took an active part in the formation of the American Wheat Growers, Inc., the national sales agency.]

ARTICLE III.

The contention is often made that co-operative marketing is very fine for perishable and specialty crops, such as fruits, poultry products and the like, but that it is not practical for wheat. Such an assertion is utter fallacy! Cotton and tobacco surely cannot be classed as specialty crops, and still co-operative marketing of these products has proved an unqualified success. Cotton is raised in all parts of the world, and over 50 per cent of the cotton grown in this country is exported. Yet, after the American Cotton Growers' Exchange got control of 10 per cent of the cotton sold, the price increased 69 percent since 1921! Tobacco, is that a specialty crop? Can anyone deny that the Tobacco Growers associations have made a success of marketing this product co-operatively? Burley tobacco growers control 90 per cent of the crop raised and absolutely set the price, and you may be sure that it is a price that brings a profit to the producer. This crop was formerly dumped on the market in the same manner the wheat growers have been doing. Speculators bought the tobacco at their own price. In one year after co-operative marketing was established the price was doubled to the producer!

Wheat growers, particularly of the northwest, have even a better opportunity to merchandise their product so as to net fair returns to themselves. Practically all the hard spring wheat of the United States is grown in the four northwest states—North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, and Montana. This is the best wheat in the world and is greatly in demand by millers for mixing purposes. In fact, millers cannot make a high quality flour without this wheat. Why should they not pay the growers a price that will net them a profit? The growers have not been paid a profitable price because they are a century behind the times in methods of distribution. Many still insist on bootlegging their wheat in competition with each other and the individual is forced to accept the bankruptcy price offered by the buyer, or let his wheat rot in the granary.

It is easier to control the sale of wheat than perishable commodities. It can be stored cheaply without danger of deterioration, and never has it been necessary to dump the surplus of wheat into a river for lack of buyers. Wheat can be sold at any time of the year, and no product is more universally used than wheat. The control of the hard spring wheat of the northwest through organization of the growers, will mean millions of dollars in added profits to themselves, and will likewise reflect favorably on the prices paid for the softer wheats from other sections. In other words the tail will wag the dog. It's a wonderful opportunity and will be realized in a few short years, providing the majority of the farmers see the light and get behind the movement. A few cannot do it, but with a united front the growers can put this across with ease. The "Doubting Thomases," who stand on the sidelines and sneer, face a grave responsibility toward their neighbors, who are now pioneering this movement.

These "Doubting Thomases" point out the failures of other "co-operative" associations, predicting a similar fate for the Wheat Growers association. Let's analyze these failures. When farmers in this country began to feel the need of a readjustment of the marketing system for farm products, they instinctively turned to co-operative marketing. They had heard about the famous Rochedale system of Great Britain, and tried to adapt it to the American conditions. They entirely overlooked the fact that the Rochedale system was established for consumers who bought co-operatively. Obviously this system could not meet the requirements of American farmers who had things to sell, and hence failure in some instances was inevitable, because farmers' organizations were founded on wrong principles.

It is much simpler and more sensible for growers to pool the products they have to sell, hire merchandising experts as salesmen, use the marketing facilities already provided, govern the flow to marketing according to demand, then prorate the returns among themselves according to the quantity and quality of their product—no capital, no dividends, no frozen assets, but increased prices to the growers by virtue of the increased bargaining power they have secured by united action through the farmer-owned and farmer-controlled SELLING AGENCY.

About twelve years ago the California fruit growers borrowed the 100 per cent compulsory pooling plan from the Danes, and now the wheat growers are fitting it to their needs. The next article will deal with the methods used in wheat pooling.

Calendar Curiosities.

The calendar offers certain curiosities which are little known. No century can begin on a Wednesday, Friday or Saturday. The month of October begins always on the same day of the week as the month of January; February, March and November begin on the same day of the week. May, June and August begin on different days. These rules do not apply to leap years. The ordinary year always finishes on the same day of the week as it began.

Starboard and Larboard.

The starboard side of a ship was at one time the steer-board side, in memory of the Anglo-Saxons who used to steer their boats by putting out an oar on the right-hand side of the stern. The larboard (now known as the port side) is a corruption of lower board, which was always considered inferior to the starboard.

$1[illegible] IN FINES AND 450 DAYS [illegible]N JAIL METED OUT TO PUNISH VIOLATORS OF LIQUOR LAWS

June Term of District Court Comes to End Friday After Record Number of Convictions Are Secured.

Conrad Vinje, who pleaded guilty to a charge of liquor law violation before Judge Andrew Grindeland sitting in district court here last week, was taken to Warren this afternoon by Sheriff Ole L. Ihle to commence his sentence of 60 days in the county jail. Vinje paid a $300 fine imposed upon him by the court as additional punishment before his departure to start his jail sentence.

Fines totaling $1,600 and 450 days in the county jail at Warren for violations of the liquor laws was meted out Friday by Judge Andrew Grindeland of Warren, sitting in district court here, upon five residents of this city, four of whom were found guilty, a fifth pleading guilty when he was unable to get an attorney to defend him.

When the court calendar was printed late in June only seven criminal cases were on record but before the court stopped grinding late Friday 22 cases had been disposed of, of which 16 had liquor at the bottom of them. Never in the history of Pennington county has there been such a clean-up as at this term of court.

Alfred Rasmusson and C. B. Bradley were each fined $300 and costs and given 90 days in jail, while Conrad Vinje and Glenn Farr were fined like amounts but received only 60 days in jail. Fred Brendecke, however, was fined $400 and given 150 days. If the defendants fail to pay their fines and costs they are to serve 150 additional days, except Brendecke, who received a 200-day additional sentence. All were allowed until August 10 to appeal except Vinje, who had pleaded guilty and was not allowed this privilege.

Nick Baker and Oscar Anderson, farmers, who both pleaded guilty to violating liquor laws, were told to garner their crops and report to the judge November 2, when sentence will be pronounced.

Ole Ystesund and John Wyss were found not guilty by juries and ordered discharged. O. W. Carlson, Adolph Amundson, James Farr and Frank McGinnity had their cases continued until the January term of court, while a second case against Rasmusson was dropped.

Alex Welch, city electrician, and Delman Cote, his brother-in-law, were sentenced to hard labor in the reformatory in St. Cloud for an indeterminate period for resisting Sheriff O. L. Ihle on the night of July 4, when the sheriff searched the auto of the former and discovered therein a quart of moonshine. Sentence, however, was suspended pending good behavior, the sheriff being named as porbation officer in each case. A similar sentence was meted out to Carl Hahner, young farmer, charged with forgery in the second degree. Rev. E. H. Kreidt was named as probation officer. All three had pleaded guilty to the various charges when arraigned before Judge Grindeland.

The other criminal cases disposed of were those of Axel Anderson, who pleaded guilty to gambling and was given a $25 fine and costs of $7; A. J. Gilmet, found not guilty by a jury on a grand larceny charge, his second case being then dismissed; Richard Prestebak, who was charged with driving an auto with insufficient lights, withdrew his case after paying the municipal court fine and costs of $44.56; and the case of Fred DuChamp, charged with selling mortgaged property, was continued.

East Grand Forks Here Next Sunday For Game With Local Aggregation

Local Team Has Record of Three Victories and Three Defeats, With Tie Game.

East Grand Forks will be here Sunday for their annual tilt with the local aggregation of baseballers, and Thief River Falls fans are looking forward to one of the best games of the season. The visitors will have along with them their highly-touted American association pitcher, "Lefty" Finch, who will be pitted against Yost, mainstay of the Thief River Falls club. The game is scheduled to start at 3 o'clock.

The local club has built up a good record for the number of games played this season, the club having won three games and lost three, with one tie played at Red Lake Falls three weeks ago. The team has been materially strengthened and each game shows improvement. The club did not get under way until late in the season and therefore has been handicapped in the development of players. As good a team as any in this part of the country has been the result of diligent work on the part of those at the helm.

Be out there Sunday and give the boys a boost. They deserve it as the baseball club is one of the going institutions of the city. Many more good games will be seen here between now and the close of the season.

Two Local Young Men Figure in Automobile Spill on East Highway

Leroy Favrow, driving a Ford car, accompanied by Alf. Backe, figured in a disastrous automobile accident last Wednesday when their car crashed with a Chevrolet coming into town from the east. Neither of the young men was injured. However, the radiator of the car in which they were riding busted and other damage done to the fenders. The Chevrolet suffered the loss of one front wheel.

Excellent Rye Stand.

An exhibit of winter rye is on display this week at the First and Peoples State bank which bids fair to win rye laurels so far as this section of the state is concerned. It stands more than six feet and is well filled. It was secured on a farm four miles southeast of this city.

Senator Frazier Speaks Here For Magnus Johnson

Capacity Audience Greets Farmer-Labor Speakers at Auditorium Rally.

Bowen, Former League Organizer, Lambasts Senator Hansen's Record.

There is apparently no lack of interest in the campaign of Magnus Johnson for the senatorship, if the audience which greeted Senator Lynn Frazier of North Dakota and A. E. Bowen, former League organizer, when the gentlemen appeared here last Thursday evening, is a fair criterion.

The big hall was packed to the doors and prolonged applause was given every reference to the Farmer-Labor candidate and the principles he advocates, and there was a similar demonstration for every derogatory mention of Governor Preus.

Mr. Bowen opened the meeting with a lengthy address in which he dealt in a general way with the dilemma of the farmer. He repeated a number of stories which have been told here so often by the same speaker that many of them are hoary-headed and threadbare. Bowen, a former League organizer, who was at one time a candidate for congress in this district, until he decided to withdraw his name, is an eloquent platform speaker, but he had nothing new to offer in his address last Thursday. It must be admitted, however, that he created a mild sensation in the hall when he made a bitter attack on the legislative record of Senator C. L. Hansen, who occupied a front seat in the Auditorium.

He said Mr. Hansen had failed the common people of this district when he failed last winter to vote against confirmation of the members of the University Board of Regents sent in by Governor Preus. The speaker hurled his anathema and invective against Pierce Butler, now associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, whom he charged with being under the control of "big business." Bowen stated that he had urged Senator Hansen last winter to vote against the confirmation of the regents but this the senator refused to do. He then amplified his severe arraignment of the senator by stating that he had furnished valuable information concerning the operations of the Federal Reserve Act.

Bowen referred to Magnus Johnson as a real, honest-to-goodness, hog-slopping farmer, and asked the audience to rally to his support on July 16 in order that he might get into the United States Senate where he would stand shoulder to shoulder with the bald-headed senator from North Dakota (referring, of course, to Mr. Frazier). He concluded his remarks with a call for a collection, which was taken by a committee taken from the audience.

Senator Frazier delivered a straightforward appeal for Magnus Johnson, who he declared could be depended upon to support the farmers and the working men. He severely castigated Governor Preus as a tool of the special interests. Mr. Frazier was not in good voice and many in the rear of the hall were unable to hear him.

Heavy Electric Storm Strikes; Horse Is Killed

Depressing Heat Culminates in Heavy Downpour of Rain Here Sunday.

Soaker Proves Beneficial to Crops of County; Corn and Spuds Good.

A terrific thunder storm, accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain, which struck Thief River Falls late Sunday afternoon, thoroughly soaked the surrounding country. Fears were at first felt that a great amount of damage had followed in the storm's wake, but so far as is known little destruction has been done. A horse belonging to a farmer residing three miles north of the city is reported to have been killed when struck by a bolt of lightning.

The stretch of territory lying between Minot and Bismarck, N. D., was hard hit by storms Sunday and property damage running into thousands of dollars has been recorded.

Two terrific storms striking Carrington, Sykeston, Cathay, Barlow and Turtle River did damage estimated at more than $300,000. The area between Minot and Bismarck was swept by storms, many trees being blown down and barns destroyed.

At Page, N. D., Oscar Brathold, 15 years old, was killed, and his brother, Irving, injured by lightning.

In Oliver county, at Center, N. D., Ray Derfloff, aged 34, was killed when lightning struck a church in which he was attending services. Much damage was done in Mercer Oliver and Dunn counties and probably will reach $200,000.

Ed Hedahl of Mercer, N. D., was injured by flying timber, while two whose names are not given, but who reside near Washburn, were struck by flying glass.

Dairyman Calls at Tribune.

W. H. Wilde, one of the really successful dairymen of Pennington county, residing in the township of Mayfield with Hazel as his postoffice address, was in the city last Thursday afternoon and called at The Tribune office. Mr. Wilde is the possessor of one of the best herds of Guernseys in the county and has undying faith in the breed he has chosen as his. Every one of Mr. Wilde's boys and girls is also a Guernsey fancier and knows all the good points of the "modern dairy cow."

First Block of Rural Credits Bonds Are Sold

First Million Dollars of Issue Disposed of at Low Premium of $10,300.

Official Notification Reaches Local Appraiser Late This Afternoon.

The first block of Minnesota rural credits farm loan bonds was sold yesterday afternoon at St. Paul. The issue consisted of one million dollars and brought a premium of $10,300.

Notification to this effect reached J. S. Arneson, local appraiser, from T. O. Ofsthun, secretary of the rural credits bureau, late this afternoon. The bonds sold yesterday were disposed of on the following basis: $1,000,000 for the sum of $1,010,300, or $101.03 per $100 of the bonds and accrued interest to date of delivery. The sale, however, was made on the condition that the same group of bond houses be given an option on the remaining $2,000,000 of bonds for a period of 50 days. It is now expected that money will be available within a short time, the first million dollars placing the bureau on a working basis. In view of the fact that the bonds sold so well it is felt that the next issue will bring a better price and that the bureau will be in a position to loan money to farmers at 5 per cent.

The bid received by the rural credits bureau was much better than had been expected, according to Mr. Ofsthun. It will take some time to have the bonds printed, and the bonding company also reserves the right to submit the matter of legality to their attorney. It is thought, however, that this will not require much time and that as soon as the latter point is settled the work of the bureau will proceed without interruption.

Will Korstad Sells Out.

A deal was consummated last week whereby O. H. Nelson becomes the new proprietor of the Korstad Grocery on Sixth street, which has been operated by Mr. Korstad for the past several months. The new proprietor will conduct the institution along the same lines as formerly. He was granted a soft drink license at a meeting of the city council held last night.

County Board Members Agree on Tax Levy

Session of Commissioners Is Held Monday at Office of Auditor Anderson.

Total of $67,000 Is Amount Thought Needed to Run County's Business.

A meeting of the Pennington board of county commissioners, with all members present, was held Monday at the office of T. P. Anderson, county auditor, at which time tax levies for the year 1923 were taken up and disposed of, as well as a batch of unfinished business hanging over from the last session of the board.

Laying the 1923 tax levy was perhaps the most important piece of business confronting the board. Placed at $67,000 by Auditor Anderson, the sum thought necessary to run the business affairs of the county during 1923, the board voted that amount. The levy is distributed in the following amount and for the following purposes:

County revenue fund	$28,000
County road and bridge fund	30,000
County bond and interest fund	4,000
Sanitarium, construction fund	1,000
Sanitarium, maintenance fund	4,000
Total	$67,000

According to Auditor Anderson, the $67,000 levy will be sufficient to care for all county needs unless something unforeseen takes place of which county officials are not aware. It will be seen that the county road and bridge fund will take the bulk of the tax money, closely followed by the general revenue fund, which will take $28,000. The interest fund is one of the lowest in the state and speaks well for the financial transactions of county officials. The sanitarium will take a total of $5,000 of county money.

An adjournment was taken until July 17, at which time a large amount of unfinished business that could not be considered at the meeting Monday will be taken up.

The difficulty arising in the sale of the $90,000 road bond issue, authorized at a speial meeting of the board more than two weeks ago, was satisfactorily disposed of, the statements called for by the bonding attorney of the Minnesota Loan and Trust company being sent in. Bids for the Thief River Falls-St. Hilaire highway, better known as the Jefferson highway, will be considered on July 24.

Council Votes $400 to Fair; Tame Session

Regular Monthly Meeting of City Dads Held Last Evening at Chambers.

One Soft Drink Permit Issued; Four Are Licensed to Sell Gasoline.

The regular monthly meeting of the city council was held last night at the council chambers at the Auditorium, with a full complement of the members present. A committee from the Pennington County Agricultural society appeared before the body asking a donation of $400 to carry on the exposition planned for August 1, 2 and 3. The request was granted by ananimous vote.

The regular monthly reports of the various city officials were received and

There Will Be Gasoline Pumps Aplenty in "This Here Town" From Now

Four Receive Permits to Install Filling Stations in Various Parts of Thief River Falls.

There will be no dearth of automobile filling stations in Thief River Falls from now on if the number of permits granted to install gasoline pumps in various parts of the city are any criterion of the competition existing between the various oil companies operating in Thief River Falls.

Four such permits were granted by the city council at its regular monthly meeting last night. The Northern States Oil company, which was recently granted a building permit to erect a filling station in front of the Borry garage, was last night granted permission to install pumps in front of the Kohn & Fiterman place of business at First street and Main avenue and also one in front of the C. Gustafson & Son implement shop at the corner of Fourth street and Main avenue. The White Eagle Oil company, successors to the Manhattan Oil company, was granted a permit to install a pump in front of the Rambeck & Stone implement shop on Horace avenue between Second and Third streets. The Sandard Oil company was given permission to install a pump on Third street in front of the Hill Auto Supply company, opposite the old Loken store.

So we'll have lots of gasoline places to pull up to. There already are in the neighborhood of ten such station in the city and with the addition soon to come, all the autoist will require is the price.

I. T. Simley Leaves to Attend Columbia Short Course in Administration

Superintendent of Schools Will Remain Absent From City For About Six Weeks.

I. T. Simley, superintendent of the Thief River Falls schools, left last Wednesday for New York city, where he will attend a six weeks' course at Columbia university, which institution is giving a most thorough study of school administrative subjects and policies. Mr. Simley's family will remain in the city during his absence.

Columbia university, unlike most universities, remains open 12 months in the year and some of the best-known instructors in the entire country are there to give of their knowledge and experience. Mr. Simley expects to be away from the city for about six weeks.

"Best Ever" Is Slogan Adopted by County Fair

Exhibits Expected to Attain a Degree Never Before Witnessed Here.

Secretary J. J. McCann Has Completed Arrangements for Excellent Program.

"The Best Ever!" is the slogan that has been adopted by the Pennington County Fair association this year, and the premium list and advertising literature already sent out by Secretary J. J. McCann would indicate that it will live up to the high standard of the past, and undoubtedly surpass it.

The fair dates have been set as August 1, 2 and 3, and it is thought that this will allow ample time for producers of agricultural products to get their exhibits in the exposition buildings. Livestock is always at its best early in August and visitors to the fair can look forward to one of the best expositions in northern Minnesota.

The entertainment program for this year is especially good. There will be a dearth of motor races, however, as officials of the association consider that the large majority of people would rather come to witness a good horse race than to look upon a poor exhibition of speed by motor drivers. To that end the management has been working and has booked a nationally known pacer, which will race against time. There will also be a number of outside horses brought in and already there have been a number of bookings and entries made.

The world-famous Lachman Exposition shows with 300 people and two bands will be one of the feature attractions. The Marriott Troupe, the only act of its kind in the world, will be on the boards, as will also the Sterling Rose trio, combination aerial and acrobatic acts. An important announcement is made by the fair management to the effect that all school children will be admitted free to these shows on the first day by merely presenting their report cards.

The program is designed to be entertaining to all. Great care has been taken to present only that which is clean and educating, and every form of entertainment provided has been booked with that idea in mind.

In addition to the attractions mentioned, there will be a big "Midway of Fun" and three free acts in front of the grandstand outside of the splendid racing program. Arrangements are being made to put on another sham battle this year similar to the one put on by the American Legion. The attraction proved a great drawing card last year and it is thought that it will prove fully as strong this season.

Larson Family on Motor Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Larson, residing at 122 North St. Paul avenue, left by automobile Saturday noon for points in the central part of the state and will visit at their former home at Barrett, and Elbow Lake, Minn. They were accompanied on the journey by their sons, Philip and Justus, and daughter, Lucille.

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT TO LET BIDS JULY 24 ON NEW ROAD; WORK TO START SOON AFTER

Tentative Routing of Road Is Laid Out Within City Limits — Plans For New Bridge Are Drawn.

Grading of seven and one-half miles on Trunk Highway No. 32, better known as the old Jefferson highway, between Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire, is one of 20 projects on which a call for bids was made this week by Commissioner Charles M. Babcock of the tsate highway department. Difficulties which were encountered two weeks ago when the bonding attorney for the Minnesota Loan and Trust company, buyers of the $90,000 bond issue authorized by the board of county commissioners at their last regular meeting, when the attorney wished to ascertain the status of security, have been ironed out and satisfactory arrangements made for the work to proceed as soon as the contract is let, which will be done at the St. Paul office of the highway department. Local contractors are invited to submit bids.

County Engineer Bert F. Umland has blueprints of the new road already drawn up and these are on exhibit at his office in the court house. The prints indicate the exact routing of the road both outside and within the city limits and show that the highway will enter the city along the sanitarium road, crossing the ditch in its due pathway to the intersection of Emil street, where it will swerve gradually across the properties belonging to the Quist estate, that of Mrs. Betsy Miller on South Duluth avenue and of Mrs. Caroline Barlow and Jacob Fisher. The routing indicates that the residences of Mrs. Miller and Jacob Fisher are in the direct pathway, and condemnation proceedings will be instituted in each case to satisfy the right-of-way. The road will merely skirt a corner of the Barlow property.

Bids will also be asked for the building of a new culvert to take the place of the condemned bridge now in use, long since considered unsafe for the heavy traffic. It will be a wing type culvert 68 feet long, 10 feet high and eight feet wide, built on a slant to allow for the tremendous drop into Red Lake river. It is thought that this will allow ample clearance for the great amount of water the ditch is called upon to carry during the spring season of the year. The county engineer also has blueprints of the culvert plans in his office.

Right-of-way for the new road in the country districts already has been secured and is ready for construction work as soon as the contracts are let and approved. Right-of-way privileges within the city limits, however, are yet to be completed, but it is expected that a representative of the state department in charge of construction will be in the city soon to complete arrangements for the new routing of the road.

The new Jefferson highway is by far the most important road improvements made here in years. It will afford a graveled highway over the entire distance to St. Hilaire and connecting with the high-grade roads in Red Lake and Polk counties. The improvement will be paid for mainly with funds from first issues of new county reimbursement bonds, more than $11,000,000 of which were authorized by the last legislature. These bonds with interest will be charged against the state trunk highway fund for payment with motor vehicle tax receipts, but the money in each instance can be used only in the county issuing the bonds. Following failure of the state bond proposals for most needed highway improvements, available state funds are going for constant repairs and upkeep, especially on the most traveled sections which are inadequately improved.

Although the legislature voted authority for more than $11,000,000 of new highway construction in 1923 and 1924 subject to county commissioners' approval, and the list today totals nearly $1,700,000, Commissioner Babcock emphasized that every effort will be made to hold down the county issues to about $4,000,000 for the two-year period. Any other policy, he repeated, would allow the taking of funds for minor improvements ahead of those needed to serve the largest number of people who are paying for them. All trunk routes now fairly passable, he maintains, it would be unfair to use auto taxes to improve a light traffic road ahead of one used by 2,000 or more daily.

Red Lake Falls Takes Count in Rally in Ninth

4-to-1 Lead Overcome by Locals When Four Men Get Two-Base Bingles.

Game Is One of Best of Season and Large Crowd Attends Contest.

Overcoming a 4-to-1 lead in the last half of the ninth inning and hitting their way to victory, Thief River Falls defeated Red Lake Falls at the fair grounds diamond Sunday afternoon in one of the best baseball games of the season by a score of 5 to 4. A large crowd of rooters were on hand to witness the game. Yost and Lane constituted the battery for the local team and permormed in a stellar manner. Keifenheim and Nelson did the heavy duty for the visitors.

The contest opened with Red Lake Falls taking all the honors, so far as runs and hitting were concerned. Thief River Falls made a score in the second inning, but in the fourth frame Red Lake Falls smashed out several stinging hits and, coupled with two errors on the part of the locals, garnered a total of four runs. Things were looking bad for Thief River Falls at this juncture, nobody seeming able to do anything to cause disruption in the Red Lake Falls camp.

The locals' rally in the ninth did the work of winning the game after the visitors had had things pretty much to themselves. After two men were down, Nelson drew a pass, Brudie connected for two bases, as did LaBree, scoring Nelson and Brudie. Lane smashed out a two-bagger, scoring LaBree and tying the score. Yost, next up, hit clean to left center, scoring Lane and winning his own game in a way.

Will Rogers' Educated Ropes Starred in Film

Everybody knows who Will Rogers is and everybody knows about his educated ropes. This week at the Lyceum theatre, beginning Sunday, admirers of the strange art of the famous cowboy comedian will have the chance of seeing the star and his without those ropes, whether maing a picture featuring them, or not. As soon as he is off the stage, or off the set, Rogers picks up his ropes and practices. And consequently, he knows his ropes.

In "The Ropin' Fool," Will Rogers does every possible feat for a cowboy ropes featured in Pathe's comedy, "The Ropin' Fool."

To give a little inside information on the comedian himself, he is never to perform, and lassoes a rat with a small piece of string for good measure. The following is a list of the many stunts the cowboy comedian actually does before the camera—and in slow-motion so that each movement is easily detected.

Throws a rope out past a galloping horse so that it will roll back and catch him.

Throws a rope over a horse and rider, catching the horse by all four feet.

Lassoes a rider by the waist without the rope going over his head.

Puts the horse and rider through the loop and catches the horse with the same loop coming back.

Lassoes a horse around the nose.

Throws lasso clear around from behind a horse and catches him by the front feet from the opposite side.

Throws a figure eight over the horse's neck and on all four feet.

Throws a figure eight on the horse and rider.

Throws two ropes with one hand and makes them go different places.

Throws three ropes at once, catching horse by the neck—rider by the neck—and horse by all four feet.

We'll say he knows the ropes!

75 Counties in State Have More Automobiles Than Pennington Figure

Total of 1,597 Cars Apply for Licenses From This County, Paying Tax Amounting to $25,951.

The Pennington county total of 1,597 cars and trucks is exceeded by those in 75 other counties in the state, according to a compilation made by The Farmer, a St. Paul farm paper.

A highway bulletin this week points out that machines in this county at average taxes yielded state trunk highway funds of $25,951, or at the rate of $834 for each of the 31 miles of trunk routes in the county.

Figures are included to show the steadily increasing importance of good roads to Minnesota farmers, especially in the absence of a better plan to secure them. Minnesota farmers purchased more than 30,000 motor vehicles last year and now are topped only by the farmers in five other states. They bought more than 4,000 tractors in the last two years and there are now tractors on better than one farm in six. Minnesota and the Dakotas have more tractors on farms in proportion to the number than any other territory in the world. An increase of 56 per cent last year in the motor truck hauling of livestock to the South St. Paul markets is cited as evidence of the fact that the farmers are getting more and more use out of the better highways.

Northwestern Minnesota is fortunate in having one of these institutions so near at hand where students may attend without foing long distances from home. Wheat Pooling Methods Are Simple; Details Outlined

(By GEO. E. DUIS)

[Editor's note: This is the fourth of a series of six articles on various phases of co-operative marketing, written by Geo. E. Duis. Mr. Duis pioneered the wheat pooling movement in North Dakota and is now president of the North Dakota Wheat Growers Association. He also took an active part in the formation of the American Wheat Growers, Inc., the national sales agency.]

ARTICLE IV.

In handling pooled wheat the association is guided by a few extremely simple, but very fundamental principles. First: The growers themselves determine the general policies of their organization relative to handling wheat. For this reason the constitution and by-laws provide that members of the board of directors must be actual growers of wheat and must be chosen by members from their respective districts. This insures protection to the growers and enables them at all times to retain control of the organization, thus eliminating the danger of the association getting under the control of a few selfish individuals. The board of directors hires experts in the various departments, who are directly responsible to the board for their actions.

Second: It has been found that commodities rather than communities must be organized to insure the greatest success. Control of a single commodity regardless of where it is grown, is a fundamental essential that must be recognized. For this reason farmers in North Dakota as well as other states, organized a wheat pool, which they hoped in time would assume national proportions—a gigantic pool, with the wheat from all sections flowing through a single channel to the markets of the world. However I see no reason why a single agency could not handle different pools of related commodities, such as grains.

Third: An iron bound, legal contract is necessary, though many object to it. It would be extremely hazardous and unbusinesslike to establish a marketing agency, hire experts, set up offices and otherwise lay the foundation for a permanent organization, without a reasonable assurance of something to sell for a reasonable length of time. The association cannot make contracts. It cannot deal in a business way with the purchasers of products, if it does not know whether it is going to have one carload or a hundred carloads or none at all. Furthermore it would not be fair to the loyal members to allow the slacker members to accept the bribe prices offered by those who try to undermine co-operative associations for selfish reasons. The loyal members are protected from that sort of thing by the contracts signed by all, and this protection they justly deserve.

Operating on the basis of these principles, the wheat growers associations pool wheat of members, who sign a five year contract to deliver all the marketable wheat to the association for sale. This wheat is hauled to any public warehouse, where the grower gets a warehouse receipt specifying the amount and grade of his wheat.

The grower takes this receipt to his banker who attaches it to a draft drawn on the association for approximately 70 per cent of the local market price. This constitutes a first advance payment and enables the grower to take care of current obligations. Subsequent payments are made as the sale of the pool progresses and final settlement with the grower is made before the next harvest.

When the warehouse receipt reaches association headquarters the grower is credited with the amount and grade specified and given a "pool receipt."

When the wheat gathers in a local elevator in sufficient quantity to permit shipment of carload lots of the same variety and grade, the grain is ordered moved to the terminal agency by the association.

On arrival at the terminal the wheat is re-graded and subjected to a milling test by experts hired by the farmers to determine its commercial value. This is very important for millers buy wheat largely by its gluten content, and it often happens that grain that grades low on a color and weight test is rich in gluten and commands prices greatly exceeding the grade price offered by warehousemen at the interior points.

The selling agency having seats on the boards of trade, can take samples of the wheat and display them on the sample market for the inspection of buyers, who congregate in those places. This greatly facilitates selling and gives the wheat growers equal opportunity with commission firms in disposing of their products. Then in truth the farmers, through his hired experts, becomes a grain merchant, and exerts a greater bargaining power than he has ever before enjoyed.

The next article will deal with actual accomplishments of commodity marketing associations.

Fish From Red Lake to Be Sold Direct to Consumers

According to S. A. Selvog, supervisor of the Minnesota State Fisheries at Redby, Minn., that institution will open up Friday, July 6.

Prices on the various varieties cannot be announced at present but will probably be about the same as last year during that part of the season. The fisheries will be prepared to make shipments beginning Monday, July 9, for delivery during the week. Many orders have already been placed and daily inquiries are received from all parts of the state. Sales will be made to retailers and wholesalers cr to private individuals and direct to private homes, in lots of 25 or more pounds. It is desired to ship much of the production to private homes in the state. Twenty-five pounds of fish could well be divided with a neighbor each week. The family could have standing orders to be shipped by express on any specified day of the week and fresh delicious fish could be used direct from the fields of production to arrive at the home every week. Shipments made by express are delivered by the express company direct to your door.

Pike, pickerel, perch and whitefish are the principal varieties inhabiting the waters of Red Lake, and there are also such varieties as sheepshead, Goldeyes, mullets, and a few white carp, and an odd sturgeon has been produced at times when pound nets have been operated.

Every effort will be made to get the public to use quantities of the cheaper varieties of fish such as Goldeyes, sheepshead and mullet. The prices will be very low and should be attractive to all people who do not wish to buy the higher priced fish.

It being most difficult for the Game and Fish Department to get to every home in the state with their price list, they suggest that every reader of this article clip it out and hang it on the kitchen wall so the lady of the house can see it, so she will know where to send for fish, and regular meals of choice fresh fish can be served to the family throughout the summer at the most moderate prices, which have always been below those charged by others. They make C. O. D. shipments in small lots as well as in large quantities.

AS OTHERS THINK

Hazel, Minn., July 8, 1923.

To J. S. Arneson, Editor Tribune:

I believed you missed the fun after the speeches of Senator Frazier and A. E. Bowen last Thursday evening. A man named Lars Furan stepped up to me and offered his hand for a handshake. I grasped his hand and gave him a friendly handshake when he suddenly sprung the question: "What do you think of your man now?" Then he stepped back into the crowd where he came from. It took me by surprise and I do not know if I answered him or not. So I walked over to Furan and asked him in what way he meant the question. Then the real show commenced.

A gentleman named Bjorkman bestowed upon me right there the distinguished honor, to-wit: That I am the biggest traitor that ever lived; that I am the most notorious double-crosses; that I am lower than any snake, and that I am so small and insignificant that millions like me would have room on the point of a pin, etc. And I am of the opinion that it would still leave room for Mr. Bjorkman.

Come to think over what Mr. Bjorkman said, I have become mighty small since 1919. Ten per cent has been hard on a farmer like me since that time. Maybe 10 per cent makes men like Bjorkman grow, but not so with us farmers. I felt badly to think I could not contribute to the Magnus Johnson campaign fund that evening, having only one cent to my name. That cent I feel Mr. Bjorkman is entitled to for the great honor he bestowed upon me outside the auditorium.

There is another gentleman by the name of Quist I ought to appreciate. He told me he would smash my face that night, but he didn't do it. Now, I am glad he did not as I have many small children to support. And small as I am, I need what little face I have, and besides it would have been too bad for Magnus Johnson if Quist had knocked my eyes out as I could not then see to make a double XX for him on July 16 for U. S. Senator.

You know Babson says there are too many farmers, so I offer the motion to transfer 50 or 60 dirt farmers to the U. S. Senate, so I hereby invite Messrs. Bjorkman and Quist and all other voters (Mr. Arneson is welcome, too) to make at least one X after the name of Magnus Johnson, dirt farmer, on the ballot July 16 for U. S. Senator. I am, as before stated, going to make a double XX after Johnson's name.

Yours truly,
O. O. HAFDAL.

ELECTION MONDAY

Minnesota Will Choose Her Senator at Special Election July 16th. Republicans Be Sure To Vote.

J. A. O. Preus Has Wonderful Record of Achievement. Will Be Strong at Washington.

The special election to choose Minnesota's next Senator in Congress will be held Monday, July 16th. Every voter in Minnesota should cast his ballot and thus effectively register his preference. Of the candidates J. A. O. Preus, Minnesota's young Governor, is by far the best known and best qualified.

He has very unusual natural ability. Blessed by the Creator with superior mental capacity, a clear, keen mind and an active brain, he has the added advantage of a splendid education and years of political experience.

Mr. Preus' father was a Lutheran clergyman and college president, his mother a wonderful Christian woman. During his entire official life his private conduct and official acts have reflected credit upon the character and teachings of his parents.

Immediately after leaving the State University he went to Washington as a clerk in the Senate and is familiar with the personnel of that body, its method of conducting business and the various departments of the Federal Government. No other candidate for Senator has such education, such training or such knowledge.

While the Governor is a young man with a very unusual expectancy of life, in point of service he is one of the oldest of Minnesota's public men. After serving in Washington as Senate Clerk, he entered the practice of law in Minnesota but was shortly appointed Executive Clerk to the Governor, was then made Insurance Commissioner, elected State Auditor twice and twice elected Governor. During the twelve years that have passed, he has familiarized himself with all parts of Minnesota, with the industries, the problems and the needs of these various parts. No other candidate for the office of Senator has his statewide acquaintance with the industries and the problems of our great State.

His record in office speaks more eloquently for his ability and ideals than any eulogy. He is the State's greatest exponent of the merits of cooperative marketing. He believes in reduced taxes and during his term as Governor, for the only times in Minnesota's history, the general revenue tax levy has been twice omitted.

He believes in lightening the tax burden by taxing other sources of State income. He also believes in keeping his campaign pledges. Hence, when the tonnage tax bill was passed by the 1921 Legislature, he immediately signed the bill.

At the present time, he is the greatest exponent of the St. Lawrence waterway, holding official position in American public life. He can do more to secure the waterway, increase the markets available to Minnesota's farmers, and decrease the transportation rates upon their wheat than any man whom the Northwest can send to the U. S. Senate.

There can be no question about his ability, his experience, his fitness or his record. The Republican Party selected him as its candidate. To send him to Washington, votes are necessary. A Republican ballot which does not reach the ballot box is of no avail. If you believe in the destiny of Minnesota, believe in sending to represent us the ablest man whom we can secure, if you believe in the Republican Party and its principles, go to the polls on July 16th and vote for Minnesota's Governor, J. A. O. Preus, for the U. S. Senate. Tell your friends to vote. Write or telephone all your relatives.

The State and the party need you. You owe it to yourself to vote.

President Harding Gets Big Laugh at Harold Lloyd in New Movie

If you go to the Lyceum theatre Sunday and Monday to see Harold Lloyd in his latest Pathe feature comedy, "Dr. Jack," you will have the same pleasure enjoyed by President Harding. For the nation's executive has seen Harold Lloyd and has laughed at him so heartily that he completely forgot the burdens of his official capacity.

The showing of the Harold Lloyd comedy was in the White House itself, and for an hour the President forgot the momentous cares of his office and almost rolled out of his chair with hilarious laughter. He came out of the show saying he felt more refreshed than he had for three weeks.

The President expressed amazement at the resourcefulness of the young comedian in inventing so many new "stunts" and in his ability to provoke such continuous laughter for a solid hour.

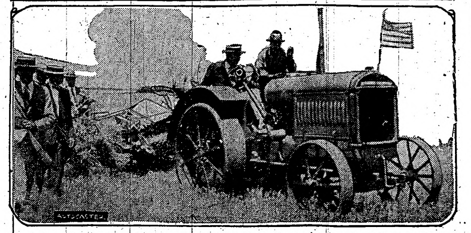
Highway Maps Ready For Distribution at Office of The Tribune

Show All the New Graveled Highways Throughout the State. Free to Readers.

The Tribune this week is in receipt of a number of state highway maps, sent by the Minnesota state highway department, which are free to readers of this newspaper. The maps are the most complete road maps ever issued by the department and all the new and graveled highways are shown on the map in colors. They are free to readers of this newspaper and subscribers are asked to call for them. There is but a limited number and the policy of The Tribune will be "first come, first served."

The maps are latest edition of the state highway department and are especially valuable to those planning to make trips wholly within Minnesota. In addition to showing the highways, the maps indicate all the railway systems and leading towns.

President Harding Finds Time to Harvest Kansas Wheat



A Kansas harvest-sun beat down on President Harding as he gave 'er the gas and threw the tractor into gear to start the wheat-cutting season near Hutchinson, June 23. Then the President gathered up bundles and "shocked" them with the remark, "This is how we do it in Ohio."

Head of Rural Credit Bureau Visits County; Finds Conditions Good

E. J. Oppliger, Farmer Member, Well Pleased With Farms Viewed in This Section of State.

"You have some splendid farms and good farmers, as well as the best bunch of boosters I have met in Minnesota," was the observation of E. J. Oppliger Saturday afternoon when he left for Warren after several extended tours into the nearby country and meeting some of the business men of the city at an informal meeting Friday evening.

Mr. Oppliger, chairman of the Minnesota Rural Credits Bureau, is a practical farmer and he looks the part. It would be difficult indeed to find a man who better meets the requirements of the new credit law to the effect that its chairman must be a practical farmer. He is soft spoken and homespun in every sense of the word and a number of business men and farmers expressed their approval of the selection made by Governor Preus after meeting him upon his visit to this city.

It seems that Mr. Oppliger visited Thief River Falls some fifteen or twenty years ago and he expressed his delight at the changes wrought in town and country since that time. No doubt he expected to find some changes for the better, but what he found upon his excursions into the country so far exceeded his expectations that he did not hesitate to voice his pleasure. He owns a splendid farm at Forest Lake, where the farmers are propsperous as a result of intensified dairying, and he naturally found much to commend here in the way farmers of Pennington county are taking hold of diversified farming.

One of the first places he visited in the city was the coo-perative creamery and his eyes twinkled as he noted the splendid equipment and evidences of prosperity on the part of that institutiton. He stated that although Forest Lake has a fine creamery it is not up to the local creamery in point of size and quantity of butterfat handled annually. When informed by The Tribune that farmers of this section received approximately half a million for cream annually, he stated that this accounted in a large measure for the fine farm conditions which he found in many places visited while here.

Speaking of the rural credits law and the bureau of which he is a member, he repeated statements made several times in The Tribune to the effect that every effort is being made by members of the board to begin action on applications. "It took us two weeks to get a copy of the law," said he, "and a vast amount of red tape has had to be overcome in getting our bonds sold, but we will dispose of three millions on July 10 and will begin completing loans as soon thereafter as is possible." He also stated that the work of getting out the necessary printed forms took a great deal of time.

Mr. Oppliger stated that T. O. Oftsthun, secretary of the bureau, upon whom devolves the management of the huge loan bank, had worked days, nights and Sundays in completing an organization which would properly care for the interests of the state, and he said this was also true of the other members of the bureau as well as the working staff.

About six million dollars of state money has so far been applied for, stated Mr. Oppliger, and applications are coming in at the rate of a million dollars a week.

The man who promises the most to get an office has the most promises to forget when he gets in.

Building New Retaining Wall. Construction work was started this week by the First and Peoples State bank on a new retaining wall, the old one having started to give way. A trench was dug for three feet along the outside of the wall, when the old wall was broken into small pieces and "snaked" out by four horses. The breaking up process attracted a number of witnesses to see the work done. The new stairway will be somewhat wider than the old one and will be a decided improvement.

Offers Billion for U. S. Merchant Fleet

AUTOCASTER

John W. Slack, President of a manufacturing plant at Silver Creek, N. Y., offers the government $1,051,000,000 for the entire U. S. merchant fleet. "Too much," says retiring Chairman Lasker. It is hinted Henry Ford had a hand in the bid, although Mr. Slack will neither confirm nor deny the report.

Motion Picture Staged in Sweden to Be Shown at Lyceum This Week

"The Song of the Blood Red Flower" Has Cast of Well-Known Swedish Actors and Actresses.

"The Song of the Blood Red Flower," a picture produced in Sweden amid the wonderful scenery of that country, enacted by a cast of noted stars of both Norway and Sweden, will be shown at the Lyceum theatre on Thursday and Friday of this week.

The various scenes shown in the film depict many places of interest known to thousands of Scandinavians who have been away from that country for a number of years. "It's as good as a trip over the ocean," say some of those who have viewed the picture, and the Lyceum management is to be congratulated in their policy of always showing that which pleases the largest number.

The picture is directed by M. Stiller, famous director of Sweden, assisted by other countrymen who make picture-producing their profession.

ANOTHER UNIVERSITY FARMER:

One can hardly blame the farmers as a class for being somewhat disgusted with the bunk which is dished up to them every once in a while by those learned individuals who see nothing wrong in the present condition of agriculture except lack of efficiency on the part of the farmer.

In a recent address a certain Dr. Hibbard of the University of Wisconsin stated that farming conditions would right themselves when the farmer learned to be more efficient. He scouted the idea that co-operative marketing of farm produce or the stabilization of prices was necessary to bring prosperity on the farm. The farmers will come into their own, he explained, when a sufficient number of people have gone to the cities to bring production to the proper level.

Are we to understand from this that the only hope of prosperity on the grain farm is the perennial elimination of farmers until the country is on the verge of a famine which will compel people to pay a fair price for farm produce?

But what will this learned professor suggest as a remedy for the Pennington county farmer who raised 5,000 bushels of potatoes last year which he sold for less than $900? By what measure of efficiency can this farmer better himself to the end that he may pay his taxes, his store bills and other obligations?

Presumably he should have raised oranges or lemons or tobacco or cotton or raisins, which are high priced. And would he suggest that the farmer who raises wheat in Pennington county change to bananas, which command a good price? Will the professor come to Pennington county and demonstrate his idea of efficiency, and he may be assured of better wages than he is now receiving if he can show our farmers how to overcome present handicaps.

The professor probably knows no more about the difficulties which beset the farmer of the middle west today than a pig knows about Christmas, for if he did he would understand that the lack of efficiency which he talks about can easily be traced to the marketing system of the country which the farmers have trusted to others than themselves. To that extent the farmers have been negligent, but they are waking up as never before.

If the farmers were not raising enough of the commodities of life they would be guilty of inefficiency, but they are generally charged with raising too much, and still they are unable to make both ends meet.

As The Tribune has repeatedly pointed out, it is the earnest belief of this newspaper that the real lack of efficiency may be charged first, to the men in high power who have failed to check the profiteers of the country in their shameless exploitation of the farmers and the great middle class of the country who are paying excessive prices for the necessities of life, and secondly, to those who blindly refuse to see, and seeing, refuse to give their support to the only alternative open to the farmer, namely, such an intensive organization on their part as will enable them to ask and demand from the consumer such a price for their produce as to fully cover expense of production plus a reasonable profit upon their labor and investment.

If farm machinery, clothing, coal, sugar, coffee, and other such staples as farmers need, were as reasonable in price as wheat, rye, oats, barley, potatoes, cattle and sheep, then the farmer would have no complaint to make, but in view of the discrepancy which exists he needs constructive counsel and intelligent aid from the business men of the country in order that he may receive adequate reward for the very hard labor which he and the members of his family perform.

IN FAIRNESS TO PREUS.

Inasmuch as The Tribune believes that personal attacks upon Magnus Johnson and Senator Carley are entirely unwarranted, it is our sincere belief that such attacks upon the character and purpose of Governor Preus are equally unfair. Mr. Preus has conducted himself in a gentlemanly manner upon all occasions, never stooping to attacks upon his adversaries no matter how great the provocation.

To his credit it may be stated in his behalf that he has maintained dignified silence with reference to the unfounded charges which almost amount to libel. He comes from the best blood of the Norwegian race and the charge that he has ever disgraced the splendid ancestry with which he has been blessed is to stigmatize the men who have stood the highest in the church and the councils of the nation. No doubt he is chargeable with sins of commission and omission, as is for that matter any man in public life, but we firmly and sincerely believe Mr. Preus to be an honest man whose only purpose is to give the people of Minnesota the best service of which he is capable.

He is entitled to be judged upon the strictest investigation of his public record—a great record of achievement in behalf of the common people of the state, particularly with reference to agriculture—and no fairminded person will give credence to the silly and unwarranted attacks which are as vapid, as indefinite and as senseless as is common gossip.

CELEBRATION A JOKE.

The Tribune wishes to state to the thousands of out-of-town visitors in Thief River Falls who came here to take in the Fourth of July "celebration" last Wednesday that this city isn't always in the habit of kidding folks the way it was done here last week, when the whole shooting-match fizzled like a wet firecracker.

Thief River Falls is known far and wide as a city that undertakes and is a deliverer of big things, but we sure slipped back a dozen cogs or more in this last fiasco of the other day, which didn't develop thrills enough to tickle a two-year-old pickaninny.

Every real Thief River Falls citizen will join with The Tribune in expressing apologies to to the out-of-town visitors for the city's oversight in not providing better entertainment. They came here to see something—and saw nothing. It simply wasn't here to see. There was a parade that was a dandy. True, the rain interfered, but we can't place all the blame there.

Our visitors were very sympathetic, however, and that may help some. They waited patiently for a $500 display of fireworks that wasn't worth five nickels to the most unsophisticated kind of a Fourth of July kid.

So much for that.

Thief River Falls will retrieve its temporarily lost laurels next month when the Pennington County Agricultural society holds its annual fair in this city. Contrary to the belief expressed by many of its readers, The Tribune believes that the fair has not in any way been injured by the miserable showing here on July Fourth. The fair will go over on its own merits and not on the demerits of this latest celebration.

GET OUT AND VOTE.

The Tribune cannot too insistently urge upon its readers the patriotic duty which devolves upon every voter to cast his or her vote next Monday. It does not matter who one favors in the senatorial contest, for it is every voter's God-given privilege to vote as he pleases, but no person is a good citizen who does not sufficiently prize the right of suffrage to go to the polls and register a choice.

What a howl there would be in this country, and rightfully so, if all were not equal before the law in the matter of electing public officials. We are so accustomed to thinking that one vote more or less does not matter, but remember one vote is all anyone has, and many a critical election has been decided in this country by that one vote. If you favor Mr. Preus in this contest it is important that you aid him with your vote, and the same may be said to those who favor Mr. Johnson or Mr. Carley.

Let us show the balance of the state how to get a full vote, and remember that the election of your favorite may hinge upon the outcome of Pennington county.

The conviction of a number of liquor law violators last week must be as gratifying to law abiding citizens as it is to The Tribune, which has watched the outcome of the cases with considerable interest. Judge Grindeland, who presided at the trials with the utmost fairness and consideration for the rights of all litigants; County Attorney Quale, who handled the prosecution, Sheriff Ihle, who made many of the arrests, and Chief of Police Berge, who has been alert and vigilant in the performance of his duties, as well as the jurors who patiently heard and weighed the evidence, are all, each and every one of them, entitled to the moral support and commendation of every good citizen. If Thief River Falls is to be decent, a safe place in which to live and rear a family, it becomes the plain duty of everyone to back the peace officers of the city and county to the utmost limit.

No, the flower garden just south of The Tribune building is not our private property, and the public is cordially invited to pick generously of the fragrant and beautiful buds that are there in such great abundance. Come, pick all you want. This newspaper didn't plant 'em; they just naturally grow best where they will be least disturbed and therefore have chosen the vacant lot near The Tribune office as affording the best chance of life. It's the finest field of domesticated wild flowers in the county and The Tribune challenges the world to show it anything that can compare with it.

Tommy Gibbons was received like a conquering hero when he returned to St. Paul after staying in the ring 15 rounds with Champion Dempsey without being knocked out. Tom displayed gerat courage, of course, but there are thousands in the city of St. Paul equally brave whose pictures will never appear in the St. Paul Dispatch. Take a certain frail little woman who has been supporting a sick husband and several little children for a number of years by toiling over the wash tub, for instance. Whose is the greatest courage, we wonder?

Minnesota needs Jake Preus in the United States Senate because he is the foremost champion of the deep waterways canal in the country, and that is the biggest thing the farmers of the Northwest are concerned in at the present time.

Considering area, no county north of the twin cities has anything on Pennington county when it comes to dairying. We have more prosperous creameries and more accredited dairy herds than any of them, and don't let anyone tell you anything different.

Think of the many important events which occurred in this country within the recollection of the former Thief River Falls citizen who still lives in California at the ripe old age of 105. He can distinctly remember the stirring events of the Civil war, no doubt. His memory must go back to the time when Abraham Lincoln was a young man. Possibly he can even remember when the present Great Northern depot was built in Thief River Falls.

It is now reported that women have taken up the fad of inoculating themselves with monkey glands in order to renew their youth, and that African missionaries are making money by dealing in the necessary female chimpanzees required for the operation. And so far as we are concerned the idle rich can make monkeys of themselves to their hearts' content.

It is currently rumored that President Harding has selected Ed. Smith of Minneapolis for chairman of the Republican National Committee, which is another indication that the chief executive of the nation is not seeking the best advice in the world. Harding's candidacy for re-election seems to be in the hands of his enemies.

When Mr. Oppliger left town he stated that Thief River Falls and surrounding country had the best bunch of boosters he had met in Minnesota. Music to our ears, E. J.

It certainly pays to advertise in The Tribune. About a month ago we advertised for rain and it has rained almost every day since.

Demonstrate that you are a good citizen by casting your vote next Monday.

Visitin' Around Among the Farmers

(By J. S. Arneson.)

The more I see of the country tributary to Thief River Falls, the better I like it, and as I compare it with other sections of Minnesota—and I claim to have seen at least some portion of every county in the state—the more I am convinced that we have the soil conditions which will ultimately make this the garden spot of Minnesota. Also we have some things which other sections of the state have not. Notably we have soil especially adapted to alfalfa, and bear this in mind: when approximately 15 per cent of our cultivated soil is in alfalfa, our land will command a price of $100 per acre. This is no idle statement, but is borne out by the facts.

Alfalfa is the ideal feed for dairy cattle, it renews the vigor of the land instead of impoverishing it, and every ton of alfalfa not utilized on the farm readily commands a price of $20 per ton year in and year out. I wish we could organize an alfalfa club in Pennington county in which all the farmers could join hands and agree to plant, say five acres each year. Those not able to make the change in their plans could make such fact known and the other members would be glad to help them, I am sure, for such a club would vastly benefit each and every resident of the county. I know of no surer nor more profitable way of ridding the community of the pestiferous sow thistle. I have seen some fine alfalfa fields during my drives through the country the past few days. Yesterday I saw some good ones in the vicinity of St. Hilaire and Hazel, and it begins to look as if the farmers down that way are fully alive to the possibilities of alfalfa culture.

Speaking of alfalfa and dairying brings me to the subject of farm loans again. Do you know, dear reader, that not a single application for a state loan has come in from McLeod county, the leading dairy county of Minnesota? True, nevertheless. Most of the applications have come in from the grain raising counties, which is not to be wondered at, and very few of the dairy farmers have been compelled to seek such loans. No reflection on this county, which we all know to be in the period of transition, and I am sure some of the farmers in this section who today are applying for state loans with the one objective of changing their plan of farming to alfalfa and cows, will assuredly be "sitting on top of the world" in a few years.

It was my great pelasure during the week to show the local creamery plant to Mr. E. J. Oppliger, the "dirt" farmer member and chairman of the Rural Credit board. He comes from a recognized dairy center, namely, Forest Lake, Minn., and as he looked over the creamery he showed his interest and pleasure at finding such a plant in Pennington county. To him it was almost unbelieveable and he went back to St. Paul convinced that if ever there had been anything the matter with us we were on a fair way to put our house in order. In other words, Mr. Oppliger is convinced that prosperity for the Pennington county farmer is near at hand.

—o—

In the limited time at my disposal I found it impossible to show Mr. Oppliger all the attractions we possess, but he did find time to see some of the good dairy herds in the vicinity. He saw the Johnson herd of Guernseys as well as the Conklin herd. He also saw Hans Rued's Holsteins and Jens Letnes' Shorthorns. I am sorry his time here was too limited to permit an inspection of the large number of other good herds to be found here, but suffice it to say he got an "eyefull." He also saw some of the best farms in the vicinity and I am fairly well convinced that Pennington county has one valiant defender on the Rural Credit bureau from now on.

It is worthy of comment that on my drive through the country with Mr. Oppliger, his experienced farmer eye noted with highest degree of approval those farms where good dairy cows were in evidence, where the barnyard manure was out on the field instead of being piled up around the yard, where at least a portion of the farm was planted to tame grass, and his face never failed to light up like a Roman candle whenever he saw a good field of alfalfa. As I have repeatedly pointed out, alfalfa seems to be the sheet anchor of successful farming in the opinion of all successful farmers.

Another crop that engaged the attention of the chairman of the Rural Credit bureau was the boys and girls he saw on the farms. As we drove into the yard of Tom Rynestad for a brief visit on that gentleman's beautiful farm, Mr. Oppliger saw only the large family of husky boys and girls. "I will bet Rynestad is a good farmer," he remarked, "and he is a lucky man to have such a nice looking family." By the way, he and Mr. Rynestad took a great liking to each other, and the latter would swell up to beat the band if he knew what Mr. Oppliger said as we drove off down the road.

On my trip yesterday I encountered another prosperous bachelor. He has arrived at the safe age of discretion where he no longer cherishes any idea of making an alliance with a giddy young damsel, but he has his weather eye out for a widow of mature years. One with a family is not objectionable providing she is willing to shower some slight attention upon the said bachelor. No, I am not permitted to give his name, but in a pinch I might give out a hint as to his whereabouts. He is extremely bashful and the widow will in all probability have to make the advances, but I am positive he is in a recipient mood.

PotatoGrowers to Meet in City July 18, 8 P. M.

Representative Waldal and S. G. Rubinow Are the Principal Speakers.

Importance of Organizing Producers to Be Emphasized at Meeting.

Representative Marius Waldal of Plummer, who was in the city yesterday, announces that a big meeting of Pennington county potato growers will take place in this city on the evening of July 18, when an effort will be made to sign up all producers who do not now belong to the co-operative association.

The meeting, which will be held at the Commercial club rooms at the Auditorium, will be addressed by Mr. Waldal and S. G. Rubinow, who is in charge of the state organization. The latter is well known as the man who signed up 65 per cent of the Maine potato growers under the Sapiro plan of organization, a plan which has placed the tobacco, cotton and fruit gorwers of the country on such a solid foundation.

Everyone is welcome to attend, and the addresses will be well worth while from the standpoint of the farmers who have been underpaid for all kinds of produce.

The man who is looking for cheap advice can always get it.

Every man weighs himself and determines his own worth. We earn what we deserve. All wages are not paid in coin. The men who work only for money seldom have anything but money. And whether they have much or little of that they are soon forgotten by a world eager to reward unselfish deeds.

It is a common practice to blame the world for our own faults. When your estimate of your work and the world's estimate do not agree, survey yourself before you curse the world.

It is impossible to keep any man below the level of his attainments. It is as impossible to hold him above them.

Talent is the result of application. Efficiency is the reward for practice.

Mere knowledge measures worth no more than mere muscle. The skilled mechanic is master of his muscles. Undirected muscles as undirected brains, produce little and are worth little.

Wit applied to one thing develops wisdom. Wisdom never achieves when it wobbles. Constant thinking and working on consistent lines produce results.

Opportunity never searches for him who does not search for opportunity.

Strength of will is the foundation of worth. Luck is a dangerous pilot to put on your bridge. Influence may help you out of the harbor of your birth, but it will lead you into the open sea without rudder or sail or anchor.

History is the chronological story of men who have put real worth into work, men who pushed a fixed purpose.

The fellow who will despise his job is the fellow who will always have a job to despise.

It is the duty-doer who establishes the worth which the world recognizes and for which the world will pay in cash or honor.

Poem by Uncle John

FETCH around the peanuts an' the speckled lemonade! Feller advertises is the one that gets the trade. Twenty-five concessions in the little City Park, rollin' in the nickles, from daylight till it's dark. Wagon-loads of sody-pop fills the day with cheer—Speaker in the grandstand, nobody can hear. Flags awavin' in the breeze to jollify the scenes—Ain't a dozen fellers here, can figger what it means! Band a-playin' jazzy tunes—hosses steppin' high. Feller sweats a barrel, with so many drinks to buy. Take the country over, with a holiday on hand. Fortunes made from cigarettes, or on the peanut-stand. Wonder why they have it when the weather is so hot? Used to know about it, but blame it—I've fergot. Used to be the patriots that celebrated here—Now they never mention 'em,—Golly, ain't it queer?

HELPFUL HINTS by A Leda

A New Broom—Before using a new broom, soak it in boiling water with salt. This will toughen the bristles and make it last much longer.

Iodine Stain—A very hard stain to remove is iodine. It can be done though if soaked in milk, occasionally rubbing the spot.

Clothespins—If you will boil your clothespins once or twice a month you will find they last much longer.

Oatmeal—A little sugar added to oatmeal while it is cooking will improve the flavor.

Fruit Stains—If powdered starch is applied instantly to fruit stains, it will usually remove them.

Short Stemmed Flowers—To prevent flower stems going down too deep in a tall vase roll some ordinary newspaper into a loose ball. The flowers will then stand up. It will hold the moisture, if replenishing the water is forgotten, which is a double benefit.

Ironing Pongee—Pongee, unlike most materials, should not be dampened when ironed. It should be thoroughly dried and ironed on the wrong side for a really good effect.

For Sticky Substances—If when grinding raisins or any such sticky substances a few drops of lemon are squeezed into the food grinder first, the difficulty will be removed.

Broken Glass—If a glass is broken, don't try and pick up the small pieces. Instead lay a wet woolen cloth on the floor where the fragments are and pat it. The tiny particles will adhere to the damp cloth and that can easily be burned. A piece of glass in the flesh might cause no end of trouble not to mention the pain.

Keep Stove Bright—Rub your stove off daily with an ordinary piece of newspaper and the polish will remain twice as long.

The prevalence of cholera among the poultry flocks of this vicinity became evident this week when Scott Laird reported to Dr. Twete, local veterinarian, that several of his chickens had been found dead. Health is a Result of the Adaptation of the "Power Within" to the Stress of Environment

DEFINITION
The practice of Chiropractic consists of the adjustment with the hands, of the movable segments of the spinal column to normal position for the purpose of releasing the prisoned impulse

It is a question of relativity.

Disease is the result of supernormal stress or of subnormal resistance.

When the nerve, over which the "power within" sends its adaptative impulses to the cells of the body, becomes impinged by a subluxated vertebra, the "power within" cannot adapt the organism to the stress of environment and we become sick.

To regain health it is necessary to turn on the power of adaptation—resistance.

To turn on the power the impingement must be removed from the nerve, in order that it may function normally.

To remove the impingement the vertebra must be adjusted, and this adjustment of vertebrae is the work of the

Local Young Man Wins Fame as Cornetist in "Husk" O'Hare's Outfit

Son of W. E. Baker, Great Northern Agent, Hitting High Stride With "Apostles of Pep."

Earl Baker, son of W. E. Baker, local Great Northern agent, is hitting a high stride with the "Husk" O'Hare orchestral aggregation of Chicago. The Tribune this week is in receipt of press notices from various dailies of the middle west indicating that young Baker is holding his own in one of the foremost orcrestras of the country.

Young Baker, who is well known in Thief River Falls, where he was born and raised, attended the Thief River Falls schools, later attending the Dunwoody Institute at Minneapolis. Having gained considerable fame as a musician while here, where he was a member of the Thief River Falls band and various orchestras, Mr. Baker has attained unusual heights since he took up his residence in Chicago.

The Akron Times, of Akron, Ohio, publishes a cut of Baker, and says of him: "Earl Baker, cornetist in the Chicago Peacock Strutters orchestra now playing at Summit Beach park, has made several vaudeville tours of the country and is known here as 'vaudeville's hottest cornetist.' He is well known in cafes in both Chicago and San Francisco for his unusual skill with the cornet."

You do not have to cultivate bad habits; they grow luxuriantly without it. Boll weevil and other pestilences are no barrier to a good crop.

It is easier to fall off a ladder than it is to climb up.

Winnipeg Sugar Beet Factory Would Desire Plant Erection Here

New Concern Vies With Northern Sugar Beet Company to Secure Production of Growers.

It's commencing to look like Thief River Falls will have a sugar beet factory next year in spite of everything. The sugar beet crop grown here this year is showing up as among the best grown anywhere in the country and factory officials are looking to this section as the best beet territory anywhere.

A meeting of the sugar beet committee held last week at the Commercial club received reports from various growers and these indicated a good yield throughout the entire district. Some sections anticipated yields far above their fondest hopes for the season.

Although the season is claimed by some to have been too dry for the newest Pennington county crop, this has not proven altogether true in most cases. Some fields already show a healthy state and will no doubt develop good yields.

THE JOB AND MAN

What Minnesota Wants From Its Senator in Congress and What the Republican Party Has to Offer In Its Candidate.

Fitness for Office Should Be the Deciding Factor for the Voters at the Special Election on Monday, July 16.

The job of United States Senator is the most important at the disposal of the electors of Minnesota. Of the three branches of government, congress is the most powerful. Of the two houses of congress, the senate is invested with the greatest responsibility. Each state has but two senators to express its will and it behooves every commonwealth to elect to the national senate its ablest and best. This job of senator is the one for which the voters of Minnesota will hire a man on Monday, July, 16th.

The Man.

From a field of nine candidates, Minnesota Republicans nominated Governor J. A. O. Preus to represent the Party at the polls on Monday, July 16. When elected, he will, on qualifying, fill the unexpired term of his best friend, the late Senator Knute Nelson.

Governor Preus brings the voters for their consideration an ability, an education, a training and an experience far beyond those possessed by any other man now in Minnesota's public life. After graduating from the University, Mr. Preus served as a clerk in the United States Senate. While there he learned thoroughly the duties and responsibilities of a senator, the senate's method of procedure, the various departments at Washington, their functions and their methods. Minnesota has no other senatorial candidate who possesses this actual, personal knowledge of the duties of United States Senator.

As Insurance Commissioner of Minnesota, State Auditor and Governor, Mr. Preus has been in every section of the state, talked with people in every section, gained an intimate, personal, practical knowledge of their work, their problems, their needs, and the resources of the state, its industries and its requirements. No other candidate for the senate has had this experience or now has this knowledge.

His Record.

Governor Preus has made good in every position of trust to which the people have elected him. He served the state expertly as Commissioner of Insurance and was then and is now recognized throughout the United States as an insurance authority.

As State Auditor he mastered the duties and details of the office and thereby secured expert knowledge of the state's public domain and fiscal affairs.

As Governor he has advocated cooperative marketing, secured legislation and approved laws tending to improve the condition of the farmer and achieve once again normal business conditions. During his administration for the first times in the state's history, the general revenue fund tax levy was twice eliminated. As Governor he kept his promise and his party's pledge to sign the tonnage tax bill. This one official act will bring $5,000,000 annually into the Treasury of Minnesota. He has sponsored the St. Lawrence waterway and is its best known and ablest exponent.

Our Opportunity.

With such a job open and such a man available, we voters of Minnesota can now send to the United States Senate, a man who from the first will be recognized there as the ablest man from the northwest. To secure him we must go to the polls on July 16th and vote for J. A. O. Preus for senatc We must ask our friends by telephc and by letter to do likewise, and work must be done now, today. special election date is July 16. that it will be too late.

Many a good man has been allowed to pass into oblivion and find a resting place in the scrap pile because of his modesty in pushing himself forward.

The Human Side of Jake Preus

Some Little Known Facts About Minnesota's Best Known Public Man

There are few men or women in Minnesota who don't know Governor J. A. O. Preus personally or by reputation. Their acquaintance with him, however, is largely as State Auditor and Governor, where he has gained the most comprehensive knowledge of Minnesota's resources and problems of any man now living.

His early life was interesting. Born on a farm in Wisconsin, he went to school in Iowa, worked as a section hand, clerk and country school teacher in Minnesota, graduated from the University Law School, then married his boyhood sweetheart and at once entered public life as a clerk in the United States Senate.

The Governor has one son, Jack, of whom he is very fond. His home life is ideal. He is a deep student, musical in his tastes, athletic and a pronounced baseball fan when duty and time permit. Most genial and kindly with his personal and official acquaintances, he is a typical Minnesota citizen, fond of his home, proud of his family and with an abiding faith in the future of our great [illegible]

CLEAN-UP HELPING SO. ST. PAUL MART

Shippers' Confidence Indicated By Big Increase in Hog Receipts During Month of June.

The sweeping campaign to eliminate dishonest commission firms from the South St. Paul livestock market has resulted in increased receipts at that center. According to reports made public last week by the Stock Yards company, hog receipts in June increased 43,458, compared with the corresponding month a year ago. In June, 1922, 211,195 hogs were received. Last month 254,653 were received. Car receipts for the first six months of 1923 increased 3,441 over a year ago.

"While the federal audit, which has been responsible for the elimination of many dishonest firms, may have had the effect of sending some shipments to other centers, records show we have been making steady gains, especially in cars coming from local associations," says T. E. Good, president of the Stock Yards company. "This market now has the advantage of having passed through the trying period of a federal audit, while other markets have that experience before them. We have shown our determination to get rid of the undesirable with the least possible delay and farmers now have the assurance of fair play which no other market can give until the audit has been completed. It should be remembered that all markets will be audited, just as South St. Paul has been."

The clean-up campaign continued last week, with two firms added to the list that has been fined, without a suspension. Percy Vittum Co. was fined $750, $250 for each of three offenses against yard rules. The South St. Paul Commission Co. was fined $250 for one such offense.

No co-operative has been either fined or suspended.

POTATO GROWERS ORGANIZE SELVES

Men Who Sign Contract Become Solicitors For New Sales Organization.

Five hundred Minnesota farmers who signed the new potato marketing contract in June, have taken to the field as solicitors for the movement. As a result of this arrangement, two counties have completed their quota and prospects are that by the time the state office receives official reports of all work in June, three more will have complied with the regulation which provides that 50 per cent of the commercial acreage must be signed before further steps to set up sales agencies can be undertaken.

Red Lake was the first county to obtain its quota. Beltrami is a close second. Itasca, Becker and Winona have been making steady progress toward obtaining their allotment with prospects that the campaigns will be over the minimum soon.

In Winona county, where E. W. Smith was in charge of the campaign, co-operating with Constance Gernes and County Agent J. B. McNulty, every contract signed was accompanied by a cash remittance.

"The campaign is now well under way," says Earle A. Barker of Bemidji, a member of the state committee, "and even greater progress will be possible from now on, especially in counties where general meetings have been held and where leaders have signed the agreement. We placed the membership fee at $5, because we feel that growers themselves should carry on the work, once the plan has been explained and the preliminary steps taken."

FIVE COMMUNITIES FORM EGG CIRCLES

Plans For State Poultry Products Sales Agency Are Developing Very Rapidly.

Five communities already have formed egg and poultry marketing associations, under a plan recently perfected by a special committee of farm leaders named last March. These communities are:

Faribault, representing Rice county.

Pine Island, representing Dodge county.

Owatonna, representing Steele county.

Princeton, representing Sherburne, Benton and Mille Lacs counties.

Milaca, representing Central Minnesota.

More than 20 other communities are asking for organization work, according to J. S. Jones, secretary of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation and of the state organization committee.

These communities are organizing under the new co-operative marketing law, enacted by the last legislature. As quickly as possible these community associations will be federated into a state organization. Plans also call for linking the state organization with a national movement, fostered by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Greatest Dairy Show to Be Held This Year at the Minnesota State Fair

National Campaign to Be Waged During Next Two Months to Insure Successful Show.

A dairy show rivaling the National Dairy Show at Syracuse, N. Y., is to be staged by the Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Dairy Exposition, September 1 to 8, as its greatest educational feature.

To attract dairy herds from all over the continent, premiums totaling $21,655 are being offered for dairy cattle, nearly double that offered by the state fair in 1922. This has been made possible by the raising of a special fund for that purpose by the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association and the St. Paul Association of Public and Business Affairs, co-operating with all the other organizations interested in the development of dairying in the Northwest.

The prizes offered are as follows: Holsteins, $6,000; Jerseys, $5,000; Guernseys, $5,000; Ayrshires, $2,000; Brown Swiss, $2,155; and Boys' and Girls' Calf Club Contest, $1,500. The total is $21,655.

A national campaign is to be waged in the next two months to interest breeders of dairy cattle in coming to the Minnesota State Fair. The National Dairy Show follows the State Fair, two weeks later, permitting the breeders to exhibit at both expositions without difficulty.

All the organization machinery that made the National Dairy Show at the Minnesota State Fair grounds such a success in 1922 has been thrown behind the big Northwest Dairy Show at the State Fair this year, and a tremendous increase in attendance from the country districts is anticipated at the fair as a result.

Can appendicitis be guarded against? Yes, by preventing intestinal infection. Whereas, the petition of Aanund Evenson, a freeholder of School District No. 68 in this County, with the approval of the County Superintendent endorsed thereon, representing that he is the owner of the lands hereinafter described, which are situate in said School District, and that said land adjoins School District No. 66, and asking that his lands may be set off from said District No. 68 to said District No. 66 for the following reasons:

That I have only 1½ miles to school house in School District No. 66, whereas there are three miles to school house in School District No. 68, and the roads commonly traveled are in poorer condition to school in District No. 68. Also, my children have attended school in School District No. 66 for the last 14 years

Was presented to the County Board of this County, at a session of said Board held on the 18th day of May, A. D. 1923, for the action of said Board thereon; and North Half of Section 12, Twp. 153, Range 41, be and the same are hereby set off from said School District No. 68 to said School District No. 66, and said lands are hereby made a part of said last named School District for all purposes whatever.

By order of the County Board.

Dated the 12th day of June, A. D. 1923.

R. McGINN.
Chairman of the County Board,
Pennington County, Minn.
Attest: T. P. ANDERSON, County Auditor and Ex-Officio Clerk of Board.

Petition of Otto Stuey to be set off from School District No. 52 and attached to School District No. 47 was on motion duly approved.

Order Setting Off Freeholder From One School District to Another.

Whereas, the Petition of Otto Stuey, a freeholder of School District No. 52 in this County, with the approval of the County Superintendent endorsed thereon, representing that he is the owner of the lands hereinafter described, which are situate in said School District, and that said land adjoins School District No. 47, and asking that his said lands may be set off from said District No. 52 to said District No. 47 for the following reasons:

Distance to school in District No. 52, 2½ miles. No direct road. No road at all for one-half mile from Red Lake River. Also said school house being on south side of Red Lake River and petitioner resides on north side of the river. Inconvenient at all times to cross river and impossible sometimes. School house in District No. 47 is a little over two miles and on a good public road all the way. School house in District No. 52 is too far for the children to walk, and cannot drive until river is safe in the fall, about Dec. 5th, and it is unsafe in March for teams.

Was presented to the County Board of this County, at a session of said Board held on the 18th day of May, A. D. 1923, for the action of said Board thereon; and

Whereas, it was thereupon ordered by said Board that a hearing should be had on said Petition at a session of said Board commencing on the 12th day of June, A. D. 1923, at the County Auditor's office in the City of Thief River Falls, in said County; and

Magnus Johnson Helped Defraud Equity Is Charge

As Equity Director He Helped Create a "Dummy" Grain Corporation.

Serious Charges Preferred By Attorneys Manahan and Tom Sullivan.

Concerning the charge preferred against directors of the Equity, who are claimed to have mismanaged the affairs of the concern and thus beating the farmers of the Northwest out of thousands of dollars, Martin Widsten has the following article in a recent issue of the Crooston Times:

Magnus Johnson should keep in mind the old proverb that "those who live in glass houses should not throw stones." Magnus is going about the state denouncing Gov. Preus in no uncertain words. If he goes too far the governor may lose his good-natured patience and come back at him, and with the material at hand for a comeback against Magnus he might soon have him crawling into a hole under the sidewalk and asking some one to push the hole in after him.

The Equity Exchange is a grain corporation owned by the farmers of the Northwest, and until recently Magnus Johnson was a director and a big power in the conduct of this business.

James A. Manahan and Thomas V. Sullivan are attorneys in St. Paul. They are so well known in the state, and especially in radical circles, that it is not necessary for us to more than mention their names.

Under date of Jan. 30, 1923, there was a complaint filed in the District Court of Ramsey county, by a number of stockholders in the Equity Exchange, wherein many charges of mismanagement are made. We will make a few quotations from this complaint, drawn up or approved by Manahan, Sullivan & Heggestetter as counsel for the plaintiffs. The words quoted from the complaint will be in black type.

The suit was the result of the pooling of the 1921 wheat crop, when the Equity had contracts signed by farmers for the delivery of a million bushels of wheat, about half of which was delivered to them. The complaint charges Magnus Johnson and the other directors with creating a dummy corporation, selling the grain that was sent to them for storage to this dummy corporation at a profit, and having this dummy corporation put it on the market in violation of the intents of the pooling arrangement.

The plaintiffs allege that Magnus Johnson and the other directors "in violation of said pooling contract and with intent to cheat and defraud these plaintiffs and other stockholders and in derogation of their trust as officers of said corporation caused and permitted to be organized a certain grain selling organization, hereafter referred to as a "dummy," by means of which the defendants so handled and manipulated the grain delivered under said pooling contract so as to destroy to said poolers the benefit and advantage of proper mixing and treatment of the grain so stored, therby causing a loss to said poolers of fifteen cents per bushel on said grain:"

The complaint, written or approved by James Manahan and Thomas V. Sullivan, leaders in the Farmer-Labor party, and counsel for the plaintiffs in this case, further alleges that "said stored grain was not sold in the usual and orderly method of the trade and was not sold upon the market, but was sold in large part to the defendants' dummy corporation at a price arbitrarily fixed by the treasurer of the defendant corporation."

The complaint also alleges that in violation of the pooling agreement "the directors and officers of said corporation on obtaining control of the grain so delivered, borrowed a large amount of money thereon in excess of the moneys that they advanced to the members of the pool who furnished the grain, and used this excess improperly and extravagantly in the conduct of its other business."

Fifteen cents a bushel gained on the mixing process should have been quite a satisfactory profit, but apparently it wasn't, for the complaint alleges further "that the defendants in the handling of said stored grain under the pooling arrangement above described not only cheated and defrauded plaintiffs and others similarly situated by manipulation through said dummy corporation as aforesaid and accounted to the plaintiffs for the sale of said grain at less than the market price thereof, but in addition, wrongfully and unlawfully and in violation of their trust in the matter, arbitrarily charged the plaintiffs and other poolers on all grain sales made for them an arbitrary overhead charge of fifteen and one-fourth cents per bushel."

Fifteen cents a bushel profit on the mixing process and fifteen cents a bushel overhead charges, making 30 cents in all, would seem a fair profit for the handling of this pooled wheat, without counting what may have been made through the dummy company, but it seems that these unlucky poolers weren't out of the woods yet, for the complaint alleges that the company of which Magnus Johnson was a director and leading spirit "Falsely and fraudulently made misleading and deceptive returns to the poolers and falsely and fraudulently made arbitrary and illegal charges against the poolers in accounting to them under said contracts and in addition thereto refused and still refuse to account and to pay to the plaintiffs and other poolers for the grain delivered to them under said pooling arrangements."

At the annual meeting of the stockholders held in Fargo in January, it was agreed that the matter should be submitted to a committee of ten, five to be picked by the directors and five by the complainants. This committee investigated the matter and rendered a decision that the poolers should be paid approximately $50,000. But, says the complaint "the defendants repudiated this finding and report of their committee and refuse to abide by said award and neglected or refused to pay or account to the plaintiffs and other poolers in accordance therewith or at all."

The complaint, written or approved by Manahan and Sullivan, prominent in the Farmer-Labor party, further alleges that the defendant corporation of which Magnus Johnson was a director and leading promoter "has loaned money to some of its directors personally, and in addition thereto for the purpose of concealing its financial embarrassment and sacing commissions on so-called hedging transactions, it illegally and fraudulently operated as a bucket shop, so-called." This is contrary to the laws of Minnesota.

These are only a few of the "high spots" in the complaint filed by stockholders in the Equity Exchange, through their counsel, Manahan and Sullivan and others, and aginst Magnus Johnson and other directors. We undertsand that an adjustment has been made whereby Magnus and some of the other directors who were responsible for these things had to resign and let others try to steer the concern out of the trouble they had steered it into.

It appears from the allegations in this complaint that Magnus Johnson was untrue to those who trusted him in the conduct of their co-operative grain exchange. The only alternative and apology might be that he was incompetent, and didn't know what was going on. As a candidate for senator he is all right for those that like that sort of thing.

Heavy Rains Halt Program at July 4th Celebration

Big Downpour Raises Havoc With Entire List of Sports Events at Grounds.

Largest Crown in History of City Has Day Marred By Wet Weather.

Heavy rains that commenced falling about 2 o'clock last Wednesday afternoon completely spoiled the Fourth of July celebration planned for the day, and thousands of visitors who had come here with the intention of seeing a real old-time celebration put on were disappointed and compelled to return to their homes without having seen "much of anything."

The program, scheduled to commence at 1 o'clock at the fair grounds, did not materialize owing to the "soaker." Mayor Arthur E. Nelson of St. Paul, who had come here to-liver the Fourth of July address, was forced to take to indoors and because of the inability of the committee to make known the place of the address, the large Auditorium was only partially filled.

A splendid parade was staged, however, before the rains interfered, most of the leading business places in the city being represented with floats. The Elks' float captured the silver loving cup donated by the American Legion, with the Oen Mercantile company's exhibit a close second. Many other beautifully decorated cars were in the parade and it was with great difficulty that the committee was able to choose the prize-winner. The parade was headed by the American Legion band, and a circus band furnished excellent music in the rear of the procession. The parade constituted about the only thing of merit seen here throughout the day.

Thousands of automobiles filled with holiday-bent passengers, many of them from towns up near the border and as far south as Detroit and Fergus Falls, some from points in North Dakota, and a number of tourists from other states, had parked their cars at the fair grounds to await the racing and sports program. In fact, it was said by many that the Fourth of July crowd here was the largest in the history of the city.

At about 3 o'clock the fair grounds were so soaked with rain that it was plain that no sports program could be carried on there, and the committee in charge decided that as much of it as possible would be staged on downtown streets, which was done. The water fight between teams representing the American Legion and the local fire department was won by the fire department team.

There was a display of fireworks shown at the fair grounds during the evening, which was a distinct disappointment to all who witnessed the "tenderfoot" spectacle. It was said that more than 1,500 automobiles were parked inside the grounds, most of the people no doubt having gone there to see something that would compensate them—in a way—for an otherwise disappointing day. A few miserably constructed sky rockets, sizzlers and fizzles and the fun was declared over. The fireworks joke was the best one sprung. A better one was displayed in private over on the East side.

The one redeeming feature of the Fourth of July celebration was the address of Mayor Nelson, who spoke in glowing terms of liberty as interpreted in the Declaration of Independence. Nowhere in the world, he said, do people know liberty as we do here in America. He praised the wonderful attributes of the national mind along the lines of sacrifice, and the generosity of the American people.

The address of Mr. Nelson was cut short as he had an engagement to speak at a farmers' picnic at Kratka, for which place he left in the late afternoon. A banquet was served in his honor at the Brumund hotel at 6:30 p. m. Mr. Nelson left for St. Paul over the Soo Line at 9:45 p. m. ordered filed. The report of the municipal court showed collections during the month of June of $40.50; the Auditorium fund showed receipts of $80 in May and $20 in June; the police department took in $32.50 last month, there having been six arrests. The report of the clerk showed receipts of $4,170.77 and disbursements of $9,641.51, with a balance July 1 of $18,929.22 compared with $20,701.76 on June 1.

Last night was a good one for the passing of permits, there being one for soft drinks and four for installation of gasoline pumps along the curbs of the down-town streets. O. H. Nelson, who recently bought the Will Korstad grocery, asked permissin to sell soft drinks and the request was unanimously granted.

The Northern States Oil company, which was recently granted a building permit to erect a filling station in front of the Borry garage, was last night granted permission to install pumps in front of the Kohn & Fiterman place of business at First street and Main avenue, and also in front of the C. Gustafson & Son implement office at the corner of Fourth street and Main avenue. The White Eagle Oil company was granted a permit to install a pump in front of the Rambeck & Stone implement office on Horace avenue. The Standard Oil company was granted a permit to install a pump on Third street in front of the Hill Auto Supply store, opposite Loken's old store.

The grass in the Red Lake river above Highlanding is again bothering the water supply and causing a decreased flow to such an extent that there is not a sufficient volume of water coming down stream to generate enough power as it passes over the dam. The matter of securing relief from this trouble was discussed informally but no definite action was taken, the matter being left to the chairman of the electric light committee and the superintendent of the power plant. Last year it became necessary to drag the river from Highlanding to the outlet of the Red Lakes, and this is rather an expensive proposition and not altogether satisfactory.

Women in Two States Sentenced to Death, Convicted of Murder

Mrs. Sabelle Nitti-Crudello Is First White Woman Ever Condemned to Death in Cook County.

Chicago, July 11.—"What did those men say?"

These words in broken English were the first utterances today of a small stocky Italian woman when she awoke from a night of restless tumbling on her cot in the Cook county jail.

The woman is Mrs. Sabelle Nitti-Crudello, who leaped into prominence as the first white woman ever condemned to death in Cook county. A jury found her guilty of murder in the first degree for the slaying of her first husband, Frank Nitti, and sentenced her to the gallows.

No one has had the courage to tell the woman that she must die at the end of a hangman's rope. They dread what the effect on her may be when she knows.

The woman and her second husband, Crudello, formerly her "star boarder," were convicted and sentenced to death by the judge.

Mrs. Crudello's first husband, Frank Nitti, was slain by the pair, according to the state, near Stickney ,Ill., July 20, 1922. Nine months later his widow and Crudello were married.

No date for the execution of the two has been set.

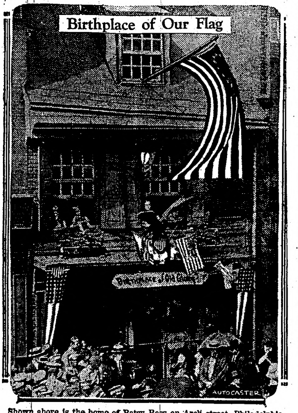
Carl Larson returns.

Carl B. Larson, proprietor of the Larson Furniture company, accompanied by Mrs. Larson, returned Wednesday from an automobile trip which took them to the twin cities and Barrett and Elbow Lake, their former home, where they visited with their parents. Mr. Larson attended the convention of the undertakers' association while in Minneapolis, which held forth there for two days.



Shown above is the home of Betsy Ross on Arch street, Philadelphia, where 146 years ago, June 14, the flag of the United States was designed. Thousands gathered there two weeks ago to pay tribute in fitting services.

Something New in Sales.

An innovation in sales was inaugurated today by Scott Laird, stationer, in which the date regulates the sale price on various articles in the store. This being the 11th of the moth he has filled one of his windows with various articles ranging in value from 15 cents up to $1, all of which are being sold today for 11 cents. Tomorrow the price will be 12 cents and the next day 13 cents, and so on, new articles being added each day.—adv.

[illegible]HNSON WINS ALL PRECINCTS IN PENNINGTON COUNTY; GOES TO SENATE BY 80,000 PLURALITY

Farmer-Labor Candidate Is Overwhelming Choice of People in Special Election Held Monday.

Carrying Minnesota by a majority estimated to be between 75,000 and 80,000 and winning every voting precinct in Pennington county, Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Labor candidate for United States Senator to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Knute Nelson, won the election over Governor J. A. O. Preus in Monday's balloting.

Contrary to expectations of managers early in the campaign, an unusually heavy vote was recorded throughout the state, in almost all parts of which the governor-candidate for the senate was overwhelmed by the Johnson vote. Hennepin county, thought on the eve of the election as ready to give the governor a substantial majority, returned but 297 votes in favor of Preus. The Farmer-Labor candidate won over his opponent in Ramsey county, including the city of St. Paul, by approximately 6,000.

James A. Carley, the Democratic candidate, will poll less than 25,000 votes, running a poor third in almost every precinct in the state. Pennington county registered but 28 votes for the Democratic candidate. It was an unlucky day for Carley all around. He received 13 votes in the township returns and 13 in the city of Thief River Falls—three votes in the Third ward, five in the Second, three in the Third and two in the Foutrh. Thirteen precincts of the county failed to register a single tally for him. The village of St. Hilaire gave Carley two votes, but Goodridge showed up in the non plus column.

Not a single Pennington county precinct gave Preus a majority, although St. Hilaire gave him 70 votes to 74 for Johnson. Goodridge was also, comparatively speaking, generous with the governor-candidate, giving him 35 votes to 38 for the Farmer-Labor candidate. No returns are available this morning from the township of Star, County Auditor Anderson failing to receive the official count from that township up to noon today.

Summed up, Johnson has carried Pennington county by more than three

Engineer in Charge of Filtration Plant Seeks Meeting of City Council

Fourth Estimate Still Remains Unpaid and Will Until City Dads Place Blame for Bad Construction.

L. P. Wolfe, engineer in charge of the construction of the filtration plant completed last winter, and Mr. Childs, a representative of the state board of health, were in Thief River Falls last night, the former to seek a special meeting of the city council and the latter to take samples of the water at the plant for analyzation at the state university to determine its status of purity and fitness for public consumption.

Owing to the lateness of the hour of the arrival of the engineer, it seemed impossible to secure a quorum and Mr. Wolfe departed on the Soo flyer for Detroit, where he is superintending a city contract.

The fourth estimate of the cost of the filtration plant still remains unpaid and it is not believed a settlement will be made until the council is able to fix responsibility for the now "famous" crack up and down two sides of the structure. Upon this contingency hinges the final settlement of the contract.

Philip Larson Returns.

Philip Larson, son of L. H. Larson, returned Monday from a week's trip to various points in Minnesota and North Dakota, where he has been visiting among friends and relatives. He will resume his duties at the First National bank next Monday.

Attache of Mayo Clinic Believes Pennington to Be Best Dairy Section

Wealthy Physician and Heavy Investor in This Section Holds High Hopes For Future.

Dr. Christopher Graham, for the past 25 years attached to the staff of the Mayo hospital at Rochester, and a heavy investor in Pennington county and northern Minnesota property and real estate, spent last Friday in Thief River Falls, the guest of Mayor John Bratrud and H. S. Dahlen, presidetn of the First and Peoples State bank.

During the day he was taken around the county by Mr. Bratrud and Mr. Dahlen and was highly pleased with the excellent crops of alfalfa and clover throughout the sections he traveled. Dr. Graham stated he was fully aware of the success already attained by farmers entering the dairy business, but considered that Pennington county was merely at the beginning in the industry.

Dr. Graham is an extensive traveler, not only in Minnesota but in most of the agricultural states of the Northwest, and stated that nowhere had he witnessed alfalfa and clover which could compare with that produced here. He was much pleased with several of the blooded dairy herds in Pennington county and stated that prosperity couldn't long remain away from a section such as this in which the dairy animal is becoming more abundant with each succeeding year.

During the evening Dr. Graham was the guest of officers of the First and Peoples State bank at a banquet tendered in his honor at the Evelyn hotel, attended by a score or more Thief River Falls business men.

Helen Weeks Is Enjoying Study of China's Ways

Letter to The Tribune From Young Missionary Tells of Mongolian Life.

"One Wonders What Will Become of Torn Nation;" Has Faith in Future.

Helen Weeks, who left Thief River Falls several months ago for the interior of China, where she is engaged as a missionary and instructor in the Lutheran High School for Girls at Hsinyangshien, Honan, China, has written her second letter to this newspaper, in which she tells of the difficulties encountered in the study of the Chinese language and the eagerness which the natives show in their desire to learn of American customs, religion, etc.

The young missionary is more interested than ever in her chosen work and has faith that the Chinese will one day come into their own and that the Christian religion will ultimately reach the darkest spots of the great empire. Just now the bandit situation is proving one of the greatest menaces to the government and, taking her letter as evidence, its weak-kneed attitude in dealing with the roving bands of outlaws encourages rather than diminishes their intention to loot and rob.

The Tribune is pleased to give Miss Weeks' letter publicity and hopes to receive many more of them in the future. It follows:

Hsinyanghsien, Honan, China,
June 2, 1923.

Editor Tribune:

I received today The Tribune of April 25 and read with dismay your article concerning my work out here. Would that it were possible for one

According to the letter of Mrs. Stettner, it appears that her brother owned land near this city and that he resided here for some time. The sister of Dagenbae is anxious to hear from parties knowing anything concerning her brother and any information sent her will be gratefully received.

Another Day Is Added by County Fair Association

Officials of Exposition Decide to Extend Date Including August 4.

New Attractions Booked and Entertainment Features Best Ever.

At a meeting of officials of the Pennington County Fair association held last week at the Commercial club-rooms, it was decided to extend the duration of the 1923 fair one day. This will include August 4, making the dates for the fair August 1, 2, 3 and 4. The reason for including the extra day was the fact that a number of the attractions agreed to show the extra day without a great deal of cost and it also would give exhibitors a better chance to display their exhibits.

Arrangements have been made for an exhibition of auto polo at the fair this year and polo games will be played each afternoon in front of the grandstand. An auto pushball race is another of the attraction booked for August 4, the last day of the fair. It is expected that before the time for the holding of the fair rolls around there will be a number of other entertainment features added and that one of the best programs ever seen at the annual meeting of the Pennington County Fair association will be witnessed.

The Lachmann Exposition Shows have proved a big drawing card at fair meetings held in other sections of the state, and it is expected they will attract large crowds here. There are 25 cars in the show, 300 people and two bands. In addition there will be the Marriott Troupe, the only act of its kind in the world. The Sterling Rose trio is another of the attractions booked for engagements before the grandstand. It is pointed out by the fair officials that there will be no charge made to school children still in the grades, but that by merely presenting their report cards at the gate they will gain entrance to the grounds. The fair officials are anxious that as many children as possible have a chance to view the school exhibit this year, which will be the largest ever seen here, and for that reason are giving every incentive to the children to come to the fair free of charge.

Present indications are that an excellent agricultural exhibit will be shown at the fair this year. Rye already is being harvested quite generally and within the next two weeks it is expected that all kinds of grain will have gone before the grain reapers. Many fields are showing up exceptionally well and for that reason fair officials are looking forward to exhibits that will be above standard.

The livestock exhibits, too, are expected to be good. There is more blooded and grade stock in Pennington county per capita than any other county in the state, and for that reason a good livestock exhibit is assured.

Workmen already are engaged in the task of putting the fair grounds in tip-top shape for the accommodation of the fair, the race track and the grandstand being gone over and repaired where needed and any other improvements deemed necessary are being made.

County Board Completes Two-Day Session at the Office of County Auditor

Resolves Itself Into Board of Equalization and Completes Unfinished Business.

A two-day session of the board of county commissioners of Pennington county was held Monday and Tuesday at the office of T. P. Anderson, at which time the board went over all outstanding tax assignments and resolved itself into a board of equalization to act on all inequalities of taxation within the county.

There was a large amount of unfinished business also disposed of by the board members, most of which had been deferred to this week's session from the regular meeting of the board held on July 7. All members of the board were present.

Rye Harvesting Under Way Throughout County

The harvesting of the rye crop by farmers of Pennington county commenced this week and the yield is estimated to be running from six up to 18 bushels per acre. Some of the fields are said to be disappointing although there are some that are showing up exceedingly well. No wheat is yet ready for harvesting, but what wheat there is planted in the county will show up as about an average crop.

Potatoes and corn are in good shape, rains of the past week having proved very beneficial. The same may be said of the sugar beet crop.

Local Team Goes to Bemidji For Game on Sunday; Want Games

Splendid Record of Thief River Falls Club Under "Spider" Yost Wins Plaudits of Fans.

The Thief River Falls baseball club will journey to Bemidji Sunday, where during the afternoon they will take on the fast aggregation there. Several automobile loads of local fans are planning to make the trip down to witness the contest. The local club is going good at the present time and it is expected they will give the Bemidji nine a good run for their money.

The local club has been on a winning streak for the past three weeks and under the tutelage of "Spider" Yost the younger club members have had a lot of good baseball sense inculcated into their baseball domes. The boys are fielding and hitting in good shape and are ready and willing to try their mettle with any of the teams in northern Minnesota.

Yost has informed The Tribune that he is desirous of signing up for games with some of the clubs in this immediate territory. Any of the northern Minnesota clubs are asked to communicate with him as his club members are seeking to arrange for several games yet this season.

Pennington County to Send Quota to School of Agriculture in Fall

When the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, opens for the fall term October 1, there will be a good attendance from the county, according to reports. One reason for this is that the school term is so arranged that boys and girls may attend when it is most convenient for them to leave home. The fall term opens on Oct. 1. Students may enter the Northwest School if they have completed the eighth grade work in the common school. For eighth grade graduates there is no age requirement. Those who have not completed the common school may enter if they are at least sixteen years of age.

Another advantage is that the Northwest School has facilities for instruction of those who for some reason have not finished the common school but are interested in continuing their education. Students receive a diploma upon completion of three years of six months each. Those who wish to meet the entrance requirements for State Teachers' college, University or other institutions attend an additional year and complete the fourth year of six months. Because of the small expense no tuition charge, excellent facilities and varieties of courses offered, boys and girls who are thinking of attending school this fall away from home are finding it to their advantage to write the Northwest School for catalog and more complete information.

Seven-Hole Golf Course at Local Links This Year

Plans Being Completed For Enlargement of Fairway to Allow For Increase.

Free-for-All Tournament to Be Staged in Near Future; Women Do Well.

Thief River Falls will have a seven-hole golf course completed and ready for play some time during August, and work on the new grounds will be commenced in the very near future. The course at present is a four-course fairway, but owing to the large number of golf enthusiasts vying for position on the present links, it has been deemed necessary to increase its size. A nine-hole course is the ultimate goal sought for, and it is thought that by next year this will have been accomplished.

The golf club owns sufficient acreage south of the four-hole course to allow for five additional holes and it is on this ground that work will soon be commenced to complete the seven-hole course. It will extend along the east bank of Thief river and when completed will provide Thief River Falls with one of the most picturesque and beautiful golf courses in the state. There is still talk among some of the members of building a club house to accommodate the fast-growing army of golfers here, but naturally a club but a little more than a year old would have difficulty in putting up a suitable club house for at least another year. The large majority are not in favor of of erecting a home at the links that would soon be outgrown or that would be inadequate to take care of the social gatherings that undoubtedly would be staged there, but would rather wait until the club is better situated financially and when it would be in a position to build something of which the membership as a whole could feel proud.

One of the gratifying signs in golf circles here is the large number of Thief River Falls women who are taking to the links. Competition among them is fast becoming acute and it is expected that before the season comes to a close there will be women golfers here who will hold their own anywhere in the northern part of the state, at least. Some even claim that before very long the women players will outdo the men of the city in accuracy and ability.

Club officials are planning a free-for-all tournament within the next couple of weeks, when all local players—men and women—will be handicapped according to their ability as golfers. Then will come the weeding out process to find out "who is best." Suitable prizes will be awarded to the victors by the club. The outcome of the tournament is causing much speculation among the membership as at this stage of the season several players stand out as being possessed of real semi-professional ability. The dates of the tournament, as soon as they become known, will be announced in The Tribune.

Minneapolis Minister Visits Relatives Here

Rev. Christian Anderson, pastor of the Fairview Lutheran church, Minneapolis, arrived in this city Tuesday evening and spent Wednesday visiting at the homes of L. H. Larson and Carl B. Larson. Rev. Anderson is an uncle of the Larson brothers and a former classmate of J. S. Arneson, editor of The Tribune. He will leave this afternoon for Pomme de Terre lake, in Grant county, where he has a summer home and is spending his summer vacation with his family.

CROOKSTON NEWSPAPER SLURS MINNESOTA WHEAT GROWERS CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATION

Influence of Chamber of Commerce Seen in Effort to Discredit Co-Operative Organization.

In its issue of July 13 the Crookston Times has a double column editorial on its front page in which the Wheat Growers Co-operative Marketing Association of this city is insidiously attacked. The above mentioned newspapers advises farmers to go slow in signing up with so-called co-operative concerns.

This is exactly what the Chamber of Commerce has been doing in a lavish publicity campaign which must have cost hundreds of thousands of dollars.

It is not expected that the Crookston paper should show any degree of friendliness to any Thief River Falls institution, for there are plenty of instances which indicate that anything which bears the stamp of Thief River Falls is strictly taboo in Crookston. The Crookston newspaper uses half truths, which are worse than lies, in its effort to throw suspicion upon the wheat growers.

"The North Dakota Wheat Growers Association is headed by an agricultural implement dealer at Grand Forks, N. D., and the Minnesota Association, which claims to be affiliated with it, is being promoted by an attorney from Thief River Falls. This, as far as the Times has been able to learn, is all there is to the organization, although it is claimed by its promoters that it is a nucleus around which is to be formed a national organization."

The above quotation concerning the wheat growers association is about as fair and truthful as some of the other stories circulated by enemies of co-operative marketing. If the Crookston paper wants the facts, they are easily ascertainable. The fact of the matter is, however, that the emissaries of the Chamber of Commerce are not looking for facts but prefer to resort to half baked lies.

The Grand Forks implement dealer referred to is one of the biggest wheat farmers in the Northwest. His name is Geo. Duis and he farms about 2,000 acres some distance from Grand Forks.

Scandinavia's Greatest Photoplay to Be Shown at Lyceum This Week

More Than One Hundred People Appear in Supporting Cast of "Song of the Blood Red Flower."

"The Song of the Blood Red Flower," though a pretty romance of love, contains a thrill rarely seen in pictures of this kind. Lars Hanson, in the title role, does a feat that probably is unsurpassed in pictures when, through mere daring, he rides swirling rapids on a single log.

It is a stuendous picture, in the cast are all the leading film stars of Scandinavia, with more than a hundred people in the supporting cast Not only in portraying the story have the producers reached the last degree of film production, but in their choice of settings for the picture. The background for almost every scene is the beautiful rolling prairie or hill of Scandinavia.

Though its continental minute attention to detail may give it the appearance to one accustomed to American productions of dragging at times, the beauty of the story and the finished acting of the stars lend a charm that is irresistible.

Special music offering many of the old Swedish and Norwegian airs to round out the program.

"The Song of the Blood Red Flower" will be shown at the Lyceum theatre on Thursday and Friday of this week.

Red Lake County Fair Officials Visit in City

Joseph Salley, secretary of the Red Lake County Fair association, and Joseph Herrin, a member of the board of directors were in Thief River Falls Saturday distributing literature announcing the fair dates at Red Lake Falls July 24, 25 and 26. The Red Lake county fair this year will be bigger and better than ever, say the officials, who called at The Tribune office.

"Rube" Hadrath on Vacation.

"Rube" Hadrath who left this city about a year ago for Minneapolis, where he is employed in one of the banks, is visiting in Thief River Falls this week. He was a member of the baseball nine that defeated East Grand Forks here Sunday and is the same old steady man on a ball club that he used to be on the basket ball floor. All the old-time friends of "Rube" were glad to see him.

Locals Are Easy Winners in Tilt With East Forks

Yost-Dalton Battery Works Well After Lane Hurts Finger in Game.

Several Local Recruits Winning Name For Themselves on Ball Lineup.

Thief River Falls baseballers were easy victors over an East Grand Forks nine that journeyed here last Sunday afternoon and in a contest that developed few thrills but which furnished excellent pastime to the local baseball fans, the visitors were humbled to the extent of 6 to 3.

It had been announced during the week that "Lefty" Finch, former twirler on the Milwaukee association club, would be the slab artist for East Grand Forks, but according to players on the team, Finch had been deterred from coming here by having an engagement in another part of the state.

The contest opened with Thief River Falls putting over two runs in the first inning, which served the purpose of placing the locals in a lead which was never overcome. Yost and Lane and Yost and Dalton after Lane suffered an injury to his finger, worked well for the locals, Yost allowing but six hits. A series of errors in the ninth inning let in two runs for the visitors except for which they would have had to go through with one measly score.

Sidney Schutt showed up exceptionally well, as did McGinn and LaBree. "Rube" Hadrath, who is in the city spending his vacation, was another of the new faces seen in the lineup. The box score:

Death Calls Albert Angell After Lingering Illness

Well Known Resident of East Side Falls Victim to Cancer—Lived Here For 18 Years.

Albert Angell, residing at 409 Kendall avenue south, died at his home last Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock after a lingering illness of about a year, suffering from cancer of the stomach. He had been a resident of this city for 18 years.

Mr. Angell was born in Helgeland, Norway, March 30, 1864. In 1882 he was married to Miss Elise Olson. Mr. and Mrs. Angell and family immigrated to this country in 1900 and settled first in Kittson county and five years later moved to this city, where they lived up to the time of their deaths. Mrs. Angell died January 27, 1921. Mr. Angell was a cabinet maker by trade and was known as being very proficient in and well adapted to his vocation.

Death came after a lingering and steadily increasing case of internal cancer. No abrupt elapse was noticeable until three days before, when a sudden hemorrhage brought on his demise.

Helen Weeks Is Enjoying Study of Chinese Ways

small person to do all the work which you have so generously and so mistakenly accredited to me! I still have a sense of humor, however, and attributing your statements to a lack of information of the true conditions here, I quite forgive you.

To begin with, allow me to assure you that no person's brow is ever crowned with laurels at the Peking Language School. It is not such a material move that is an incentive to one there. One is too much bent on fitness for future service to care for earthly honors. Everyone merely studies as diligently as possible and absorbs as much Chinese as possible while there; and when one is called to the field one must continue to study through years and years of service. Rome was not built in a day—neither is Chinese learned in a day, a year, or a lifetime. In America you learn 26 letters of an alphabet; juggle them together; pull out a few and behold—a word. But in China you open a book and gaze at pages and pages of Chinese characters as fascinating as they are incomprehensible. Perhaps in eager interest characteristic of a novice, you pick out a simple looking one. Now to find its meaning, turn it inside out, topside up and upside down, and eventually you will discover the radical upon which the character is based. Then seek to learn how many strokes of the brush are necessary to write the radical. That accomplished it ought to require more than 15 minutes to find in the dictionary the character desired. Sometimes that ends the task, but sometimes you find the character in question only to learn that in order to have any meaning it must be combined with another. Thus the endless search begins again. It's almost like the fabulous pot of gold at the end of the rainbow—never found! Crown this tale of woe with the consolation that, according to authorities on the Chinese language, every character must be forgotten 25 times before it sticks—well, then I guess you will quite understand why I had such a hearty laugh about your article. Anyway, thanks for the laugh—it was refreshing.

As to the work at the station here, first of all you must know that Sinyang—not including out-stations and surrounding territory—is over six times as large as Thief River Falls, and that at present it takes the services of no less than three pastors and their wives and four single ladies, to say nothing of the native workers, to carry on evangelistic work here and to conduct the Bible school and the high schools for both boys and girls. But, oh, you spoke truly when you said that the work was interesting! How I have enjoyed my work in the school here. Believe you me, I'd like to imbue some U. S. pupils with the eagerness and determination to learn that is so marked in many of our students here. But on the other hand, I'd like to take a sample of the frankness and honesty characteristic of the American youth and implant it deep in the hearts of the Chinese. It takes many an hour of meditation to be able to go back with zeal for work and faith in the people when one discovers, perchance, that a whole class by common consent has cheated or that a lie has been told merely to save face.

"This world that we are living in
Is mighty hard to beat—
With every rose you get a thorn—
But aren't the roses sweet?"

It's true, too; true of the thorns but more true of the roses.

I think our biggest thorn just now is the bandit situation. About two weeks ago we were informed that the city soldiers who were supposed to protect us were in direct league with the bandits and that the officer in charge had once been a bandit chief. Bandit spies were discovered within the city gates, and, being captured, were taken to the "yamen" (a court). Chinese law demanded their death but the soldiers insisted upon the innocence of the captives and the "hsien kuan" (mayor), fearing for his own life, did not dare pass judgment but instead sent them back to their bands. Needless to say, it was not hard for them to obtain ammunition from their confederates. So it became vitally necessary to close school and send our girls home while there was yet time. It is so queer, so quiet, without them, even though there is still plenty to do. We lived quite anxiously for a while. Just now it is somewhat quieter. Only trust it is not a lull before a storm It does seem inevitable after the Lincheng outrage and later the attempted hold-up of the Peking-Hankow express that matters must come to some sort of a crisis soon. China thinks too much of "face" and too little of "backbone." Oh, one wonders what will become of this torn nation. Yet all things are possible if we but have faith.

The penetrating glare of this Oriental sun is day by day obtruding itself more and more upon our notice. Last Sunday we went to see a young Chinese girl who lay in the last stages of tuberculosis, slowly wasting away. I wish you could have seen that home. It was just one small room with a mud floor. One wee unopened window let in the hottest sun rays I have ever felt. Cobwebs filled the corners. Dogs and chickens were not lacking, and the bed on which she lay was not such as any of you would care to imagine in a sick room. But the hour spent there was one of inspiration. She smiled when we came in and listened so attentively while two of us sang in Chinese, "Hear the Voice That Entreats You," and while another read a portion of Scripture and prayed. When we left, she smiled again and said, "Pingan" (peace). That was one hour I shall never forget.

I could write on endlessly, but since my purpose in writing this letter is accomplished, I must cease. Purposeless work is always vain.

With kind greetings, Sincerely,

HELEN WEEKS.

GREAT NORTHERN PAYS TRIBUTE TO LOYAL EMPLOYES

Justice to the rank and file of earnest and loyal workers in railroad service calls for the correction of an impression created in some quarters by radical leaders that the employes are seeking to destroy the railroads by inefficient and disloyal service. It is true that a comparatively small number of union leaders are seeking to cause a breakdown of the railroads under private operation with a view to bringing about Government ownership. We believe that there remains today among the great majority of railroad workers the same fine sense of loyalty and honor towards the companies that has always characterized their service. That this is particularly true of the Great Northern is evidenced by the following resolutions unanimously adopted at a meeting of the Great Northern Veterans' Association on June 22, 1923:

> WHEREAS, from various sources it has been learned that the financial affairs of the railroads in the Northwest are insufficient to sustain a satisfactory financial condition; that much of the difficulty is due to high operating costs on account, among other things, of the present high prices of fuel and other supplies, and the rapid increase of late years in taxation, and
> WHEREAS, it is most important to the employe to know that His wages will be fair,
> That he will be promptly and properly paid, when due, for services rendered,
> That he is secure in his employment,
> That his conditions of employment are good, all of which depend upon the financial stability of the arilroad, and
> WHEREAS, in some quarters there is propaganda which tends toward the Government ownership of railroads to secure which the railroad employes are exhorted to assist in bringing about that result by hampering the management through failure to give a full day's work for a full day's pay, and
> WHEREAS, we believe it would be dishonorable and also destructive to the interests of the employe for him to adopt a policy of not giving a full and efficient day's work for a full day's pay.
> THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that we condemn all propaganda designed to bring about any such policy as being dishonorable and destructive and that we trust and believe the Great Northern employes will not permit themselves to be led into such an unworthy and futile course.
> FURTHER RESOLVED, that for ourselves we believe it is right and also clearly in our interest to support the management in its efforts to provide adequate and prompt service to the public and we pledge ourselves to do our full part in promoting cordial understanding and co-operative spirit in all matters of mutual interest between the Company and its employes.

The spirit of enthusiastic loyalty shown by these Veterans of 25 years or more of service with the Great Northern is the spirit that prevails among its 30,000 employes.

Talk No. 5. CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD.

OUR NEW SENATOR.

It is now Senator Magnus Johnson, and the new senator from Minnesota will have no better supporter than The Tribune in his efforts to improve the condition of the Northwestern farmer. As senators go, Magnus may not be to the "manner born," but he is aggressive and sincere in everything he undertakes, and those are probably the qualifications the people want.

The results of the election indicate that the people are going to give the ordinary, common man a chance to demonstrate that this business of government is not so complicated after all. They are tired of the platitudes of the mental giants of the country and now propose to hand the reins to men who are thinking of the everyday problems of life.

Senator Johnson is not so polished either in speech or dress, but if he will tell the Senate of the United States in his own way what the people of the Northwest are thinking about, his election will be worth all it cost, and then some.

There is little to be gained by speculating over the election. One guess is as good as another. But, since the majority is entitled to rule under our democratic form of government, every citizen should be a good enough sport to withhold criticism at least until Magnus Johnson is given an opportunity to demonstrate capacity for public service in the highest office within the gift of the people of Minnesota.

THE POTATO CROP.

A recent government estimate of the potato crop of the United States places the supply at about equal with the needs of the American public, which means that the producer should receive a fair price for his spuds this year.

But will he?

Will there not be a scramble to get the potatoes on the market without reference to grading or sorting with the inevitable result that prices will again be reduced to the lowest level?

What steps have the farmers taken the guard against disasters of the past?

Is it not likely that if they were now properly organized along the lines adopted by the successful co-operative associations of the country, they could demand and receive a dollar per bushel for their potatoes?

At that potatoes would be immeasurably cheaper than oil, of which there is a surplus; of clothing, of which there is a surplus; of machinery, of which there is a surplus, and a hundred and one other commodities which The Tribune could mention.

A POSER FOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The appended editorial recently appeared in the Ortonville Enterprise, of which Glenn Harrison is editor, and it is hereby reproduced as being a mighty clever answer to the huge advertising campaign against co-operation now being financed by the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce:

When the producer deals with an artificial "supply and demand" through the middleman and is at his mercy, then "it's sure hell about the market and tough luck but better prices may come next year."

But let the producer begin doing his own work of marketing, such as is being done in the south with tobacco, cotton and fruits, and right away the middlemen begin damning co-operation and spending their money in an effort to "educate the producer."

A splendid example of this is to be seen in the page advertisements being carried in farm publications and many of the smaller newspapers of the state by the publicity committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Couched in well thought out language and clever phrases the attempt is made to scuttle the co-operative movement which is attracting the attion of the farmer throughout the entire Northwest.

The advertisement is in the form of questions and answers. But BOTH QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ARE PREPARED BY THE SAME ORGANIZATION.

It is not necessary to go out of the state to find successful examples of co-operative marketing. Look at the Twin Cities Milk Producers' Association with headquarters in St. Paul. It is admired and taken as a standard by milk producers all over the North American continent.

Then glance at the Central Co-operative Commission Company at South St. Paul, which is at present handling more than one-third of the sales of live stock, and it is only one of more than 30 live stock commission firms there.

Minnesota now has, thanks to the energetic labor of co-operative workers, the best laws for co-operative endeavors that it has ever had and in fact is said to lead other states in its legislation.

Middlemen are realizing this and the huge publicity war chest that is being expended to fight co-operation is one of the best arguments for it in the estimation of the writer.

Although the writers of the advertising were too clever to do much more than question the efficiency of the co-operative plan they continue to refer to it all through as a "pooling plan" and assert that the farmer who enters it would be a "speculator" and hold up the term speculator as a sort of a bugbear of which to be afarid.

And WHO ARE THE MEMBERS OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IF NOT SPECULATORS?

The advertisement asks this question: "If all the grain produced in this country were placed in the hands of one selling agency would not this represent a monopoly in the wheat supply?" And the answer (God save the mark) is: "This would undoubtedly be the case and while such a situation is highly improbable if it could be brought about the Government would undoubtedly put an end to such monopoly."

The crust, the unmitigated nerve of a statement like that is maddening. Who is the government so casually and confidently referred to as being willing to put an end to "any such monopoly?" If the Government referred to is the few middlemen who would be put out of business then it is time for a change in government; but if it is the sober, hardworking producer who only wishes to get a fair price for his work, then there is not much danger of such action.

If the farmer producer cannot band together to sell his goods in the open market and in such lots as he sees fit then he cannot band together to purchase a blooded bull with which to improve the class of his herd and thus raise the price on the animals he sells.

Another "point" brought up in the questions and answers is the five-year contract which must be signed between the producer and the association.

Ah, Horatius, there is where the trouble begins.

The iron clad contract which calls for a five-year term of marketing only to the co-operative organization has teeth in it and plenty of them for one reason and one reason only.

It has been the experience of other co-operative associations in the United States, and in foreign countries as well, that without these contracts, some short-sighted producers would fall for high prices paid by the middlemen in an endeavor to break up the co-operative movement.

Now does it stand to reason that when producers band together to sell their goods that the market is going to hell? Is it likely that the mere fact that producers hold their goods for a fair and reasonable price that the old law of supply and demand will not function just as well as when the middleman has the stuff in his storehouses?

Long term contracts are necessary and the producer who signs one with a well organized co-operative association should look on it like a gold bond and the best stroke of business he ever did since he learned to write.

The advertisement then points out that the signing of such a contract does not guarantee a price over the term of the contract.

Well, I'll bite. Who does guarantee any price? Did the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, for instance, ever guarantee such a thing, and what is more to the point, IS IT WILLING TO GUARANTEE PRICES IF THE WHEAT PRODUCERS SIGN FIVE-YEAR CONTRACTS WITH IT?

The question is raised that under the contract the producer would not get the bulk of his money until 12 months later and that would make it difficult for the farmer to settle his accounts with the merchant and banker.

Take a trip through North and South Dakota and Montana and even Western Minnesota and talk with the farmers and see what condition they are in after having sold their crops through the agency that now is so magnanimously warning them against co-operative sales.

There are more farms being advertised for forced sales in these localities than ever before in history. IT'S MIGHTY NEAR TIME TO TRY SOMETHING WHERE THE PRODUCER HAS HIS FINGERS ON THE REINS.

Here is another question: "What is the position of the grower who does not sign a five-year pooling contract?" This is the answer they gave: "He can sell his wheat whenever he pleases and to whom he pleases without securing permission from anyone. He can sell his wheat to the highest bidder regardless of whom he may be. He can store his wheat in the local elevator and secure an advance upon his storage tickets if he so desires. He can ship the wheat to the terminal market and secure the full terminal market price less freight, weighing and inspection fee and the usual commission charge. He can watch results secured by those who have signed the five-year pooling contracts and compare his net results with theirs. He does not have to pay anybody a $10.00 fee for the privilege of selling his wheat to them."

Read the last sentence again. Sell a carload of wheat to any middleman and if he isn't paying the price the producers should get, that "$10.00 fee" may be shot right in the one car.

Read the sentence where the farmer is told that he can ship his wheat to the terminal market and notice the modest manner in which the "usual commission charge" is mentioned.

But when the co-operative includes in its contract a handling charge then that is all wrong and the poor unprotected farmer should stand up for his rights and demand that his stuff be sold without charge because it is a co-operative organization.

That sort of argument is BLAH!

And the last question and answer is the "King Pin" of them all.

Here they are: "It is claimed that the present high price of cotton was caused by the cotton producers pooling association. What is there to this?" Answer: "The facts are that the boll weevil destroyed about 30 per cent of the cotton crop. This great reduction in the supply of cotton coupled with a very substantial increase in the demand for cotton was entirely responsible for the advance in the price of cotton."

Read that last sentence again. Of course the demand had increased. THE COTTON WASN'T DUMPED ON THE MARKET AT THE TIME IT WAS CROPPED BUT WAS FED IN SMALL LOTS.

As a result of this move the demand was steady and the prices received for cotton by the grower made it possible for him to pay off a few of the debts that had accumulated during the middleman days.

And, as for the boll weevil destroying 30 per cent of the crop, that happened before BUT WHEN THE MIDDLEMAN WAS BUYING COTTON THE PRICE DIDN'T GO UP TO THE GROWER.

THE WHEAT CROP.

The government estimate of the wheat crop has been issued and it now develops that there will be a large surplus, something in excess of two hundred million bushels more than the American people will consume.

So the price is way down, and constantly going lower. It is likely that the price to the farmer will not exceed 75 cents when the threshing of spring wheat begins this fall.

Since the supply greatly exceeds the demand why not make the price 50 cents per bushel, or even 25? It has cost the farmer more than a dollar to raise the wheat, but what's the difference when he has to sell it for whatever he can get?

Why prolong the agony?

There is also an oversupply of rye, so that commodity should be sold for 10 or 15 cents per bushel.

Potatoes are going to be less plentiful, probably just enough to go around, but the farmers must sell them this fall for what they can get, so let's get the price low enough to suit everybody.

What fixes the price of wheat anyway?

There is a large surplus of oil, yet oil is higher than ever before.

Plenty of farm machinery and material to make it of, but the price was never so high before.

All kinds of sugar, but prices are higher than a cat's back.

Clothing to burn on every hand, but clothing is high.

Labor is high, everything is high. But wheat and everything else the farmer has to sell is on the down grade.

Will the farmers ever wake up and give serious thought to this situation or will they let intolerance keep them apart forever?

IT MAY BE A GOOD IDEA, BARNEY,—BUT WHAT ARE WE TO DO WITH THIS PERFECTLY GOOD FOUNDATION?

German Workers Near Revolt.

Nearly 300,000 metal workers, employed in 450 plants in the vicinity of Berlin, are striking for higher wages based on the increased cost of living. They ask for 1,000 marks an hour more than the court of arbitration awarded them. If the demands are granted the highest paid metal workers will receive 10,000 marks an hour, or the equivalent of six cents American money. This the employers refuse to grant. Such a condition inevitably promotes communism or anything else that offers relief.

In a recent interpellation in the Reichstag with regard to the high cost of living, the Social Democrats severely attacked the government for its finance policy. The Social Democratic speaker asserted that the well-to-do classes, who were called to pay taxes on their income in April, 1922, paid 58,600,000,000 marks. The ten per cent tax deduction made from the wages of workmen and salary earners for that month alone amounted to 219,200,000,000 marks.

The riots which have occurred in all parts of Germany are the outcome of the embitterment against those men who are profiting by the situation.

It was demanded that the amount of capital owned by German industrialists in foreign countries should be examined, and the government was warned to find a solution before the mobilization of the masses outside of the parliament would become necessary.

Farmers of five states, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Nebraska and California, met in Wichita, Kansas, July 16 to adopt measures calculated to increase the price of wheat from 25 to 50 cents. So long as the price is made in Liverpool with the wheat of the world in competition, it will be a very difficult undertaking.

The Method of Valuing Railroads.

The method of valuing railroad properties is receiving the attention of the Interstate Commerce Commission in public hearings at Washington. The question of the method employed in fixing the valuation of railroads, it will be remembered, was raised by the conference called by Robert M. La Follette, Senator from Wisconsin, that met in Chicago May 25. Present at the conference were the governors of several states, John F. Hylan, mayor of New York, William Jennings Bryan and other prominent men to the number of 300. It was decided to ask the Interstate Commerce Commission to reject the method of fixing the valuation of railroad property at its replacement cost and to adopt the plan of arriving at the original prudent investment cost. It was decided also that in the event the commission could not be induced to make the change, that legal steps be taken to compel it to do so. It is admitted privately by at least half of the members of the Interstate Commerce Commission that all during the time the valuation has been in progress, and especially since the enactment of the Esch-Cummins Act, the commission has been under the severest sort of pressure from the railroads to use replacement costs as the basis of fixing physical valuations. It is natural, of course, that the railroad managers should have asked for a method that will give the highest possible valuation to their properties upon which under the Esch-Cummins Act they are entitled to have rates that will return a net income of 5½ per cent. It is one of the most important subjects ever considered by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the possibilities are so far reaching that the results actually may touch the pockets of every American citizen.

State Courts and the Eighteenth Amendment.

Enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment is receiving both support and jolts at the hands of the various state supreme courts. The American Medical association is largely responsible for one decision to the effect that neither the alcoholic content nor the quantity prescribed by physicians can be limited by law.

The Massachusetts supreme court has rendered a decision that recognizes the right of any municipal court or trial justice to issue warrants for the arrest of offenders against the national prohibitory act, and to bind them over to the United States court. It also asserts that "the entire police force and the entire criminal court machinery are available by law for the enforcement of the National Prohibition Act."

Several other states have rendered varying decisions, and still others have questions to pass upon. Federal enforcement officials may soon need a digest to know what's what.

Sixteen national and international labor organizations have determined to oranize the 375,000 steel workers, and plans have been perfected to begin simultaneously in Chicago, Cleveland and Bethlehem, Pa. Senator Underwood and the Presidency.

Senator Underwood of Alabama recently returned from a four months' trip to Europe and has issued a statement in regard to his impressions and conclusions. The Alabama legislature adopted a resolution favoring his candidacy for the Presidency, and it is stated that President Harding offered him a place on the Supreme Court. Mr. Underwood is a native of Kentucky; spend some of his boyhood in Minnesota; was graduated at the University of Virginia, and then became a lawyer in Alabama. His record in Congress and his activities as a tariff maker have given him a wide acquaintance throuhgout the whole American business world. The universal expectation among those who know him best is that his hat speedily will be in the ring and they are confident the Underwood movement, already a formidable affair, will grow with snow ball rapidity the moment the Senator permits them to go the limit in his behalf.

Twelve-Hour Day to Be Abolished.

In a letter forwarded to President Harding at Tacoma the Steel Trust announced that the 12-hour day would be abolished, "when there is a surplus of labor available."

President Harding took occasion to publicly congratulate the steel industry on this important step, saying, "it will heal a sore in American industrial life which has been the cause of infinite struggle and bitterness for over a generation and it marks an accomplishment from the conscience of industry itself, a recognition of responsibility from employer to employe, that gives us faith in rightful solutions of the many tangled problems that are the concomitant of rapid growth of America."

Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor, takes a different view. He advises the steel workers not to expect too much as the result of this statement. He says that Mr. Gary, with the grace and tact of a born diplomat puts in question marks, "when there is a surplus of labor." Mr. Gompers asserts that "the whole thing is tainted with bluff and insincerity. The steel trust will cater first to profits and it will not do anything that will even hold the possibility of jeopardizing profits until driven to it either by irresistible public opinion or the force of organization among the steel workers."

In any event, the 12-hour day will soon become a thing of the past, but it is probable that another powerful union will first be perfected among the steel workers.

Wheat and Silver Need Stabilizing.

To insure the successful marketing of silver in Europe and Asia, which are the chief consuming markets for the United States, the special Senate silver and gold investigating committee for bringing about higher prices of silver, favors the formation of an export association composed of the silver producers of North, South and Central America.

No legislation has been proposed as yet assuring the silver producers such a price as prevailed during the war, when under the Pittman Act, the government made purchases at the price prevailing in the world market, which ranges between 60 and 70 cents.

A conference of silver producers of the Americas will be called to meet in Reno, Nev., about the middle of August. Senator Oddie of Nevada, chairman of the committee, has sent a letter to Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, in which he makes inquiries and asks consideration of the monthly exports of silver from the United States and the exports of silver into India and China; the low price of silver due to the dumping of India's wheat on the world market in competition with American wheat; the mechanics of Oriental exchange, and the factors which most greatly influence the price of silver; disadvantages of the United States trade with the Orient due to unstable silver exchange; the effect of a silver bullion loan to China upon the financial condition of that country and upon American trade with China.

This method of stabilizing the price and market for silver is also demanded by the wheat producers of the nation. When the proposition comes up in congress it is probable that wheat and silver will travel together—or both propositions will fall.

Big British Emigration Scheme.

A big emigration scheme is in the course of negotiation under the Empire Settlement Act between the British government, the Australian Commonwealth government and the New South Wales government. The main outlines of the scheme have been agreed to, though it will probably be a couple of months before the details are finally settled.

The scheme is for the settlement of 6,000 selected British immigrants on their own farms in New South Wales. It is estimated that it will cost at least $25,000,000 to prepare these farms and another $25,000,000 for advances to settlers to start themselves. These would be under no repayment obligation for a period of three years, when they would begin repayment for their farms. The amount to be repaid would be spread over 36 years, and the repayment for equipping and stocking the farms over 20 years. The scheme is to be financed by the three governments concerned.

Prize Fights—Education—Journalism.

During the first week of July the National Educational Association, with a membership of 130,000 in the United States, held one of the greatest and most important conventions in the history of this or any other country, at San Francisco. At the same time and place was held the World Conference on Education, with leading educators from over 50 nations, including India, China, England, Canada, Italy, Germany, Mexico and Japan participating. This conference resulted in the organization of the world's five million teachers under one head.

It is interesting to note that the proceedings of these two great conventions have hardly been noticed by the press associations, while a prize fight in Montana commanded page after page of jazzy detail.

The Christian Science Monitor made a survey of leading American newspapers in regard to this matter, and the results are both interesting and illuminating.

On July 5 eight New York newspapers devoted 70 columns of space to the prize fight, and three columns to these great educational conventions. Seven Chicago papers devoted 64 columns to the prize fight and 1¾ inches to the greatest of educational conferences. Washington, D. C., papers devoted 24 columns to the prize fight and 8 inches to the educational conventions. Four Philadelphia papers devoted 33 columns to the prize fight and not one word of information as to the greatest educational convention in all history.

And yet 25 editors of these papers pose as representing current journalistic judgment as to what is news.

The national news service of the South did not consider the World's Educational convention worthy of mention. As a result many papers through the South issued extra "fight" editions but not a single line of the important news from San Francisco.

The Pacific coast newspapers devoted more space to the prize fight than to the convention—even in San Francisco. The general avearge for all cities was about 50 columns of fight to one of educational matters.

The several colleges conducting classes in "Journalism" have here a practical lesson that should be utilized. It involves the question, "What Is Journalism?"

If a paper is published merely, or even mainly, to amuse its readers, and to roll up the largest volume of circulation for the advantage of its advertisers, publication of prize-fighe news, and of even less savory incidents of the life of the underworld, may be accepted as an efficient step to that end. It will be only a step. For the appetite of those fed on this sort of journalistic diet grows, like that of the drug user, with that on which it feeds. A newspaper's constituency can be educated upward, or downward. Each day's "sensations" in a paper require a still more sensational paper tomorrow if the circulation is to be kept up. A certain class of journalists call this 'giving the people what they want.' It is not that at all. Like the efforts of drug peddlers, it is educating the people to want something they should not have in order that its purveyors may live by supplying the diseased demand.

New World-Temper Is Needed.

In a recent address on present-day conditions, Mr. Lloyd George declared that the real trouble in the world was the enthronement of force above right. He showed a courage above ordinary when he asserted that, from the standpoint of an individual who had taken probably a larger share in the settlement of labor troubles than almost any living man, his candid experience was that there was very little difference between the two sides. Leagues of nations might be set up, he urged; conciliation acts might be passed, and tribunals set up at The Hague, but they would not be obeyed nor respected until there was a new temper in the world. That the new temper in the world is being established it does not take a prophet to forecast, and when it shall have been established, leagues and acts and tribunals at The Hague will largely take care of themselves.

Great Britain has abolished martial law in Egypt, and that nation now enters into practically complete independence. Commencing last week the British are no longer concerned in the interior administration of the country, the whole responsibility for governing and the maintenance of public order and security devolving upon the Egyptians themselves. Final negotiations, however, have not been completed, and until so completed Great Britain will control certain military and air force camps, under the Versailles and other peace treaties. The election of members of the Egyptian parliament will occur in October, and there will be nearly 1,000 candidates.

Turks Demand Quick Evacuation.

The Turkish high military power has decided to oppose delay in the evacuation of Constantinople. Ismet Pasha has received orders to this effect, following the council's official declaration, announcing to the population that effective measures will be taken to defend the national interests in case the hostilities break out. The press is unanimously upholding the government and is indulging in vehement attacks against the allies.

A certain group of Turkish and Christian merchants, according to one Turkish paper, has submitted a petition to the British embassy at Constantinople, praying for a delay before the Straits and Constantinople are evacuated, to avoid tragic incidents. The Turkish journal indignantly brands the group as most vile traitors, asking for their severe punishment.

The government has opened an inquiry to find the names of the merchants, which are assiduously guarded by the embassy.

Johnson Celebrates Senatorial Victory With Ride on Trolley

Although Magnus Johnson, new United Senator from Minnesota, was highly elated over his victory and that of the Farmer-Labor party at the polls Monday, sorrow mingled with his success. For upon receipt of news of his overwhelming vote, the new senator received a message telling of the death of an old-time friend and neighbor who lived on a farm adjoining his in Kingston township, Meeker county.

Showered with congratulations by his supporters at headquarters this morning, the new senator declined all immediate invitations to dinners and declared that Thursday afternoon he would attend the funeral of his neighbor, J. Harris, one of his staunchest supporters, but who died on the eve of his victory.

"I feel bad over the news of friend Harris' death," Senator Johnson said. "He was a good friend and only a few days ago he attended a neighborhood rally where the ladies served ice cream and cake to raise some money for my personal campaign. He was 87 years old."

His victory occasioned no surprise, he said, as his trips around the state showed him what he was to expect.

"It was just as I expected. I am satisfied and will go back to my farm for a short rest. You know my wife is clerk of the school board and I promised her I would help her with the school books. The school board meets on Saturday and she must have the books complete by that day."

That Magnus Johnson is clearly "one of the people" was depicted by his actions this morning. After rising early, even though he had spent over half the night awaiting returns, he visited his hotel barber shop, had a shoe shine, all the time willing to carry on a conversation about his and what he called the people's victory.

On his way to campaign headquarters, the new senator did not celebrate his victory with an auto or taxi trip, but took the rather commonplace method of travel, that of a street car.

The new Minnesota senator was born in Warmland, Sweden, in 1871, which makes him 52 years of age. He came to the United States in 1891 where he worked as a millhand and lumber jack and then took up farming in Minnesota, where he has been occupied in tilling the soil for 24 years.

Senator Johnson has been a resident of Minnesota for 30 years and has lived most of that time in the same locality in Kingston township where he has held office of assessor, justice of the peace and clerk of the school board. He was elected to the state legislature and served eight years four as representative and four as senator.

The new senator is a dairyman as well as a farmer. He is president of the Kingston Dairy association and formerly president of the State Union American Society of Equity and also vice-president of the Equity Co-operative exchange of South St. Paul.

That the new senator knows his A B C's about farming can be gleaned from the fact that he started in with wild land, grubbed up his farm and now has one of which he can well be proud.

Senator Johnson's education was cut short due to the death of his father, as he was forced to support his mother from the time he was 12 years old. He received a common school education in Sweden.

The senator was not adverse to speaking about his defeated opponent in the race nor about the opposition in general.

"One thing I give Knute Nelson credit for," he said this morning, "is that he worked for the interest of his supporters. But Preus has attempted to carry water on both shoulders without spilling a drop. He had to sign the tonnage bill, which he was forced to do by popular demand, but he slapped his supporters right in the face by heaping the royalty tax on them.

"You never heard talk of co-operation years ago, but when Preus had to, he talked co-operation. Everything now is co-operation."

The senator does not expect to go to Washington to take up his new duties until December, although he said: "You never can tell what may happen before that time. I, myself, may have a few surprises in store."

Commodity Marketing Brings Prosperity To Many Sections

(By GEO. E. DUIS)

[Editor's note: This is the fifth of a series of six articles on various phases of co-operative marketing, written by Geo. E. Duis. Mr. Duis pioneered the wheat pooling movement in North Dakota and is now president of the North Dakota Wheat Growers Association. He also took an active part in the formation of the American Wheat Growers, Inc., the national sales agency.]

ARTICLE V.

About fifty years ago the farmers of Denmark faced the same probelms as the northwest farmers face today—the need of a broader market and a better system of distribution. They also conceived the idea of pooling their products and in marketing them cooperatively. Today the Danish farmers are the most prosperous in Europe, and Danish butter, eggs, bacon, etc., is sold on all markets of the world by the producer himself, through his organization. The Danes sell their products even in this country at a greater profit to themselves than American farmers get for their products. It has been said that the Danish farmer gets 72 per cent of the price paid by the consumer, while the American gets only 37 per cent. The more highly developed and efficient system of co-operative marketing of the Danes is the reason!

A few years ago California fruit growers faced bankruptcy. The selfish, speculative system of the private commission firms was inadequate to serve the needs of the growers. Emmissaries from California were sent to Denmark to investigate the farmer-owned selling agencies there. They returned satisfied that this system could be adapted to American crops and conditions. After a dozen years of painful experiments California growers have fitted this system to the needs of American conditions and have shaped for themselves truly marvelous prosperity. Last year 22 different commodities grown in California were marketed by commodity associations, aggregating a total value of $260,000,000. It is worthy of note that not one of these associations, founded on the Danish principles, has failed.

Statistics tell us that California is the richest state per capita (rural population) of any state in the union. The standard of living of the rural people of this state is higher than in any other state. Growers there live in better homes than farmers in the northwest. These homes have more comforts and conveniences, such as running water, electric lights, etc., than farm homes in the northwest. Californians carry more life insurance than farmers in the northwest or elsewhere. They send more of their sons and daughters to schools than any other state in the union. California farmers have learned to live, because they can afford to live. They can afford to live right, because they have learned to farm at a profit by adopting business methods in their work. California farmers have graduated from the "hayseed" class and can no longer be called "rubes" because they have builded themselves a culture that is seldom found among any class of farmers in this country.

The wheat pooling movement in the middle west is still too young to show definite results as most of the associations in that section have not as yet closed one season's pool. Furthermore, it is folly to expect utopian achievements in one year or even five years. Co-operative marketing of wheat, as well as other commodities, should be based on a gradual readjustment of the present marketing system, so as to transform it from a buyer regulated market into a producer regulated market. The profits of merchandising, which formerly went into the hands of private dealers will be returned to the growers themselves, when this is achieved. This takes time and can only be accomplished in a big way when the bulk of the wheat raised in this country is controlled by a single organization. Organizing wheat is a big job, but the results will be in proportion. It is certainly not impossible. The American Wheat Growers, Inc., should handle at least 200,000,000 bushels of the 1923 wheat crop. A saving of only 10 cents per bushel would net the growers $20,000,000 in additional profits.

In view of the fact that the grain trade contends that this cannot be done with wheat, and that orderly marketing of this community is an ideal dream, because it does not pay to hold wheat, I will devote my next article to that subject—holding wheat.

Carl Lindquist, accompanied by a friend, motored here July 3rd from Minneapolis for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lindquist. Carl, who graduated from the Dunwoody Institute last spring, has a fine position with a Minneapolis electrical concern and is doing well. The boys returned home last Sunday.

Co. Thos. Whalen lost a valuable pure bred mare at his stock farm south of town during the electrical storm Sunday evening. James Kenney also lost a horse at the Herman Fellman farm north of town during the same storm.

The barn on the Chas. Adolphson farm west of town was burned to the ground last Sunday evening after being struck by lightning during the severe electrical storm. The heavy farm horses were, fortunately, in the pasture at the time of the fire, but some other stock was lost, including one horse which was so badly burned it had to be shot. Mr. Adolphson was quite badly burned about the face while trying to save some of the contents and stock in the barn.

Rev. and Mrs. A. O. Odegaard and their little boy, Erling, of Blackduck, and Miss Bertha Iverson of Clearbrook came here Tuesday by car to visit Rev. Odegaard's brother and family at Hazel and his father and family and other relatives of this village. They expect to spend only two days here as the Rev. is kept very busy in his large field. He reports that the country up there is prospering and that the church work is progressing rapidly. Rev. Odegaard, who is pastor of the Norwegian Lutheran church at Blackduck, is a former St. Hilaire boy.

Get Top Prices for Wool.

Beltrami county wool growers fared well in the 1923 pool, which was sold here this week by Manager H. M. Clark. The entire consignment of 16,500 pounds was sold to a company at Boston, Mass., and the price paid to the Beltrami association was 40½ cents a pound. This price was for the wool on board cars at Bemidji, and as the cost of handling the wool was half a cent a pound the farmers received 40 cents cash for every pound of wool sold here. The price was for the wool "As Is," which means that there will be no dockage or grading after the wool reaches its destination. The wool represented the clip of about 2,350 sheep and came from 101 shippers in Itasca, Hubbard, Beltrami, Clearwater and Koochiching counties. The growers in these counties shipped here because the Beltrami wool growers have been successful in the past in disposing of their clip at good prices.—Bemidji Sentinel.

The politician who lands a job never expends the same amount of work and energy in caring for it as he does to get it. If men worked as hard at a job as they do to get it there would be a whole lot more efficiency in public offices.

FARMERS, ATTENTION!

I had intended to sell my pure bred Percheron stallion, but have decided to keep him another year. This will give the farmers a chance to save five or ten dollars by bringing your mares to town and have them bred to a pure bred stallion that is well known. He has been on the same route for three years and has a good record. His name is Luverne No. 73979. Charges are $10 for a live colt. See

Dairy Exposition to Hold Forth at 1923 State Fair

To Be Staged on Scale Equal to National and Even International Show.

State Herd to Be Made Up of Assembled Minnesota Prize Bulls and Cows.

Due to the fact that the Northwest Dairy Exposition to be held at the State Fair September 1 to 8, is to be staged on a scale equal to national and even international shows, visitors will have an opportunity to see sharp competition between herds of the highest rank.

This became known when the printed premium lists became available for distribution from the State Fair headquarters this week. For the first time, handsome prizes are offered to state herd contestants, and it was announced that breeders of Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Iowa, and even Washington were planning to enter prize cattle.

A state herd, according to conditions laid down by officials of the Northwest Dairy Exposition, is to number the following animals: Bull, 2 years or over; yearling bull; senior bull calf; three cows, 3 years or over; heifer, 2 years and under 3; senior yearling heifer; junior yearling heifer; senior heifer calf.

A state herd will naturally be made up of the assembled prize bulls and cows of the winning exhibitors from a state. Bona fide owners must be declared, according to the rules governing the competition. The animals in the herd must be owned by not less than three exhibitors residing in the state, no exhibitor owning more than five head. There also must be two or more competitors.

Prizes offered are: First, $200; second, $125; third, $50.

Another new feature of the dairy exposition is the offer of Premier Awards. Costly and handsome banners are to be presented to the breeders of animals winning the most money, and to the exhibitor of animals winning the most money.

It is apparent that the increased premium list totaling $21,655, double that of 1922, has stimulated interest among farmers of the state. Officials of the exposition freely predict a record attendance.

It is true that he is also interested in an implement and automobile business in Grand Forks, but he spends the greater part of his time on the farm. The Crookston Times and Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce please take notice.

The president of the Minnesota Wheat Growers Association is Jorgen Eide, who has never been engaged in anything but farming, having conducted a farm in the Red River valley for forty years or more.

The directors of the association are as follows, and we ask the Crookston Times and the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce to note carefully:

Dan Surprenant of Polk county.
Ole O. Sageng of Ottertail county.
Ferment Derosier of Red Lake county.
A. E. Comstock of Clay county.
W. P. Bosworth of Norman county.
A. P. Bengtson of Marshall county.
J. H. Sorum of Marshall county.

We request the editor of the Times to look these gentlemen up and see whether or not they are farmers. The Thief River Falls attorney referred to, Mr. W. J. Brown, is counsel for the organization and gets no salary except when legal services are required.

He does not receive a salary of $15,000 per year as certain people have attempted to make out, but receive a fee of $25 per day from the American Wheat Growers Associated when engaged in work for them and at the request of their manager or directors.

The only man connected with the Minnesota organization who receives a salary is W. H. Frederick, secretary, in charge of organization, who receives $3,000 per year since the last meeting of the board but who worked for nothing for many months.

The national organization referred to by the Times has been in operation for three years and has become a thorn in the side of the Chamber of Commerce because it threatens to make trouble for a lot of leeches who have waxed fat on the farmers of the Northwest.

This organization performed a real service for the farmers in the past and they will be the biggest factor in the Minneapolis market this year. They handled ten million bushels last year. They will handle many times that amount this year. In the meantime let the galled jades wince.

The Minnesota Wheat Growers Association is a producers' movement, and while a few organs of the Chamber of Commerce may seek to destroy it and delay its efforts by such comments as were passed out last week by the Crookston Times, it will continue to grow and flourish in spite of anything which may be attempted.

Twelve states are now organized to handle wheat co-operatively. This is a dark cloud upon the horizon of the Chamber of Commerce, but the farmers see in the movement the only tangible method by which they may sell their wheat in the open market in an orderly way and at such prices as will give them a fair profit over the cost of production.

It should be stated in this connection that those who imagine they can stop the farmers from joining the wheat growers movement by talking about big salaries, about the dangers of the five-year contracts, and other propaganda equally silly and foolish, are due for a rude awakening. This is purely a farmers' movement and the farmers are going to run it in spite of the Chamber of Commerce and its combination of hired satellites.

Governor Preus carried the city of Red Lake Falls in the final returns, receiving 248 votes to 112 for Johnson. Here Carley registered 12 votes.

In Thief River Falls Preus lost to his opponent by a more than two to one vote in each of the four wards. The First ward gave Preus 106 votes to 230 for Johnson. The Second gave Preus 96 votes and Johnson 230. The Third ward was most generous for Preus, polling 67 votes for him to 117 for the Farmer-Labor candidate. The Fourth ward (the East side) gave Preus 90 ballots to an even 200 for Magnus Johnson. The combined count in the four wards tendered Carley but a measly 13 votes, Preus registering 359 and Johnson 777.

"Soul of the Beast" to Be Shown at Lyceum

Aladdin could not have wished more effectively than the public today. A whim, a fad, a new interest—they are all reflected as if by magic on the silver sheet.

The picture producer has become the genii of the silver treasure. The public wishes—for romance, for great drama, for comedy, melodrama, something new—and the wish is an actuality on the screen almost before it has been well formulated.

"Appealing novelty" is the great demand of the moment. The "something new" which the public is now demanding is something novel with universal appeal. It seems certain that this demand has been fully met in "Soul of the Beast." It is novel. It is different. It tells a story of pathos and drama; of romance and adventure.

Madge Bellamy and "Oscar," the elephant, are a pair of circus runaways to capture any imagination. Their adventures in the southern Canadian woods are "different" from any ever told on the screen. And Miss Bellamy and "Oscar" are ably supported by Cullen Landis and Noah Beery. All have entered into the spirit of this dramatic fantasy and it is hoped that every boy and girl—yound and old—in America will have an opportunity to see "Soul of the Beast." It embodies an ideal for which every producer is constantly striving—that of the universal appeal. It was made with the thought and hope always uppermost of filming a true novelty that touch the hearts alike of young and old.

To be shown at the Lyceum theatre next Sunday and Monday.

Pennington County Fair to Open Wednesday

IMMENSE CROWDS EXPECTED HERE FOR FIRST DAY; PLANS COMPLETE TO MAKE 1923 SHOW "BEST EVER"

Fair Grounds Being Placed in Readiness by Crew of Workmen, and Buildings and Stables Repaired.

The 1923 Pennington County Fair will open here next Wednesday morning at the fair grounds. A meeting of fair officials was held last Friday evening at the Commercial clubrooms and final arrangements made for the staging of the biggest and best fair in the history of Pennington county.

A crew of workmen have been put to work getting the grounds in shape, repairing the grandstand and exposition buildings, stables, etc., including the fence encircling the grounds, and by Monday or Tuesday everything will be in readiness.

The early part of the week will be consumed in placing exhibits of all kinds, ticket entries for prize monies, etc., and by Wednesday forenoon the show will be on in earnest.

The attractions this year are especially good and fair officials have spared no means in bringing to the city the very best to be had. J. J. McCann, secretary of the fair, today was in communication with Crookston and Bemidji in an effort to secure a band. Crookston has a 42-piece band and it is possible that it may be secured to play during the four days. Mr. McCann has also corresponded with the leader of the Bemidji Boys' Band, an organization of 50 pieces. The Bemidji band had an engagement at the Minnesota State Fair last year and made a distinct hit there.

One section of the Lachmann Exposition Shows appeared at Warren last week, where they provided entertainment to large crowds. Lachmann brought the best fair show ever seen there and everything is conducted in an orderly manner, there being nothing offensive connected with it. Their midway is brilliantly lighted and there is nothing conducted "in the shadows." It has the added atmosphere of a

Two Horses Are Killed by Bolt; Four Made Deaf

Heavy Electrical Shock of Wednesday Evening Hits John Johnson Barn.

One Cow Also Killed and Quantity of Hay Burned in Fire Following.

Two horses and one cow were killed and four other horses were made deaf as a result of a lightning bolt which struck the barn on the John Johnson farm southeast of this city, during the storm of last Wednesday evening.

Fire resulting from the bolt of lightning burned a quantity of hay stored in the hayloft of the barn. The blaze was discovered, however, and was put out by farm hands before much destruction had been done.

The Johnson farm is located just north of the O. N. Olson farm and the freakish tactics of the lightning which struck the barn indicated that it hit a sliding door rod, and then to the horses, standing just opposite the door, killing two of them, and then to a cow standing just beyond the row of horses. The bovine acted as a conductor for the current, and it then leaped to the hay loft, which caught fire.

No damage was recorded within the city during the storm. However, it was reported that several places had been struck but no great amount of damage done. Several trees were splintered by the heavy bolts and a garage in the south part of town was struck but not seriously damaged.

The excessive heat had stored up a generous amount of electrical energy and the flashes of lightning, accompanied by terrific claps of thunder, fairly shook up the city. Similar heavy thunderclaps were reported from outlying sections tributary to Thief River Falls, but the damage wrought at the Johnson farm is the first recorded. It is not known whether insurance was carried on the animals killed or whether the damage to the barn is covered.

Miss Lily Elvester returned to her home at Cyrus Tuesday evening after spending a short time as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Gustafson at Grygla.

Attends Health Board Meeting.

Dr. O. F. Mellby returned yesterday from St. Paul, where he was in attendance at a meeting of the state board of health, to which he was appointed several weeks ago by Gov. J. A. O. Preus. A mass of important business matters confronted the members, all of which was duly disposed of by the board.

Baseballers Take Fine Trimming at Bemidji

The local baseball team took a pretty lacing at the hands of Bemidji last Sunday, to which place the club journeyed by automobile on the Sabbath, only to be turned back by a 12-to-0 defeat. Plastered with a goose-egg, Thief River Falls is looking forward to a return game here in the near future.

Sugar Factory May Be Built Here This Fall

H. A. Douglas Gives Local Committee Encouragement in Interview.

On Outcome of 1923 Crop and Prospects for Next Season Hinges Plant.

Thief River Falls stands an excellent chance of having a sugar beet factory built here this fall. This much was learned by a local committee consisting of Mayor John Bratrud and H. W. Protzeller, who interviewed H. A. Douglas, president of the Northern Sugar Beet company, at Minneapolis last Friday.

Mr. Bratrud and Mr. Protzeller had a lengthy and satisfactory conference with Mr. Douglas and the latter gave the committee considerable encouragement along the lines of actual construction work on a sugar beet plant being started this fall. Mr. Douglas stated that he had already decided on the type and size of factory that would be best suited to the requirements of this vicinity.

There is no question but that Thief River Falls will receive the best possible consideration in the erection of a factory, although it is absolutely necessary to first demonstrate that the farmers in this section will continue to grow sugar beets and supply the requirements of a factory. Mr. Douglas also stated that several other companies had their eyes on Thief River Falls and vicinity and that in his opinion several factories may be operating here in the future. The idea Mr. Douglas wished to convey to the committee was that a factory would be a certain aftermath of a successful crop.

The news brought to Thief River Falls by Mr. Bratrud and Mr. Protzeller is indeed promising, although it does not necessarily follow that the city has the factory cinched by any means. Local business men cannot afford to hesitate in view of the excellent prospects for a factory.

Mr. Douglas is anxious that farmers be urged to get their fields ready right now for next year's crop. He stated that the successful grower was the man who properly prepared nis field during the summer for the crops in the spring. In this way growers greatly reduce the amount of labor necessary for weeding, and insure a better growth and a healthier plant.

Wheat Growers Launch Drive for Market Control

Contracts for Two-thirds of Wheat in 11 States, Including Minnesota, Sought.

Farmer Board Planned to Set Figures; Campaign in State Slated Soon.

W. J. Brown of this city, president of the American Wheat Growers Associated, was in Spokane, Wash., yesterday in conference with directors of the organization in that state, according to an Associated Press dispatch, and they made plans to sign up 65 per cent of the wheat growers of that state to co-operative marketing contracts by October.

Control by contract of the marketing of two-thirds of the wheat produced in 11 states, including Minnesota, by July, 1924, and fixing the price at which wheat would move to market by a board of farmers, is the program announced by the American Wheat Growers Associated, from its headquarters in Minneapolis.

Already an intensified membership campaign has been conducted in one district in Washington state with the form of contract to be used in the rest of the state, and 90 per cent of the wheat production has been signed up, George Jewett, general manager, said. A similar campaign is to be launched in Minnesota within a few days. Within a year 65 per cent of the wheat will be signed up and the plan will be put in operation prior to another harvest, he predicted.

A contract provision is that it shall not become effective unless 65 per cent of the wheat production in the territory involved is brought under control. This would involve 400,000,000 bushels of wheat in the 11 states.

The American Wheat Growers Associated, through Mr. Jewett, has announced that it would not market a single bushel of wheat at present prices, storing it instead and obtaining partial payment for its producers by

Sugar Beet Laborer Is Arrested on Charge of Having Barrel of Mash

Frank Hoeman, Belgian, Working on Julius Haeck Farm, River Falls, Will Plead Guilty.

Frank Hoeman, a Belgian sugar beet worker employed on the farm of Julius Haeck four miles south of Hazel, was arrested last Thursday by Sheriff O. L. Ihle on a charge of having a barrel of moonshine mash in his possession.

Hoeman was taken to Thief River Falls by the sheriff after being placed under arrest. According to the sheriff, Hoeman admitted that he was guilty of having the mash in his possession, but that owing to the fact that his crop was yet unharvested and that he did not have the money to pay a fine or the time to spend in jail, he would appreciate the officers of the law giving him an extension of time before pleading, which was done. Hoeman was told to go home, harvest his crop, and that the authorities would see to it that his fine was collected from his earnings at the farm.

The barrel of mash was confiscated by the sheriff and Hoeman was cautioned not to re-engage in the illicit liquor traffic again.

Man Arrested Here to Be Taken to Mahnomen By Sheriff; Not Rust

Fargo Newspaper Calls Local Officer to Ascertain if Desperado Taken Here is Hunted Man.

Thief River Falls was all wrought up today as reports persisted that a man arrested at the Soo Line station last night by the sheriff of Mahnomen, Minn., was Rust, desperado who is still at large after having killed an Aberdeen, S. D., sheriff, and who is wanted in California and other western states for various crimes.

The Fargo Forum today called Sheriff Ihle over long distance telephone to ascertain if Rust really had been caught here. The sheriff informed the North Dakota newspaper that such was not by any chance the case and that the man's description did not tally in any way with that of the much-hunted fugitive.

The man taken into custody here last night gave his name as Jerry Perkins, and stated that his home is at Perth, N. D., where his mother lives. He also stated to Sheriff Ihle that he has a brother living at Blackduck, Minn. He formerly worked here on paving construction and at one time had been employed at Middle River. Perkins is held under surveillance by the Mahnomen county sheriff and will be taken to Mahnomen this evening.

Council Hears Difficulties at Filtration Plant

Letter Ordered Addressed to Engineer to Place Blame for "Crack."

Sugar Beet Committee Appears at Meeting; Sidewalks Are Ordered.

A meeting of the city council was held last night at the council chambers at the Auditorium, at which time the filtration plant came in for its customary amount of consideration. It was reported too the council that the settling of the building was causing further trouble and that the water intake pipe to the plant had broken as a result of the sagging of the plant, and that int would be necessary to put a srew of men to work digging up the pipe and repairing it.

The council ordered H. O. Chommie, city attorney, to write a communication to Engineer Wolfe, who had charge of the plans and superintended construction of the plant, asking where to place the blame for the trouble encountered as a result of the "crack" in the wall. The fourth estimate of the plant still remains unpaid by the city and the councilmen are determined to withhold final settlement until the blame for faulty construction is placed.

A sugar beet committee consisting of Math Barzen and Rasmus Oen appeared before the council asking that in view of the fact that the city stands a splendid chance of securing the building of a sugar beet factory here this fall that some sort of attraction be offered officials of the sugar beet company to place their final approval on building plans here. The city council as a hold stands ready to do anything within their power to induce sugar beet officials to start construction wirk here and it is thought that a building site and possibly other concessions will be made.

C. M. Carlson, who has the contract for the laying of paving in the postoffice alley, upon which construction was commenced last week, appeared before the council and his bonds approved. The paving work is progressing repidly, all the excavating work having been practically completed by the contractor.

The council also ordered sidewalks built in front of the residences of property owners on the east side who have failed to put in suitable sidewalks. It is understood that the work will commence in the very near future and the cost of construction assessed against the property owners.

Automobile Club Places Six Direction Signs to Lead Travelers to City

Thief River Falls Organization Now Has Membership of More Than 100; All Doing Good Work.

The Thief River Falls Automobile club this week completed the work of placing a number of direction signs throughout this section of the state leading tourists to Thief River Falls. The signs have been placed on all trunk highways between Winnipeg and Bagley and are clearly visible and placed at the best possible points along main traveled roads.

The signs are large 4x8 boards with the names of Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls and Winnipeg painted in large eight-inch letters, and the distances to each city. One of these is located at the Canadian border, another at Warren, at Bagley, Erskine, Mentor and Red Lake Falls.

The local club now has a membership of 100 and the number is being increased right along. A membership committee consisting of E. M. Bennes and F. J. Stebbins, local president, have been active during the summer and practically doubled the roll.

Trout Fishers Get Sample.

A party consisting of Rolf ("Oppie") Rasmuson, Roy Brown and Darby Anderson returned Monday from a ten days' outing trip spent at various northern Minnesota lakes and Kelliher, Minn., where trout is said to abound for those who know their peculiarities for biting at a hook. After several attempts at bribing one, a little fellow just out of the minnow class swung at Brown's fly and caught on. The party later went to Red Lake, where they camped over night, returning to Kelliher for the remainder of their outing. They made the trip via automobiel.

SUGAR BEET FACTORY SEEMS CERTAINTY AS BUMPER CROP OF COUNTY NEARS HARVEST

Local Business Firms Donate $270 in Cash Prizes to Be Awarded Growers by Club Committee.

Pennington county will harvest one crop this year that will prove a bumper. It's a new crop, but the way growers have taken hold of it, talked it, cultivated it and produced it shows unmistakably the trend sugar beets are taking down the road to prosperity. It is safe to say that every farmer in this section who planted beets this spring is satisfied. The Tribune feels secure in saying that sugar beet growing will be a prime industry of this county from now on.

Fields in every direction from Thief River Falls are showing up wonderfully well. It is hard to pick a winner. One field seems to outdo the other in excellence. Contrary to the view taken by many, some of the larger fields appear in a more perfect state of cultivation than others, although many of the allotments of five acres and even less are in a healthy state. The Tribune wouldn't care to mention the names of growers in connection with this news article through fear of slighting someone, but will leave that to a committee of Commercial club members who will on August 9 award $270 in prize money to the best crop producers.

This week a committee of local business men circulated a list for the purpose of securing a generous amount of money to award growers tributary to Thief River Falls whose crops excel. Seventeen businesh firms and individuals contributed $270 to the list and this will be distributed among the prize-winners on August 9, when four committees of the Commercial club will inspect the crops and award the prizes.

The district tributary to Thief River Falls will be divided into four sections for a distance of ten miles from the corner of Main avenue and Sixth street. Each section will [illegible] in Ladies to Be Pitted Against Men: Much Enthusiasm Is Being Shown.

The Thief River Golf club will hold a unique tournament on the club's links Saturday afternoon and Sunday, July 28 and 29. Heretofore it has been a sacred custom for all players within hearing distance of any man making a shot to refrain from all talking, movement, or even breathing. In this tournament baseball tactics will not only be allowed but urged upon all spectators. You can root for or against any player and actually do anything but get in the way of his shot. This should produce some of the finest golf ever witnessed on any course.

The tournament will be the regular handicap form and will be free for all. The ladies will have to play against the men and the men against the ladies and, by the way, some of the ever-boasting males will have to show some speed to beat quite a number of the fair sex golfers.

Entrance fee is the small sum of 25 cents, payable in advance with no hope of rebate if you fail to show up. The prizes will be one dozen first-class, high-grade, non-losable, pure white golf balls for the best score, and half of that for the second score, with the free use of the golf grounds as a prize for the booby who has paid all of his dues and fees to date.

All members and others interested in golf are urged to get their names and quarters down at the earliest possible moment.

Address by Rubinow Heard by Producers and Business Men

Head of Minnesota Potato Organization Meets With Slight Encouragement in Address in This City

Potato men of Pennington county and business men of Thief River Falls are apparently not interested in the state-wide drive for memberships in the Minnesota Co-operative Potato Growers Exchange, for when S. G. Rubinow, state organizer, made his address on the subject of potato marketing at the Commercial clug meeting last Thursday and later at an evening meeting, the attendance was decidedly shy.

It is possible that the local people are not concerned with this matter. Perhaps producers and business men are satisfied to let the situation take care of itself.

Mr. Rubinow made a fine talk along co-operative lines, explaining the Sapiro contract under which the growers are ofganized. He showed by conclusive facts that farmers were never effectually bound together in a co-operative movement except under a binding, enforceable contract. This contract was fully explained as was the proposed plan of organization.

No effort will be made to sell under the pool plan this year owing to the lateness of the season, but orderly marketing will be attempted providing a sufficient number of growers join the movement. Whether naother attempt will be made to hold a meeting has not been ascertained by The Tribune.

Word 'Net' Stops Entire Highway Program for 1923

Bids on St. Hilaire-Thief River Falls Road Thrown Out Owing to Error.

County Engineer Declares Emergency in Case of Condemned Bridge.

The omission of the word "net" in the county reimbursement road law passed at the 1923 session of the Minnesota legislature, permitting counties to issue bonds for the construction of needed road improvements within their boundaries has kayoed to the dim distant future the building of the St. Hilaire-Thief River Falls road (known as the old Jefferson highway.)

T. P. Anderson, county auditor, and Bert Umland, county engineer, who were in St. Paul yesterday, at which time bids for the construction of the road were to be let, informed a Tribune reporter late today that both the contracts for the construction of Highway No. 32, south of town, and the improvement of the road east of town for a distance of three miles have been thrown into the discard at least until September 1, or until the next session of the legislature corrects the error of law.

It seems that the new county reimbursement law should have read as a direct duplication of the old law under which the Babcock plan was organized, but that perhaps an error on the part of an assistant in the attorney-general' osffice or the failure of a legislative engrossing clerk to include the word "net" in the bill introduced at the last session of the legis-

Rye Harvest Well Under Way.

Since last week the harvesting of the Pennington county rye crop has been well under way and at the present time there are few fields that remain untouched.. So far as is known there are no other crops being cut with the exception of a scattering of barley fields. The latter crop is said to be one of the best produced here in years and will bring a good yield. The rye crop, however, is claimed to be about an average.

CO-OPERATION AS IMPORTANT TO BANKS AS TO PRODUCER

MAN WHO IS NOT INFORMED ON SUBJECT IS NEGLECTING OWN BUSINESS, BARR SAYS.

SAPIRO PLAN IS CURE FOR ILLS OF THE FARM

NEW SECRETARY STATE COMMITTEE DELVERS ADDRESS TO DAKOTA BANKERS.

"The banker who does not inform himself on co-operative marketing of farm products so as to be in a position to qualify as an aid and advisor to the movement is wilfully letting go of his own money," said Edward Barr, new secretary of the general state organization committee, in an address before the South Dakota Bankers Association's annual convention at Rapid City last month.

"We have tried everything else. We have told the farmer to raise more, and the more he raised the more he lost. We have told him to work harder, and the harder he worked the less he seemed to get ahead. One year he was advised to buy more machinery, and the next to buy nothing at all. One year he was urged to take more credit than he needed, and the next he was told that he had had too much credit and that he couldn't get any more," Mr. Barr said.

"None of these remedies seem to be panaceas. And none of them will remove the source of the farmer's discontent until he finds a way to get a fair price for his products. He cannot expect to get it by legislation—we have had too much of some kinds of legislation already. He will have to get it by business methods."

True co-operative marketing on the Sapiro plan or California plan, Mr. Barr said, binds the growers of one commodity into a single marketing group, with an iron-clad contract among themselves for at least five years. Then, with such an organization, they are able to plan to sell intelligently, establish rules for standardizing and grading, and put a clean, desirable product on the market in an orderly manner, without dumping and demoralizing prices. This, he declared, is only good business and as such entitles the movement to the support of every banker.

"Notwithstanding the stiff terms of the contract and the surface objection that the grower is 'signing away his rights and his independence,' he is in fact only insuring co-operative, sensible, businesslike action among his neighbors and himself, and making it possible to do business and get a return for his labor," Mr. Barr said.

The speaker urged bankers to get behind the co-operative marketing contract, regardless of opposition. "It is a truism that your interests and farmers' interests are identical," he said, "and a passive attitude on your part is equivalent to getting over on the other side of the fence and fighting there. We must be for or against the new movement which as applied to oranges in the west, cotton and tobacco and a half-dozen other commodities, has put other communities far in the lead of the Northwest as far as individual prosperity of the growers is concerned."

Grasshoppers a Pest in Northern Counties

Farmers in Carlton and St. Louis counties, alarmed at the damage done by grasshoppers, recently applied to the state entomologist, A. G. Ruggles, University Farm St. Paul for aid. Mr. Ruggles went to the infested region and discovered that the reports were not exaggerated.

Mr. Ruggles immediately set to work fighting the insects with poison bait, such as had been used effectively in Montana and other parts of the northwest the last year or two. Distributing the bait in the evening, he would sometimes find as many as 50 dead grasshoppers to the square foot in the morning.

While the grasshoppers are infesting a comparatively limited area this year, Mr. Ruggles says that another year great damage may be done over a much wider area unless vigorous warfare is waged against the pest this summer. Only heavy rains earlier in the season prevented greater damage this year.

Information as to the poison bait used, and methods for its use may be had on application to Mr. Ruggles at University Farm, St. Paul.

LABOR PHASES OF HARVEST.

The harvest days are at hand in this part of the country. In Texas they began early in June, reached Kansas and Missouri early in July, and they have now arrived in Minnesota. It is the time of the year when farming becomes most charged with adventure and romance. The forces of the farm are rapidly mobilized and the quiet pursuits of agriculture now become dramatic.

The first and perhaps the most significant labor phase of the harvest lies in the fact that the demand for workers is brief but intense. The demand expands as the harvest goes northward and transient help becomes indispensable.

But in common thought the demand for extra hands is greatly exaggerated. Machinery on the farm has greatly reduced the number of hands needed even in harvesting. Statisticians say that the effective demand for help rarely exceeds ten or twelve thousand men.

Contrary to popular impression, the harvest in this country is not taken care of by the foreign-born. Nearly all the Southern harvest is handled by Americans. It is claimed that only 11 per cent of migratory harvesters are foreign-born, but they constitute a third of the harvest laborers who are without permanent places of residence. Many of them have been in this country from ten to 20 years and yet have failed to establish permanent domicile. In Minnesota and the Dakotas much harvest work is done by naturalized Americans, who have attained special skill in various lines of work, but who answer the harvest call.

Harvest work, like other phases of industry, shows a psychological side. The motives that take men into the fields have been studied and tabulated. Lack of other employment, the hope of making big money, the desire for adventure, the wish to find a new location, are among the incentives that lead men to trail the harvest.

Here, as in many other instances, men seem to rise up when the need is urgent. Their migrations, seeming to display so much chance and wanderlust, are in reality determined by the interweaving of economic opportunity and human wants.—Minneapolis Journal.

WHAT ABOUT IT, MR. FARMER?

The potatoes of Pennington county will be needed this year. Loss of the Minnesota potato crop would produce a large shortage. Which means that potatoes should bring a fair price this year. They should bring the farmer from $1 to $1.25 at the loading point, but in order to bring such a result there must be co-operation of effort between the producer and the business men. The farmers of every potato raising community in Minnesota should hold meetings and decide on concerted action to reestablish prices. One farer can accomplish nothing. Neither can the farmers of a community accomplish results. But the movement for orderly marketing must start somewhere and it may as well be in Pennington county.

If the farmers of the state were organized much could be accomplished in the way of getting better prices, and if the potato raisers were organized everywhere as are the tobacco and fruit growers then and only then would potatoes bring a fair price.

COUNTRY MAN'S AUTOMOBILE.

Many people seem to think that the possession of great numbers of automobiles by the country folks is a sign that they are making a lot of money and that the difficulties the farmer is supposed to encounter are largely imaginary. Many peopel living in outlying districts, however, can testify that the automobile is an absolute necessity for them. With their old team of horses it might have taken them a day to get to the market town and back again. But with the automobile they can usually do it in half the time. Time is worth a great deal of money to the farmer now, with the high prices that must be paid for help. Gasoline and tires on his flivver are cheaper than the pay of a farm hand. But when the use of an automobile is abused the upkeep may overbalance their usefulness.

THE FARMER AND IMMIGRATION

The nation-wide agitation by certain great employing interests to secure the repeal of the law restricting immigration into the United States, or to admit a much larger number of immigrants annually, seems to be conducted on behalf of the farmers instead of the industries. While American farmers would no doubt welcome an increased supply of competent helpers, they are more interested in the kind of immigrants than in their number. This is diametrically opposite to the desire of industries who want cheap or ignorant common laborers. Protective tariff laws guarantee to industrial workers higher wages than is paid in Europe because it guarantees higher prices for labor's product. This affects the farmer by increasing the cost of his machinery and materials, but does not seem to help much in stabilizing the market price of his product.

The American farmer has learned by experience that, as a rule, the class of immigrants that would chiefly be brought from Europe if present restrictions were repealed are not desirable farm workers and in most cases cannot be induced to work for wages that farmers can afford to pay. So far as the southern states are concerned, climatic conditions seem to be a barrie rto the employment of Europeans as field workers, and in other regions of the United States it is claimed that experimenting with the southern European or Mediterranean people has not proved satisfactory to the farmers. Unless some method can be contrived for bringing in, and keeping on the farms, the kind of workers that are needed in agriculture, the farmers are unlikely to take much interest in helping the manufacturers, railways, and mine owners porcure cheaper labor, and it is a question whether "cheap" labor is not a curse to any community rather than a help.

GOOD ROADS HELP ALL.

It costs a man considerable time and money to get his crops to market. This expense naturally reduces his profits.

If he hauls his product in a motor truck and the roads are bad, his engine consumes enormous quantities of gas.

If it is moved by horse and wagon the load must be lightened and the speed reduced, thus consuming more time—and time must be paid for in the hire of his men and in the feed for his horses.

Any way you look at it, bad roads are a nuisance and an expense.

For this reason every farmer in this community should be solidly and insistently behind the good road movement.

What if it does cost him a few cents? It will be worth a dollar for every penny it cost.

Farmers should not hesitate to join the co-operative potato exchange. Potatoes should bring $1.25 per bushel this fall and such a price would actually be paid the growers if they were effectively organized. There is a suspicion abroad that the annual scramble for cars will begin as soon as the potato harvest begins. It will be the same everywhere, and local commercial bodies, public men and newspapers will join in the effort to get the potatoes to amrket. This is all wrong. If half the effort made each year to get cars were expended in the direction of securing orderly marketing and thus force better prices for the producer, the farmers would soon be prosperous beyond all dreams of avarice. This is without uestqion one of the best potato raising counties in the state and it is high time we gave intelligent consideration to the problem of marketing. Business men and farmers must do something different than they have been doing. They must begin to think.

A sugar beet factory in Thief River Falls will mean much to the business development of the city, but such an industry means more, vastly more, to the farmers of the vicinity. Not to mention the advantage which will accrue as a result of cleaning up the farms by raising root crops, let it not be forgotten that the location of a sugar factory here will automatically raise the value of every acre of land within hauling distance of the factory from $25 to $50 per acre. Then there is the enormous advantage to the dairyman of being afforded an opportunity to purchase the beet pulp at his very door. It has been said that no dairy herd has yet made a milk record of any consequence without beet pulp. These are some of the advantages to ge gained by a sugar factory, but the ramifications of such an institution are many and varied and of such proportions that all will be greatly benefitted, and it tehrefore behooves every citizen to lend his best efforts to the movement now under way to land this big industdy for Thief River Falls.

Newspapers are warning the people against the speed being gained by the LaFollette for President Special. It may go along and make good headway until it crashes head-on with the Tin Lizzie.

Northern Minnesota farmers are making $10 a day picking the luscious blueberry, according to the Baudette Region. That makes a blueberry worth about as much as an Early Ohio full grown, doesn't it?

A tourist who was arrested in a North Dakota village last week for speeding said that he thought he was still out in the country. No wonder the enraged authorities fined him $50.

Election majorities are easy to read about and speculate over, but difficult to figure out.

"The Village Blacksmith" Coming to Lyceum Theatre

"The Village Blacksmith," a Fox picture founded on Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's famous poem, which will be shown at the Lyceum Sunday and Monday, was given its first showing at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre, New York, November 2. The theme, to judge from the reviews, has been skilfully elaborated, the lesson of life taught by the poet being illustrated in detail by a series of dramatic and humorous incidents that are appealingly human.

The exterior scenes in "The Village Blacksmith" show that the characters lived in a region of great natural beauty. Shot after shot taken along country roads and around "the old swimming hole" look as if they had been composed especially for the picture by some celebrated artist. The director has been remarkably successful in catching the humors and engaging traits of childhood, and these scenes are among the most enjoyable in the entire story. There is an incident where a small boy climbs a tree after a bird's nest that is remarkably well done. It is intended for a dramatic episode and carries out this feeling with fine effect.

Later in the story these children, having reached years of maturity, go through a series of experiences that test and refine their natures. The blacksmith, father of three of the youngsters who scampered and romped throug the opening scenes, is endowed with the strength of frame and depth of heart suggested by Longfellow in his poem. As an exhibition of rugged manliness and tender feeling the character ranks high.

Mrs. Mulry Ill.

Mrs. W. H. Mulrey, who was taken ill six weeks ago with kidney trouble aggravated by a tumor, is reported to be in a serious condition at the Warren hospital, Mr. Mulry having been called to Warren today. Mrs. Mulry's condition has grown steadily worse during the past two weeks, although physicians attending her entertain hopes for her complete recovery.

Heaviest Rain of Season Falls Here Last Sunday

The heaviest downpour of rain so far this season fell in sections tributary to Thief River Falls last Sunday afternoon, commencing at about 4 o'clock, at which time the country received a thorough soaking. The rain followed three days of excessively hot weather and came down in sheets, driven by a 50-mile gale that practically stranded several automobile parties caught in the outlying sections. Tourists from the south reported several cars stalled along the road due to wet coils and engine trouble.

Here is something from the Winchester, Kans., Star that is well worth trying: "A Winchester lady, after reading in last week's Star about a little child drinking lye, reports that in such cases there is no better remedy to counteract its serious burns, either internally or externally, than vinegar. This remedy has in years past been tried in "lye cases" with complete success, according to our informant. A truly simple remedy, to be sure, and mothers should keep in mind, in case any of their children should innocently come in contact with the lye can."

More Tax Cuts Are Due Under New Road Plan

Many Counties Reduce Road and Bridge Funds While State Pays Bill.

Highway Officials Becoming Reconciled to Failure of Bonding Plan.

More than $2,750,000 already cut off road and bridge tax levies by Minnesota counties, townships, cities and villages, since the state took over the trunk highways for maintenance and improvement, counties are slashing road funds further in new tax levies now being made.

Predictions are for a bigger decrease in road taxes this year than last, says a highway bulletin based on reports from many sections of the state. Taxes of $15,882,121 for local road purposes this year were $1,902,357 less than last, and last year the total of $17,784,478 was $876,341 smaller than the $18,660,819 fund the year before, making reductions of $2778,698 in the first two years under the new highway plan, according to the official figures.

"As a whole the local roads are being improved far more rapidly than before," said C. M. Babcock, state highway commissioner. "The main highways formerly took 80 per cent or four-fifths of the county funds, so with more money available now from the reduced levies the faster improvement is to be expected. As county road work progresses and local roads are improved so that maintenance will be the principal expense, still greater reductions in taxes will follow. The state highway at the agreed average tax of $18 on motor vehicles will be sufficient and it is a matter of obtaining the best results possible by anticipating receipts of state funds."

State highway officials are said to be fully reconciled to the 1923 legislative failure of the state highway bond plan. With general taxes higher now than ever before, many would have blamed the highway bonds for the rise, they reasoned, although positive that the bonds would have made no difference in taxes but on the contrary would have given the public use of highway betterments earlier and at an actual cash saving.

Our army has a new airplane that weighs twenty tons. It's almost beyond average imagination to conceive of a weight like that traveling through the air without falling. Father would have been confined in the lunatic asylum if he had predicted such a thing 35 years ago. This giant steel plane measures 120 feet between wing tips. It carries 2,000 gallons of gasoline and is designed for a speed of 90 miles an hour. Our future roads will be in the air and don't ever doubt that flying will be as safe as the relatively slow auto.

It has been our observation that the man with a grouchy look seldom gets a pleasant one.

The man who can understand everything that comes into his mind will never have to work.

Word "Net" Stops 1923 Highway Program Here

lature has entered the proceedings, nullifying the law.

As a consequence every road project in northern Minnesota for which counties had issued bonds has been halted, except Kittson county, which is below the 15 per cent requisite. Any road improvement made from now on will have to beckon to the good will of Commissioner Babcock of the state highway department, from which the funds for construction will have to come.

The bridge near the Sanitarium road, south of the city, which was condemned this spring when flood waters threatened to wash it away, will be replaced at once, according to Mr. Umland, county engineer, for which bids already have been let and tentatively approved. Mr. Umland declared an emergency in the case of the bridge and stated to the highway officials at St. Paul that it was unsafe for traffic. The department then ordered that the bridge be built and construction will start within a few days.

The proceedings at St. Paul yesterday when the two road projects out of Thief River Falls were declared illegal is a serious blow to local road plans. All surveying work had practically been completed inside and outside of the city limits and construction work would have commeced soon after the letting of the bids.

Extra Repairs Take $700,000 of Road Money

Overloading of Unimproved State Highways Forces Up Cost of Upkeep.

Upkeep Cost Caused By Traffic Being Diverted to Improved Roads.

Special repairs of $699,915 in addition to regular upkeep costing $861,159 on Minnesota trunk highways for the first six months this year, with the period of heaviest travel ahead, is the official showing in a highway bulletin this week.

The $700,000 round figure of special repairs was forced by heavy travel on trunk route sections that are awaiting improvement and others overloaded by traffic shifting from unimproved roads, according to Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner. Besides this large sum, which must be materially increased during the remainder of the season, a maintenance fund of $2,148,500 has been set aside as required by law, $1,800,000 to pay nearly 1,000 patrolmen and other employes and the balance for bridge repairs, highway marking and census taking, and other like expenses.

John H. Mullen, first assistant commissioner and chief highway engineer, said the special repairs are but part of the large outlay the state is obliged to make because it lacks ready funds for improvements to end the constant repairing on trunk routes which are overloaded in present stages of improvement. Were the improvement funds on hand, he added, the public would profit by the earlier use of the improved in addition to saving money.

The 7,000-mile trunk highway system is divided into 16 maintenance districts, each of which was given authorization to July 1 for special repairs running from $64,100 to $27,000. The largest item is in the district west of Minneapolis. Authorizations of $64,000 were made in the Duluth district, mainly covering T. H. No. 1 to St. Paul. A total of $59,000 was allowed in the district made up of Dakota and Goodhue counties, south of St. Paul. The smallest item was in a group of counties forming a district in west central Minnesota.

Former Resident Writes Interesting Letter From Idaho to The Tribune

Hans Heckne, who left Thief River Falls about a year ago for Idaho, where he is engaged in superintending a logging cap for one of the big lumber companies operating in that state, is well known for his stories, but the one he writes The Tribune about this week is worthy of being passed along.

The letter follows:

Editor Tribune:

Inclosed you will find a check to pay for your paper for another year. Maybe you would like to hear how we are out in this neck of the woods.

For one thing there are lots of men here—such as they are. Will tell you about one of them.

He was driving team skidding logs and broke a hame strap. What would you do in a case of that kind? This man took the harness off the horse and carried it into camp about one-half mile to get a strap 14 inches long. Can you beat that?

We are having our time with the cook house force, going and coming all the time—and some darn poor cooks. One arrived tonight and will try him out for a week. He is the third one since the Fourth.

There are two boys here from Thief River Falls—Knute Nelson and Henry Johnson.

We are logging kind of heavy at this time and are operating four camps here and three or four at St. Joe. Am afraid things are going to be slow next witner.

Had a good laugh tonight reading friend Hafdal's letter to you. I happen to know those friends of his that he mentions.

Guess if I should go back to your town I should not take up bootlegging for a living—not as long as Ole is sheriff. But that is all right. You give them hell, Ole—and you, too, Arneson. If you hammer long enough you may get the nail home.

Yours truly,
HANS HECKNE.

Newspapers of State Will Have Exhibit at 1923 Minnesota Fair

Committee Headed by Frank Day of Fairmont Sentinel Making Plans For Interesting Display.

The newspapers of Minnesota will have an exhibit at the Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Dairy Show, September 1 to 8. It is the first time such a display has been attempted.

A committee of newspaper men belonging to the State Editorial association, and chairmaned by Frank Day of Fairmont, is working out plans for the exhibit. Other members of the committee are: Phil Liesch of New Ulm; Alvah Eastman of St. Cloud; J. R. Landy of Olivia; J. C. Morrison of Morris; Herman Roe of Northfield; W. P. Kirkwood, University Farm, St. Paul, and Larry Hodgson of St. Paul. Plans are well under way.

The Farm Bureau will have a big meeting at the fair, featured by a program in the Livestock Pavilion on Thursday, September 6, at which several noted experts on co-operative marketing will speak.

An electrical exhibit more than twice as large as any ever staged previously at the fair will occupy the old Dairy building on the top of Machinery hill this year. The exhibits of butter, cheese and dairy machinery will be moved to the mezzanine floor of the $600,000 cattel barn, where the Northwest Dairy show will be put on.

Plans for the biggest exposition in the history of the middle west are well under woy, and a record-breaking attendance is predicted.

To Study Potatoes in Fields.

Potato growers, potato dealers, specialists from the Minnesota experiment station, county agricultural agents and others will tour potato areas in northern Minnesota counties from August 1 to August 9. They will be in Red Lake county August 1; Pennington, August 2; Kittson, August 3; Roseau, August 4; Koochiching, August 5 and 6; Beltrami, August 7; Itasca, August 8; St. Louis, August 9. The purpose of the tour is to give an opportunity to study commercial potato growing under the guidance of specialists in soils, cropping methods, plant diseases, insect pests, marketing, etc. Persons who are interested in making the trip should communicate with R. C. Rose, University Farm, St. Paul, chairman of the committee in charge.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN

(August 1-8.)

Gladioli require an abundance of water at blooming time.

Next month is a good time to plant peonies and iris. Currant cuttings may also be made as soon as the leaves fall.

Dust roses with flowers of sulphur, when the bushes are moist, to rid them of mildew. Better yet, plant them in locations where mildew is not encouraged.

Cut gladiolus blooms when the flower blooms open. Keep in cool water in a cool place for two or three hours, then place in the living room or elsewhere. Cut back the stems every 24 hours and place in fresh cool water.

Neat, clean, well packed fruit or vegetable packages sell the easiest.

Remove all old canes from the raspberries as soon as they are through fruiting. Thin the new growths so that they will not crowd one another. Burn all trimmings at once. This frequently destroys a large crop of worms.

Pocket gophers may be killed by opening one of the mounds, putting a hose form the exhaust pipe of an automobile into the runway, and running the car for 15 minutes. As the gas fills the tunnel the gophers will die.—Le Roy Cady, associate horticulturist, University Farm, St. Paul, Minn.

Wheat Growers Launch Market Control Drive

government loans provided by the Intermediate Credit banks. This announcement followed declaration by the American Farm Bureau federation in favor of a so-called "selling strike" to withhold wheat from "dumping" on the market immediately after harvest, and feeding it into commercial channels in an orderly manner to meet demand.

Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Nebraska, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Washington and Oregon are the states included in the organization's program. Each state will be represented on the price fixing board, which is designed to determine the price at which wheat would move for domestic consumption.

"We are now signing up from 3,000 to 4,000 farmers a month," Mr. Jewett said, discussing results in the 11 states. "Our intensive campaign will be launched in Minnesota at once.

"Our whole program is to promote orderly marketing. This year we will have 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 bushels of wheat under contract, of which 2,000,000 bushels will be in Minnesota. With this we will approach the market slowly, using the Federal Intermediate bank loans to tide over the farmers until the price is right. But we do not hope to reach the point of carrying out our program efficiently for a year. We plan to enlist business as well as farmers to assist us. We do not say that we con control the price absolutely when we get two-thirds of the wheat signed up in the 11 states, but we can do so to a very high degree, we believe."

According to Mr. Jewett, local associations are active in the campaign in all states but Oklahoma and Kansas, and in those two states directors have indicated a readiness to participate.

LOCAL NEWS NOTES

These are the days when clubs and other organizations are preparing county fair exhibits. Such exhibits are very often overcrowded and without any outstanding feature. A good exhibit should have some central feature to which it directs special attention.

Farm management tours were held in Jackson, Redwood, Wilkins, Olmsted and Pipestone counties in June and July.

Cow testing is growing in favor in Ottertail county. In one district, 912 cows are under test and so many farmers desire to enter the association that a second association will probably be formed this fall.

Miss Dagny Tharaldson returned last evening from Bemidji after having spent four days with her sister, Miss Ann, who has been attending the state teachers' college. Miss Ann returned with her.

Miss Margaret Eichhammer returned yesterday afternoon from Grand Forks, where she had spent two weeks at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Eichhammer.

Miss Ruth Peterson returned last evening to her home in St. Paul after having been a guest at the home of J. C. Zavoral for a few days.

SAPIRO BUREAU'S SPEAKER AT FAIR

Noted Authority to Be Chief Attraction For Farmers at Hamline September 6.

Aaron Sapiro, nationally known authority on co-operative marketing and recognized as one of the most forceful public speakers in America today, will be the chief speaker on the Farm Bureau day program at the Minnesota State Fair, Thursday, Sept. 6.

Mr. Sapiro has definitely accepted an invitation for that day, extended by J. F. Reed, president of the State Farm Bureau Federation, according to an announcement from St. Paul. Mr. Reed's action was taken after the Federation's executive board, in session last week, had unanimously voted to request Mr. Sapiro to be persent. The board also made plans for bringing a woman of national standing to speak at the meeting and completed arrangements for holding the regular fall meeting of county directors.

The Farm Bureau's invitation to Mr. Sapiro was warmly seconded by the state organization committee, in charge of the potato marketing campaign.

Assured of an outstanding speaker for the day, farm leaders hope to have 10,000 farmers present for the program. Mr. Sapiro will speak in the Hippodrome, one of the largest buildings in the Northwest. Amplifiers will be used to insure everyone hearing his address.

Mr. Sapiro was asked to speak in order to give farmers of the state a chance to hear him. During his visit to the twin cities last spring, most of the people who hear him were business men, to whom he effectively sold the idea of co-operative marketing.

It is possible that Mr. Sapiro will make a series of meetings in the potato growing sections of the state after his State Fair address.

The statement shows that more than 48 patrons of the local institution received checks mounting over the $100 mark. Pennington County Fair Opens Next Wednesday

Coney Island in miniature, with all the exciting rides, including the famous whip, the cariousel, over the waves, ferris wheel and others. It lacks Luna park, of course, but so does every other show away from Coney Island.

There will be a large number of free attractions before the grandstand this year. One is the leap through the fiery chasm by Chefalse, which is considered one of the most daring of feats. Another thriller is Captain Hugo's high dive; he has the reputation of making the world's highest dive, and during each day of the fair he will plunge 120 feet into a net placed in front of the grandstand.

Concerts will be heard each day by either the Bemidji boys' band of 50 pieces or the 42-piece band of Crookston. Then there will be an array of horse races, several nationally known horses having been booked. The fair officials have spared no means in providing the best kind of a racing program. In addition to the horse and harness races there will be a number of motor races.

Another of the big attractions will be the fireworks display. The Thearle-Douffield company of Chicago will have a man here who will be in charge of the firing of the display, which will be made on the two last days of the fair, August 3 and 4.

Baseball games and a sports program will be another feature. Thief River Falls will clash with fast outside teams for a purse. There will be no charge for any of the games, the tickets to the grandstand enabling all to witness the games without extra cost.

It is announced by Secretary McCann that the second day of the fair will be known as Potato Day. A potato booth will be erected and some local man will be in charge of the display. R. C. Rose, potato specialist at the state university, will be in charge of the booth and will give lectures to potato growers.

Addition to Premium List.

An addition to the premium list is made in the poultry section this year. Olaf Nest has been placed in charge of the section and premiums will be given on egg exhibits, awarding the same prizes as were given at the poultry show held here last winter. Cash prizes will be paid for the largest and most uniform eggs and the entry fee will be 25 cents, with one dozen eggs for each entry. The prizes will be as follows:

	1st	2nd	3rd
Brown	75c	50c	25c
White	75c	50c	25c

"Does it pay to worry about appendicitis?" Certainly, it pays the doctors who do the operating.

prizes to be divided as follows: $25 to the best 10-acre field; $15 to the best field of from three to 10 acres; $10 for the best field under 3 acres, and a $5 prize to the laborer in charge of the bet field of beets.

In awarding the prizes the committee will take every condition of the beet crop into consideration, such as fertility, cleanliness, size and general quality. The names of the prize-winners will be published in The Tribune.

In addition to the $55 in prizes in each of the four sections, there will be the $50 sweepstakes prize donated by Dr. H. W. Froehlich. The $50 prize is open to all growers within the 10-mile radius and is considered a most generous one. Mr. Froehlich has taken a wholesome interest in the sugar beet movement from the outset last spring and he has never wavered in his desire to see northern Minnesota forge to the front as a producer of beet sugar.

G. A. Russell of Elk River, Minn., to Takes Place of W. G. Plenty, Who Goes to Wadena Branch

G. A. Russell of Elk River, Minn., where he has been in charge of the exchange of the Northwestern Bell Telephone company for the past year, arrived in Thief River Falls Monday evening by automobile and will this week assume charge of the local branch.

W. G. Plenty, local manager for the past year will leave shortly for Wadena, Minn., where he will take a similar position with the Northwestern Bell Telephone company. Mr. Plenty has had charge here since the resignation of George Sterns, now in charge of the Fergus Falls exchange.

Mr. Russell, the new manager, is an experienced telephone man and has been with the Northwestern Bell Telephone company for a number of years. He formerly was connected with the Minneapolis exchange, or until going to Elk River a year ago.

Oklee and Plummer to Gang Up For Contest Against Local Tribe

Oklee and Plummer have joined forces and amalgamated their baseball players for a game to be played on the local diamond next Sunday afternoon against Thief River Falls. There will be a gang of rooters accompanying the team, it is said, and the visitors are claimed to be bent on trimming Thief River Falls at baseball at least once in their lifetime.

"Spider" Yost, local manager, this week has handed The Tribune his playing schedule for the next three weeks, which is as follows:

Oklee and Plummer at Thief River Falls on Sunday, July 29.

Red Lake Falls at Thief River Falls on Saturday, August 4.

Thief River Falls at Oklee on Sunday, August 5.

Red Lake Indians at Thief River Falls on Sunday, August 15.

Pennington County Fair in Full Swing

ALL ATTENDANCE RECORDS WILL BE BROKEN IF IDEAL WEATHER CONDITIONS OF TODAY CONTINUE

Every Department Shows Improvement Over Previous Years; Free Attractions Best Ever Seen Here

The Pennington County Fair is on. The gates swung open this morning on the finest array of exhibits and the best program of amusements in the history of the organization. Weather conditions are ideal and every indication points to a record-breaking attendance during the four days of the fair.

The increased number of exhibits in every department is the most noticeable feature of the fair. Especially is this true of the livestock entries. There are a number of beef and dairy cattle here from considerable distances, fine herds from Warren and Brooks being in evidence. And Pennington county breeders have done themselves proud in the number and quality of animals entered this year. Anyone who for any reason becomes imbued with the idea that this section of Minnesota cannot produce the very finest livestock in the country should take a look at the exhibits during fair week

Transient Pays Fine as Result of Verbal Battle With His Wife at Hotel

Argument With Spouse Assumes Threatening Proportions and Cop Is Called to Quell Disturbance.

As a result of a noisy argument entered into with his wife at a local hotel early this morning, Albert Jacobs, a transient, was placed under arrest by Night Patrolmen Ralston and Krogstad. When arraigned before Judge N. W. Tarrant in municipal court a few hours later, Jacobs entered a plea of guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct and was assessed a fine of $10 and costs, which he paid.

Jacobs produced a marriage license to show that he had as good a right as anybody to chew the rag with the woman in question.

The couple evidently had intended to leave town on the 5:50 train this morning, according to eyewitnesses, but spent too much time in argument on their way to the depot and missed the train. They then returned to their room at the hotel, where the fun continued until the cops arrived on the scene.

First 1923 Rye Sold to Local Elevator Tuesday

So far as is known, the first rye to be threshed in Pennington county this season was brought to Thief River Falls yesterday and sold to the Sandberg-Roe Elevator company. The rye was threshed on the farm of M. C. Wold, a few miles east of this city, and graded No. 1 at the elevator. The yield is about 14 bushels to the acre.

With favorable weather conditions it is thought that rye threshing will be general in all parts of Pennington county by the end of the week.

Sunday Ball Game Ends When Opposing Players Lose Through Forfeit

Continual Difference of Opinion Is Feature of Contest With Oklee-Plummer Aggregation.

Those who attended the baseball game at the fair grounds diamond last Sunday were treated to a mixture of rag chewing and other forms of controversy which, while not altogether elevating, were sufficient in amount to give the fans value received. The game finally ended in the seventh when the Oklee-Plummer team refused to continue unless a Thief River Falls player who had become engaged in a personal altercation with that team's umpire, be removed from the game. The Thief River Falls umpire did not consider the altercation of sufficient importance to remove the player—and the game was over. Although one run ahead on the tally sheet, the Oklee-Plummer warriors forfeited the game through their refusal to play the full nine innings.

The contest was marked throughout by frequent questioning of decisions on the part of both teams, and the rag chewing which invariably resulted. It was an off day all around, it seems, and it is perhaps better that the fracas ended when it did or it is likely there would have been a case of first degree murder to record.

The sluggers from down the line have an able team and showed up to good advantage. They were shy one player and Martin Brudie of Thief River Falls officiated in the catcher's position for them. He performed his work well and did all he could to help his new associates gather in the scores.

Just how soon a return game will be played has not been decided at this time. It is thought advisable, however, to allow a sufficient length of time to elapse between games to give the players on both teams a chance to cool off somewhat. Otherwise the Lord only knows what might happen.

Helen Weeks, Missionary in China, Returns After Year of Work in Orient

Finds Much of Interest in Mission Field But Decides to Return to Thief River Falls

Miss Helen Weeks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Weeks of this city, arrived last Wednesday morning from Hsinyangshien, Honan, China, where she has been engaged in missionary work under the supervision of the Norwegian Lutheran church. Miss Weeks left Thief River Falls about a year ago for the Chinese field and until March this year devoted her time to the study of Chinese language and customs. From that time until her departure for home she was on active duty in the missionary field at Hsinyangshein.

Miss Weeks has decided not to return to missionary work. She will remain with her parents until the opening of school, when she expects to teach at Warren. She says she enjoyed the year in the Orient immensely and learned much of the language, traditions and customs of the Chinese during her stay there.

Postoffice Alley Paving Nears Completion; Will Prove Big Improvement

Contractor C. M. Carlson Expects to Put Finishing Touches on Job Before End of Week.

The work of paving the alley between Main and LaBree avenues from Second street to Third street, which has been in progress for two weeks, is rapidly nearing completion. C. M. Carlson, local contractor, who is doing the work, stated to a Tribune reporter yesterday that he hoped to have the job entirely finished by Saturday night.

This alley, which carries more traffic than any other similar thoroughfare in the city, has been a source of much annoyance and inconvenience for years, being almost impassable during the early spring months and for several days following heavy rains. When the alley is paved, however, it will be fit for a race course at all seasons of the year, regardless of the weather.

Ball Sluggers Will Go to East Grand Forks Sunday

The Thief River Falls baseball team will go to East Grand Forks next Sunday to play a return game. The trip will be made by automobile and a good-sized army of rooters is expected to accompany the boys. Some weeks ago the locals defeated East Grand Forks on the local diamond and they expect to repeat the performance next Sunday on the enemy's field if such a thing is possible.

The trip to East Grand Forks is not so severe as the one to Bemidji two weeks ago, when the boys met disastrous defeat due largely to being all tired out from the long drive.

Manager of Save-U-Money Store Improves in Health

Arthur E. Keith, manager of the Save-U-Money store, who has been confined to his home by illness for several weeks, is gradually improving and has been able to come down town several times recently. His condition is still such, however, that his physicians advise him to go very slowly in the matter of resuming his usual position in the conduct of his business.

Clerical Error Places Wrong Name Among Tax Delinquents in County

Through a clerical error the name of R. H. Ross, Thief River Falls, appeared in the county commissioners' proceedings published in The Tribune last week in the list of those against whom citations had been ordered issued for the non-payment of personal property taxes. Investigation shows that no such citation is on record, and the slate is absolutely clean so far as Mr. Ross' personal taxes are concerned.

Contractor to Begin Work on Bridge at Once

Construction of Structure South of Thief River Falls to Be Rushed

J. S. Letness of Crookston Awarded the Contract; Needed Improvement

People of this part of the country who had their hopes set high on improvement of the road between Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire, and who received a severe disappointment last week when it was announced that the project was to be abandoned because of a flaw in the law which prevented the sale of the county reimbursement bonds, will receive some degree of satisfaction at least when they learn that work already has started on a new bridge at the entrance to Thief River Falls on the south. The bridge takes the place of the one recently condemned by the highway engineer and which has been a point of real danger to travelers for some time past. The need was so apparent and so urgent that the highway department decided there was no other way out. Consequently the contract was let without delay and the work will be hurried through as rapidly as possible. J. S. Letness of Crookston is the successful bidder, being awarded the job for $2,990.

The contractor arrived on Tuesday and is ready to go to work at once on the erection of the new bridge. Bert F. Umland, county engineer, is the engineer in charge. According to the terms of the contract, the new bridge must be built and ready for use by September 15. This leaves only about six weeks for the completion of the job, but it is thought Mr. Letness will have no trouble in complying with the requirements, being well equipped for such work and having a large and efficient crew.

The bridge is to be of re-enforced concrete construction throughout, with heavy wings extending both directions from each end. It will be eight feet high, 10 feet wide and 68 feet long. No change was made in the dimensions of the bridge due to the failure of the projected improvement of the Thief River Falls-St. Hilaire highway. On the contrary it will be built in such a manner that it will fit in perfectly with the new road whenever this is completed.

Local officials have not yet abandoned all hope of securing the road this year and important developments are expected soon.

Dr. M. Geo. Milan New President of Sanatorium Assn.

Superintendent of Oakland Park to Head State Sanatoria Body

Annual Meeting at Wadena Largely Attended and of Much Value

Dr. M. Geo. Milan, superintendent of the Oakland Park Sanatorium in Thief River Falls, returned the first of this week from Wadena, where he had spent several days in attendance at the annual meeting of the Minnesota Sanatorium association. Dr. Milan was honored by being chosen president of the association at the election of officers held on Friday. Other officers of the association are: First vice president, Dr. Leo G. Guyer, St. Paul; second vice president, Dr. Harry Bendes, Minneapolis; secretary, Beatrice E. Lindberg, St. Paul.

The meeting was the most generally attended of any held by the association With one exception all the 15 sanatoria of the state were represented at the convention.

It was the strongest group of public health and institutional experts in the state that attended the evening meeting including Dr. A. J. Chesley, executive secretary State Board of Health; Dr. P. M. Hall, superintendent state sanatorium, Ah-Gwah-Ching, Minnesota; Dr. Robinson Bosworth, executive secretary Minnesota advisory commission; Dr. C. L. Scofield, president Minnesota Public Health association. R. W. Wheelock and John Coleman, members of the state board of control, were also present, all of whom delivered short talks at the banquet, as well as Representative J. A. Quinn, of Menahga, who is a member of the committee on appropriations of the house of representatives in the state legislature. The speeches were brief, but eloquent (many of them instructive along health lines), and the banquet was ably presided over by Dr. Waldie, superintendent of the Wadena sanatorium.

One of the most interesting features at the Lodge was the oil burning plant which was installed there a year ago. This method of heating has proved a success and one other sanatorium has ordered the necesary changes made for oil installation. In addition to the prepared program Dr. Waldie read a paper on the oil burner, which met with such favor that it was ordered that reprints be made and copies sent, that all superintendents might have it to keep on file.

Friday afternoon the nurses meeting was well attended. Dr. Milan presided. Nurses from several counties and the U. S. Veterans' Bureau were in attendance. Miss Ruth Houlton, superintendent of Public Health Nursing, State Board of Health, gave an excellent paper on the "Public Health Nurse and the Tuberculosis Sanatorium."

NEW GREAT NORTHERN DEPOT MAY BE BUILT IN THIEF RIVER FALLS BEFORE SNOW FLIES; BIDS ASKED

Number of Circumstances Point to Early Action on Part of G. N. Officials; Brings New Hope.

The Tribune hasn't for several weeks had a great deal to say about that new Great Northern depot in Thief River Falls. Fact of the matter is, there hasn't been anything to say. And it must be apparent to even the most casual observer of events in Thief River Falls during the past year or two that newspaper talk won't build depots. If such a thing were possible, Louis W. Hill would be extracting shekels from this community through a much more fitting structure than the one now unblushingly called "depot" by the Great Northern officials—and something entirely different by those unfortunate employes who are domiciled in the present shack.

But, then, what is the reason for this added outburst on a threadbare subject? Just this: New and encouraging evidence has been unearthed tending to show that the Great Northern company has not entirely forgotten the depot matter in Thief River Falls. The facts enumerated below, properly assimilated and analyzed, should lead to the conclusion in any normal mind that Louis W. and his powerful cohort of railroad barons have at last concluded that this city really needs a new depot—and needs it before the dawn of the millenium.

The first suspicious circumstances—or perhaps auspicious would be better—is the fact that bids for the construction of the new building have actually been advertised for and will be submitted next Saturday to the district engineer of the Great Northern, whose office is located at Superior, Wis. Two local contractors, C. M. Carlson and L. D. McAdams, are expected to submit bids on the job. No particular date for beginning the work is mentioned in asking for these bids, but each of the bidders is requested to state how much time he will require to complete the work after it is started.

The second circumstance which seems to indicate action is the fact that the specifications were dated just one week ahead of the time when the bids must be submitted. Somebody must be getting in a hurry, or the bidders would assuredly be given more time.

The third, last and least circumstance is the fact that a week or two ago a carload of coal for winter consumption at the local station arrived in Thief River Falls. Agent W. E. Baker wired the higher-ups concerning its disposition, asking whether it should be stored in the old building or unloaded near the site of the proposed new depot. The reply stated that as no provision had as yet been made for storing coal on the new site, the car of winter fuel should be billed out for distribution at other stations along the line. No coal has since arrived and the officials evidently do not care whether or not a winter supply is stored in the old building.

Above are set forth the reasons for The Tribune's epistle today on the subject of a new Great Northern depot. To say the least, it looks as if Thief River Falls is to have a new depot—and it looks as if the building is to be erected soon. And aside from these signs and symptoms, no positive information is available. Time alone can tell.

As near as can be learned, the dimensions of the proposed new depot are 30x134 feet, frame construction with brick veneer below a line even with the bottom of the windows, and the remainder of stucco finish. The plans call for a building substantially like the one tentatively agreed upon early last spring and described in these columns when the agitation for a new depot was at its height.

PRICE STABILIZATION MEETING WILL BE HELD IN THIEF RIVER FALLS TO PETITION FOR RELIEF

Farmers and Business Men to Discuss Plans for Fixing Wheat Prices—Magnus Johnson May Speak.

At a meeting of farmers and business men held last evening at the Commercial club rooms a motion was passed empowering a committee to call a meeting of the people of the northwest to be held in this city in the near future to consider plans for stabilizing the price of wheat.

It is likely that the meeting will take action in line with other cities of the northwest which have petitioned President Harding to call an extra session of congress for the purpose of fixing a government price upon wheat.

Senator Magnus Johnson has been invited by the County Fair Association to speak here Saturday, and in the event that he accepts it is likely a mass meeting will be held at the fair grounds at that time.

A committee of which G. Halvorson is chairman has charge of publicity for the meeting, while the arrangements for hall, etc., are in charge of a committee headed by Harry Brumund.

Rev. Bot Nyborg, Pastor Here Five Years, Leaves For New Field in West

Rev. J. Jacobsen to Succeed Him in Pulpit of Scandinavian Evangelical Church

Rev. Bot Nyborg, who for the past five years has been the pastor of the Scandinavian Evangelical church in this city, will preach his farewell sermon next Sunday. Rev. Nyborg expects to leave with his family next Tuesday for Tacoma, Wash., where he has accepted a call in a larger field with greater opportunities. Before coming to Thief River Falls Rev. Nyborg was pastor of a church at Portland, Maine, thus going clear from one side of the United States to the other in two moves. He is known as a tireless and conscientious worker and has endeared himself in the hearts of his parishioners during his stay here.

Rev. J. Jacobsen, who recently graduated from a theological seminary in Minneapolis, will take Rev. Nyborg's place in the local field. He will be formally installed as pastor of the church at services to be conducted next Sunday.

Adjourned Court Term to Hear Liquor Cases Asking for New Trials

Session to Be Held by Judge Andrew Grindeland in Thief River Falls on Friday, August 10.

An adjourned term of the district court will be held at the courthouse in Thief River Falls on Friday, August 10, with Judge Andrew Grindeland of Warren presiding. The particular business to be taken care of at this session is hearing a number of motions for new trials, filed by several men who were convicted at the last regular term of court for violation of the prohibition laws. The men asking for new trials are F. C. Brendecke, C. B. Bradley, Glenn Farr and A. C. Rasmusson. In the event Judge Grindeland denies the motions for new trials, it is understood all of the four cases mentioned above will be appealed to the supreme court.

Several minor matters also will come up for consideration by the court at this session.

Wholesale-Retail House Started in City to Fill Needs of Coffee Trade

A. V. Swenson and O. W. Carlson last week opened a wholesale and retail coffee business in the building on Third street formerly occupied by the H. K. Strand grocery. It is the intention of the new firm to handle nothing but coffee, the well known Plantation coffee being the brand dispensed. This company will be distributers of this entire district in the wholesaling of Plantation coffee.

Mr. Swenson is no stranger to the people of this vicinity, having for a number of years engaged in livestock buying, and is considered a good business man. Mr. Carlson has been a resident of Thief River Falls for many years and has been engaged in various lines. Recently he disposed of his soft drink establishment on LaBree avenue.

Gustavian Concert Pleases.

The concert given last Sunday evening at the Augustana church in this city by the Gustavian quartette from Gustavus Adolphus college, St. Peter, proved a rare musical treat to the large audience present. Each of the musicians is an artist and the program in its entirety was perfect in every detail. Should these singers decide to return to Thief River Falls at some future date they are assured of a rousing welcome from every music lover in the city.

Former Business Man Here.

Theodore Hagen, formerly a member of the Thief River Music company and for many years a resident of this city, arrived last week from Davenport, Ia., where he has spent the past year. He expects to remain for several days in order to close up as much as possible his business affairs. Mr. Hagen recently graduated from the Palmer School of Chiropractic at Davenport and expects to engage in the practice in his new profession.

Local Boy, Last Sunday Ordained Into Lutheran Ministry, Begins Work

Rev. Milton Weeks of Thief River Falls Assigned to Charge at Webster, Wisconsin.

Milton Weeks, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Weeks of Thief River Falls, who was ordained as a minister in the Norwegian Lutheran church at beautiful and impressive exercises held at Trinity church in this city last Sunday, will enter upon active duty at once.

Rev. Weeks, in company with his brother, Rev. E. R. Weeks of Kerkhoven, who was present at the ordination exercises here, left Tuesday morning for Kerkhoven. After visiting there for a few days, Rev. Milton Weeks will proceed to Webster, Wis., which has been assigned to him as his first charge.

The new addition to the Lutheran clergy is a young man of unusual ability, and his numerous friends in Thief River Falls feel sure he will acquit himself with much credit in the vocation he has chosen as his life work.

Representative Waldal Pays City Brief Visit

Marius Waldal, representative from this district, is a visitor in Thief River Falls today. Mr. Waldal is devoting his time to organizing the potato growers of this section on a co-operative basis and has been holding meetings during the past week in Roseau and Kittson counties, where he has met with much encouragement. Another effort will be made to complete the organization in Pennington county at an early date. Owing to a confusion in dates the attendance at the meeting held last week for this purpose was not as large as it should have been.

Mr. Waldal left this afternoon for Twin Valley, where is scheduled to speak at a large meeting of potato growers this evening. He says growers are signing the co-operative agreements very readily and present progress indicates that more than 50 per cent of the acreage in the district will be signed up before this year's potato crop is ready for market.

Oscar Evenson Has New Automobile Repair Shop

Oscar Evenson last week rented the work room of the Rasmusson garage on Main avenue, formerly occupied by the Northwestern Automobile company, and has moved his motor repair equipment into it. He formerly was located in a building on Horace avenue. The new shop provides an ideal place for Mr. Evenson's business and will enable him to care for the wants of his patrons in a highly satisfactory manner. The storage and show rooms of the Rasmusson building are still in charge of Alfred Rasmusson, under whose supervision this part of the building has been since last November when the Northwestern company relinquished its lease.

McWilliams Now Chiropractor.

R. B. McWilliams, formerly manager of The Tribune and well known in Thief River Falls business circles, has recently graduated from the Palmer School of Chiropractic at Davenport, Ia., and expects to engage actively in that profession in the future. Mr. McWilliams has not yet decided where he will locate.

Annual School Election Cause of Little Stir

Two Former Directors Reelected Practically Without Opposition

Financial Affairs of District Shown to Be in Excellent Shape

No change was made in the personnel of the school board for Independent School District No. 18 at the school election held last week. Mrs. L. G. Larsen and E. O. Mogensen, the two members whose terms expire this year, were re-elected practically without opposition, receiving a large majority of the 30 votes cast. No issue of particular interest to the public required decision at this time, which accounts for the small vote and the apparent lack of interest in the outcome of the election. Both members of the board whose terms expired have given highly satisfactory service and their re-election undoubtedly represents the desire of an overwhelming majority of the taxpayers in the district.

Contrary to the custom usually followed at annual school meetings, no budget was decided upon for next year. This matter was left for the consideration of the board at its meeting on Monday, August 13. Finances of the district are in better shape than for many years and the new term will be begun with no old orders outstanding and remaining to be paid. The steady decrease of outstanding orders from year to year has been made possible through a more accurate system of estimating the budget.

Following is given a brief review of the district's financial transactions during the past year, which will serve to show the taxpayer just how his money is used:

The New Minnesota Senator

The following article, written by an Eastern newspaper man, is reproduced because it shows the national interest taken in the recent senatorial election in Minnesota, and also because it shows a commendable understanding of the reasons leading up to the political upheaval in the North Star State. Says this writer:

"Magnus Johnson of Meeksr county, Minnesota, the second member of the Farmer-Labor party to be elected to a seat in the United States Senate—the other being his more youthful Minnesota colleague, Hendrick Shipstead—is certain to be one of the most picturesque figures in the sixty-eighth congress.

"The new senator, who is pledged to line up with the LaFollette-Wheeler-Brookhart bloc, was born in Warmland, Sweden, 52 years ago and came to America 30 years ago. In Sweden he was a first-class bottle glass blower, but arriving in this country he took up a farm in Minnesota which he still owns, though heavily mortgaged.

"The public career of Senator Johnson started eight years ago when he was elected to the Legislature. He served two terms and was one of the hardest working members, especially with regard to farmer and labor legislation. In 1922 he was Farmer-Labor candidate for governor against Governor Preus. He came within less than 15,000 votes of election.

"It is claimed that he never wore a dress suit and never will. He campaigned in his shirt sleeves, and when the days were very hot he had a habit of removing collar and tie. He is of medium heighth, wears gold-rimmed spectacles, looks and acts very much like Teddy Roosevelt, likes to mix with the people, refers to himself as Magnus, and admits that he has the loudest voice of any man in Minnesota. His voice is certain to create a sensation in the Senate. He can be heard two blocks away when speaking in the open, and the Swedish dialect adds to its smoothness.

"The gravest question confronting the United States today is the distress of the farming community. While the farmer is suffering because of the low prices obtained for what he has to sell, the rest of the world suffers from the high price of farm products. Magnus Johnson, like Shipstead before him, incarnates the farmers' attempted answer to this problem. He represents the protest and the hopes of that great body of producers upon whom rest the prosperity and even existence of the Nation. He is not to be dismissed flippantly. He is a figure to be treated with respect, because of the convictions and the justifiable revolt which he typifies."

Booze Runners Captured at Red Lake Falls With Much Alcohol for Sale

St. Paul Men Run Into Trouble When Effort Is Made to Dispose of Liquor

Sheriff Chas. Fellman arrested two St. Paul men, Edward Donov and Frank MacKay, when the men arrived in Red Lake Falls Friday with 33 gallons of alcohol and attempted to dispose of it.

Donov was taken before Judge Watts and pleaded guilty to the charge of transporting liquor and was given a sentence of 45 days in the county jail together with a fine of $200, which must be paid before he is released.

MacKay, who accompanied Donov, is being held while County Attorney Charles E. Boughton, Jr., is making a further investigation as to his interests in the liquor and a car which was being used for the transportation of the alcohol. Information reaching Attorney Boughton from St. Paul is to the effect that a St. Paul concern is holding a mortgage of $400 on the car.

Wheat Surplus Stored in Bins Is Bureau Plan

Method Approved by J. F. Reed, Minnesota Federation President.

Credit Banks to Be Used in Effort to Improve Price of Wheat.

A plan to withdraw 200,000,000 bushels of wheat from the market and store it on the farm, proposed last week by the American Farm Bureau Federation, has the unanimous approval of directors of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, according to a statement issued last week by J. F. Reed, president.

Under the new Interemdiate Credit Act and the amended Warehouse Act, the Farm Bureau proposes that the grower borrow three-fourths of the market price of his wheat and hold it for a satisfactory price. It is estimated that $150,000,000 of Intermediate the farmer to store 200,000,000 bushate Credit would be ample to enable the farmer to store 200,000,000 bushels of wheat and thereby remove it from the present below-a-dollar market.

The Farm Bureau plan would have the Secretary of Ariculture designate sound farm wheat bins as government-bonded warehouses, and would provide for issuance of the usual bonded warehouse receipts against such wheat stored on the farm. The grower could borrow through the Intermediate Credit system with the warehouse receipt as collateral. This would enable him to hold his wheat until price advances made it advisable for him to sell.

The Wichita, Kansas, Intermediate Credit bank already is advancing $100,000 a day to growers under the plan.

It is believed that the withdrawal of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat from the market and locking it up under governmental seal in farm warehouses will have an immediate and tremendous effect on the price.

Davis, Lowden, Wilson and Ralston with lesser numbers. Leaving Harding out, Mr. Ford polled more votes than all others combined. He polled nearly as many as all Republicans combined, including Harding.

Red Lake Indian Under Arrest for Murder of Woman Four Years Ago

Accused Man Taken to Bemidji and Will Be Tried in Federal Court This Fall.

Joe Martin, age 33, Chippewa Indian living on the Red Lake reservation, was arrested Friday night at Puposky by federal authorities and taken to Bemidji on a warrant to face charges in connection with the death of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Susan De Foe, occuring four years ago.

Mrs. DeFoe, also a Chippewa Indian, left home on the reservation on the afternoon of July 9, 1919, to pick berries. Her body was found the following day by her brother, Frank, after an all night search about two miles out from the agency along the road leading to Bemidji. Several bruises marked her body and she was unconscious when found, passing away very shortly afterward without disclosing her assailant.

John Stillday was arrested about a month later on a federal warrant and charged with the crime, but was released because of lack of evidence. Martin appeared at the hearing as a witness against Stillday. Since that time the department of justice officials have continued a secret investigation of the case and clues were traced to Martin just recently.

The accused man is held at the Beltrami county jail in Bemidji and will tried in federal court early this fall.

Music Courses Popular at Agricultural School

Seventy students were enrolled for private music instruction at the Northwest School last year. This work was part of the regular course and credit was given toward graduation. In order to care for the increased interest in this work, the school offers still better facilities during the coming year. Three instructors will give lessons in voice, piano, band and orchestra instruments. Private practice rooms are provided. From this it can be seen that Northwestern Minnesota young people are greatly interested in securing a musical education and that music holds a very prominent place in the course of study. For those musically inclined opportunity is given to become members of the glee clubs, chorus of 100 voices, band and orchestra.

In addition the school lecture course the ensuing year will bring noted artists to the institution. The other courses at the school include courses in agriculture, home training, nursing and farm business subjects. The school term is six months each year, beginning October 1. Many young men and women are now planning to enter the school when the fall term opens.

KNOCKING RURAL CREDITS.

The farmers are still waiting for evidence of results on the part of the State Rural Credits Commission.—Thief River Falls Times.

The man who wrote the above fling at the Rural Credits Bureau should hang his head in shame. Abstracts are in course of preparation which will bring $300,000 to the farmers of Pennington county, and The Times can ascertain these facts without much trouble. Except for the secret nature of the work of the state, The Tribune could name a number of farmers in this vicinity whose homes have been saved by virtue of the quick operation of the state credit system. It is charitable to assume that The Times does not intentionally align itself with those who are always opposing the interests of the farmer, but a newspaper which has just recently taken its stand with the power interests when an attempt was made to drive hundreds of Pennington county farmers from their farms by adding another ditch assessment, and now indulges in weekly "digs" at the state agency which has lifted the 10 per cent interest burden from the necks of scores of farmers, must not complain if people are beginning to wonder how it "gets that way."

HOPE FOR FUTURE.

Now that newspapers and public men are exercised and het up over the plight of the farmer, perhaps some solution to the dilemma will be found. The grain farmer has been in a hell's hole for many years and the only real opportunity he ever had to reap any benefit from his work and investment was nipped in the bud by the government when grain prices were fixed during the war.

Now the small grain farmer is virtually bankrupt and that portion of the United States which is dependent upon the prosperity of the grain farmer faces a critical situation. Wheat prices generally form the standard of values all along the line. If wheat is cheap, then rye, barley, potatoes and everything else is cheap, and hence if the price of wheat can by any method be raised to a decent level, it is possible that we shall have fair prices for everything.

And if the government now steps in and fixes the price of wheat, even at a loss to the taxpayers of the country, where is the harm or injustice? The farmer did not "holler" when the government put the price of wheat down in 1918. He paid tribute to every imaginable class of profiteer during the war.

Farmers did not complain when the so-called "Wheat Corporation" of the government robbed them of more than fifty millions of dollars by unfair manipulation of grades. The farmer has had a tough row to hoe, and unless prices are in some manner stabilized —and that soon—then the farmer and the city man are both in for some mighty hard times.

TREND OF THE TIMES.

The Christian Science Monitor recently contained the following sensible editorial:

"A nation-wide survey of metropolitan American newspapers yesterday reveals with startling clearness the comparative importance which editors of the United States attach to news of a prize fight in Montana, and a meeting of world educators in San Francisco, where the National Education Association and the World Conference on Education have been in session for some days discussing maters of significance to every man, woman and child in the United States.

"The survey shows that in New York City yesterday, in eight newspapers, 1425¾ inches of space, or about 70 columns, were devoted to the Dempsey-Gibbons prize fight in Shelby, Mont., while the San Francisco conferences, where such subjects as "A World University," "Need for a World History Textbook," and school needs in various parts of the world were being discussed, received only 93½ inches, or about 3 1-3 columns.

"In Chicago, the people of America's second largest city who read seven of the metropolitan papers, were swamped with 1353 inches of prize fight news, or 64 columns, including pictures, while ony 1¾ inches, contained in one paper—apart from slight editorial comment—represented the information editors thought essential to give to cover world education.

"Washington, usually a center for national news, devoted 19¼ columns to the fight yesterday in four newspapers, while education was given but eight inches. On the day before, the Washington News had given four columns of space to the prize fight and nothing to the conventions.

"Editors of four Philadelphia morning papers gave 33 1-3 columns to the fight and let their readers search in vain for information regarding the world problems of education."

YOUR TOBACCO HEART.

The Dearborn Independent recently had a strong article on "Tobacco, Tombstones and Profits," by Luther Burbank, from which we quote as follows:

"What killed General Grant? Why, of course you know—cancer. But what caused the cancer in his throat? Do you know? Something caused it. General Lee could not get Grant, but tobacco got him.

"What killed President McKinley? An assassin's bullet, you say. Partly right and partly wrong. McKinley was shot, but this would not need have proved fatal. Thousands of men, hurt worse, have survived. But they had good hearts. When a great strain comes, strong hearts are necessary to bring the sufferers through alive. McKinley, when he was born, had a strong heart, but the tobacco habit got him and left his heart muscles soft and flabby. When McKinley had need of a strong heart he went down because he smoked up his most vital strength.

"Woodrow Wilson when old was seized by an ailment that brought him almost to the point of death. For hours he was unconscious and for weeks his physicians could not say whether he would live or die. He had need of a good heart. If Mr. Wilson had been a smoker, Mr. Marshall might have been President.

"In the African jungle, Mr. Roosevelt was stricken with such a fever that he begged his son and other companions to save themselves by leaving him to die. He, too, had need of a strong heart—and he had one. Mr. Roosevelt never used tobacco. His African illness was so serious that he returned to America emaciated and shaken, but he at least had the heart-power to enable him to get back.

"But the case for or against tobacco cannot be conclusively proved by what happened to this or that man. The point I am trying to make is that when in pinch everyone has need of all the heart-power he can muster—and tobacco weakens heart-power. There is no doubt about that. When one's heart is faltering, no doctor ever prescribes nicotine. Nicotine is a slow poison that strikes at the heart first."

To prove that tobacco is an economic as well as a physical menace, Mr. Burbank elucidates a statement which is rather startling: "If the money that American people are wasting for tobacco were invested in homes, every man and woman could have a home free of debt before reaching the age of fifty."

The Tribune has been terribly puzzled over the election of Magnus Johnson by such an overwhelming majority, but the secret of the thing leaked out last week. He had the support of the Thief River Falls Times.

EXCHANGE ECHOES

Overloaded Roads Mean Waste.

The Faribault News tells us the "gravel roads of Southern Minnesota are beginning to show the effects of the terrific traffic to which they are daily subjected. In many places the roads are beginning to be quite badly cut up. In other places they are so rough as to make driving far from a pleasure. Maintenance, it is pointed out, is so expensive that it would be almost prohibitive to attempt to keep the roads always in a state of perfect repair." It might be remarked in passing that one way to eliminate the heavy expense of maintenance is to pave the highway.—Mankato Free Press.

Getting Acquainted at Home.

The register at the tourist camp shows that the people are getting acquainted with their own state. About three-fourths of the visitors to register so far this season are from the lower and western sections of Minnesota. There are, however, visitors from nearly every other state in the Union, and the outsider will be more numerous from now on.—Hibbing News.

Hurrah for Minnesota.

A party of automobile tourists from Michigan and headed for the Pacific coast, who tarried in this fine town long enough to eat their noon meal and rest a while, told the Globe that our roads are better than anything they have traveled on farther east. This is good news, though every Minnesotan suspected it from the beginning. Good roads are the best asset any state has, and Minnesota has that asset. Hurrah for Minnesota!—Worthington Globe.

Families on the Highways.

It is doubtful if there is anything more important in our complicated civilization than swift, pleasant, easy and comparatively cheap means of inter-communication and all these things are closely associated with good roads. They are a prime industrial asset spelling added wealth in millions to the state, and in these days when so many families spend their hours of keenest pleasure on the road, they have become more important than ever.—Minnesota Daily Star.

Stageberg Sells Jewelry to Chris Halvorsen and May Seek New Location

Proprietor of O. K. Store Disposes of Interests to Well-Known Thief River Falls Jeweler.

A deal was made this week whereby M. G. Stageberg sold the O. K. jewelry and watch repairing establishment on LaBree avenue to Chris Halvorsen, well-known Thief River Falls jeweler who for the past eight years has been employed in the Olaf Neset jewelry store. The transfer was made today and Mr. Halvorsen is now in charge. He is a man of long experience and is a skillful workman in every branch of the jewelry business.

Mr. Stageberg conducted the O. K. store for about eight years and enjoyed a good business. While he has no immediate plans for the future, he expects to make a trip to the Pacific coast within the next month or two and if he finds a location which looks good to him he may decide to re-engage in business. In the meantime he will enjoy a well-earned rest and vacation, the first he has had in many years. Friends of the Stageberg family hope they will continue to make their home in Thief River Falls.

Dawson Editor Visits Here Between Trains

Theodore Christianson, "Watch Dog of State Treasury," Speaker at Big Picnic.

Theodore Christianson of Dawson, well known lawyer and editor, was a visitor in this city Sunday evening, when he caught the east bound flyer on the Soo after addressing a large farmers' picnic at the home of Representative Green near Stephen. Mr. Christianson was accompanied here by Representative Waldal of Plummer.

Mr. Christianson is one of the best known public men in Minnesota, having served as head of the appropriations committee of the House for several sessions, and his work there has been of such outstanding character as to earn him the title of "the watch dog of the treasury." A number of progressive measures bear his name and it is mainly due to his efforts that Minnesota is today loaning money to farmers at extremely low rates of interest. He was author of the constitutional amendment providing for a rural credits law and was a powerful factor in bringing about the passage of the law.

Mr. Christianson has been prominently mentioned by the progressive newspapers of Minnesota for governor next year and should he consent to run The Tribune ventures the prediction that he will be triumphantly elected.

Veterans Bureau Assists Service Men in Settling on Farms in Minnesota

Aim Is to Make Farm Owners and Not Farm Laborers Out of Men Who Fought for Uncle Sam.

There has been a widespread interest throughout the northwest in the plan of the U. S. Veterans Bureau to assist disabled veterans to settle upon small farms of their own so that they may become independent farmers and not farm laborers, when their vocational training in agriculture is completed.

The general plan is for each veteran to purchase a small farm, usually about 40 acres. Sometimes these are improved, but more often they consist of wild land. The farms are paid for month by month out of the maintenance allowance the man receives from the Veterans' Bureau while he is in vocational training, which usually continues for three years.

So far as possible these agriculaural trainees are grouped around certain towns in order to enable the Veterans' Bureau to supervise their work and give them instruction. The centers already established and the approximate number of men at each is as follows: Veteransville, 40; Silver Star (near McGrath), 22; Onamia, 21; Brainerd, 17; Bemidji, 14; Grand Rapids, 20; Aitkin, 17; Moose Lake, 62; Argonne Farms (near Orchard Gardens), 29; Mankato, 19.

One or more instructors is stationed at each of the above towns to instruct the men in applied agriculture. This is a new and distinctive feature in agricultural instruction, but a logical and practical one—to teach the man on his own land those aspects of agricultural science that will best serve his individual needs and make his "fertile acres of farm land smile back at him with bounteous crops ready for the market," while he sits in the midst of a contented family.

Livestock Show Feature Greatest in History of State Fair Is Promised

Choicest Cattle of Country to Be on Exhibition at Northwest Dairy Exposition.

The biggest livestock show in the history of any state fair ever held is promised this year for the Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Dairy Exposition, September 1 to 8, according to Secretary Thomas H. Canfield.

The big feature of the livestock show will be the Northwest Dairy Exposition, at which from 1,200 to 1,500 head of the choicest dairy cattle in America will be exhibited. The prizes for dairy cattle have been doubled, and total more than $21,000. Entries for this show close Monday, August 6 and entries for beef cattle close the same day.

There will be a big exhibit of horses. Interest in the horse exhibit is increasing, due to the greater demand for pure-bred animals for breeding purposes. The evening horse show in the Livestock pavilion, five nights of the fair, will be a wonderful feature. Entries for breeding horses close Aug. 6, while entries for the evening horse show division close Aug. 13.

The sheep and swine shows are expected to be unusually large when entries close Aug. 13. Poultries close Tuesday, Aug. 21.

Total premiums are offered as follows: Dairy and beef cattle, $34,770, horses, $19,025; swine $7,210; sheep, $4,840; poultry, $2,965.

Deer Runs Race With Auto; Partridge Sits on Touring Car Hood

Queer Antics of Northern Minnesota Game Indicates Men and Motors Are Little Feared.

Dr. Osburn, who drove in from Baudette Friday a. m., reports that on the way he had two rather unusual experiences. Along one stretch of the road a deer came out from the woods and raced alongside of the automobile. The animal kept up even with the automobile, which was traveling at a rate of thirty miles an hour. As Dr. Osburn slowed up the car slightly the animal attempted to cross over the roadway ahead of him but fell and almost caused his cart to hit the deer. Further on the road a partridge lit on the hood of Dr. Osburn's car and calmly looked through the windshield at the occupants.—International Falls Echo.

$10,000.00 Is Cost of Putting on Dance in Douglas County Halls

Up to date no one dance promoter has offered to pay the $10,000 fee demanded by the board of supervisors of Alexandria township, Douglas county, for the privilege of staging a dance anywhere in the township.

Not being able to prohibit the holding of dances in the township, but possessing the power of placing the license fee so high that no one but a Tex Rickard or Jimmy Johnstone would dare to take a chance, the officials feel they have found an effective way of placing a curb on undesirable dance hall proprietors from staging dances in which illicit liquor drinking and rowdyism have in the past played such a prominent part.

The board of supervisors is still waiting for the venturesome individual who wants to pay the $10,000 fee.

RED RIVER VALLEY DRIVE IS PLANNED

New Potato Organization Preparing to Begin Work in Northern Counties.

Organization work in the Red River Valley counties will be undertaken in July by those behind the project to perfect in Minnesota a co-operative potato sales agency based on the California plan and the Sapiro contract.

Thus far, contracts have been circulated in counties outside the Valley section. Red Lake has completed its quota of 50 per cent of the commercial acreage and Clearwater and Beltrami are near the goal. Excellent progress has been made in Becker, Winona and Itasca.

While the Valley campaign is being organized, work will be organized in the sections already covered and will be extended into Chisago, Kanabec, Benton and Isanti counties. In these, township meetings have been scheduled and E. W. Smith will explain the plan to leaders. Thereafter, solicitation will be carried on on a voluntary basis.

The campaign in the valley will have the full time of Campaign Manager S. G. Rubinow, who will work with Marius Waldal of Plummer, a member of the executive board. Mr. Waldal has agreed to serve as active head of the organization in that section. Preliminary steps have already been taken in Polk county, under local leadership. A general meeting has been held and a committee named to represent every township. Polk county is considered the "key" county in the campaign, as it has the largest acreage and therefore more acres will have to be signed before the campaign is complete. In Clay county, another heavy potato producing county, work already has been started and Robert Scott of Borup, member of the state committee, has signed up 100 acres.

Thus far in the campaign more than 700 contracts have been signed, with an aggregate acreage of nearly 8,000.

The faithful shall be rewarded even unto the eleventh generation and the precinct committeeman.

Minnesota Needs Still More Good Dairy Cows

Minnesota leads its nearest rival, Wisconsin, by $23,000,000 in its annual production of creamery butter—but the total dairy income of Wisconsin is over twice as large as ours.

This means that Minnesota has only begun to realize its possibilities as a dairying state. We need many more high-grade cows; we need them right here in our own section of the state.

This bank is glad to assist in financing more dairy cattle. If you are interested, come in and talk it over.

J. W. Wheeler, Former Crookston Banker, Dies Suddenly From Apoplexy

Identified With Development of Red River Valley Had Unlimited Faith in Country

J. W. Wheeler, well known throughout the Red River Valley and for many years identified with the banking business in Crookston, died suddenly last Saturday afternoon at the Town and Country club, St. Paul, while playing golf. His death was due to a stroke of apoplexy.

Mr. Wheeler was born in Kenosha, Wis., January 15, 1863. In the early days he came to Crookston and was teller and bookkeeper at the First National bank from 1885 to 1892. He accepted a position as cashier of the Scandia American bank of Crookston and remained with that institution until 1895, when he returned to the First National bank as cashier. Later he became president of the Capitol National Trust company of St. Paul and moved at once with his family to that place. He at once took a prominent part in banking and business circles and his influence as an authority on economic conditions continued to grow up to the time of his death.

After serving with the Capitol Trust for a few years he was elected president of the Capitol National bank of St. Paul and at the last national convention of the National Farm Mortgage Bankers' association he was chosen president of that organization. He was also president of the Wheeler Land and Loan company of Crookston.

Mr. Wheeler was a strong advocate of every project for the advancement of the Red River Valley and a firm and consistent believer in its gfeat future. In his sudden taking this part of the state will lose a valuable friend and able advocate.

He is survived by his widow, a son ahd two daughters.

in Thief River Falls. The erroneous idea won't last long, that's sure.

Lack of time prevents a detailed account of the various exhibits this week in The Tribune, but suffice it to say that every department is up to standard—and then some. An effort will be made to cover these features more fully in next week's issue.

The Crookston Municipal band arrived this morning and will fill the air with music during the remainder of the week. Crookston has a fine musical organization and its presence here this week will add materially to the pleasure of the occasion.

The free amusement features before the grandstand are of a standard seldom equalled at county fairs. Everything is of a high order and in sufficient variety to furnish thrills and amusement for everyone. In addition a great variety of amusement is offered by the Lachmann Exposition Shows, which hold forth at the fair grounds all week. There are merry-go-rounds, ferris wheels, "whips," ocean waves and other contrivances for those who like to keep in motion, while a number of high grade shows at reasonable admission fees are conducted in tents on the grounds. In fact, generally speaking, it would be difficult to imagine a better county fair, no matter from what angle it is viewed.

And, of course, no fair is complete without a racing program. Here, too, the local fair excels. Every afternoon an exceptionally strong series of horse races has been provided. It is said that about 45 horses have been entered to take part in the races during the week. Then there is auto polo, one of the most exciting games on record. This fascinating sport will furnish thrills every day, while on Saturday a fast game of auto push ball will furnish thrills and amusement.

One of the finest things about the fair this year is the beautiful and elaborate display of fireworks which will be shown Thursday and Friday evenings. The numbers for each evening's program embrace practically every known kind of pyrotechnics. Aerial displays, set pieces, ground devices, comic specialties and scores of other thrillers are embraced in the schedule. In addition to the regular display of fireworks, the program announces a change each evening in the feature numbers. The fireworks display will be in charge of special representatives of the Thearle-Duffield Fireworks company, largest manufacturers of fireworks displays in the world.

Saturday afternoon Rosewood and Thief River Falls are scheduled for a game of baseball. The village up the Wheat Line has a strong bunch of sluggers this year and an interesting contest may be looked for. A large delegation of Rosewood folks are planning to be here Saturday to help their team walk off with the honors.

Ed Mobraaten of Wendell, Minn., was in the city last week looking after his various business interests. He is interested in the Goodridge State bank and has real estate interests here. His brother-in-law, H. S. Dahlen, accompanied him on a tour of the county, and he informed The Tribune that crop prospects in Pennington county were much better than any he has seen.

"It Must Have Been Dead at Least 6 Months. But Didn't Smell."

"Saw a big rat in our cellar last fall," writes Mrs. Joanny, "and bought a 35c cake of RAT-SNAP, broke it up into small pieces. Last week while moving we came across the dead rat. Must have been dead six months, didn't smell. RAT-SNAP is wonderful." Three sizes, 35c, 65c, $1.25. Sold and guaranteed by Hall Brothers Co.—adv.

Warroad Senator Run Over by Farm Tractor

Senator A. M. Landby, while returning from work last Saturday evening, was run over by a Fordson tractor.

Mr. Landby was riding on the oil tank, while his son, John, operated the machine, going around a mud hole Mr. Landby leaned to one side falling between the wheels.

The hind wheel passed over his body, fracturing several ribs and otherwise bruising him up considerably. The fact that the wheel, between traction cleats, was packed with dirt is likely to be the reason for Senator Landby being alive today.

Mr. Landby at present is considered out of danger but will be laid up for some time.

Today's World Topics

Trouble Brewing in Philippines.—Conditions in the Philippine Islands are badly mixed, and because of the intense feeling on the part of natives, serious trouble may ensue.

The start of the trouble dates back to the report of the Woods-Forbes Commission, appointed by the Secretary of War to investigate and pass upon the question of granting independence. Former Governor-General Harrison and Taft had recommended that that be done, and President Wilson twice asked Congress to fulfill the promise made in 1916 in the Jones Act. Everything in the Island seemed to be moving in good shape. General Wood and Mr. Forbes recommended that the independence be delayed, and shortly afterwards General Wood was appointed to succeed General Harrison as Governor of the Islands. From that time dates all the trouble. General Wood, as governor, vetoed some sixteen measures passed by the Filipino legislature, a large number of which related to municipal organizations. General Wood's administration has been very unsatisfactory to the Filipinos and numerous official delegations have filed complaints at Washington. The constant clash has finally resulted in the resignation of the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House. These two, with General Wood, constitute the Board of Control, and as the matter now stands General Wood is sheared of much of his power. It is a matter Congress will have to deal with.

There is no secret in Washington circles as to the fact that Congress believes the Filipinos should be granted their independence, as promised, but the War Department is determined to keep a grip on the islands, at all costs.

The situation is really serious, because of the growing Filipino sentiment that the United States is not sincere or honest in its pretensions. Unless something is soon done the 11,000,000 Filipinos may open the way for Japan to get a foothold.

Discouragement Means Lack of Courage.—There never lived a human being who wasn't at times discouraged. It's an inevitable phase of existence. Its' a good thing, too.

Discouragement, rightly accepted, is one of the most encouraging things in the world.

But the right way to accept it is to reject it; that is, to reject it after you have got the good from it. In every instance where discouragement is genuine, there is good to be got from it.

For nine times out of ten it is due to some lack that needs correction; some fault that needs mending; some mistake that needs righting.

Nothing from without can discourage the man who is right within. Remember this!

To say you're discouraged means you lack courage.

Why do you lack this prime necessity? What made you waste it or neglect its cultivation?

It was in you once, and it's in you now, if you'll only dig it out from under the muck of mental miasma.

Let some stirring crisis come along, and you'd have no trouble finding it. But we cant' go forward by explosions. We're not automobiles, but men and women, who have certain duties to meet. and certain hard things to do, and certain problems to solve for our own good and the good of others.

And only the weakling, the coward, runs around trying to borrow courage from others when the need is imminent. The Man, the Woman, digs down into the storeroom of self, gets a length or two of the rope of self-reliance and ties up to the dock of deeds, intsead of drifting aimlessly about on the sea of indecision and wailing: "I'm so discouraged!"

If you are discouraged, don't advertise the fact.

No one is desirous of trusting a discouraged person. Some beings with a mistaken idea of sympathy may seek to salve over the sore with soothing words that have about as much effect as would one drop of water in floating a stranded ship, but these very beings would be last to intrust a discouraged fellow with any measure of responsibility.

When you're discouraged, DIG!

And smile while you're digging.

Dig in your own garden plot, too!

Oh, yes, you've got one! Maybe you thought it was only a weed patch but thats' because you have never taken care of it.

Every flower garden in the world was a weed patch before it bloomed in roses or pansies, and if they weren't well cared for, every one would be a weed patch again in a few weeks.

You've got a garden plot that'll grow fine flowers. But you can't keep it blooming by acknowledging discouragement.

Don't acknowledge it. Ignore it, and it'll soon take the hint.

Democracy in Germany Is Disappearing.—With the prolongation of the struggle in the Ruhr district, the activity of the ultra Pan-Germans is increasing every day. They believe the time for action will come soon. A rising of workers, it is believed, is not at all improbable, as unrest is growing steadily among them. The falling mark, the constantly increasing cost of living, big profits on one hand and insufficient wages on the other, unjust taxation, lack of patriotism on the part of certain industrialists and the passiveness of the government toward all these evils are only a few causes of dissatisfaction.

That the situation in Germany is dangerous is beyond question. Germany is now prostrate, in the throes of complete moral and political disorganization. Its democracy is gradually weakening, and a continuation of the present chaos must prove advantageous only to the reactionary monarchist party, which means a reversal of the democratic movement, the effetive triumph of which remains the allied desire. In short, the republic is greatly menaced, and with it the democratic institutions of central Europe.

All schemes for reconstruction, even in central Europe, are based on the existence of a good understanding between Great Britain and France. Even Germany stands to lose by a rupture of Anglo-French co-operation, for its condition is such that only a united Europe can assist its recovery.

The whole political edifice of the Continent is interdependent and developments affecting the great powers inevitably react on all other countries and it is not probable that a break between England and France will be possible. Both are sparring for the best possible position.

Attorney General Daugherty asserts that the decree of the Federal Court, making permanent the injunction against the shop workers strike of last October, will put an end to tying up interstate commerce. Samuel Gompers does not agree with him, however, and asserts that the strikers who are still out "will continue to exercise the normal activities guaranteed to them by the laws and the constitution."

Mother Pensions Are Great Help.—A report on "Standards of Public Aid to Children in Their Own Homes" has just been issued by the National Children's Bureau. This is a study of the working of mothers' pension laws and is an intensely human document.

Mothers' pension laws are now in force in all but six states according to the report. They have proved an economic asset to the community in every case, obtaining for the children of families with insufficient incomes the necessary training and advantages to make them useful citizens. It is better for the community to contribute to the support of a family deprived of its chief wage earner the amount necessary to keep it together, than to have its members thrown, derelict, upon charity. Adequate pensions for mothers, wisely administered, have been the necessary prop to thousands of homes which would have been broken up if the mother's earnings had been the only income, is the finding of the Children's Bureau.

Case after case came to light where the mother's pension granted by the state had kept together a home otherwise threatened with disruption, had enabled working mothers to keep their children under their own care instead of sending them to an institution, and assured to children a better chance to obtain both the educational advantages and the good times which are the right of childhood.

The basis for the amount of relief granted under the mothers' pension laws, estimates food for a woman over 16 years of age from $9.78 a month to $12.35 a month, and estimates for young children are several dollars less. The mother staying at home is expected to spend between $2 and $2.75 a month for clothes, and children somewhat less, unless they are in school. The amounts granted to families, the Children's Bureau found, were in most cases based on carefully drawn up individual family budgets. The public aid granted was supposed to cover the deficit between the family budget, as estimated, and the family resources.

The United States Veterans' Bureau reports that more than 97 per cent of the rehabilitated former service men were placed in employment during the last year. Of those who remained unemployed, more than half are doing so voluntarily. One-third of the apple crop of Hampden county, Massachusetts, will be sold this year through a country-wide growers' co-operative, the Hampden County Apple association. The growers will deliver their apples to a central packing houses where their agent will grade, sort, pack and sell them to local dealers. They have adopted a trade brand to be stamped on each box, which is expected to advertise the purpose of the organization as well as the quality of the product.

The Fall River plain print goods manufacturers have agreed to curtail production from 50 to 75 per cent in the hope of increasing prices. They claim it is the result of the present depression in the industry.

Hungary Provide for Its Children.—Forty children are being turned over to the state every day in the city of Budapest, in accordance with the law which declares that children not otherwise provided for have the right to support by the government. Already 183 settlements have been established near the city of Budapest to care for the children, and there are eight large asylums throughout the country. Over 21,000 children have been placed in peasant homes besides those in institutions and settlements. The children are being sent to school and special training is provided for those who show unusual talent. Big workshops are provided where boys and girls are taught industry and needlework, and babies of working mothers are taken care of. These shops also provide a restaurant and a hall for entertainment.

Hungary has lost 72 per cent of its territory and 75 per cent of its manufactures under the peace treaties. Out of 20,000,000 people in the old empire there are left in the present territory some 8,000,000. Its one thought is to regain the territory taken away by the peace treaties. Not one extra foot does it want, but what it regards as its own it burns to regain.

The Fall in the Price of Wheat.—The group of economists of Federal Reserve banks, colleges, and farmers' organizations who met with officials of the Department of Agriculture last week to consider the farm products situation, recommended that farmers curtail the production of winter wheat. Expansion of wheat growing areas in chief expirting countries, coupled with decreased buying power of Western Europe, was declared responsible for the present price slump.

Gray Silver, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, declared, "as soon as the government estimates of the crop yields came out the middle-men began to force prices downward. Within the past month the price of wheat to the farmers has dropped from $1.40 per bushel to 80 cents. The $1 wheat at Chicago includes the freight charges, which the farmers do not receive."

While the price of wheat to the farmers has been dropping and lifting $600,000,000 out of the farmers' pockets in the last month alone, the price of bread to the consumers has increased 10 per cent, which shows very clearly that both the farmers and consumers are being filched by the middlemen.

While the government agencies investigate the coal industry, discuss price control and warn against possible shortage next winter, owners of West Virginia mines claim to be shipping coal at prices far below the cost of production and scores of mines are reported to have closed. Already more than 100 mines are closed down on the Chesepeake & Ohio railroad, which serves the non-union fields of southern West Virginia.

Holland Says France Must Be Checked.—The Haagsche Post, an influential Dutch weekly, publishes a striking editorial on the European condition, declaring that the outcome of the controversy between England and France will be decisive in determining Europe's future.

"This conflict," the Post declares, "is the outcome of Frances' desire for compensating its war losses by gaining hegemony over the rest of Europe on land, sea and air. Just as Germany before 1914 endangered European peace, so France and its well-armed allies do at present.

"This state of affairs brings the other European countries to a difficult choice. They must either decide to take effective measures for France's repression or expect a new war at no distant date. The rest of Europe, outside of France with its allies, looks to England as the only country abie to save a situation becoming daily more involved. Britain is likely to appeal to the common sense of the other nations.

"In this light," the paper goes on, "Holland must prepare its answer to England. Holland's interests are neither with predominant France nor with annihilated Germany, and, while keeping a middle ground it strongly desires an end to the period of hate, commotion and violence. In the present conflict it cannot remain neutral, and must openly side with Britain.

"By doing this soon and unhesitatingly, the Dutch may contribute largely to alleviating the present most serious crisis, which involves Holland's vital interests."

The big steel companies are preparing to abolish the 12-hour day. Labor saving machinery will be used wherever possible but it will require about 60,000 additional men. The shotrage of common labor has been relieved to some extent by negro workmen from the South, and by a small percentage of immigrants from Mexico and the Filipine Islands. In several branches the 12-hour day has already been abolished, but it may be several months before the new system of 8-hour shifts will be complete. Meanwhile, the price of structural and other steel will be advanced from $2 to $3 a ton, and the demand for unskilled labor will be utilized to pry the immigration lid off. It is probable, however, that the 8-hour day, with steady employment at living wages, will attract a sufficient number of American men to fill all requirements.

Bankers Denounce Flexible Tariffs.—The flexible provisions of the tariff law have been been denounced by the newly organized American Bankers' League, representing 9,000 bankers, as "giving to speculators and gamblers the same consideration as those engaged in legitimate enterprises in proposed rate changes." In a formal protest to the Tariff Commission, Charles B. Claiborne, president of the league, declared that American bankers with investments in domestic industries regard the flexible tariff provisions as a danger to trade and as injecting an element of uncertainty into the whole industrial world.

"The flexible provisions of the act cloud the title to every schedule," he asserted. "They operate as a free-trade rider to the Fordney-McCumber law and inject uncertainty into values and fear into trade, and become an able ally to foreign interests and a foe to the home industries. It should be repealed."

Mr. Claiborne declared that American bankers are marking time in their dealings with business interests because of the uncertainty surrounding the tariff situation. He called for a "clear statement" from the Tariff Commission as to its procedure under the flexible tariff provisions. Bankers, he said, demand to know what constitutes a "legitimate complaint" and who is eligible to ask for investigations by the commission.

Proposes to Go After Bucketshops.—Nathaniel B. Dial, Senator from South Carolina, is planning to push a "bucketshop" bill similar to the one introduced in the last session, providing for a penalty to be imposed on brokers and commission houses fraudulently neglecting to carry out their contracts in connection with buying and selling contracts for the future delivery of agricultural products.

The bill introduced by Senator Dial in the last session of Congress and referred to the Judiciary Committee, which took no action upon it, provided for a fine of from $1,000 to $10,000 or imprisonment for 60 days to 10 years, or both, upon conviction for failure to carry out a buying or selling contract for the future delivery of agricultuarl products after receiving funds for this purpose. It also imposed penalties for using instruments of interstate commerce and accepting margins for buying and selling contracts for future delivery by insolvent firms.

The chief difficulty in passing any law to reach these swindlers seems to be that it affects "higer-ups" and stock gamblers generally. But that ought to be ended too. The country will get along very comfortably without them as it did during the war.

WILSON, INDREHUS SIGN POTATO PACT

State Office Now Has 800 Contracts, Representing Over 12,000 Acres of Minnesota Spuds.

A. D. Wilson, former chief of the Minnesota Agricultural Extension Division, and Edward Indrehus, Democratic nominee for governor at the last general election, both practical farmers, are among the 800 Minnesota potato growers who have signed the contract as members of the new marketing agency, now being organized.

Mr. Wilson is operating a farm in the vicinity of Guthrie, in Hubbard county, and Mr. Indrehus grows a lot of potatoes near Oak Park. Both are strong advocates of co-operative marketing on the commodity plan and have promised to sign up all growers in their neighborhoods.

According to S. G. Rubinow, state manager, the 800 contracts which have been received at the offices in St. Paul represent an aggregate acreage of 12,000.

Organizers worked last week in Kanabec, Chisago and Benton counties, having obtained a heavy membership in each.

The Minnesota campaign is being aided by two representatives from the New York potato growers' organization, L. J. Steele, general manager, and B. H. J. Rikert, field manager. These men are in the state doing field work and studying the plan of organization, as New York expects to put on a membership campaign this fall.

The field force has been increased materially during the last few weeks, J. S. Jones serving by courtesy of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, J. H. Hay and Hugh J. HARVEST HAND RATE OF $5.00 IS OBTAINED Arrangement Will Give Minnesota Farmers Advantage Over Plan of Last Year.

Soo Line, Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroad officials have agreed to and the Interstate Commerce Commission has approved a flat rate of $5 for harvest hands going into the Northwest fields, according to an announcement made this week by the state headquarters of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation.

The rate became effective from Duluth and Superior on July 30 and from St. Paul and Minneapolis on August 1. It will continue until August 15. To take advantage of the rate, hands must travel in groups of five.

The arrangement will eliminate a handicap under which Minnesota farmers worked last year. Due to the fact that hands, as a rule, desired to travel as far as they could on one ticket, a great majority of them went into North Dakota. This year the arrangement will enable men to start two days earlier than usual for points in Minnesota.

Reports received indicate that the St. Paul road will grant a similar rate but confirmation had not been received up to the time this was written.

The Farm Bureau Federation officials played an important part in getting the roads to agree to the rate.

Storm Damages Warren Farm Buildings Sunday

R. Oswald, who lives about eight miles northeast of Warren in McCrea township, reports that the windstorm on Sunday afternoon caused considerable damage to his farm buildings and a large number of sheep and chickens were killed. The granary containing a quantity of grain was blown over and carried a distance of about thirty feet, where it was dropped on some sheep that had sought protection from the storm behind the building. The hen house, blacksmith shop and other small buildings were demolished and a new threshing machine was also badly wrecked. The large barn was moved about four inches off its foundation.

Mr. Oswald and family were not at home at the time of the storm but were caught on the road in their car and had to seek shelter in a grove. Many trees were broken and uprooted by the wind.

No damage to buildings has been reported by other farmers in that neighborhood although many haystacks in the path of the storm were torn apart and the hay widely scattered by the wind.—Warren Sheaf.

MINNESOTA FARM BOY IN ON GROUND FLOOR

Opportunity knocks at the door of every farm boy and girl in Minnesota, not only once but all the time. So says a new circular of information, richly illustrated, just issued by the School of Agriculture, University of Minnesota, of which D. D. Mayne is principal.

The pamphlet makes the foregoing assertion on the ground that every farm in Minnesota is an opportunity, because "Minnesota farm land is the best in the world, the climate gives a practical certainty of crops, the increase in the population of the country is creating a greater and greater demand for the soil's products, and the movement for more profitable and more enjoyable rural life conditions has nowhere made greater advances than in Minnesota."

In the language of the book-reviewer, the book is interesting; it is the kind of a book to put in the hands of the boy or girl who is thinking about the future and looking for the open door to opportunity of a sound and wholesome kind. Copies may be had without expense by writing to the School of Agriculture, University Farm, St. Paul.

County Delegations to Hear Fair Speaker

Steps already are being taken by a number of county farm bureaus in Minnesota to organize delegations to attend the Minnesota State Fair on September 6, to be present at the Farm Bureau program and to hear Aaron Sapiro discuss co-operative marketing and the need for farm organizations.

TEXAS WHEAT.

The Texas Wheat Growers' association, a co-operative marketing unit operating on the one hundred per cent pooling plan, will market three or four million bushels of the 1923 Texas crop, according to Judge L. Gough, vice president of the Texas organization. The crop in Texas at the present time appears to promise seventy-five per cent of a normal yield.

The co-operative marketing movement is catching on well in Texas, which was organized for co-operative action largely by Kansas and Oklahoma farmers. Three or four million bushels will be a very promising start for the Texas organization.—Wichita Eagle.

RED RIVER OHIO POOL IS ASSURED

Plans For Potato Campaign in Valley Counties Made at Halstad Meeting.

The plan to organize the Minnesota industry on the commodity or California plan, using the Sapiro contract, moved ahead tremendously last week. At a meeting at Halstad, in Norman county, 175 growers from all sections of the Red River Valley met with S. G. Rubinow, state campaign manager, for a general conference.

After the plan had been fully explained, those present were satisfied that a general pool for Red River Ohios could be formed to meet the demand between the marketing of the early and the late crop. After many leaders had signed the contract, plans were made for a campaign to begin at once in Norman county. Elias Steenerson, one of the largest growers in the valley, acted as presiding officer at the Halstad meeting.

Those interested in the potato campaign considered the Halstad meeting crucial, so far as the state campaign is concerned, as it is realized that without strong support in the valley counties, the move to form a new sales agency could not succeed, as it is in that section that the bulk of the potatoes in the state are grown.

Thus far in the campaign, organization work has been in the nature of a test of sentiment among growers, and has been confined to counties outside the valley. More than 700 contracts have been signed, with an aggreate acreage of 10,000.

The state organization committee, originally a body of 25 prominent growers, bankers and business men, has been enlarged to include at least one representative from each one of the 46 counties in which organization work will be conducted. The movement is going forward with the active support of all farm organizations.

nounced fact that the co-operative books are to be examined.

The statement makes no mention of the fact that the suspension imposed by the Exchange were for 30 days and that it was the South St. Paul Stockyards Company that, in several instances, made them permanent. No details as to the irregularities found are given.

The summary says that the investigation started Jan. 1, 1923, is complete and that the 32 members have had their books examined. "As a result of this audit," the statement says, "one firm was fined $500 and after being fined this sum voluntarily withdrew from business, making a signed statement that they would not renew their activities on the South St. Paul market; 7 firms were fined the sum of from $250 to $350 and suspended; one firm was fined $50, one firm $100; and 6 firms were fined the sums from $250 to $750. This completed the entire audit of the 32 commission firms who are members of the South St. Paul Livestock Exchange and engaged in business on the South St. Paul market. In case a firm was not penalized, no irregularities were found on their books and as far as the South St. Paul Livestock Exchange is concerned ,the audit is complete."

FARMERS' ELEVATORS WILL GET MORE CARS

New Rule, Adopted By Northwest Advisory Board, Will Be Aid to Small Local Houses.

A more adequate supply of freight cars for farmers' elevators this fall is assured as a result of a new ruling agreed upon by the Northwest Advisory Board to the Car Service Division of the American Railway association, at a meeting held at Sioux Falls, S. D., July 18.

The board, made up of representatives of all shippers, agreed to a new regulation which will be adopted and put into effect. J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, is chairman.

In former years, the allotment of cars for country elevators has been based on the capacity of the houses. Because line elevators, as a rule, are larger than those owned by farmers, they have been getting a greater proportion of the available cars. With the rule based on the number of loads passing through a house for a ten-day period, farmers' elevators will be able to get cars in proportion to the amount of grain handled.

The advisory board, through its sub-committees, has completed a survey of the number of cars that will be needed this fall for coal, grain and other commodities.

With this information in hand steps are being taken to induce consumers of coal to obtain a supply to carry them through the winter before Oct. 1. This campaign will have the effect of avoiding a peak demand for coal cars at the same time that the demand for grain cars is heaviest.

The advisory board, organized last spring, already has done much to relieve the car shortage and all indications point to a satisfactory supply this fall and winter.

While in swimming in the lake near town last Friday evening, Louis, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Quitberg, got beyond his depth and went down. Howard Payne and Emmett Scott, who were swimming with him, missed him and upon looking saw him struggling in about six feet of water. Emmett at once swam to the spot and although only 10 years old and a poor swimmer, dove down, got him by the hand and brought him to the surface, but the drowning boy got him around the neck and pulled him under and both would no doubt have drowned but for the coolness of Howard Payne, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Payne, seeing Emmett had more than he could do to handle his heavy olad, he ran to shore, got a long pole and pushed it out to the strugging boys. Emmett grabbed it and Howard soon landed both in shallow water. The Quitberg boy was unconscious but nothing daunted Emmett and Howard who went after him, rolling him over and over and pounding on his back and soon had him breathing again. It was a close call.—Bagley Independent.

Disabled Veterans Get Valuable Help in Farm Project From Buddies

Soldier Organization Comes to Aid of Service Men Clearing New Farm Land

The Verterans of Foreign Wars for Minnesota, George A. Ferguson, commander, have just rendered some timely aid to the disabled veterans in agricultural project training at Veteransville and Silver Star in the cutover country near McGrath, Minn.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of Minnesota have voted to appropriate the sum of $1,000 to pay the salaries of tractor operators to man the four caterpillar tractors that have been loaned to the men on those projects by the Minnesota State Highway department.

After the Highway department had sent the tractors to McGrath, it was found that no funds were available from any source to pay the cost of running them, including the salaries of expert operators, and the above organization immediately closed up the break by making this generous donation.

It is such interest and co-operation, concretely expressed, that will put heart and spirit into these disabled trainees of the Veterans' Bureau who are establishing themselves on small farms where they can enjoy industrial independence.

There is necessarily much hard and heavy work involved in clearing and breaking wild land, under ordinary conditions, but these powerful tractors will pull the stumps, and do all the other heavy work for these men who will be enabled to have land enough cleared by next spring to insure them a good acreage of crops and success.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars by this action have given a real meaning to the term "buddy." A "buddy" is one who helps you "when a feller needs a friend."

Saxophone Clown Band to Be Heard at Lyceum Soon

The big feature on the bill at the Lyceum theatre next Monday and Tuesday is Bolduc's Saxophone Clown band. This is a clever sextette of saxophone artists headed by the well known Bolduc, a renowned wizard on this instrument. He is also an artist with the violin.

This organization has traveled extensively over the country and makes a decidid hit wherever it appears. In the varied program are a number of clever imitations of different animals, the imitations being produced entirely on saxophones and violins. Pep, punch and music to suit everybody. It will be a musical treat well worth while.

Remember the place and dates—Lyceum theatre, Thief River Falls, next Monday and Tuesday.

Are You a "Gimme" Wife? See the Motion Picture at Lyceum Next Sunday

Production Furnishes Conclusive Answer to Much Debated Domestic Question, 'Tis Said.

There are just as many fool men as there are fool women, financially speaking.

Is a wife to have a salary, a household wage, or an allowance? "Allowance"—perish the silly childish word! "Allowance" is what one gives one's poor relation or one's boy at school.

A wife really should come higher than that. This may seem to be quibbling on a word only; yet you CAN keep a good wife down by the psychological effect of a mere word.

Or is a woman happier, even though married, if she earns her own beans and beads on her own particular job?

It would seem that the death knell of the clinging vine woman has struck.

Since the war and since Suffrage "win," we women have developed a flare for the wage envelope in our name. Most of us are willing to forego the megrims, smelling salts, and lily-white hands of our grandmothers, along with the general pose and parasitic nonsense of the past.

We hate to mix up our love lives with the eternal "Gimme this or gimme that!" and hold our palms outstretched to our men for every little thing we need or want.

How, in heaven's name, is a man to know how much his wife really cares for him, or for the matter of that (if the wife holds the purse strings), how is she to know how much her husband really cares for her, if either male or female purse-holder does not, with one noble gesture, achieve the fifty-fifty basis and make the dependent economically independent?

The true millennium will never quite be reached, nor exact values between husband and wife established until separate purses and no questions asked.

Advance Season Tickets on Sale at Local Banks for Biggest State Fair

Saving of $1.50 May Be Made by Purchasing Tickets Before Leaving Home

Advance sale tickets to the Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Dairy Exposition, which will be held in the Twin Cities from September 1 to 8, will be sold by banks in this locality, it was announced by the State Fair management today.

The advance sale ticket, with six coupons attached, sells for $3.00, a saving of $1.50. Each one of the coupons will admit an adult or an automobile, any day except Sunday, to the outside gates; adult or child unreserved section of the grandstand, bleachers or horse show; or may be exchanged at a value of fifty cents in purchase of reserved or box seats in grandstand or at horse show. The six coupons may be used in one day if the purchaser so desires.

The advance ticket sale was first tried out in 1922 and proved very popular, thousands of persons thruout the state availing themselves of the opportunity of purchasing tickets at reduced prices. The tickets proved especially popular with those making county automobile tours to the fair, providing the cheapest form of admission to all members making the tours.

Persons desiring to take advantage of the advance sale ticket cannot purchase them at the fair after Aug. 25.

Northwest School Has Enjoyed Fine Growth

Perhaps no place in Northwestern Minnesota has had so many visitors this summer as the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston. Visitors have included individuals on pleasure trips and many farm and community groups who came to inspect the experimental work. At least 40 farm clubs and groups ranging from 50 to 300 people in each organization will have visited before the summer is over.

The Northwest Experiment Station, which was established in 1896, was followed in 1906 by the agricultural school. Only 30 students attended in the one building then provided the first year. Today the experiment station is recognized as one of the best of its kind. The school grounds have been transformed from a swamp to a beauty spot with flowers, trees and shrubs. The school equipment has grown from the one building to eight in addition to barns and station buildings. Additional buildings are being erected this summer to care for the institution's growth.

From the 30 students in 1906 the yearly enrollment is now between 200 and 300. Over 2,000 have attended the three-year course while the graduates number almost 500. The school and station has filled a need in northwestern Minnesota and each year will see still more young people availing themselves of the opportunities offered. The school term which opens October 1 will see a record enrollment of those who are interested in the many courses now given. It is open to young men and women without tuition charges.

Once upon a time railroads prospered by robbing the people, but now they claim they can't get along on that policy alone.

Box Factory, New Grygla Industry, Going Strong With Promising Future

Second in Importance Only to Creamery, According to Editor Mussey of The Eagle.

The Grygla Eagle has the following to say regarding a new industry which recently has been established in that village. That the factory may become considerable of an asset is probable, and it starts out with the best of prospects. The article from The Eagle follows:

A box factory in Grygla is now a permanent institution, doing business in fine shape and is certainly a fine business adventure for Grygla, the community and the projectors as well. Orders for many hundred boxes have been received, some partially filled shipments already having been made. Employment already is furnished to a good crew of men and many more will be employed as soon as timber can be secured. The factory is looked upon from a beneficial standpoint, second only to the creamery, if not equal to it. It furnishes a cash market for wood at all times of the year and for an unlimited amount at good prices. The prices are $1.50 for cutting, $1.50 for hauling and $1.00 for stumpage, or $4.00 per cord delivered. Wood to be 53 inches long and not less than 5 inches at the top, not split.

At present there is no trouble to get men to work in the mill but as only a limited number can be used, steady work depends on the supply of woodcutters. Everybody should take hold of this work and assist in every way possible. A little extra exertion just now in the busy season, instead of coming to town empty, have a cord of wood handy to bring and it will not be long before a big cash benefit will be seen. Bring in wood; support the factory, says The Eagle.

State Lets Road Jobs at Prices Well Below Engineers' Estimates

State Highway Department Awards Contracts on 20 Projects at Prices Lower Than Expected.

Twenty important improvements on the Minnesota trunk highway system placed under contract at $1,080,500—nearly $150,000 less than engineers' estimates—that is the result of the biggest 1923 state highway letting to date on awards by Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner. A call for bids on another list is planned within 30 days. Improvements in this vicinity include:

T. H. No. 32—At Greenbush, grading and bridge, estimate $8,928; award later.

T. H. No. 32—Thief River Falls-St. Hilaire, bridge, estimate $3,000; award to L. J. Letness, Crookston, at $2,990.

New contracts will cover 122 miles of grading, 21 of paving, 18 of graveling and seven bridges, widely distributed over the state-wide system. They will be financed mainly with county reimbursement bond money, Commissioner Babcock said. But it is planned to use less than half the $11,000,000 total of new county bonds authorized by the 1923 legislature, he added because the requirement that funds must be used in the county issuing the bonds, in some cases would mean the taking of money for minor improvements ahead of those most needed for economy and general public gain.

"More low prices are gratifying, but increase the regret that the state is without working capital necessary to take greater advantage of them—to give the public needed road improvements now and at big savings in the end," said Mr. Babcock.

Highway officials commented on a decrease in the number of bidders. More local road work on which competition is not so keen and greater building activities taking excavating, and other equipment had an effect, they explained. Competition for state jobs was sharp, nevertheless, and the prices tended to justify state rather than county contracting on trunk route projects.

GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH HERE SOON

World's Ten Times Biggest Circus—Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Headed This Way.

The worlds' one big circus—Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Combined—draws nearer and on its hundred cars will come "ten thousand wonders" to exhibit at Crookston, Friday, August 3.

World toured and world conquering this truly Greatest Show on Earth is now fully a third larger than it was when it last visited this locality.

In addition to the many innovations offered then, the present season's program numbers ten more trained wild animal displays—making thirty in all—and the most superb trained horse acts that Europe has yet produced. The wild-animal and equine displays of the past were introduced merely that the Ringling Brothers might judge of their popularity. So enthusiastically were these numbers received that the famous showmen immediately arranged for the purchase of the world's finest acts of this kind. An entire equine circus was bought outright and brought to this country last winter. And while the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey agents were securing this and the trained tiger, polar bear, lion, leopard and jaguar groups, they had orders to engage the foremost men and women performers of the European capitals. And these stars from city and jungle are all to be seen with this wonder circus of 1923. More than 700 men and women embracing the world's foremost arenic stars, take part. These artists include the very biggest acts ranging from extensive companies of foreign performers to the amazing English family of Nelsons—positively one family consisting of father, mother, six daughters and one son. And this group of world-famous acrobats but illustrates the remarkable scope of the human side of this great circus. There are 100 clowns. Aside from the ferocious beasts, the program includes forty trained elephants. There are five companies of trained seals, many dogs, bears, monkeys, pigs and pigeons. Added for good measure is the mammoth menagerie of more than 1000 animals. It is the biggest circus program the world has ever seen, and given under the largest tent.

100 Railroad Cars Will Bring Giant Circus

Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Add Entire Shipload of Big, New European Features.

Arriving aboard 100 double-length railroad cars forming trains more than one and one-third miles long, and made even greater than in 1922 by the addition of many big, new foreign acts, Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Combined will exhibit at Crookston, Friday, August 3.

Those who read the daily papers or who keep in touch with the movie news reels need not be reminded of the shipload of acts and animals recently imported by the Greatest Show on Earth. The remarkable cargo included two companies of baby elephants which are now joined with the forty adults of the mammoth herd. There were also 100 more performing horses accompanied by Europe's best trainer, and many wild animals, some of which have been added to the scores of trained jungle beasts, while others have become part of the marvelous menagerie.

More than a million persons saw the mammoth new circus of 1923 during the weeks that it exhibited in Madison Square Garden, New York. Now this marvelous exhibition is touring the country aboard five great trains. It is a third bigger than the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey show of last season. It is ten times larger than any other circus now on tour.

Big as this wonder circus of 1923—with its more than thirty trained wild animal displays in steel arenas, fully 200 wonderfully schooled horses, 700 men and women performers, 100 clowns, and scores of features—the price of admission is no more than before. And though the trained animal numbers and the immense horse show were circuses in themselves while touring Europe, they are not offered as separate attractions by the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey combined shows. Instead all are on one gigantic program. Everything is in one mammoth main tent. One ticket admits to all these and to the tremendous double menagerie. There are more than a thousand animals in the zoo of this circus and these include entire families of hippopotami and giraffes. Another remarkable zoological feature is an armored rhinoceros, the only one known to exist and alone worth $50,000.

Rosewood General Store Changes Hands in Deal

The Carlson general store in the village of Rosewood changed hands last week, Herbert Carlson, who has been conducting the establishment for several years, selling the stock to David N. Peterson of Fargo. The new owner took immediate possession, and has also taken over the postoffice, which is conducted in connection with the store.

Mr. Carlson, the retiring merchant, has no immediate plans for the future but expects to make an extended tour of the Pacific coast and may decide to locate out there if he finds anything to his liking. The new owner is a man of considerable experience in merchandising and starts out with bright prospects of success.

Mr. and Mrs. Helgeland and Daughter Narrowly Escape in Car Accident

Collision Friday on Road Near Crookston Results in Badly Smashed Automobile

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Helgeland and daughter, Vernie, narrowly escaped serious injury in an automobile accident which befell them last Friday evening on the road eight miles east of Crookston when their car collided with a machine going in the opposite direction. Glaring headlights and loose gravel at the side of the road are blamed for the accident. None of the occupants of the other car were seriously injured although it turned completely over.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Helgeland and their daughter were severly shaken up and bruised from the force of the impact and their car was badly damaged. One wheel was torn off, a fender and running board completely demolished and other parts broken. It was necessary to secure another car to haul it to Crookston for repairs.

Mr. Helgeland had received a message earlier in the evening advising him of the serious illness of a sister who resides at Neilsville and the family was on its way to that place when the accident occured. They finally were able to proceed to Neilsville the following afternoon and were happy to find Mr. Helgeland's sister improved though still a desperately sick woman. After visiting over Sunday at Neilsville, Mr. and Mrs. Helgeland and daughter returned to Thief River Falls the first of the week, all of them bearing bruise marks as evidence of the unpleasant experience they had gone through in the collision.

Mr. Helgeland did not learn the name of the driver of the other car nor where he was from. He says the large number of people returning from the circus at Crookston that evening made it very difficult to travel on this particular piece of road and he does not place all of the blame for the accident on the driver of the other car.

Thief River Falls Man Bound Over for Having "Booze" in Possession

Ed. Aga Runs Afoul of Officers at Fair Grounds and Is Placed Under Arrest on "Moon" Charge

Sheriff Ole L. Ihle had his eagle eye working all the time during the fair in Thief River Falls and the person who had any dealings with "moon during that period and got away with it should consider himsely mighty lucky. The stuff wasn't in evidence to any appreciable degree and, in the words of a certain well-known manufacturer of breakfast foods, "there's a reason."

Ed. Aga of Thief River Falls, however, slipped just a little at the fair grounds Friday evening and caught the eye of the sheriff, who, together with Chief of Police O. E. Berge, arrested him and found in his possession several bottles containing what appeared to be a very questionable quality of moonshine. The defendant appeared in municipal court before Judge N. W. Tarrant Saturday morning, charged with the illegal possession of intoxicating liquor. He was bound over to the next term of district court under bonds of $500, which were furnished and the defendant released.

THE WORLD MOURNS

TOMORROW IS SUGAR BEET DAY IN THIEF RIVER FALLS; FIELDS TO BE INSPECTED AND JUDGED

Noon Luncheon at Commercial Club; Local Growers and Others on Program For Speeches.

Tomorrow, Thursday, is to be a big day for the sugar beet industry in Northwestern Minnesota. It will be a big day for those engaged in the growing of beets, and it will be a big day for other citizens of Thief River Falls and vicinity. Sugar beets have long since ceased to be an idle dream in this section of Minnesota—they are a reality—and every development in connection with the industry seems to indicate that it will soon become one of the important branches of agriculture in Pennington and adjoining counties.

To help boost the industry and to create interest in it among those who heretofore have not given it much thought, the Thief River Falls Commercial club has designated Thursday, August 9, as Sugar Beet Day—a day set apart for public consideration of the sugar beet proposition. At noon a luncheon will be served at the Commercial club rooms, to which the general public is cordially invited. Provision has been made to care for a large number of people and the committee in charge hopes it will not be disappointed in this respect.

Immediately following the luncheon an important meeting will be held, at which a number of local men are scheduled to speak briefly. Several growers have agreed to relate their experiences in the culture of beets, and also to give their opinions regarding the future and possibilities of beet growing in this section. It is the intention of those in charge of the meeting that anyone desiring information along any particular line with regard to sugar beet culture shall be accommodated. All are invited to ask as many questions as they please at any time and an especial effort will be

Wrong Brand of License Tag Makes Driver of Car Oodles of Real Trouble

Sheriff Ihle Takes Automobile From Man Who Cannot Explain Letter "A" on Large Stutz

The fact that a large Stutz roadster which appeared on the streets of Thief River Falls last week was equipped with a license tag carrying the letter "A" instead of "B" as large cars are required to carry, aroused the suspicion of Sheriff Ole L. Ihle that everything was not right, and he accordingly placed the driver of the car under arrest. The driver, a colored man giving the name of Fred Brown, was taken in tow Thursday night by the sheriff and asked to explain how he happened to be in possession of the tag and the car.

Brown claimed to be a resident of St. Paul and said he was up here visiting friends and looking over the country. He could not give a satisfactory explanation of how he came to have the wrong kind of a license tag on his car, however, and the sheriff decided the best thing to do in a case of that kind was to hold the car until such time as the owner sees fit to straighten out the license matter with the Secretary of State, Mike Holm.

The colored man promised to have this attended to without delay but at last reports Sheriff Ihle is still in possession of the big Stutz. And he means to keep it too until the owner comes clean in the license tag mixup.

Local Garage Man Victim of Very Unusual Accident

While in the act of cranking a car one day last week Oscar Evenson, proprietor of an automobile repair shop on Main avenue, suffered a peculiar accident. He gave the crank of the machine a vigorous turn in an effort to start the motor, when a protruding corner of the license tag attached to the front of the machine "hooked" him in the fleshy part of the hand between the thumb and forefinger. The result was a deep flesh wound which required the services of a physician, and it was found necessary to take several stiches to bring the severed flesh back to healing position. The injury is naturally very painful and some time will elapse before Mr. Evenson can use the hand with much dexterity.

GOOD RECORDS IN ATTENDANCE AND EXHIBITS AT PENNINGTON COUNTY FAIR HELD LAST WEEK

Live Stock Department Is Greatly Enlarged and of Superlative Quality; Other Departments Grow.

With ideal weather conditions prevailing throughout the week, the Pennington county fair which closed Saturday evening proved to be a success beyond the hopes of its most optimistic boosters. The number of people attending the fair was greater this year than ever before, and Thursday's gate receipts broke all previous records for a single day. Hundreds of people came by automobile from points outside of the county to view the exhibits and enjoy the free attractions and amusements offered.

Entries in practically all departments were more numerous and of a better quality this year than ever before. Especially was this true of the livestock department. All of the barns and the sheds along the fence were filled, and one exhibitor was forced to use tents to shelter his herd. Those from a distance who had cattle here were Chas. Franks of Warren with a fine herd of Herefords and Albert Paradis of Brooks who had an excellent herd of Aberdeen-Angus animals on display. Pennington county breeders were well represented as usual and any attempt to pick out a particular group for commendation would be futile. Eight or nine applications for entries by breeders living at a distance had to be turned down by the fair management due to lack of accommodations for the animals at the fair grounds. One of these applications came from Iowa.

Judging in the dairy division was done by L. V. Wilson, University farm, St. Paul, considered one of the best judges in the United States. Mr. Wilson, who has judged cattle at fairs in all parts of the country, made the statement that he had never seen exhibits of a more uniform high quality than those shown here, not an inferior animal being in evidence. W. E. Morris of the University Extension division judged the beef cattle.

The poultry exhibits were a little larger than last year and there was a noticeable improvement in quality, according to the expert who did the scoring, all of the birds being high class. The exhibit in the Boy's Poultry club was larger than ever before, while the sheep club had nine excellent animals on exhibition. The showing made by the Dairy Calf club was pronounced of the best in the state by the judge. It consisted of several fine Ayrshires, Guernseys and Holsteins. The first pig showing of the Pig club indicated a growing interest among the youthful farmers in raising high class porkers.

Winners in the dairy calf and pig clubs will be given a free trip to the State fair this fall, while those scoring the most points in the poultry and sheep clubs will be given an opportunity to attend he livestock show at St. Paul in November. The winners cannot be announced until all of their work in connection with the clubs has been judged.

Exhibits in the agriculturel department were larger and better than in previous years, with the single excep-

PROMINENT SPEAKERS TO APPEAR ON STRONG PROGRAM AFTERNOON AND EVENING, SATURDAY, AUG. 11

Plan Is to Ascertain Sentiment of Section With Regard to Government Price Fixing of Wheat.

All is ready for the big rally of farmers and business men to be held in this city next Saturday afternoon for the purpose of taking action along the lines adopted by other northwestern centers which have sent resolutions to the President asking an extra session of congress to stabilize the price of wheat.

Several prominent speakers will attend the Thief River Falls meeting, which opens at the Auditorium on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Among them may be mentioned Congressman Knud Wefald, George C. Jewett, manager of the American Wheat Growers Associated, and Frank W. Murphy of Wheaton, former president of the Minnesota State Fair.

There is still some hope that Senator Shipstead may be here, but there are no definite assurances to that effect, according to members of the committee who have been in communication with the senator.

Present plans call for an afternoon and evening session, those in charge of the arrangements deeming two meetings necessary in order to give all a chance to be heard.

Among the speakers scheduled to be here none is better equipped to talk on the subject of wheat than Mr. Jewett of the Wheat Growers. Himself an economist of recognized ability, he has been for many years connected with financial institutions and large wheat sales agencies in this country. He is a fine public speaker, thoroughly conversant with the subject, and his address Saturday afternoon should be heard by all who have an interest in stabilizing the price of wheat.

Congressman Wefald has interested himself to the extent of wiring the President in connection with the calling of an extra session of congress and it will be interesting to hear what his opinions are upon the subject which is now agitating so many minds in the Red River valley.

A large attendance is expected from at least 10 of the counties in Northwestern Minnesota. Farmers and business men have indicated their desire to participate in the debate and it is not unlikely that the meetings will be enlivenend by some timely talks by men in the valley who have given the wheat situation some study.

Former Residents Here

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Hoag and four children, well known former residents of Thief River Falls, arrived here yesterday and will spend a few days at the J. M. Bishop home and with other friends. They are on their return to Minneapolis after an extended automobile trip which has taken them to Glacier and Yellowstone parks and other points of interest in the West and they have traveled about 4,000 miles since beginning the journey.

Big Attendance at Phone Meet; Noted Speakers

Thief River Falls Is Host to Representatives of Many Companies.

Experts Conduct Operators' School as Aid to Service in Villages.

The Minnesota Independent Telephone association held one of its district meetings at Thief River Falls on Friday, August 3. The object of these meetings is to stimulate co-operation between the independent companies with the Bell company, which makes possible a universal telephone service.

Representatives from about twenty independent companies were present, which comprises nearly all of the companies in this section of the state. The managers, together with other employes of the exchanges, made up a total of about 50 people who attended the program. At the morning session Mr. Crowley, secretary and treasurer of the association, gave a talk on a subject which was of vital importance and interest to all telephone people. He was followed by Mr. Howett of the State Railroad and Warehouse commission.

The afternoon session was devoted to a general discussion of the problems of modern telephony, and Mr. Taylor and Mr. McGrath of the Northwestern Bell company of Minneapolis spoke on transmission and maintenance of telephone plants. Very valuable information was given by these gentlemen who are experts in this phase of the business.

An operators' school was conducted at the Brumund hotel by Miss Barnes of Springfield, Ill., and Miss Eymon of St. Cloud, both widely known telephone women. New practices and efficiency methods were introduced at this school.

Red Lake Indian Lads to Lock Horns With Locals in Ball Game on Sunday

Red Men Boast Fast Team and Real Contest Is Promised Thief River Falls Fans Attending

The Thief River Falls baseball club will take on the fast Red Lake Indians at the local ball park next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock sharp. Those who keep posted on the national game in these parts state that this should prove one of the best contests pulled off in Thief River Falls this season.

The Red Lake Indians have with them "Chief" Joe Graves, once a prominent figure in the baseball world and at one time a member of the Philadelphia team in the American League. Manager Thronson of the local club will send either "Lefty" Helendring or "Spider" Yost, the outlaw, into the box to oppose Graves, and thus a pitchers' battle is positively assured.

Indians have the reputation of being natural born ball players and there appears to be no good reason for believing that the Red Lake lads are an exception to this rule. They will be here in force and will make a desperate effort to "scalp" the local baseballers in the modern and approved fashion. It will be a game well worth seeing and baseball fans are urged to be present at the ball park next Sunday afternoon.

E. P. Brevig Resigns Bank Job; Plans on Going West

E. P. Brevig, who for several years has held a position as assistant cashier at the Citizens State bank, recently tendered his resignation to that institution and has decided to look over the western part of the United States with a view to seeking a new location. He and Mrs. Brevig are now visiting relatives at Bowesmont, N. D., and also plan on making a trip to Black River Falls, Wis., before leaving for the West. Los Angeles, Cal., is their first destination and they expect to make the entire trip by car, camping along the way.

Mr. and Mrs. Brevig have a large circle of friends in Thief River Falls who will wish them Godspeed on their journey and good fortune in their new home.

VALLEY FARMERS SHOULD GROW SUGAR BEETS, IS OPINION OF NORTH DAKOTAN HERE ON VISIT

Forty Acres to Every Quarter Section Should be Planted, Says Man Now Living in California.

The following interview, reprinted from the Sunday issue of the Grand Forks Herald, should be of interest to every farmer in the Red River Valley. The points brought out by Mr. Veitsch are particularly timely now that the sugar beet proposition is receiving so much attention in this community and should be considered by every prospective grower. The interview is as follows:

"I'm just fool enough to think that if I were a young man of twenty-one starting out again and without a dollar in the world, I could come to North Dakota and make my fortune farming this great old soil. And a good part of my money I would make raising sugar beets."

So spoke George A. Veitch, pioneer farmer of North Dakota, but now of Long Beach, California, who was in Grand Forks last week attending to business matters and visiting relatives and old friends. He had been east at his old home in New York state which he left in 1882 to try his luck on a North Dakota farm. He located on a farm near Gilby, a half section which he farmed for fifteen years before coming to Grand Forks to engage in business and manage his several farms which he meantime had acquired. When the Herald visitor found him one afternoon last week, he was sitting on the sheltered side of a hotel chatting with a former neighbor from Gilby about the agricultural outlook for the Red River valley and the state in general.

"If the farmers here would put in a forty acre patch of sugar beets out of 160 acres they would have a crop that would be a world beater," said Mr. Veitch. "They would then be carrying their eggs in two baskets instead of one as they are now doing with their one-system grain farming. The bad conditions the farmers here are facing now, may be a blessing in disguise, for I am afraid they will not get into a profitable way of farming until dire necessity forces them to it.

"Do you know I was tempted last year to wrap up a great many packages of sugar beet seed with about a pound in each package, and send them to my friends on the farm here in North Dakota asking them to plant the seed and see for themselves that they could raise sugar beets here. Then I read in the Herald about the fine sugar beets that were being raised in the valley, and it made me very hopeful for conditions here. From the accounts I read in the Herald the sugar beets raised here have heavier tonnage and higher sugar content than those we raise in Califarnia.

"Out there we are raising sugar beets on $800 per acre land, land that during the drier part of the year it would take ten horses to plow. In the two counties of Los Angeles and Orange there are eleven sugar beet factories, and the raising of sugar beets has been carried on for the past thirty years very profitably. Some of that land would be considered the poorest of soil if you had it here. It's what is called "dobe" and is about like the alkali to be found in some places in North Dakota. The very best land we have in California is no better than what you find around here. Some of the soil out there that has been producing beats year in and year out for the past thirty years is almost past producing a beet crop any more. On some such land they can't get more than three tons to the acre. I don't believe there is much danger of that happening here, though, as beets can be used here to the best advantage in rotation system. In that way they would prove to be of great benefit to the soil, rather than a depleting crop.

"Tonnage and the percentage of sugar content are the things that count in the raising of sugar beets. You raise better and more profitable beet crops here than we do out there. There is no place in the United States that can beat this part of the country when it comes to raising root crops. I talked with some of the sugar beet factory men who have contracted for the beets in this vicinity, and they tell me that the beets raised here are larger and have a higher percentage of sugar content than those raised anywhere else in the country. The soil and climate are just exactly right for producing the best beets. The long daylight hours, and the cool nights make for unusually large roots with plenty of sugar in them.

"It would be a fine thing if a lot of our farmers here in North Dakota would put in a half acre of sugar beets just to see what they can do with them. When they see that they can raise a good crop of sugar beets, surely they will do all they can to encourage a sugar beet factory to come in here. No sugar beet factory company is going to spend two million dollars putting a factory in a farming community unless it has an absolute guarantee that a supply of beets will be available for an indefinite time to come.

"Out there in California our farmers raise beets on a guaranteed price of $6 per ton and a higher price for the beets that have the higher sugar content. I understand that is more than your farmers are receiving for their beets, and yet your beets here are better than ours. You would get a better price if there were a factory close at hand.

"Now that more cattle are being raised in this part of the country the raising of sugar beets would prove especially profitable, for there is no better feed for fattening cattle or for making cows milk than the pulp and tops of the sugar beets. Out in California the stockmen buy the toppage at the rate of $6 per acre. Then they drive down their herds from the mountains, about 500 head of cattle in a drove. Afer the beets are up and the tops are left drying on the ground, the cattle are turned in there and you should see how those lean steers put on weight when they get in on those sugar beet fields. Often a little of the beet is cut off with the top, and the way those steers clean them up is worth seeing.

"There is nothing that will make a cow milk more than the sugar beet from the factory at $1.50 per ton, or at $1 per ton if they are beet raisers pulp. Our dairymen buy the pulp who have sold their crop to the factory. They will sometimes haul the stuff by truck for a distance of twenty miles to their farms. This pulp is slushy stuff, and smells like the mischief but cattle are so fond of it that they would break through a fence to get it. The more up-to-date factories have methods of drying the pulp so as to make it available for stock feed in more convenient form.

"In addition to the money returns which the raising of sugar beets in North Dakota would bring to the farmers there is also the advantage to the wheat grower of having his land cleaned by the intensive cultivation which is given the beets by the Mexican contract labor supplied by the company. Something has got to be done about the weeds in this part of the country, and this is one thing that would help.

"Then too, in these days when labor is scarce, the Mexicans come in very handy. Of course they are no good at handling horses, but they do help out greatly on other work of the season when they have gotten heir beet fields in shape. The old man and his wife and all the children work all the time, and are glad to earn any extra money they can in addition to the money they are paid for caring for the beets. They often help take care of the potatoes and the garden, or they get out in the grain fields and shock up the bundles. We use Mexican labor almost entirely in California for our beets.

"We have to plow very deep in California in order to insure a good beet crop. I understand it is necessary to do the same here. Our soil there gets as hard as flint during the dry season and our beets are not on irrigated land. With the deep plowing and the spring rains getting deep into the soil, constant cultivation will make it possible for the soil to retain its moisture almost through the growing season without additional rain. We raise great bean crops there in the same way. The deep plowing increases the fertility of the soil, and would prove a great advantage to you here in your rotation system.

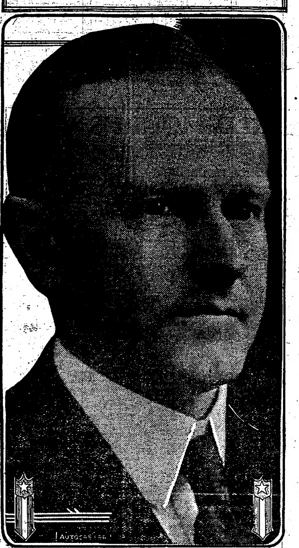
"I firmly believe that the alkaline land around here could be made to blossom like a rose if sugar beets were tried on it. The beet crop would really make that land worth something.

"This country right here in the Red River valley is the nicest that I have seen between Long Beach and New York this summer—and that is covering a lot of territory. But it is absolutely true. There is nothing nicer, or finer, anywhere in the country. You have the foundation here for the greatest farming country in the world. North Dakota has been and is a wonderful state, but her soil has been robbed. And now you must feed back to the soil what has been taken out in all these great wheat years. The country needs to be settled up. The farms and still much too large to be farmed profitably. The very best thing that you can do for the farmers of this section is to urge them to farm only such an acreage as they can handle well, to practice diversified farming, and while they are doing that not to forget the beets!"

Card of Thanks

The committee in charge of the Sons of Norway stand at the fair grounds during the county fair wishes to extend its thanks to the membership of the Sons of Norway and the Daughter of Norway for their splendid cooperation and assistance in making the venture a success.—T. P. Anderson, Chairman.

First Yankee-Doodle President



President Calvin Coolidge.

Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts is our first Yankee Doodle President, being born on the Fourth of July, fifty-one years ago—1872 at Plymouth, Vt. He is the third vice-president from that State—and it is a coincidence that one of the other two, Chester A. Arthur, became president upon the assassination of James A. Garfield. The third was Levi P. Morton, vice-president to President Harrison.

Red River Development Association Asks Extra Congress Session Soon

Plans Completed at Meeting to Back North Dakota Campaign to Secure Aid for Farmers

A special meeting of the board of directors of the Minnesota Red River Valley Development association was held at Crookston Saturday evening and action taken that may have effect of particular importance and benefit to this section. The meeting was to consider possible action to improve the grain raising situation. Congressman O. B. Burtness, of North Dakota, was present by special request and told of the plans being laid in North Dakota to try and get the federal government to adopt emergency relief measures.

Not much time was taken up in going over the situation as it is throughout the agricultural sections of the country, but the meeting got right down to brass tacks in consideration of what might be done. Congressman Burtness expressed the conviction that no legislative measures were in effect now under which the government could act. Former Congressman Halvor Steenerson, of Minnesota, concurred in this belief.

Consideration was given to the various plans for effecting a bettering of grain situation that are being promoted throughout Minnesota and the Dakotas but it was agreed that none could prove beneficial unless they could be put into operation and that a session of congress was absolutely imperative to help the growers of this year's crop.

A resolution was adopted providing that the association go on record as urging action by congress to work out a plan of relief. A committee consisting of President S. E. Hunt, of Red Lake Falls; C. G. Selvig and Rep. J. C. Pratt of Crookston; R. C. Mathwig, of Warren; and D. C. Jones, of Ada, was immeditely named and instructed to put the work of lining up Minnesota to join with Montana and the Dakotas under way to secure the calling of a special session of congress at once.

County to Send Big Delegation to Sapiro Meet

J. J. McCann of Thief River Falls Chairman Arrangements Committee

Nine Counties to Have Representatives at Crookston September 10th

Plans to have Pennington county well represented at the potato marketing conference at Crookston, Sept 10th are maturing rapidly. J. J. McCann of Thief River Falls has been named chairman of the county committee on arrangements and is working in close co-operation with the general chairman, C. G. Selvig, superintendent of the Northwest Experiment Station, J. S. Jones, secretary of the Farm Bureau Federation and chairmen in other counties.

Delegations to attend the Crookston meeting are being organized in Kittson, Roseau, Pennington, Red Lake, Marshall, Polk, Clearwater, Mahnomen, and Norman counties—nine in all.

As already mentioned, the Crookston meeting is being held to give potato growers of the northwest part of the state an opportunity to hear the wonderful story of co-operative marketing direct from its most ardent advocate in the United States—Aaron Sapiro.

Mr. Sapiro is a powerful speaker and is author of the contract the potato organization committee now working in this state are using. He was invited to come to Minnesota by J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation as an aid to the potato marketing co-operative, now being formed.

Mr. Sapiro will make seven addresses in the state—one at the state fair Sept. 6th on Farm Bureau day and six others in the potato growing sections of which the meeting at Crookston will be the first.

Sugar Factory Here Hailed as Boon to Dairy Farmers

Tribune Finds Strong Sentiment Favoring Location of Factory in Thief River Falls

During the past few weeks The Tribune has interviewed hundreds of farmers residing in the trade territory adjacent to Thief River Falls and has so far failed to find one whose attitude is unfavorable to the location of a beet sugar factory in this city. The Tribune finds sentiment in this derection to be particularly strong among the dairy farmers who are fully aware of the value of the beet pulp as an aid to successful dairying.

One farmer residing in the territory east of the city related to The Tribune last week how he had changed his plan of farming from grain to dairying. At considerable expense he has erected cow barns and a silo. He has more than 25 acres in alfalfa. "Now," said he, "if Thief River Falls will secure the sugar beet factory which will afford me easy access to beet pulp for my dairy cows, I have no fear for the future."

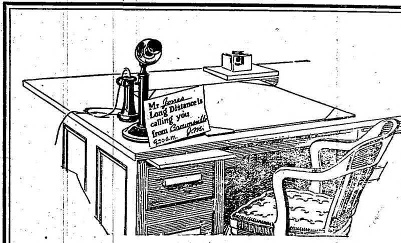
Similar expressions may be heard on all sides. It seems the farmers are fully alive to the fact, that aside from the profits to be made from the actual growing of sugar beets, which is an item of greatest importance, it is conceded that one of the greatest considerations in connection with a beet factory is the fact that the dairy industry never fails to thrive where beet pulp is available.

The business men of the smaller towns of the vicinity are also alive to the possibilities accruing from the location of a factory here, and many of them have expressed to The Tribune their interest in the new undertaking. It is simply one case of everybody pulling together and such sentiment should not fail to win results.

First Lady of Land and Her Boys

AUTOCASTER

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge never aspired socially, but instead gave all of her time to her husband and two boys. Upon going to Washington, however, she was prevailed upon to indulge in social affairs and immediately became a great favorite. John and Calvin Coolidge, Jr., will be the first president's sons to play on the White House lawn since Robert Taft was there.



Get the Town!

When a telephone operator calls you on a long distance message, she is not the operator who usually answers you when you ask for a number, but a "Long Distance" operator either in your town or in the distant town from which the call came.

If you are out when "Long Distance" calls, the person answering the the call should leave a notice for you specifying the town calling. This is very important.

When you are ready to talk, ask for "Long Distance" and give the operator your name and number and the name of the town which called you.

PRESIDENT HARDING.

While our nation enjoys a goodly measure of peace and prosperity she is suddenly called upon to mourn the loss of her national leader. Tears blend with triumphs as we stop to mourn, yea, to pray that the Great Invisible Intelligence of the Universe, the God we worship, send more laborers who, while they work for their own country, shall sacredly regard the liberty of other peoples and the rights of man.

It has been pointed out as a strange and perhaps suggestive coincidence that the four presidents who, during the memory of men now living, have passed away at the very zenith of their activities, were all men of amiable, even loving and tender dispositions. Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley and Harding, in their relations to their fellow men, were of a distinct type. Each made daily sacrifice of himself to the demands made by others. The normal duties of the presidency may well impose upon any man all in the way of effort and thought of which the human body and mind are capable.

The last official words of President Harding urged "more of the Christ spirit, more of the Christ practice, and a new and abiding consecration to reverence for God."

To work for the purpose of making mankind better, that is worth doing; to take an honorable and useful part in the affairs of one's country and one's people is a worthy reason for existence. There are no regrets or misgivings about a life spent in useful, helpful effort. There need be no tears because of the death of the man who has done all he can do in his sphere of action to advance mankind. More than this no man can do.

In his whole active public life Warren G. Harding has been clear in his thinking, high in his purposes, fair in his contentions, careful and sound in his judgments, scholarly and chaste in his utterances, kind and considerate and generous, clothed withal in that courtliness of bearing which lent peculiar charm to his personality.

At the meridian of his powers and usefulness our President took his departure from fireside and forum. Why a thing like this should be done we don't know—it belongs to the endless mysteries of life.

The death of Warren G. Harding, the twenty-ninth President of the United States, has brought to every man and woman of this nation a sense of deep personal loss. For such a loss we are never prepared. Yet it is as true today as in the moment the maxim was first enunciated: "God reigns, and the government at Washington still lives."

DOES DAIRYING PAY?

A Tribune subscriber sends in a clipping from a recent issue of the local paper at Barron, Wis., where what is conceded to be the largest co-operative creamery in the world is located. The Barron paper, as does The Tribune, publishes monthly a list of the creamery patrons receiving largest returns, with the difference that the Barron paper includes in the list only patrons who receive $150 or more for the month instead of $50, as is the custom of The Tribune.

The latest report of the Barron creamery is substantially as follows: "Another big month with its 1,088 patrons paid $85,453.01 is the record of the Barron co-operative creamery for last month. The creamery received 174,393 pounds of butterfat from 616,907 pounds of cream. The price paid was 49 cents." Then follows the list of 97 patrons above $150, of which the highest is $388.08.

Pennington county can boast of a dairyman receiving greater returns from the local creamery than did any of the patrons of the creamery at Barron. The Pennington county man is Peter Engelstad, who, according to reports given The Tribune last month, realized the neat sum of $512 from his dairy herd, although the price paid for butterfat at the local creamery was considerably below that secured by the patrons of the Barron institution.

This is a showing of which Mr. Engelstad may well feel proud. He has for many years been a hard and consistent booster for the dairy industry in this section of Minnesota—and he has not only preached the doctrine of more cows and dairy products, but he has actually practiced what he preached. There is sufficient room in Pennington county for a large number of farmers to follow the same methods as those employed by Mr. Engelstad. No secret or intricate procedure is necessary. The only requirement is an abiding faith in the dairy cow and a determination to provide the opportunity for her to do her part in bringing a steady stream of revenue to the farm.

Prosperity follows the dairy cow as surely as night follows day. That fact should be evident to all.

THE DEMAND FOR CHEAP LABOR

The demand of large employers of labor for the unrestricted entry of European wage earners for the real purpose of hammering down the wages of labor in this country, would no doubt react, sooner or later in a way not pleasant to contemplate. The economic and social need of America is not now for cheap labor, but for labor so well paid that those who work for their daily wages or weekly or monthly salaries may continue to be generous consumers of the foodstuffs, clothing and other products which now, more than at any time heretofore, must find a market at home. To lower the level of wages would not result in a greater profit to industry. To increase the output of those products by cheapening the cost of man-power employed would result simply in reducing the buying power of those who must be looked to as the consumers.

Present values are inflated to a considerable degree. Of this there is no possible doubt. Those who are best able to buy frequently complain the loudest because of alleged extortion and unwarranted profiteering. But conditions are by no means as bad as they would be with street corners and employment offices crowded with discouraged workers with empty pockets and no jobs. The miner, the bricklayer, the carpenter and the mechanic in the shop who earn big wages all spend them for the necessaries and comforts to which they and their families are entitled. They have a right to demand reasonable protection.

Viewed from every point today's duty would seem to be to safeguard and fortify established institutions and industries by educating and otherwise helping the comparatively few aliens who are permitted to enter under the existing law. It might be convincingly shown that in looking forward, say a half century, it would be reassuring to see a population thoroughly Americanized, with every voter a defender of American institutions. An analysis of the present population will show that this is an imperative duty, if our institutions are to be perpetuated.

HEAR SAPIRO

More than usual interest should be shown in the potato marketing meeting to be held at Crookston on September 10. That day an opportunity will be given everyone in this section of the state to hear Aaron Sapiro, foremost advocate of co-operative marketing in the United States, discuss a plan of which he is the father.

Mr. Sapiro is without question the most prominent leader of farm thought in this country. His position is remarkable because it has been attained through activities along economic rather than political lines. Back of him is a long list of successful co-operatives, farmer-owned sales agencies that have been making good in selling fruits for farmers in California, cotton for farmers of the South, tobacco for the farmers of Kentucky, potatoes for the farmers of Maine, and many other products for other farmers in all sections of the country.

While he is an exponent of evolutionary methods, the speed with which he and his associates put their theories into practice in many instances has been little short of revolutionary. The Red River Valley is badly in need of a remedy for its marketing ills. It is fervently to be hoped that the potato marketing movement now organizing will prove its worth by securing for the grower a fair price for his product when it is placed upon the market.

There appears to be no good reason why potatoes can not be marketed on a co-operative basis, and Mr. Sapiro is firm in the belief that it can be done. Everyone interested in the question should make it a point to be present at the Crookston meeting on September 10.

The editor of The Times wanted to place another ditch assessment on the farmers of eastern Pennington county. Then it opposes their opportunity to get lower interest rates upon their loans. Somebody is surely giving our squirming contemporary some mighty bum advice.

AMERICA'S FIRST MORTGAGE

The annual taxes paid in the United States, national and local, on property and income, direct and indirect, are equal to the burden of a mortgage on all the property of the United States to the amount of 65 per cent of its valuation bearing interest at five per cent.

This tax mortgage is a prior lien to other mortgages. It encumbers the property which is free from other debts and is an additional burden to the property covered with other debts. Some people think they do not pay any of this tax because they do not pay it to a tax collector and get a receipt. In this they are mistaken. All consumers pay taxes in the form of higher rents or higher prices for food, clothing and luxuries.

Owners of tax-exempt bonds are the ones who escape taxation. The big 65 per cent tax mortgage rests on the shoulders of all the rest of us. That mortgage is growing heavier every year. The general burden of national, state and local taxation has increased 134 per cent—more than doubled—since 1912. Farm taxes have increased 126 per cent since 1914. Tax-exempt bonds have not paid one cent of this increased burden.

The amount of tax-exempt bonds increases every year. The taxation mortgage grows bigger every year. If future issues of bonds are made subject to income taxes, the debt can be reduced and the taxes made lighter.

It is up to the American consumers and taxpayers to decide whether they will permit a bad condition to grow worse or insist that a change be made for the better by taxing bonds now exempt.

THE COUNTY FAIR.

The Pennington county fair, just closed, was one of the most successful in the history of the association. Attendance records were broken on one or two days, which indicates the increasing interest of the public in the annual exposition.

Officials of the fair, including every member of the board of directors, are to be congratulated upon the success of their work. While their services are poorly paid in a monetary way, The Tribune bespeaks for them the whole-hearted appreciation of the public which gets so much out of the fair. The exhibits were good, the livestock showing being one which should cause every resident of Pennington county to swell with pride, and the program in front of the grandstand was a crackerjack, so all in all every person who entered the gate received his money's worth.

A BUTTER EXHIBIT.

A well known buttermaker of this county suggests that a butter exhibit should be a part of every county fair. The suggestion has much merit, since such an exhibit would tend to induce rivalry between the various creameries of the county and would afford an opportunity to give patrons of such creameries new and novel suggestions in handling their cream to the best advantage.

The creamery industry is now the leading and most important part of farming in this district and too much attention cannot be paid to its advancement and upbuilding. Therefore The Tribune trusts that every future county fair will contain a butter exhibit worthy of the leading butter producing county in northern Minnesota.

WHY TAKE A CHANCE?

Out of 80,000 samples of seized liquor analyzed by the official chemists at Washington, one per cent were found to be pure. In other words, drinkers of the stuff have 99 chances in 100 of encountering blindness or sudden death, and 100 chances, even, of acquiring a habit which if ever broken will be at the cost of indignity, suffering and unutterable sorrow.

The Times says it has been for the rural credits law all the time. It helped pass the amendment and helped pass the law. The Times helped the rural credits law just like the church goer helped the cause of religion by slipping a pants button in the collection plate. Its great poohbah, the man who outlines its political destinies, the man who played the jewsharp on the Johnson band wagon, has been telling the farmers how the law would help the bankers and the bankers only. That's the kind of a man he is and that's how fair he is with reference to anything which does not bear his stamp of approval. In this matter The Times is in a hole and it may as well admit it.

This great family journal is referred to by our esteemed contemporary as the "Preus Organ." Thanks awfully, that is not as bad as being a piccolo.

A crank is the fellow whose hobby does not agree with yours.

Warren G. Harding

How He Impressed the Editor of The Tribune.

The editor of The Tribune was fortunate enough to be present at the inauguration of President Harding and on a number of occasions was afforded an opportunity to view the late chief executive of the nation at close range. The editor was a member of the committee of five which went to Marion, Ohio, in August three years ago to invite the Republican candidate for president to speak at the Minnesota state fair, and that little visit with the future president of the United States will long linger in his memory.

With the members of the committee I approached the residence of Dr. Christian, which was then the headquarters of the presidential candidate, with something akin to stage fright, wondering how it would seem to meet such a big man. Mr. Harding met us at the door of his study, and not knowing whether to sit down or stand up, we were somewhat agitated until Mr. Harding quietly said: "Sit down, boys, I am not president yet."

From that time on the conversation was free and easy and my most lasting impression of the visit, which continued for more than an hour, was the democratic spirit which prevailed. The day was hot and Mr. Harding had taken off his collar. I think he smoked several cigarettes during our visit and I noticed he paid more attention to Martin Widsten of Warroad, and "Nate" Holmberg, commissioner of agriculture, than he did to Frank Murphy, Irving Caswell or yours truly, and the reason probably was the fact that the first mentioned were not "dressed up" and looked like real "dirt" farmers.

Since we were asking him to deliver an agricultural speech at the fair, the conversation revolved about agriculture in the Northwest, Mr. Harding showed surprising knowledge concerning every phase of farming. He was raised in one of the best farming districts of Ohio, a section which in many respects is similar to Pennington county. He told of milking cows and learning how to make brooms in the early days when everything used on the farm was home made. He declared that instead of going into the newspaper business as a young man, he would have remained on the farm except for one thing—he could not bear to see anything killed. Every animal on the farm became his pet and he never would sell anything to the butcher.

One of the stories of Harding told to me at Marion referred to this phase of the late president's character. He overtook a lady on the street one day who was carrying a basket filled with pigeons. Upon being told that she was carrying them to market, Mr. Harding promptly bought and released the birds. He abhorred all cruelty to animals and his tender regard for dumb brutes was a by-word at Marion.

Mr. Harding first sprang into national prominence as chairman of the Republican convention at Chicago which nominated Hughes. His speech at that time was considered a masterpiece by those who heard him. As a United States senator Mr. Harding belonged to the conservative element and the word "Normalcy," which he coined as a campaign slogan in 1920, fully describes the late President. He was a normal man in every sense of the word, not given to sensationalism or innovations, and he disliked every kind of a disturbance, particularly such as were political.

President Harding's political career, illustrious as it was, hinged upon a political accident. He was given the Republican nomination for state senator in the Marion district, which was hopelessly Democratic, after several others had refused it. He waged such a clever campaign as to run a tie with his Democratic opponent, and the recount gave Mr. Harding the senate seat by a margin of one vote. Like our own Magnus Johnson and Senator Shipstead, he was defeated for governor of his state, but at the following election was elected United States senator.

The late President was the first country editor to be elected President. His popular majority was the largest ever accorded a presidential candidate in this country, the plurality exceeding seven million votes.

Congratulations, Kittson

Kittson county distinguished itself last week when its commissioners voted for a $25,000 bond issue to gravel state road No. 6 from Donaldson to Noyes. If ever a road needed gravelling it is this particular road and the commissioners are to be congratulated upon their action. The county will be reimbursed by the state under the provisions of the refundment law. There was considerable opposition in Kittson county to the issuance of the bonds, but good roads advocates finally won out. Dairying Is No Gamble

The price of butter is ascending. This is good news for the dairymen and there is every prospect that dairy products will command a very remunerative price the coming winter. Right at this time there are 5,000,000 lbs. less butter in storage than a year ago. During that time the consumption has increased which clearly means that butter is sure to remain supreme as the best revenue getter for the farmer. Not every section of the United States is adapted to dairying, the consumption is annually increasing and the man who goes in for dairying is on the right track.—Walker Pilot.

Modern Roads as Advertising

The cost of building and maintaining good roads seems so great that many taxpayers are inclined to lie down, and say they simply can't be afforded. Yet, before taking that attitude, it is well to reflect on the returns that a good road brings. The news that a certain town or district has good roads spreads for many miles around. Motorist drive that way when out for pleasure, or will go in that direction when seeking a trading center. They will go many miles out of their way if they can strike a good road into some business center. The convenience and comfort of a good road is thus a magnet that draws trade and business, that spreads prosperity into the surrounding country. It makes a town seem like a live one. The streets in its business center are well filled with visitors, while a town with poor outlying roads finds visitors going elsewhere. It costs something to solve the good roads problem, but it costs more not to.—Elmore Eye.

Potato Crop Is Looked Over by Prominent Men

Tourist Party Spends Day Here Inspecting Fields and Conditions

Florida Man Here in Search of Seed Potato Supply for That State

The potato industry in Pennington county came in for its share of attention last Thursday when a large party of men from various sections of the country paid a visit to this locality. The men refered to made up an automobile party and they spent the entire day in Thief River Falls and vicinity, and visited farms of several of the leading growers of the community. The party started at Red Lake Falls last Wednesday and a tour of nine counties in this section of the state is being made. The purpose is to inspect potato fields, to see what conditions are as to cropping methods, damage by diseases and insect pests, and prospects as to supplies for consumers' use and for seed stock.

Interest in the group centered, for one thing, in the fact that a member of the party was H. M. Kilgore of Plant City, Florida, here to see whether Florida potato growers might not get better seed stock from Minnesota than from Maine, where they have heretofore purchased their supplies. Mr. Kilgore started with the party at Red Lake Falls on Wednesday, and has been impressed with the fact that Minnesota's seed certification laws and rules offer guarantees for good seed stock such as southern potato growers would be willing to pay a premium for if proper arrangements as to shipping practices could be adopted. Mr. Kilgore's suggestions open up the question of a much wider market for Minnesota seed stock in the southern states. The present market includes Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Illinois, Oklahoma and Texas.

Another much interested member of the party was H. Merrill of the Hubbard-Merrill company, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, buyers and shippers of potatoes. Mr. Merrill is looking for sources of supplies of high grade potatoes, and predicts a better market for potatoes this year than last. He says that the southern crop this year was early off to about 70 per cent of the best, that it was later hurt by weather conditions, and that, therefore, it will be pretty well consumed by the time the northern potatoes are ready for market. This ought to bring a good demand and profitable prices for the northern crop.

The party in Thief River Falls last Thursday was made up also of R. C. Rose, plant disease specialist from the University of Minnesota, chairman of the committee in charge of the tour; J. G. Leach, another plant disease specialist; C. E. Mickel, a specialist in insect pests such as prey on potatoes; F. A. Krantz, a specialist in potato growing—all three from the University Department of Agriculture; A. G. Tolaas, in charge of the state's seed certification work; W. P. Kirkwood, divisions of publications, University Farm, St. Paul; L. M. Bond, county agent in Red Lake County; D. C. Oedier, Hopkinton, Iowa; George W. [illegible] of the Northwest Farm[illegible]neapolis; R. M. Barr, re[illegible] [illegible]ver manufacturers. Ex[illegible] [illegible] McColl, North[illegible] [illegible]ation, [illegible] Albert Lea, Minn. [illegible] Lake Falls.

Under the guidance of J. J. McCann, county agent of Pennington county, the party visited the R. Oen, S. E. Hunt, H. Folstad, S. Hanson and Jens Letnes farms in the vicinity of Thief River Falls.

The visitors left about 6 p. m. for Lancaster. They spent Friday in Kittson county, Saturday in Roseau, Sunday and Monday in Kooochiching, Tuesday in Beltrami, Wednesday in Itasca, and Thursday in St. Louis.

Good Records Attend Fair Held Here Last Week; Splendid Exhibits Made

tion of potatoes. S. E. Hunt had an individual farm exhibit of a very high order. The large amount of excellent corn on display should prove to the most skeptical that good corn can be raised in Pennington. A man from Iowa who visited the fair made the statement that corn in his state is no farther along than many fields in this section.

The Women's department under the supervision of Mrs. H. W. Froehlich, was larger, of greater variety and more tastily arranged than anything of a like nature heretofore coming under the observation of The Tribune reporter who is writing this review. In short, it was grand. Mrs. Froehlich also supervised the decoration of the interior of the building, and the work was very favorably commented upon by the large number of people visiting the building.

The school department under the supervision of County Superintendent Ole R. Sande, contained exhibits in all the various lines of school work, representing the endeavors of rural and city schools during the past year.

Much interest was shown in the exhibit of the State Dairy and Food department, and in the Extension division barberry display showing the development of wheat rust. The State Livestock Sanitary board had an exhibit showing parts of animals infected with tuberculosis, indicating how the disease is transmitted from animal to animal and also to human beings. The educational value of this feature appealed to everyone. The only way to abolish this disease among animals is by county area testing, which is possible for three counties in the state this year. Over 75 farmers in Pennington county have signed a petition asking that the work be done here as soon as possible.

The displays put on by local concerns and institutions were more numerous and of a higher class than ever before.

Much interest was shown in the horse races put on for three days of the fair. A large number of good horses were entered and all of the events were real races. Saturday afternoon a running race in which only Pennington county horses were entered created considerable interest.

Those who like rough stuff had their cravings satisfied in the auto polo and push ball games. There was no lack of excitement among the spectators when these games were pulled off in front of the grandstand each afternoon and evening. Football is a baby game in comparison.

Free attractions staged on the platform facing the grandstand elicited much praise this year from fair visitors. Some mighty good entertainment was furnished by these people, all of whom are artists in their respective lines. The Lachmann Exposition Shows, which held forth all week on the grounds, enjoyed a fair patronage. It is one of the largest shows of the kind on the road and tolerates none of the objectionable features carried by other companies which have visited Thief River Falls in years past.

Taken all in all, it was a successful county fair from every standpoint. The Pennington County Agricultural [illegible]iation is entitled to much credit [illegible]ts growth and the increasing in[illegible]st from year to year. At the pres[illegible] rate of progress it will be considered THE fair of northern Minnesota before many years have passed.

Tomorrow Is Sugar Beet Day in Thief River Falls; Fields to Be Inspected

made to supply comprehensive answers to their queries.

The committee is endeavoring to secure General Manager Baird of the Northern Sugar company at Mason City, Iowa, as a speaker for this occasion but up to the time The Tribune goes to press no definite reply has been received from him.

Field Manager A. V. Dahlberg, who is located at Newfolden, has promised to be present. He is said to be a good speaker and is a man who can be depended upon to disseminate much valuable information to local sugar beet growers and those who may be planning on engaging in the industry. His long experience has taught him many things about the game which every beginner naturally has to learn before he can hope to become a successful grower.

This meeting is not intended for sugar beet growers only. Every farmer is urged to be present whether he is at this time raising beets or not. What the local committee wants is a greater sugar beet acreage in this section next year and one of the chief objects of this meeting is to interest as many farmers as possible in the industry.

Immediately after the close of the meeting at the Commercial club rooms the judges will proceed to the different fields in the vicinity to judge the sugar beet crop and prizes will be awarded growers in accordance with the decisions handed in by them. The plots will be judged 25 per cent on cleanliness, and the same percentage will be awarded on stand, cultivation and general appearance.

The district tributary to Thief River Falls has been divided into four sections for a distance of ten miles from the intersection of Main avenue and Sixth street. Each section will be awarded $55 in prizes to be divided as follows: $25 for the best 10-acre field; $15 for the best field of from three to 10 acres; $10 for the best field under three acres, and a $5 prize to the laborer in charge of the best field of beets. In addition to the above prizes, a special award of $50 will be given after the beets are harvested to the grower producing the greatest tonnage per acre.

The following committees have been chosen to act as judges Thursday afternoon:

Southeast district — Math Barzen, chairman; H. S. Dahlen, J. E. Nelson, E. O. Mogensen and C. B. Larson.

Northeast district — Rasmus Oen, chairman; C. L. Hansen, A. M. Langseth, J. Provencher and Walter Jung.

Southwest district—J. J. McCann, chairman; R. McGinn, W. A. Hall, Jr., A. Bottelson and C. D. Gustafson.

Northwest district — Daniel Shaw, chairman; T. L. Melgaard, Roy Lambert, F. L. Christenson and M. T. McFarland.

Everybody interested in sugar beet culture is invited to accompany the judges on the trip Thursday afternoon. Those who desire to go but who have no cars of their own will be taken care of upon making their wants known at the club rooms as a number of local car owners have expressed their willingness to take capacity loads on the trip.

The names of the prize winners as decided by the judges will be published in next week's issue of The Tribune.

To Tell the World About Sugar Beet Possibilities of Northwest Minnesota

Special Train Containing 50 Carloads of Beets to Be Shipped to Mason City, Ia., Next Fall.

The sugar beet committee of the Thief River Falls Commercial club, headed by H. W. Protzeller, is at work on a plan which should prove of much value in advertising the possibilities of this section to people residing in other parts of the country.

When the beet harvest is at its height next fall it is the intention of the committee to arrange for a special train to carry about 50 carloads of beets in one shipment to the factory of the Northern Sugar company at Mason City, and the consent of high officials of the Soo Line already has been secured for such a venture. The officials agree to see to it that plenty of cars are available for local shippers at that time, and with a little co-operation among growers it should not be a difficult matter to have 50 carloads ready for shipment at one time. It is estimated that the section tributary to Thief River Falls will produce about 700 carloads of beets this season.

The intention is to have placards painted to be placed on the sides of each car, telling in large letters what the shipment is composed of and where it is from. The publicity to be gained through farm publications and the press by such a plan should prove of untold value in bringing the local sugar beet industry to the attention of the country. It is also planned to have a delegation of local boosters accompany the special train to help spread the sugar beet gospel at every possible opportunity along the way.

The sugar beet industry in the territory surrounding Thief River Falls has already grown to proportions beyond the greatest expectations harbored by its early boosters, and if the plan of making one large shipment by special train, as above referred to, can be carried out, any doubt still remaining with regard to the successful growing of beets in this section should be effectually settled.

The lazy loafer is always a firm believer that luck plays an important part in the success of his energetic neighbor.

The Village Philosopher

The money the other fellow has in his pocket is not going to do you or anyone else any good so long as he keeps it there.

Be careful or you may lose your head as well as your hat on the election.

While you are spending your time watching your enemies, be careful that your friends do not get the best of you.

So long as there are men to fall for flappers there will be flappers. Adam fell for Eve, and foolish man has been doing it ever since.

A girl's popularity is often due to a comfortable parlor.

The average woman's idea of a home is a place with a lot of closets.

There is some excuse for the man with a bad liver and a poor digestion.

All women think they can tame a man—and they can until they marry him.

No man is entitled to any more consideration than he is willing to accord to his fellow man.

The sun will shine just as bright and the stars will come out and flirt with the moonshine just the same no matter who gets the state jobs.

Men's good qualities are often brought to the surface by their enemies.

It is proper for an actress to love her audience if she doesnt' try it one at a time.

Most of the things an unsophisticated person doesn't know are not worth knowing.

So many women are asking money for breach of promise. As they sue so shall they reap.

You can never understand women. One has had a man arrested for cruelty to a rat.

A lark is the only song bird that sings as it flies. Others, and humans, sing and then fly.

When someone else in the house has the same size head your hat is not a one-man top.

Judge by results rather than actions.

A man does well who is able to do his best friend.

The fear of the Lord and the laws of the land keep many a man out of jail.

The man who understands human nature is afraid to shake hands with himself.

The only energy that some people exer exert is in trying to live without work.

A lot of fellows who are loudmouthed patriots now were cowardly slackers when patriots were in demand.

There may be no hell, but there ought to be, so that the fellows who are not fit to go anywhere else could be sent there.

If you have money, put it in circulation. Remember the poor fish who buried his one talent. Idle money gathers no interest.

An honest effort should be appreciated.

A spendthrift lover may become a worthless husband.

The husband who comes in like a lion generally goes out like a lamb.

The sunshine and rain are life invigorating, but the moonshine is life itself.

A man will play golf all day for "exercise" who would make his wife carry in the kindling wood and build the fire.

If a man worked as hard at a political job as he does to get it there would be a whole lot more efficiency in public offices.

When a young man goes after chickens he should not be disappointed when he succeeds in catching one if he gets henpecked.

He who hesitates gets stepped on.

The silver lining to all domestic clouds is pay day.

After everybody gets well educated there will be nobody to do our work for us.

Some day a confidence man is going to organize a company for canning condensed water.

The lead horse of a team is not expected to pull much of the load.

When a man tells a girl why his wife doesn't understand him it usually is because his wife does.

When a girl who takes dictation marries her boss she becomes the boss and he takes dictation.

SUGAR BEETS IN THIS SECTION OF STATE WILL PAY, SAYS MAN EXPERIENCED IN THEIR CULTURE

Red River Valley Farmers Can Produce High Grade Crop With Average Conditions Prevailing.

(T. J. McCall, Northwest Experiment Station.)

It has long been known that sugar beets and other root crops grow to a high state of perfection in the Red River valley. The acreage, however, has been limited to the need of roots for live stock feeding. Since 1919, from one to two thousand acres have been grown and marketed through a Minnesota sugar refining company. The future development of the sugar beet industry in Northwestern Minnesota is dependent upon the acreage needs of the present sugar refining company, and the establishment of other factories in or contiguous to this region.

The sugar beet crop has proved very dependable in yield during the seven years of trial at the Northwest Experiment station, averaging a little more than ten tons per acre. The average yield from farms growing sugar beets during 1922 was somewhat less than the experiment station yield, however, 12 and 15 ton yields have been reported.

The sugar contents of beets grown in the Red River valley is quite high, averaging from 15 to 17 per cent. Analysis made in 1913 from beets grown from commercial seed averaged less than 14 per cent. However, the fact is established that beets from good seed strains average higher in sugar content in northern Minnesota than in regions farther south.

A grower, to find a market for his sugar beets, must make a contract with the sugar refining company for his acreage. The contract is mutually beneficial to both parties, for the grower is assured an outlet for his product at a fixed price and the company is assured a quantity of product that will enable it to operate.

The acreage contracted for by a grower should depend upon several factors, namely: amount of land suitable for the crop, competition of other crops or other farm operations with the beet crop for labor, and the facilities and equipment for growing, handling and disposing of the crop.

Sugar beets will grow on any soil capable of producing other agricultural crops. However, they do best on the heavier soils which are slightly alkaline, which are in good tilth and a high state of fertility. Any field for sugar beets should be reasonably free from serious weeds, and if annual weeds are numerous the cultivation practices should be such as will control them at a minimum of expense. Early fall plowing of the heavy soils of the Red River valley proves beneficial not only in weed eradication but also in the fact that the soil pulverizes better and is gotten in shape for seeding with less trouble than spring plowed land. A beet grower is running risks in planting beets on very foul land in case of wet weather at blocking or thinning time for a rank growth of weeds at that season sets back the crops greatly.

Beet soils should be plowed to a depth of six inches or more for the best results. Spring plowing may be resorted to on sandy loam soil types. The best system of management would be to have the beet crop take a place in a regular crop rotation in which some of the legumes, such as clovers and alfalfa, are grown. The land would be manured once in the rotation period. The seed bed for sugar beets should be well firmed and levelled previous to planting. A sub-surface packer is an excellent implement to use in firming the soil, while plankers, levelers or floats may be used for finishing the land previous to planting. The depth of seeding and stand will be more uniform on leveled or smooth soil than on land left rough.

Seeding is generally done with four row beet drills; the rows are then uniformly spaced 28 inches apart. The crop is easily cultivated with the two or four row type of cultivator if the four shoe drill is used. A heavy seeding is considered necessary to guarantee a good stand; 12 to 15 pounds of seed per acre is recommended.

The soil should be made ready for seeding about the middle of May, while the crop can be planted at a later date, yet the crop should be coming strong before the first hot days of June.

The blocking, weeding and thinning operations must be done timely or a loss of crop will result. This early season hand work can generally be most economically done by using "contract labor." Most sugar refining companies assist their growers in getting families to do the hand labor under contract at definite cost per acre. The majority of workmen who go out under contract are very proficient in doing the hand work and can do it more cheaply than local inexperienced labor. Whatever kind of labor is used at thinning time is immaterial, however, the work should be done before the plants get too large and the weeds get a start.

The two row type of cultivator with cultivator teeth and duck foot shovel attachments is the most popular type of cultivator used for sugar beets in this district. The cultivation should start just as soon as the rows are visible, care being taken not to cover the young seedlings. The cultivations should be frequent, often enough to preserve a dust mulch and keep the weeds well under control, from three to five cultivations are given during the season.

Harvesting should start early in October. Sometimes the date of harvesting is specified in the contract with the sugar company, but growers should in average years plan to get the roots out of the ground before October 20th. The grower should limit his acreage to an amount that can be handled with dispatch and in season. The digger or root lifter that is mounted on a wheel truck, which is horse drawn and lifts one row at a time, has proved most satisfactory. "Contract labor" proves best at marvesting time for northern Minnesota, for the grower is assured of help at a time there is generally a great demand for men. The "contract laborer" tops and poles the roots as the final task of his contract.

"' * * As each act was presented the

The cost of growing sugar beets depends greatly upon the distance a grower is from market or loading point, the amount of work required to get the land in shape for the crop, the cultivations required and the timeliness of the work. The actual cash outlay is about the same for all locations. The cash expense includes seed, "contract labor," housing or quarters for laborers and labor furnished by the grower for all team operations, loading and hauling. Much of the team labor is generally done by the grower and is not included in the cash expense, but must of necessity be charged to the crop. Contract labor costs $18 to $20 per acre, various percentages of which are to be paid by the grower during the season, the balance to be paid when the crop is harvested. In many cases the company guarantees the final payment for labor out of the receipts of the crop.

The returns per ton have generally exceeded the contract price per ton, in that the grower may be paid a bonus on sugar contents of beets or be given a bonus if the wholesale price of sugar exceeds a certain figure. The bonus to Red River valley growers during the past few years has amounted to from $2 to $4 per ton.

Sugar beet growers get an added profit from the crop when they can utilize the beet tops for feed. Beet tops make excellent feed for cattle or sheep; the tops can either be pastured or fed in racks. There is a great deal of waste in pasturing, hence many growers haul in the tops and state that they are well repaid for the time and trouble. In some instances beet growers have used the tops for ensilage and report that a good quality of ensilage is produced. Whether the tops are utilized for feed or not, the fact remains that beet growers, to get the greatest returns from their land, must have live stock to consume the roughage and cheap feeds produced in the necessary rotation for the sugar beets.

Golfers to Picnic Next Sunday; Another Contest

Members of the Thief River Falls Golf club are planning another enjoyable event for next Sunday, when a picnic dinner at the golf course is on the program. A small golf tournament will begin at 2 o'clock and continue throughout the afternoon, and it is considered certain by those informed on the subject that several "champions" and near champions will have reason to reduce the size of their hatbands before the day is over. Some of those who were beaten at the recent tournament just won't be satisfied until they've had another try at it, that's all.

All members of the club and anyone else interested in the game are invited to bring their lunch and spend Sunday afternoon at the golf course. Those in charge assure everyone a good time.

Beauty Shop Established by Experienced Operators

Announcement is made this week that a beauty parlor will be opened on August 15 in the rooms over the First and Peoples State bank recently vacated by Miss Caspara Gran, who conducted the Mari" Posa Beauty Shoppe there for some time prior to leaving for Arizona several weeks ago. The new establishment will be in charge of Miss Esther Larson and Miss Doris Foster of Crookston. Both are experienced and have conducted a similar establishment in Crookston for some time. Miss Foster is a graduate of the Marinello Beauty school in Chicago, an institution nationally known for the excellance of its facilities for training students in this line of work.

Arrangements are being made to hold a price stabilization meeting at Oklee next Saturday afternoon. People in that section believe an extra session of congress should be called at once to fix a wheat price and the meeting is for the purpose of crystallizing public opinion and speeding action.

Kern Olson Wins Honors in Local Golf Tourney

At the tournament held last week on the Thief River Falls golf course, Kern Olson outdistanced all competitors and carried off the honors. Mr. Olson had at no time been considered a formidable contender for first place in this event and his consistently high grade performance during the tourney elicited commendation from all players. In the opinion of local golf devotees Mr. Olson is a comer and no mistake. They all have a lot more respect for him now than before his sensational spurt in the recent contest and some even go so far as to bare their heads in his presence. And the best part of it is that Kern seems to enjoy himself in his exalted position But to get to the top and stay there are two different things, say those who have aspirations along the same line. They claim the crown isn't his for long.

Bringing up the rear of the procession at the elimination contest were Mrs. F. C. Niclai and H. O. Chommie, who played a tie for the consolation prize.

New Workers Arrive Here to Help Salvation Army

Two new workers arrived last week to take up their duties in the local field of the Salvation Army, coming here to assist Captain Anderson, recently placed in charge. They are Captain Larson and Cadet Lacy of Fargo, both of whom expect to remain in Thief River Falls permanently. The Salvation Army is doing much good through its efforts in Thief River Falls and people of the city will extend a cordial welcome to the new workers.

Meetings will be conducted at the Army hall Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings, and Sunday forenoon and evening. Sunday school will be held at 2:30. Everyone is welcome to these services.

Miss Bishop Returns

New Law Strict With Regard to Minor Laborers

Women and Children Workers Protected by New Industrial Law.

Investigator Visits Thief River Falls to Assure Enforcement

Helen A. Clinton of St. Paul, representing the Industrial Commission of Minnesota, spent several days this week in Thief River Falls. She came here to find out whether the laws of the state governing labor conditions were lived up to by local employers, and making other investigations required by the state department she represents. While here she visited several sugar beet fields in the vicinity to ascertain the conditions under which Mexican and other forengn labor is employed.

Following are the rules governing the employment of women and children in Minnesota, established through a law passed by the last session of the legislature:

The new hour law which went into effect July 1, 1923, provides that no woman shall be allowed to work at any occupation more than 9½ hours in any one day and 54 hours in any one week, with the exception of nurses engaged in the care of the sick, women engaged in domestic service and telephone operators in towns of less than 1,500 inhabitants.

The one day of rest law also passed at the last session of the legislature provides that all employees shall have one day of complete rest in seven with certain exceptions, including women working in hotels and cafes.

The child labor law regulates the working hours for boys and girls under 16 years to not more than 8 hours in any one day and 48 hours in any one week. Children under 16 years of age may not be employed at any occupation before 7 o'clock in the morning nor after 7 o'clock at night.

The minimum wage in cities of 5,000 or more population is $12.00 for a week of from 36 to 48 hours and 25 cents for each additional hour making the wage $13.50 for a 54 hour week, the limit fixed by the law which went into effect July 1 1923. Learners may be paid a lesser wage as fixed by Wage Order No. 12.

The minimum wage in towns under 5,000 is $10.25 for a week of from 36 to 48 hours and 21 cents for each additional hour, making the wage $11.54 for a 54 hour week, the limit fixed by the law which went into effect July 1, 1923. Learners may be paid at a lesser wage as fixed by Wage Order No. 12.

PRIZE WINNERS ANNOUNCED IN SUGAR BEET CONTEST; JUDGES REPORT CONDITIONS EXCELLENT

Find Many Fields in Pennington County One Hundred Per Cent Perfect at This Time of Season.

THE PRIZE WINNERS.

Southwest District—Over 10 acres, Charles Correll; three to 10 acres, C. H. Smith and L. W. Manther.

Southeast District—Over 10 acres, Rasmus Oen; 3 to 10 acres, Carl M. Lee; three acres or less, J. N. Huddleson.

Northwest District—Over 10 acres, Will Smith; 3 to 10 acres, Jens Kierk; 3 acres or less, Earl DeVelling.

Northeast District—Over 10 acres, Halvor Fodstad; 3 to 10 acres, Nels Christopherson; three acres or less, Martin Quist. P. A. Peterson was awarded the prize for doing the best labor in this section.

The grand prize of $50 for the greatest tonnage per acre will be awarded when the beets are harvested.

That the raising of sugar beets in this community is a very live subject and one in which everyone takes a deep interest is very evident. All those who have given the matter thought have reached the conclusion that before long the raising of sugar beets will take its place with dairying as one of the dependable sources of revenue for farmers of this section.

Speakers at the Commercial club noon luncheon last Thursday were without exception very optimistic with regard to the future of the beet industry in this vicinity. Enough beets have been grown here to prove that the very best product of the highest sugar content in the country can be produced. Under conditions such as

Fargo Man Will Debate "Farmer Control" Query

Takes Exception to Statement Made Here by Congressman Wefald.

Asserts Farmers Can Get Relief Without "Capturing Government."

When Congressman Knud Wefald, in his speech at the Thief River Falls stabilization conference last Saturday, made the statement that the farmers of the country could never hope to get permanent relief for their economic troubles until such time as they succeeded in "capturing the government" and running it to suit themselves, he probably did not expect that everyone within reach of his voice would agree entirely with this view. The congressman during his talk challenged anyone holding a different view to debate the proposition publicly.

And it appears from developments following the meeting that Mr. Wefald is not to go unchallenged. In the audience was one man who disagreed with him most emphatically. His name is D. R. Finch and his home is at Fargo. Mr. Finch was born and raised on a farm and his father was one of the early settlers of Clay county. Some years ago the young man homesteaded in Montana and spent half a dozen years on the land trying to make a go of farming. He lost his six brothers, all of whom are engaged in farming in various sections of the Northwest. During the past six or seven years Mr. Finch has been employed in Montana and Wisconsin banks and at the present time is road representative of a bank supply concern. He feels that his experiences have been such that he is able to judge conditions from the viewpoints of both the farmer and the small business man, and he has reached the conclusion that it is most emphatically not necessary for the farmer to "capture the government" in order to get a square deal. And he asserts his willingness to defend his contentions in a public debate, such as suggested by Congressman Wefald in his Thief River Falls speech.

Mr. Finch this week issued a reply to Mr. Wefald's challenge and handed it to The Tribune with a request that it be published. Here it is:

"I had the pleasure of listening to the address made by Congressman Wefald before the price stabilization meeting held in Thief River Falls last Saturday, August 11, 1923, and hereby wish to convey to the congressman the fact that I take exception to his remarks, particularly to the emphatic statement made by him in which he asserted that the only way the farmers could possibly better their condition was to "Capture the government."

"In accordance, therefore, with the congressman's challenge to debate this question upon the platform, I hereby accept the challenge and invite Mr. Wefald to debate upon this issue either in Thief River Falls, Hawley or Fargo, on any date convenient to the congressman, not later than September 1, 1923.

"Inasmuch as my acceptance is announced through the press, publicly, I shall expect the reply to be made in the same manner.—D. R. Finch."

City Acquires Title to Tindolph Property; Will Be Converted Into Park

Park Board Plans Extensive Improvements for Plot Near Red Lake River on East Side.

Definite action was taken at the council meeting last night leading to the establishment of a city park and swimming pool near the river on the East side at the place known as Tindolph point. The council authorized the park board to purchase 19 lots adjoining the river at this point and $870 was voted for the purpose. It is understood the park board will take immediate steps to acquire title to the land in question.

Emil Zeh, chairman of the park board, when interviewed this morning by a Tribune representative, stated that plans have been perfected by which this plot can be turned into an ideal park, but due to the lateness of the season not much of the work can be accomplished this year. He asserted, however, that the lots will be thoroughly cleaned up and placed in readiness for improvements to be started early next spring. Chief among these are added facilities for those who desire to use the fine bathing beach at this point and the addition of a similar swimming pool which will be absolutely safe for children. When the job is completed, said Mr. Zeh, the city will have one of the finest small parks and bathing beaches in the country. The need for such a convenience has been felt for a long time and the general public will heartily commend the action of the city council and park board.

John Kivel Returns

John Kivel, one of the pioneers of Thief River Falls, returned last week from Columbia Falls, Idaho, where he had spent several months visiting old friends and relatives. He has a number of comrades from Civil war days who are inmates of the soldiers' home at Columbia Falls, and a part of the time was passed with them, recalling events of those trying times. Mr. Kivel suffered a serious siege of pneumonia shortly after his arrival in Montana, but has entirely recovered and now enjoys excellent health for a man of his advanced age.

Rosewood Farmer Badly Injured When Attacked and Trampled by Bull

Three Ribs Broken and Other Injuries Suffered by Peder Sorenson, Aged Farmer.

Peder Sorenson, 72 years old, a farmer residing north of Rosewood, suffered serious injury last Friday evening when gored and trampled by an angry bull. Mr. Sorenson was immediately taken to the Physicians hospital where examination disclosed three broken ribs and several other injuries.

The bull had on a number of occasions shown an ugly disposition towards strangers but had never attempted to harm his owner. It was considered advisable to get rid of the animal, however, and Mr. Sorenson intended to ship him with a load of stock from Rosewood the following day. The bull attacked Mr. Sorenson when the old gentleman attempted to drive him from the pasture into the barn. Help arrived on the scene barely in time to save Mr. Sorenson's life and it was with extreme difficulty that the enraged animal could be forced to desist from his attack.

A number of neighbors finally secured the bull firmly with ropes and placed him on a stoneboat. In this way the animal was brought to Rosewood and loaded in a car for shipment to market.

At last reports Mr. Sorenson, although in a very serious condition, is doing as well as can be expected and will recover unless unforeseen complications arise.

SOME SUGAR BEET.

L. W. Manther and C. H. Smith last evening brought to town a sugar beet raised in their field which for size and quality is hard to beat for this season of the year. The beet tipped the scales at exactly 10¼ pounds, which isn't so bad when it is considered that several weeks still remain of the growing season. The growers of the big beet admit there may be larger ones in the vicinity but declare they are from Missouri and will have to be shown.

Judge Grindeland Turns Down New Trial Plea of Four Dry Law Violators

One Case Goes to Supreme Court While Three of Those Convicted Are Taken to Jail.

Sheriff O. L. Ihle today went to Warren, accompanied by Glenn Farr, A. C. Rasmusson and C. B. Bradley, whom he committed to the Marshall county jail to serve sentences for violation of the liquor laws. Farr is in for 60 days, while Rasmusson and Bradley have 90 days awaiting them.

The three men were convicted at the June term of court in Pennington county and filed motions for a new trial. The motions were denied by Judge Grindeland in a special session of court here last Friday, and the men were forced to do either one of two things—file bonds for appealing their cases to the supreme court or serve their time. They chose the latter.

F. C. Brendecke, who also was convicted at the June term and denied a new trial, has filed bonds for appeal and will carry his case to the supreme court. How soon he will be able to secure action is not known.

Urgent Call for Price Fixing Is Result of Meet

Convention Here Asks Immediate Stabilization of Wheat Price.

Congressman Wefald Believes Plan Should Be Made Permanent.

The price stabilization meeting held in Thief River Falls Saturday afternoon and evening was not very largely attended, but what was lacking in numbers was made up for in enthusiasm. The sentiment of those present seemed to be almost unanimously in favor of the government placing a guaranteed price upon wheat immediately in order to enable the farmer to dispose of this year's crop at cost of production plus a reasonable profit.

G. Halvorson of Thief River Falls acted as chairman of the meeting. The afternoon session was taken up by speakers from this section of the state, most of them farmers, and Senator C. L. Hansen, president of the First National bank of Thief River Falls, also explained the position of bankers and the difficulties they are subjected to on account of the present depressed financial condition of the farmers. Mr. Hansen agreed with other speakers that farmers are in need of immediate help through the medium of a guaranteed price for their wheat.

Other speakers of the afternoon were H. O. Berve of Germantown, T. B. Maberg, Marshall county farmer, a Mr. Holmstrom of Roseau county, Hans Anton of Pennington county and others. Many different opinions were expressed, some optimistic and conservative and others extremely radical and pessimistic. Every man present, however, received the benefit of hearing the other fellow's ideas discussed and for this reason the meeting was of considerable benefit to everyone.

At the evening session a slightly larger audience was present. The first speaker was George C. Jewett, general manager of the American Wheat Growers Associated. Mr. Jewett outlined the co-operative plan of wheat marketing adopted by his association and described the effect of co-operative marketing of other commodities. He closed his speech by expressing the belief that temporary fixing of wheat prices is necessary, but stated that he thought the co-operative association would be sufficiently strong in another year to enable the farmer to control the price of his product.

Next on the program was Congressman Knud Wefald, who spoke for an

Dairy Booster Slated to Speak at Club Luncheon

Louis Klima, representing the Northwest Dairy Exposition committee, arrived in this city yesterday and will be the principal speaker at the Commercial club luncheon tomorrow, Thursday. Mr. Klima is endeavoring to secure a delegation from Pennington county to attend the Northwest Dairy Exposition, which takes place next month in conjunction with the state fair. He is a resident of Steele county and is a dairy booster of state wide reputation.

Local dairyman who are interested in the exposition should make it a point to get in touch with Mr. Klima during his stay and should also make an effort to hear his talk at the club luncheon. His remarks should prove of more than passing interest.

Important Elks' Meeting.

A regular meeting of the Elks lodge will be held at the clubrooms Friday evening of this week. In addition to a large number of important business matters to be brought up at this time a new secretary will be elected. All members of the lodge are urged to be present.

GASOLINE PRICE REDUCTION HITS LOCAL STATIONS

Large Distributors and Independents Alike Join in Big Slash.

Governor of South Dakota Started Something With 16-Cent Price.

Thief River Falls consumers of gasoline are getting the benefit of the general price slashing started a few days ago throughout the Northwest and the signs in front of all filling stations in the city now read 18.8 cents per gallon instead of the old familiar 25.4 which has greeted the motorist all summer. The cuts were made by Standard Oil and all other stations and became effective Tuesday morning.

Reductions of gasoline prices begun when Governor W. H. McMasters of South Dakota ordered state highway supply depots to sell gasoline at 16 cents a gallon, assumed national aspects this week when price cuts announced by the Standard Oil company of Indiana and independent producers became effective in middle western and southern states.

Gasoline today was selling at 15.4c in Chicago, 16¼ in Omaha, 15.9c in Kansas City, 22c in Louisville, 11c in Dallas and from 13 to 16 cents in other parts of Texas, with the prices in other sections affected by the reductions varying according to freight rates.

In Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Missouri and parts of Oklahoma the cut made by the Standard Oil company of Indiana was 6.6c and that of the independents in the same territory 5c.

Retail prices in Kentucky, Florida, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia were reduced one cent by the Standard Oil company of Kentucky. Gas dealers in Nebraska announced a cut of 6¼c. The Magnolia company reduced its price in Fort Worth, Tex., 2c, making the price 11c a gallon.

Following the announcement that an investigation of the gasoline and oil situation had been undertaken by the department of justice, refiners and distributors in the Rocky Mountain states declared they courted an inquiry, which, they said, would show no unreasonable profit had been made.

Officials of the Continental Oil company in Denver said they were not concerned in the price cuts being made in other sections of the country.

Investigations of local conditions are now under way or have been ordered to proceed by various state executives and municipal authorities.

Local Baseballers Go to Warroad on Sunday for First Contest in North

Borderites Credited With Fast Team and Interesting Game Seems to Be Assured.

Next Sunday the Thief River Falls baseball club is going on the road, and they are going just as far as they can without leaving the country. They are slated for a game within a few feet of the Canadian border, but have agreed among themselves, for reasons they consider good and sufficient, that they will not cross the border into Canada, but will head for Thief River Falls immediately after the game.

Warroad is their destination and the baseball aggregation of that village will engage them in battle upon their arrival there.

Warroad has been cleaning up everything in the baseball line along the Canadian border and consequently has acquired a reputation in that section of the state as a hard bunch to beat. The Thief River Falls lads, however, expect to give them a real battle next Sunday. Quite a number of local fans have expressed their intention of accompanying the team on the trip, and some of them may take advantage of the opportunity to view some of the beautiful scenery of the much-heralded Lake of the Woods. The distance is about a hundred miles but that means nothing in this day of automobiles and good roads.

Manager Thronson of the locals is making arrangements for a third game with the fast East Grand Forks team. Two games have been played with that team this season, the first resulting in a victory for Thief River Falls by a score of 6 to 3. East Grand Forks won the second by a 2-4 count.

Crandall Residence Burns.

A letter to friends here from Dr. C. R. Crandall, a former resident of Thief River Falls now making his home in Napa, Cal., states that the residence occupied by the Crandall family recently burned to the ground, together with all its contents. No member of the Crandall family suffered injury, but their financial loss is considerable.

Thief River Merchants Will Keep Stores Open on Wednesday Evenings

New Arrangement Inaugurated for Benefit of Farmers and Others During Busy Season.

An agreement was reached this week by a majority of the business men of Thief River Falls to keep their places of business open until 9 o'clock Wednesday evenings. In the past the stores have been closed at 6 o'clock every evening except Saturday, but during the busy season this has worked a hardship on farmers and others, in the opinion of the business men. Many are unable to come to town during the day to do their shopping at this season of the year owing to the fact that work on the farms is very pressing.

The new arrangement is made with a view to meeting the requirements of farmers and others who may find it more convenient to do their shopping in the evening and will be continued indefinitely. Those who have shopping to do should remember that the stores will hereafter be open two evenings a week instead of one.

Many Motorists Expect to Join Winnipeg Tour

Commemoration Tour Will Leave Thief River Falls Sunday Morning.

Hundredth Anniversary of Discovery of Valley to Be Observed.

Senator C. L. Hansen, who is chairman of the committee organizing the Pennington county contingent of the centennial commemoration tour to Winnipeg next Sunday, is busy attending to details connected with the trip. The tour, primarily scheduled for last month, was postponed until August 19 on account of muddy roads. The trip will be in honor of the government survey of the Red River Valley and the definite recording of the Canadian boundary line 100 years ago.

Mr. Hansen requests that all car owners planning to make the trip file their names with him at the earliest possible moment, in order that the Canadian entertainment committee may make proper provision for the tourists upon their arrival in Winnipeg. It is requested that all cars be provided with banners or name plates in addition to carrying American and Canadian flags to indicate the cars in the tour.

A large number of cars from different parts of the valley are expected to make the tour. Starts will be made at nine o'clock from East Grand Forks, Crookston and Red Lake Falls, and it is expected the local contingent will join Red Lake Falls here at 9:40. When Warren is reached all the cars will consolidate in one line at 11 o'clock and the remainder of the trip will be made in this manner.

The border line at Emerson will be reached shortly after 2 o'clock, where dinner will be served and the tour will continue on to Winnipeg at 3 o'clock. The Manitoba capital will be reached at 6:30 Sunday evening. The return trip will start from Winnipeg at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, Aug. 21, when a visit will be made to the Manitoba Agricultural college. Headquarters at Winnipeg will be at the new Hotel Marlborough.

Those not having their auto license receipts to leave at the Canadian border as surety for the return of their car will be required to put up cash bond. Reports indicate that a large number of people are planning to participate in the tour, and it is believed that a considerable number of cars will be included in the Thief River Falls contingent. Winnipeg people are on the lookout for the tour and are ready to show the visitors a good time.

A Beautiful Display.

M. Bothun, local florist, certainly did himself proud in preparing a beautiful memorial in honor of the late President Harding. The window of the Flower Shop was beautifully decorated for the occasion, containing a perfect replica of the Statue of Liberty and the American flag, both composed entirely of different hued flowers. As a centerpiece appeared a large picture of President Harding and the whole presented a most striking and beautiful appearance. It was a work of art in every sense of the word and elicited much praise from those who viewed it.

MEXICANS TO STAY.

The Tribune learns that a number of Mexican sugar beet workers are planning to remain here permanently and are looking for suitable homes in which to reside during the winter. They are doing very well in their work this summer and have taken a decided liking to this northern country. Most of them are very industrious and painstaking in their work and have given general satisfaction to the beet raisers who employ them.

WHEAT GROWERS DEFINE POSITION ON PRICE FIXING

President Wm. J. Brown in Favor of Temporary Government Help.

Believes Co-Operatives Can Handle Situation by Next Year.

Declaring that conditions among American wheat growers are so serious that Federal action must be taken immediately to obtain better prices if the wheat industry is not to suffer financial collapse, the American Wheat Growers Associated, Inc., of Minneapolis, has directed a telegram to the President of the United States, asking for a special session of congress for wheat price legislation. The American Wheat Growers Associated, Inc., is the sales agency for nine state co-operative wheat marketing associations and, according to the telegram, expects to control enough grain from the 1924 harvest onward so that farmers themselves, working through their organization, can see that proper prices are secured.

"We realize that ultimately the solution of the 'wheat problem' is a matter for action by the wheat growers themselves," said William J. Brown, president of the American Wheat Growers Associated, in discussing the appeal to the President. Mr. Brown is also general counsel for the Minnesota Wheat Growers Co-Operative Marketing association. "But we also recognize clearly the fact that immense organizations of farmers are necessary before they can control enough wheat to control also the price of the commodity, and that time is required if such large concerns are to be safely and adequately built. It is during the interval of organization

Mrs. W. H. Mulry Called by Death Last Wednesday

Answers Final Summons After Courageous Battle Against Cancer.

Leaves Husband and Six Children to Mourn Her Untimely Death.

Last Wednesday afternoon occurred the death of Mrs. W. H. Mulry, well known Thief River Falls woman, at her home on Riverside avenue, after several weeks' illness from a cancerous growth in the region of the kidneys. Mrs. Mulry had been given every attention which medical skill could provide for her, but the nature of the ailment made it impossible for human hands to bring relief. While she suffered greatly, her spirit never failed and she died with a smile on her face. Her firm Christian faith lightened the ordeal of passing to the Great Beyond and leaving her loved ones behind.

Magdalena Noesen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Noesen, early pioneers of Crookston, was born in that city March 31, 1880, and grew to womanhood there. On June 1, 1890, she was united in marriage to William H. Mulry of Thief River Falls and this had been her home since that time. Through her sterling character and pleasing personality she endeared herself to everyone and leaves a large circle of friends who sincerely mourn her demise.

Besides a grief stricken husband, Mrs. Mulry leaves six children to mourn her death, as follows: Alice, Lawrence, Loretta, Willie, Bernadette and Mary, the last named being an infant only a few weeks old. Other sur-

Goodridge Election Fight Aired in District Court

A case arising out of the recent school election at Goodridge was presented to Judge Grindeland here last week, but as there appeared to be some question as to jurisdiction the court continued the case until September 11.

Palmer O. Tvedt and Otis E. Ronken are contesting the election of George Wold and Sig J. Anderson to the school board, alleging a number of irregularities committed by election officials gave the latter a majority of votes cast. It appears that no names were printed on the ballots used, and to add to the confusion a vacancy on the board caused through the resignation of a former member also was to be filled at this election. Three different Andersons shared in receiving votes and the similarity in initials helped to muddle things up.

Attorney Theo. Quale is conducting the case for the contestants.

Congress Will Be Convened If Need Develops

President Does Not Yet Believe Extra Session Necessary, However

Many Perplexing Problems Face New Chief Executive and Cabinet

Despite the pressure from New England and the middle west for new legislation to deal with the threatened anthracite coal strike and to relieve the farmers, President Coolidge sees no need for an extra session of congress.

He made this announcement on Saturday soon after his return to Washington from Marion, Ohio, where he attended the late President Harding's funeral on Friday. He let it become known, however, that he has not closed his mind on the subject and that he would not hesitate to summon congress to Washington should an emergency develop.

President Coolidge evidently desires to have the government organized and operating smoothly before congress meets. No slackening will be permitted. Any possible demoralization as a result of the change in chief executive will be guarded against with the New England caution which is one of Mr. Coolidge's chief characteristics.

The outstanding matters confronting the various departments of the government as the new administration took hold were:

State department decision as to the recognition of Mexico on the basis of results accomplished by the "recognition conference" just brought to an end by Mexican and American representatives at Mexico City.

The European crisis which is viewed as a menace to world peace.

Refunding the World war debts to the United States of 18 foreign nations.

Refunding of maturing issues to short term notes.

Balancing of the government in the face of diminished revenues this year.

Solution of the alarming difficulty of keeping the army up to its authorized strength by recruiting in the face of the competition of high wages in industry.

Scrapping of a number of battleships in conformity with the arms conference treaties. The problem of modernizing America's fighting ships without violating the spirit of the treaties.

Decision on the ruling asked by President Harding as to whether the president has the power to use the army and navy in prohibition enforcement. The prosecution of a large number of anti-trust and war fraud suits filed in courts and the filing of a number of others prepared. Decision as to government policy in the Southern Pacific-Central Pacific unmerger case.

Extension of American foreign trade standardizing in American industries; elimination of waste in American production and distribution.

Handling the immigration flood precipitated on American shores by the quotas which became effective July 1. Drafting of legislation for selective immigration and alien registration. Possible intervention in the threatened anthracite strike.

Inauguration of a new regime insofar as is within its power in the development of Alaska, in accordance with President Harding's views, formed after his personal visit there.

Inauguration of the new transcontinental night air mail service this month and the extension of the regular air mail service. Organization of the parcel post service of the department to cope with the recent vast flood of parcel business.

Development of a program for relief of western farmers hit by the wheat depression. Formulation of a government policy toward warehousing wheat and co-operative marketing urged by many farm leaders.

Shipstead Joins Fight For Soldier Patients

Senator Henrik Shipstead has entered the fight to obtain adequate hospital facilities for Minnesota veterans who are suffering from tuberculosis. He visited the Veterans' Bureau at Washington last week following his call on President Coolidge, seeking an interview with General Frank Hines, director of the bureau. He could not get in touch with General Hines, but he had an interview with Major General John J. O'Ryan, counsel for the senate committee investigating the Veterans' Bureau.

"I urged General O'Ryan to have his agents make a thorough investigation of the hospital situation in Minnesota," Senator Shipstead said. "He assured me that all the facts pertaining to the situation would be brought out by the senate committee.

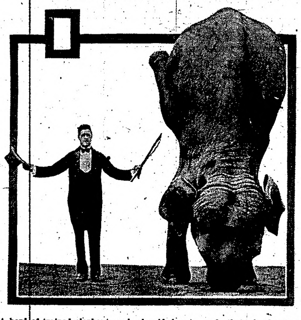
"I was disappointed that General Hines was not at the bureau, and that I could not get in touch with him on my brief stay here."

Senator Shipstead saw members of the interstate commerce commission relative to a car supply for the movement of crops that are now being marketed, and was assured that an ampel supply of grain cars would be available.

Y. P. S. Meeting

The Silverton Young People's society will meet at the Barstad home, one and one-half miles south of the Elwell school, Sunday, August 19. Gertrude Barstad and Mrs. H. O. Grinde will entertain.

ELEPHANT HERD STATE FAIR FEATURE



A herd of trained elephants, schooled by one of the greatest animal trainers in the world, will be a big feature of the vaudeville and fireworks program of the coming Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Dairy Exposition, September 1 to 8.

In the mammoth fireworks production, "India," staged before the grandstand each evening, this herd of elephants will play a big role. At the climax of the spectacle, when everything is ablaze with fire, these intrepid beasts rush through the flames and exploding bombs in battle, tossing their trunks about and screaming with rage. They are the only elephants that have ever been trained to brave fire and fireworks.

The big beasts also perform on mounted stages in front of the stand each afternoon and evening. More than sixteen open-air circus acts, recruited from the four corners of the world, will be put on at the state fair each day.

Indians Blanked in Battle With Locals Sunday

Thief River Falls Defeats Red Lake Agency by 8-to-0 Score.

Indians Fail to Live Up to Expectations of Baseball Fans.

The Red Lake Indian baseball team came to town last Sunday, but if they at any time entertained notions of returning to the Agency with a bunch of scalps at their belts, they soon changed their minds. Instead of scalping the Thief River Falls players, the Indians were forced to content themselves with the short end of an 8-to-0 score. The lads from the agency seemed to lose heart as soon as the locals secured their first score and as each run came over the plate they seemed just that much less disposed to exert themselves in trying to stop the merry-go-round which the Thief River Falls lads had started.

The game started out snappy with neither side securing a run during the first three innings. It looked for all the world as if the fans were to be treated to a real ball game. In the fourth the locals managed to slip over a run, following with three in the fifth and four in the sixth. The Indians managed to get the bases full once or twice but the locals tightened up and they were unable to register a count.

The Red Lake umpire made several decisions which didn't help his team any, and this seemed to take the heart out of the Indians entirely. It is said to be characteristic of an Indian ball player that he cannot do his best unless his team is in the lead, and the way the Red Lake boys acted here Sunday would seem to bear out this contention. It must be admitted, however, that the Indians are clean sportsmen and conduct themselves like gentlemen on the diamond.

Following is the box score of the game:

Greatest Sea Story Ever Filmed Will Be Shown at Local Theatre Two Days

"Masters of Men" to Be Presented at Popular Play House Sunday and Monday Evenings

"Masters of Men," by Morgan Robertson, the world's most noted writer of sea stories, is to be shown at the Lyceum theatre next Sunday and Monday. Critics have unanimously acclaimed this picture as the greatest sea story ever screened. The picturization by C. Graham Baker has retained loyally the atmosphere of the novel by America's master teller of sea stories and Vitagraph, who offers it, has provided a lavish production, with an all star cast.

"Masters of Men" tells the story of an American boy who accepted the shame of another's crime that he might protect the girl he loved from humiliation. Branded in his home town as a thief the lad runs away and joins the United States Navy. While on leave he is shanghaied and suffers the brutality accorded to men before the mast on board a four master sailing the Spanish Main. How he effects his escape and aids in the destruction of the Spanish fleet at Santiago provides a thrilling drama which holds interest throughout every foot of the screening.

There are four principal parts, as the story involves the love affairs of four young people. Earle Williams, one of the most popular stars of the screen, plays Lieutenant Breen, the officer who assists Dick Halpi (played by Cullen Landis) to win back honor and manhood. Pretty Alice Calhoun who has been starred in many Vitagraph productions and Wanda Hawley long a popular star, play the chief women's roles.

It is a picture of types and of vivid realism. The selection of types is said to have been perfect, particularly of those actors who play the brutal, hard fighting men who comprise the crew of the "Mary Earl." Dick Sutherland and Jack Curtis, who play the mate and captain of the four master, are known to fans as the most brutal looking actors in motion pictures. They give realism to Morgan Robertson's description of the brutes who made life a hell for men before the mast.

Minnesota to Show Fair Visitors Returns on Tax Paid for Highway Costs

Departments Combining State Fair Exhibits to Inform Taxpayers of Uses of Public Funds.

Uniting to show taxpayers the returns given for their money, Minnesota state departments are arranging one of the big interesting and instructive features for the state fair in one of the important buildings at the fair grounds, according to John Coleman, board of control member and chairman of the state exhibits committee.

"Preserving public health, protecting life and property, caring for unfortunates, improving roads, providing better schools and universities, husbanding state resources, briefly, making the state a better, healthier and more prosperous place to live—Minnesota is giving its taxpayers big value for every tax dollar," said Mr. Coleman.

"Taxes have increased in recent years, but correspondingly more service and benefits are given the taxpayers in return," he continued. "State department exhibits are being made to show where the money comes from and how it is being used. They will show how much of each tax dollar goes for schools, how much for roads, how much for health activities, and so forth. The taxpayer will be enabled to decide intelligently whether he will give up some of the benefits he enjoys in order to reduce his taxes."

The state department exhibits will occupy a big steel building on machinery hill. The game and fish department will have wild animals on exhibition, the highway department will show how concrete pavements are tested for quality just as butter and cheese is tested, and many other novel and interesting displays will add to this feature of the fair.

Greatest Dairy Exposition Ever Attempted Indicated for Fair Week This Year

Numerous Entries Already Made and Directors Predict Total of Nine Hundred or More.

Dairy cattle entries at the first Northwest Dairy Exposition to be held at the Minnesota state fair September 1 to 8 have surpassed all predictions and will reach the total of 900 head, it was announced from the exposition's headquarters this week. This will mean that the home dairy show will be on a scale equal to past national expositions.

With the foregoing announcement comes another to the effect that responses to the organization meetings conducted by L. Klima, special representative of the Northwest Dairy Exposition committee, in the Red River valley counties, on both sides of the river, have been so alive with enthusiasm that large county delegations were expected from this region to join with other counties from the Northwest.

Mr. Klima is conducting organization meetings in Grand Forks, Pembina and other sections of the Red River valley. He is a former director of the Steele county fair and an enthusiastic friend of agriculture. He tells the story of Steele county's growth from a one-crop county to a dairy plus county and asserts that bank deposits in Steele county today are $400 for every man, woman and child, and he attributes it all to the dairy industry.

Minnesota counties that have organized large special excursions to the Northwest Dairy exposition are: Isanti, a caravan of 80 autos; Sherburne, a caravan of 100 autos, with bands and floats; Chisago, a delegation of 500 persons via motor; Redwood; Kandiyohi, a train delegation which is likely to join neighboring counties; Renville, 300 by autos; an auto caravan from Scott; Nicollet; Pipestone, a Pullman delegation; Kanabec; St. Croix; Blue Earth, McLeod; Carver; Martin, 500 via special train; Beltrami, by auto; Yellow Medicine, Ottertail and Douglas by special train; Todd, 75 machine loads; Winona by special train.

A large delegation is to go from Grafton in Walsh county, and from Grand Forks, probably by special sleeping cars. Northern Michigan, Iowa and South Dakota are all to have good delegations.

The first home dairy exposition promises to be attended by crowds worthy of the fine exhibits, members of the committee assert.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

Calvin Coolidge, who became President of the United States upon the death of Warren G. Harding, was reared at Plymouth, Vermont, where he worked on his father's farm. He graduated from Amherst in 1895 and was admitted to practice law in Massachusetts in 1897. He served as mayor of Northampton, was a member of the Massachusetts legislature and of the state senate, was elected lieutenant governor and then governor. He was elected vice-president in 1920. His whole active life has been in politics. He is a firm believer in "humanizing government." On international questions he has declared himself in opposition to the League of Nations as it now stands and in favor of a world court. On prohibition he has aligned himself with the drys.

No character sketch of Calvin Coolidge more clearly defines his philosophy than his own written and published words contained in the volume, "Have Faith in Massachusetts," issued in 1919. It includes many of his public speeches and state papers. They are calm and studied utterances of a calm man, and apparently of a man without great political ambitions.

Through them all there runs a note of intense patriotism and love of country. What he says of Massachusetts as a state might often have been said of the United States as a whole. With his broadened vision he may find the opportunity to apply to national, and even to world affairs the same theories which were evolved during the years of his long service to the commonwealth of Massachusetts. In 1914 he said:

"Men do not make laws. They do but discover them. Laws must be justified by something more than the will of the majority. They rest on the eternal foundation of righteousness. Don't expect to build up the weak by pulling down the strong. Don't hurry to legislate. Give administration a chance to catch up with legislation."

In an address delivered July 4, 1916, he said: "The light that first broke over the thirteen colonies lying along the Atlantic coast was destined to illuminate the world. It has been a struggle against the forces of darkness; victory has been and is still delayed in some quarters, but the result is not in doubt. All the forces of the universe are arrayed on the side of democracy. It must prevail. The assertion of human rights is naught but a call to human sacrifice."

In another address delivered on Bunker Hill Day, June 17, 1918, Mr. Coolidge said: "We are beginning to hear of the development of the superman and the claim that he has the right of dominion over the rest of his inferiors on earth. This philosophy denies the doctrine of equality and holds that government is not based on consent, but on compulsion. It holds that the weak must serve the strong, which is the law of slavery; it applies the law of the animal world to mankind and puts science above morals. This sounds the call to the jungle. It is not the light of human reason but the darkness of the wisdom of the serpent. The law of progress and civilization is not the law of the jungle. It is an earthly law, it is a divine law. It does not mean the survival of the fittest, it means the sacrifice of the fittest."

DAIRYING AND PROSPERITY.

Another case showing the close connection between the dairy cow and community prosperity comes to the attention of The Tribune this week. A correspondent from the village of Bertha, in Todd county, submits some very interesting figures—figures which should go far in convincing the farmer who is placing his dependence upon the raising of small grain that it is time for him to change his ways to the extent of giving the dairy cow at least a part of his time and attention.

Twenty-five years ago the community in which Bertha is located was populated with farmers who bent their energies in the direction of producing wheat and other small grains. They had followed this method for many years, but finally a farmer here and there gradually acquired a few dairy cows and a co-operative creamery was organized and established in the village. The creamery proved a boon to the farmers from the very start and from year to year the number of dairy cows in the community increased.

Twenty years ago the Bertha creamery paid out to patrons for butterfat the modest sum of $2,679. At that time the bank deposits in the village amounted to the munificent sum of $5,652. During the past year the creamery at Bertha paid to its patrons a total of $333,329. At the same time the banks of Bertha report deposits of $547,293, a remarkable showing for a small village. In the 20 years the creamery has been in operation it has distributed in good hard cash $2,754,184 to the farmers of the Bertha community. Is it any wonder the banks have over half a million dollars on deposit?

Farmers in that section of the state are not worrying much about the government stabilizing the price of wheat. They have learned to place their dependence upon the dairy cow and are prospering accordingly.

Pennington county possesses every requirement for dairy farming enjoyed by Todd county farmers, and the question of desirable feed for the dairy cow is more easily solved here than any other place in the state. Our farmers are rapidly waking up to the possibilities of dairying and the industry is enjoying a steady and satisfactory growth. At the present rate of progress nearly every farmer in Pennington county will within the next five years devote a large part of his time and attention to the raising of dairy cattle and the production of butterfat.

The farmer as a class may be up against it temporarily, but The Tribune believes the intelligent farmers of this section are seeing the light and therefore are not losing heart. Every dark cloud has a silver lining and the present depression may serve a useful purpose if it brings farmers in general to a realization of the futility of placing their faith in one-crop methods of agriculture. Farming is a business proposition, and diversification and dairying help to make it a paying business. There is no lack of evidence to prove the truth of this assertion.

BRAWN VS. BRAINS

Parents who are solicitous about the welfare of their sons naturally use much care in choosing a proper method of educating them. The right kind of education means a great deal in determining the success which the young hopefuls may expect to enjoy when they are turned loose upon an unsuspecting and defenseless public.

Ordinary academic and other college courses do not seem to be particularly conducive to success in this day and age. In other words, such an education doesn't help much in the battle for wealth, honor and position in which the young man is about to engage.

There is, however, one sure recipe for success, especially if the lad is a natural-born roughneck with a thick skull. Put him on a diet of raw beefsteak, give him a pair of boxing gloves, hire a professional trainer and make a pugilist out of him. It is getting so that a champion can demand a half million dollars for one match and get away with it. And as long as the public likes and is willing to pay for that kind of stuff, why shouldn't the pugs be ready to grab the coin?

Of course, if the young hopeful turns out too weak physically to withstand the gentle love taps of an opponent in the pugilistic arena, there is still a chance for him to achieve a niche in the hall of fame. He can become a writer of popular songs. If he can manage to turn out a masterpiece like "Yes, We Have No Bananas," for instance, he will have won his place in the hearts of the American people, with sufficient financial benefits to put him on Easy Street for life.

So it goes in America. Call it a perverted taste or what you will, but that's the way the people are constituted today.

THE CO-OPERATIVE IDEA.

A consumer who recently purchased a bushel of potatoes found a note among the spuds which read: "I got 24 cents a bushel. What did you give?" The consumer had paid $1.20 for the bushel.

Here we have the main reason why co-operative selling organizations are coming into being. With potatoes marketed under the co-operative system, the price to the consumer will not be raised, but the farmer—the man who tills the soil—will get more than 24 cents of the consumer's $1.20. Shortening the gap between the producer and consumer will prove of immense benefit to both.

Among Our Exchanges

Unfair Competition.

There are three bus lines operating between Little Falls and Minneapolis. One company operates six busses each way daily. There is a war on between the companies and some of them are carrying passengers between the points for $1. That is the kind of competition that the railroad companies, with their expensive road beds to maintain and expensive equipment, have to meet.—Mahnomen Pioneer.

New York's bootleggers were fined about $700,000 during 1922, which was probably about one one-hundredth of one per cent of what they cleaned up—a nominal license to practice, in fact. usually prevail in this part of Minnesota there is but a remote chance of crop failure and this also adds to the value of sugar beets as a crop.

About sixty business men and farmers enjoyed the splendid luncheon at the club rooms Thursday. After lunch a number of short talks were made, sugar beets and related problems being the chief topics under consideration. H. W. Protzeller, chairman of the sugar beet committee of the club, spoke about plans which the committee had in mind for next fall when the beet crop is harvested. He said arrangements were under way whereby a special train carrying about 50 cars of beets will be sent from here to the factory of the Northern Sugar company at Mason City, Iowa. This, said Mr. Protzeller, will be done as an advertising stunt to draw the attention of people living in other parts of the country to the importance of this section as a sugar beet producing territory. It also is planned to have a number of live boosters accompany this shipment and to have these distribute advertising matter along the route. This stunt, together with press notices which will naturally follow in large papers and farm publications, should make the undertaking very profitable from a publicity point of view.

County Agent J. J. McCann read a report showing the sugar beet acreage in the vicinity of Thief River Falls. He stated that in this section 734 acres had been contracted for prior to the planting time. Instead of running below the allotment growers went considerably above it, so much so that in spite of 39 acres which were plowed under during the summer on account of poor stand, dry weather and for other reasons, there still remained 774 acres of beets which are coming along in fine shape and give promise of an abundant crop.

The judging teams which had previously been named proceeded to perform their work Thursday afternoon, and the decisions rendered will be found at the head of this story. The fields given first prize rated almost 100 per cent according to the judges, both in the matter of stand and state of cultivation. Many of the growers are already at work preparing increased acreage for next year's crop.

Mrs. W. H. Mulry Called by Death Last Wednesday

viving relatives are the following brothers and sisters, all of whom were here to attend the funeral: J. W. Noesen, Long Beach, Cal.; John, George and Louis Noesen, Crookston; Rev. M. J. Noesen, pastor of St. Bernard's church in this city, and Mrs. James O'Connell, Crookston.

Other relatives and friends of the family from a distance present at the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Battz, Crookston; Mark Roundbieler and daughter, Crookston; Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Moran, Crookston; Mr. and Mrs. P. Useldinger, Euclid; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mulry and children, St. Paul, and Richard Mulry, Spring Valley, Wis.

The funeral, which was very largely attended, was held Saturday morning from St. Bernard's Catholic church. The services were very impressive and the floral offerings beautiful and profuse. Rev. M. J. Noesen, brother of the deceased, was celebrant of the mass, assisted by Rev. Charles Keyser of Badger and Rev. N. Junker of Plummer as Deacon and Subdeacon, respectively. Father Oswald Johannes was master of ceremonies, and Rev. Pelger of Red Lake Falls was present in the Sanctuary. Rev. Oswald Johannes delivered a masterful funeral address. Interment was made in the Catholic cemetery.

Urgent Call for Price Fixing Result of Meet

hour or more. Mr. Wefald asserted that he was strongly in favor of wheat price stabilization, but believed that it should be made permanent. He also pleaded with the farmers to take a more active part in politics as a means of securing lasting relief, stating that the only hope lay in the farmer "capturing the government." The congressman seemed to labor under the impression that all classes are arrayed against the farmer, a premise with which all of his hearers very evidently did not fully agree.

A set of resolutions drafted by a committee appointed at the afternoon meeting were read and adopted. The resolutions request the President to call a special session of congress at once to place a guarantee price upon wheat in order to help the farmer out of his present predicament. Following are the resolutions as adopted:

THAT WHEREAS, it is conceded on all hands that the farmers of the nation are in a deplorable condition financially, due to inadquate returns given him for his products on account of conditions over which he has no control and which he neither individually or collectively can combat.

AND WHEREAS it is admitted that the farmers have managed to exist upon the inflated values of real estate which has enabled him to contract more debts, and now when land values are at a standstill he finds himself unable to meet his obligations, either principal or interest, and that taxes which are constantly increasing are becoming delinquent in alarming proportions, and

WHEREAS the marketing forces of the world do not set prices on the basis of the cost production, but is governed by the result of the contest between bulls and bears of the market, so that the prosperity of the agriculturist has become a football for the speculators and gamblers in the great market exchanges of the world, and,

WHEREAS we believe that the only agency which can secure for the farmers of the nation, adequate and immediate relief, is the American Government through congressional action:

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, That we request the President of the United States to call a special session of Congress to enact the required legislation.

That the Government of the United States should organize an agency with power to purchase, if necesary, the exportable surplus of wheat and provide against the importation thereof by tariff;

That Congress then set a minimum price of two dollars per bushel on wheat and a resonable price on other porducts.

Expressing our firm conviction, that in so doing the Government of the United States will be taking the necessary step towards giving to the producer, a voice in the fixing of prices on his products, which is absolutely necessary in order that this important industry might live.

Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be formarded to President Coolidge and that like copies be sent to our Representatives in Congress.

The above resolution was unanimously adopted.

Wheat Growers Define Position on Price Fixing

work that we appeal for Federal aid. We look at this merely as a temporary expedient to meet the bad conditions which exist today. We do not consider it as setting a precedent to be followed in the future, but merely an acknowledgement on the part of the government that unusual action must be taken to meet unusual developments.

"The American Wheat Growers Associated through its affiliated state associations is just now launching a membership drive which is designed to increase the amount of wheat handled by it from the present 60,000,000 bushels to something like 350,000,000 before the next marketing period. When the latter figure is obtained the farmers will be required to depend upon no one but themselves for legitimate prices. By their own power and by their own action they will be able to sell export wheat on world's markets as best they can, and then definitely fix a domestic price high enough under the protection of the tariff, so that the average return to all growers will really mean cost plus a legitimate profit."

The telegram to the president from the American Wheat Growers Associated reads as follows, being signed by all of the nine wheat growers' associations affiliated with the joint selling agency:

"Impelled by the intolerable conditions and economic punishment now experienced by the wheat growers of America as the culmination of three years of extreme price depression, the American Wheat Growers Associated, Inc., respectfully urges that you call an immediate session of congress to provide means for relief. This is the largest exclusive organization of wheat growers in the United States, with 60,000 members in nine wheat states, established to secure a fair price for wheat through co-operative marketing. But the development of such an organization is necessarily a matter of some time, and the American Wheat Growers Associated, Inc., will not this year be in a position to control bushelage sufficient to influence markets to a degree which is imperative if the nation's wheat growers are to be afforded relief.

"The American Wheat Growers Associated, Inc., advocated, through immediate legislation, the establishment of a Federal agency, suitably financed, to go into the open market and purchase wheat whenever the price drops below a basis of $1.75 per bushel for No. 1 Dark Northern Spring wheat at Chicago, with suitable differentials for wheat of different grades and qualities, this agency to act during the marketing year of 1923 and until July 1, 1924. From that date onward wheat producers, through their organization, will exert sufficient domestic price control to insure returns commensurate with their capital and labor investment."

Pioneer Resident Passes at Advanced Age; Funeral Rites Conducted Sunday

"Grandma" Davidson, Early Homesteader in This Section, Answers Final Summons.

Mrs. Elsie Davidson, for many years a resident of Thief River Falls and a pioneer of this section of Minnesota, died at her home on North Kinney avenue last Saturday morning at 1 o'clock. She had gradually been failing for some time and her death was due to the infirmities of old age.

Mrs. Davidson was well known and highly respected. For years she had been the best friend of the little ots in the neighborhood knew, and the children will miss greatly their smiling old "Grandma" Davidson. She never neglected any opportunity to be kind to the "kiddies" and in return enjoyed their love and confidence.

Among the pioneers of this community, Mr. and Mrs. Davidson homesteaded north of Holt nearly 40 years ago. The husband died 22 years ago while they still resided on the farm, and for the past seventeen years Mrs. Davidson made her home in Thief River Falls. She was born in Norway and had reached the advanced age of 88 years at the time of her death. Sixty years ago she emigrated to America, settling at Modena, Wis., which was the family residence until they moved to the homestead near Holt.

Surviving relatives are two sons, Ole Davidson of Holt and Arne Davidson, who resides in Montana, and two daughters, Mrs. James Nelson of Modena, Wis., and Mrs. Olaf Sorum of Hillsboro, N. D. Mrs. Sorum spent some time here and cared for her mother during her last illness.

The funeral was conducted Monday afternoon from the Larson undertaking parlors, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Ordal of Holt. The remains were laid at rest in Greenwood cemetery.

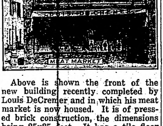
Mrs. LaBree Leaves for East.

Mrs. W. J. LaBree left this morning for Duluth, where she will visit with her sister for a few days. From that city she will continue to Chicago to visit with her son, Milford, who is employed there. She will also visit relatives in New York city, Boston, Augusta, Me., and at her childhood home at East Washbrin, Me. On her return home she expects to stop off at Washington, D. C., Mount Vernon and at Winona, Minn. She will be gone two months or more.

Chas. Alexander Injured.

Chas. Alexander, well known Thief River Falls man, is laid up temporarily as the result of an accident which he suffered the other day. Mr. Alexander was leading a somewhat unruly cow when he slipped and fell headlong. The cow ran over him and trampled on his chest, breaking three or four ribs. Charley is taking things philosophically and is glad to be alive after his unpleasant experience.

DeCremer Meat Market



Above is shown the front of the new building recently completed by Louis DeCremer and in which his meat market is now housed. It is of pressed brick construction, the dimensions being 25x85 feet. It has a tile floor and full basement, with a large, deep front window for display purposes. The fixtures are of the very best to be had and the interior of the shop presents a most inviting appearance. Mr. DeCremer operates his own ammonia refrigerating plant, which he considers far more satisfactory than the ordinary ice method.

Mrs. Esta Barton, Former Milliner Here, Has Taken Fine Position in LaCrosse

Mrs. Esta I. Barton, well known in Thief River Falls, where she conducted the Dalquist Millinery store for several years prior to disposing of it this spring, has secured a very desirable position as manager of the millinery department of the William Doerflinger company, one of the largest department stores in LaCrosse, Wis. This information was contained in a letter to The Tribune this week requesting that the paper be sent to her at that place.

Mrs. Barton says she believes she is going to like her new position, and states that LaCrosse is a beautiful little city. She also says she misses her Thief River Falls friends very much and sends greetings to all of them through The Tribune.

The church had been beautifully decorated with asters and ferns. The Mendelsohn wedding march was played by Mrs. H. B. Roemhildt, a sister of the bride, and Miss Dora Holmes sang, "Oh, Promise Me."
Me."

GREAT NORTHERN OPERATING AND EQUIPMENT COST ADVANCES

All the work that you do, all the work that everybody does, consists in moving from point to point yourself and in moving objects from one point to another. This is all that a railroad does. You know that it costs you something to do your own work. Do not forget that it costs the railroad immeasurably more to do its work, which is also your work, and without which the greater part of your labor and expense would be lost.

In traveling on a completely equipped train with dining, parlor and sleeping car service the facilities are the same as in high class hotels. The cost to the traveler is immensely less.

Every item in the provision for both passenger and freight service costs more than it did. You travel over a mile of railroad track in a minute or two. This mile of track, exclusive of the grade and right of way, which cost $15,000 in 1913 now costs $25,000.

Here is a comparative list of Great Northern equipment ten years ago with the cost of similar equipment now:

	Cost in 1913	Cost in 1923
Mountain Type Engines	$24,000	$54,000
Sleeping Cars	16,000	36,000
Dining Cars	14,000	31,500
Day Coaches	9,000	20,250
Refrigerator Cars	1,200	2,700
Ore Cars	800	1,800
Box Cars	800	1,800
Flat Cars	650	1,462

Taxes have increased in these same ten years over 100 per cent. This makes a formidable addition to the operating expenses of every railroad. But at the same time railroad freight and passenger rates have increased only about 40 per cent.

For everything we have, food, shelter, clothing, and transportation, we must pay. Transportation has made this country what it is, and if it is impaired the whole country suffers disaster. It is worth thinking about as a matter of self interest as well as a matter of justice that the service is being rendered, under cost conditions most unfavorable to the carrier and growing yearly more difficult, at a price to the public so little over that of ten years ago.

Take these facts into consideration whenever you think or talk about railroad rates.

Detailed Report Shows Goodridge School Activity

Consolidated District Shows Healthy Condition; Future Is Bright.

One of Best Community Educational Systems in Entire State.

A. B. Mandt, secretary of the board of education, School District No. 18, Goodridge, this week handed The Tribune for publication a statement showing in detail the financial transactions of the district during the past year.

School District No. 8 maintains one of the best schools in the state in a village the size of Goodridge. It is of the consolidated type and includes several outlying districts tributary to the village, which gives unexcelled educational advantages to the children residing on farms in that community. Transportation of the children to and from school is accomplished through the use of bus lines with suitable vehicles traveling on regular schedule every day school is in session. In this way a pupil experiences no hardship or inconvenience even though the school may be several miles away.

The Goodridge neighborhood is very proud of its school and the people of the district are entitled to a large amount of credit for the efficient manner in which it is conducted. It takes money—and lots of it—to operate a good school, but the people of the eastern Pennington county neighborhood have made up their minds that it is money well spent and propose to go through with it.

Following is the statement submitted by Secretary Mandt:

Bids Called For More Public Road Work as Planned

State Commissioner to Open Bids Sept. 5 on Highway Betterments.

County Reimbursing Bonds Will Be Used in Paying for New Roads.

Eleven state trunk highway improvements—more than 75 miles of grading, 7½ miles of paving, 6 miles of graveling and 13 bridges, are listed on a call for bids September 5, issued this week by Charles M. Babcock, the state highway commissioner.

Nearly all the proposed betterments will be paid with money from new county reimbursement bonds, of which more than $11,000,000 of additional issues were authorized by the last legislature, but, the commissioner said, every improvement is needed and is well at the top of the regular state development program.

"Reimbursement bond proceeds can be used only within the county voting the issues, regardless of the relative claims of the county to state highway improvements or whether there are less than 50 or more than 200 miles of trunk highways in the county," continued Mr. Babcock. "It is easy to see, therefore, that state highway bonds are preferable if the highway program is to be carried out with fairness to all sections of the state and the funds used to serve best the largest numbers providing them. The department, however, is continuing the policy against county bond projects which would take for minor repairs the funds needed for more important undertakings and best results for the general public."

Road contractors in the localities where work is planned are asked to bid because without having to charge equipment moving expense they often submit the lowest figure to their own and the state's advantage.

The improvements planned total $885,000 in round figures on preliminary estimates by highway engineers.

Cable guard rail will be installed wherever necessary with the new improvements. Specification call for monolithic and farm entrance and other culverts on grading. A certified check for at least 5 per cent of the bid must accompany each proposal. The bids are to be opened publicly on September 5 at the St. Paul offices of the Minnesota highway department.

Red Lake County Cattle Make Excellent Showing at Neighborhood Fairs

Take Championship for Best Herd on Grounds at Pennington County Fair Last Week.

Red Lake county continues to get the best kind of advertising from the herd of 15 head of Aberdeen-Angus cattle that are being shown at Minnesota fairs this month, by Albert Paradis. Following the Red Lake county fair, Mr. Paradis shipped his stock to the Pennington county fair at Thief River Falls, where they were awarded the 11 first places and four seconds. The herd was further awarded grand champion bull, junior champion bull, grand champion cow and junior champion cow. The champion ribbon for the best herd on the Pennington county fair grounds of the beef type cattle was also awarded the herd.

At the Northwestern Minnesota fair at Crookston this week the herd was again awarded 11 first and four seconds, together with grand champion bull, junior champion bull, grand champion cow and junior champion cow.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

Chance Meeting Reveals Information Concerning Man Long Thought Dead

Roseau Man Meets Relative Here Who Brings Tidings From Father Given Up for Lost.

A story which reads like romance appears in last week's issue of the Warroad Pioneer. It goes to show that the world is a small place after all and that time solves all riddles. The story contains so much human interest that The Tribune herewith reproduces it in full:

"Carl Steen of this place, while attending the Pennington county fair last week, met a cousin by the name of Wold from Superior. Wis., whom he had never seen. Mr. Wold, in citing some of the family history, informed Mr. Steen that his father was still living and residing in the northern part of Norway.

"It appears that some 33 years ago Mr. Steen, who was a sea captain, left Liverpool, England, in charge of one of the first steel built vessels, for a South African port. The ship never reached her destination and was given up as lost with her crew and cargo. After two years of investigation without results, Mrs. Steen with her children left Norway and located in London, England. As the children grew up they left England, most of them coming to America.

"The story as told by Mr. Wold has it that Captain Steen and a couple of sailors were picked up at sea by a small craft which landed them on some part of the coast of China. For three years Mr. Steen wandered on foot to reach some port from which he could embark for his native country. Upon reaching Norway he discovered that his family had departed for parts unknown, he then returned to the sea and on various occasions went to his old home in hopes of finding some trace of the whereabouts of his loved ones. Some years ago he retired from sailing and took up his home in northern Norway, where he now resides hale and hearty notwithstanding that he is nearly 80 years old.

"Mr. Steen of this place is now figuring on plans for a reunion of the family in the near future."

Steenerson Forms Law Partnership.

The Crookston Times states that former Congressman Halvor Steenerson has formed a partnership with Theodore F. Neils and O. O. Myhre under the name and style of Steenerson, Neils and Myhre for the general practice of law, and will occupy for offices the entire second floor of the Strander Abstract company building on Broadway, next to the Hotel Crookston. Mr. Neils succeeded to the law business of Loring & Youngquist some two years ago, and Mr. Myhre has practiced law for four years with offices at Hallock and Kennedy, Minn.

Overdose of Moonshine.

John Johnson appeared before Judge N. W. Tarrant in municipal court on Monday, charged with being drunk. He admitted that he might have taken on a little too much "moon" Saturday just before Chief of Police Berge picked him up on the streets. The judge looked him over and decided that $10 and trimmings would be about right in a case of this kind. The fine was paid.

In Federal Court.

C. B. Bradley is in Fergus Falls this week giving testimony before the federal grand jury. Mr. Bradley was nabbed some months ago by federal officers on a liquor charge and it is this case which demands his attention at this time. The Tribune goes to press too early to learn what disposition was made of Bradley's case at Fergus Falls.

Knud Wefald Asks Extra Congress Session; Wired President Last Saturday

Representative Sends Message to Coolige Requesting Legislation for Relief of Farmers

Representative Knud Wefald of the ninth congressional district, in a telegram last Saturday, addressed to President Coolidge, urges that the chief executive call a special session of congress to enact legislation for stabilization of farm product prices.

The telegram follows:

"The farmer, who has asked little a the hands of the government and received less, now asks you, who come from the depths of the people—a free man, to give him a chance to be heard.

"He asks a special session of congress in which he intends to show the railroads benefited by the Esch-Cummins law and the manufacturers benefited by the tariff. The farmer asks cost of production plus a profit in his business.

"Three farm crops have been sold at much less than cost of production. Protest and mass meetings are being conducted every day in Minnesota. We do not face starvation, but we do face loss of our farms.

"We have faith in your sense of justice."

Memorial Services Held Here for Late President Attract Large Audience

Business Places of City Close as Mark of Respect to Former Chief Executive of Nation.

A large crowd was in attendance Friday afternoon at the Harding memorial services held at the Auditorium. The interior of the building had been beautifully decorated for the occasion, the stage decorations being especially beautiful.

The services opened with an introductory speech by Mayor John Bratrud. Mr. Bratrud paid a beautiful tribute to the late President and gave a short resume of his life and activities. Rev. J. B. Smith of the Methodist church delivered the invocation, which was filled with thought and sentiment befitting the occasion.

The audience, led by a mixed quartette composed of Mr. and Mrs. H. C Durrin, Mrs. W. W. Prichard Jr., and Andrew Bottelson, sang "Lead, Kindly Light," a favorite hymn of President Harding, which was followed by a beautiful number rendered by the quartette Mrs. O. F. Mellby also sang a very pleasing solo.

Rev. Albin A. Larson of Augustana Lutheran church delivered a masterful memorial sermon, describing the fine Christian characteristics of the late President and showing how the true Christ spirit was the outstanding feature of his long and useful career.

The next number was a tribute to President Harding from the ex-service men, delivered by Rev. Chas. Gerlinger, a former service man, handled his subject very capably. After singing "Nearer, My God, to Thee," the meeting closed with a prayer and benediction by Rev. R. L. Barackman for many years pastor of the Presbyterian church in Thief River Falls, but now residing at Lincoln, Neb.

All business places in the city were closed Friday afternoon during the services at the Auditorium

Rural Credit Board Gets $1,000,000 From Initial Allotment of Bonds Sold

First Installment of Three Millions in Bonds Already Disposed of by State.

Loans to 200 Minnesota farmers on first mortgages, the first fruits of Minnesota's new rural credits act, will be made shortly, from a fund of $1,000,000 which has been obtained from the first sale of bonds. The money was delivered to the board late Monday by the Wells-Dickey company and the Minnesota Loan and Trust company, members of the syndicate which contracted for the sale of the bonds.

"This amount is the first instalment of the $3,000,000 in bonds which the board has sold," T. O. Ofsthun, secretary, said. "It will take care of one-third of the 600 applications which have been acted on by the board. There will be a few days' delay until some details in connection with the loans are disposed of by bankers."

Loans will average $5,000, and are made only on first mortgages in Minnesota citizens who own and till their own soil. Purposes for which loans may be made are to buy additional land, to erect buildings, to equip the farm, or to retire prior liens.

There are 18,000 applications on file. Additional bond issues will be authorized this fall to handle more of the applications, Mr. Ofsthun said.

Six Persons Injured as Two Automobiles Collide on Road Near Crookston

Victims Miraculously Escape Death as Ford Sedan Turns Completely Over Near Deep Ditch.

Two cars, a Dodge and a Ford, participated in a collision about four miles west of the Northwest School of Agriculture at Crookston last Friday evening which resulted in the injury of six persons. Both cars were badly wrecked. Five persons were riding in the Dodge sedan driven by Leo McLaughlin of Grand Forks when it crashed into the car occupied by J. A. Fardal of Karlstad, who turned onto the Grand Forks road into the path of the sedan from a side road. Fardal was reported to be the most seriously hurt. He was injured about the head and was unable to talk after the accident. At his written request he was taken to St. Luke's hospital at Fargo, while the other injured were taken to St. Vincent's hospital at Crookston for treatment.

Accompanying Mr. McLaughlin were his wife and baby, Mrs. Paul McLaughlin of Grand Forks, and Mrs. M. R. Krakota of Arvilla. Mrs. Krakota suffered a fractured collar bone while Mrs. Phil McLaughlin and the baby both escaped with minor bruises, while the driver suffered only minor bruises.

The members of the sedan car had a miraculous escape from death, it is declared, as the accident occurred alongside a 12-foot ditch partly filled with water. A railing along the road prevented the car from toppling over into the ditch after it had turned over a complete wreck.

WORK ON NEW GREAT NORTHERN DEPOT TO START AT ONCE; L. D. M'ADAMS OF THIEF RIVER FALLS AWARDED CONTRACT

Terms of Contract Require That Structure Be Ready For Occupancy By December 1—News Comes Very Unexpectedly.

The new Great Northern depot in Thief River Falls is soon to become a reality instead of only a dream. L. D. McAdams, local contractor, who submitted a bid on the building when these were asked for several weeks ago, received a telegram yesterday informing him that his bid had been accepted and advising him to order the necessary material and make any further preparations necessary before beginning the erection of the structure. It is expected the company engineer will be here tomorrow to stake out the location and make other preliminary arrangements. The terms of the contract require that the building be completed by December 1.

The new depot will be built across the street from the present structure, or about midway between LaBree and Main avenues, thus placing the structure between two paved streets. It is proposed to make the passenger end of the depot front on Main avenue, with a parking space between the building and the street. It will be placed on the same side of the track as the present station.

The depot will be of frame and stucco construction, 30x134 feet, large enough to meet the demands of the city and country. The building will be modern throughout, providing all the comforts for the traveling public now to be found in the larger stations of the country. The depot will be built along plans similar to the one used at Warren, except that the Thief River Falls station will be on a larger scale. The outside will be of white marble stucco, with brick veneer below a line even with the bottom of the windows.

Elks Lodge Makes Plans for Picnic Next Sunday

Thief River Falls Lodge No. 1308, B. P. O. E., is making extensive plans for the annual picnic, which will be held this year on Sunday, August 26—next Sunday. The place selected for the event is the fair grounds and everything possible will be done to provide a good time for all those who attend.

Ladies and children are especially invited, and if they take a notion to go there is no question but what the men will be there also. There will be plenty of eats and a splendid program is being arranged by the entertainment committee. Every member of the Elks lodge and his family are urged to be present.

Many Merchants Decide Against Keeping Stores Open Wednesday Nights

Feel That Public Requirements Do Not Make Procedure Necessary at This Time.

The question of keeping Thief River Falls business establishments open Wednesday evenings, concerning which an article appeared in last week's issue of The Tribune, has been the subject of further consideration by local business men this week. Now it seems that the sentiment in favor of keeping open Wednesday evenings is not nearly so unanimous as the item in The Tribune last week seemed to indicate. In fact, a list circulated by interested parties and disapproving of the Wednesday evening opening policy, has been liberally signed and handed to The Tribune for publication.

Several of the clothing stores and a few other places which have kept open Wednesday evenings in the past will continue to do so, but at present there is evidently no intention of making the practice general. It is a matter for each individual merchant to settle for himself and a question upon which it is extremely difficult to secure complete agreement among business men.

Following are the names attached to the resoultion against keeping open Wednesday evenings: Olaf Neset, Zeh & Curran, Rhodegard & Co., Bredeson & Co., Chris Halvorsen, C. S. Simonson, W. H. Mulry, Peoples Co-operative Store, LaVogue Shop, Carlson & Swenson, G. G. Williams, H. K. Strand, Farmers Co-operative Meat Market, Dress Club, Larson Furniture Co., Louis DeCremer, M. M. Johnson, J. C. Penney Co., Economy Grocery, A. A. Wangenstein, Hall Brothers Co., Oen Mercantile Co., Hardware and Grocery, E. L. Rolland, A. M. Langseth, Carl Christofferson.

Police Chief Berge Nabs Thief Riverite on Charge of Violating Liquor Law

Taken on Information Furnished Officer by Man Recently in Trouble On Account of "Moon."

Joe Jetland, a resident of Thief River Falls, was arrested last Friday on a charge of selling intoxicating liquor. The warrant was sworn to and the arrest made by Chief of Police O. E. Berge. It is stated that a man who recently got into trouble through overindulgence in moonshine, gave the information which led to Jetland's arrest.

The young man has given bonds for his appearance next Tuesday, Aug. 28th, when he will be given a hearing before Judge N. W. Tarrant in municipal court. The temporary absence of County Attorney Theo. Quale made it impossible to conduct the hearing immediately following Jetland's arrest.

Paralysis Ends Long Career of Fred T. Lincoln

Dies at Home of Brother in Grand Forks Sunday Afternoon.

Former Secretary of Thief River Falls Commercial Club.

Fred T. Lincoln, a well known former resident of Thief River Falls and at one time secretary of the local Commercial club, died Sunday afternoon at the home of his brother, N. R. Lincoln, in Grand Forks. Mr. Lincoln had been in ill health for the past six weeks. At that time he was stricken with paralysis, and the second stroke came two weeks ago. Soon after the second stroke he was taken to Grand Forks to the home of his brother from Billings, Mont., where he was engaged as secretary of the commercial club. He was accompanied to Grand Forks by Mrs. Lincoln, their son and daughter, Marshall and Marjorie.

Fred T. Lincoln was born in Georgia Plains, Vermont, and was 54 years of age at the time of his death. As a young man he lived in Wisconsin, where he was active in politics. Eighteen years ago he went to Crookston, where he engaged in newspaper work, later going to Grand Forks, where he was city editor of the Herald. In 1916 he came to Thief River Falls and for a time was secretary of the Commercial club. He held the same position at Brainerd for four years prior to going to Billings three years ago.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at Grand Forks under Masonic auspices, the ceremonies being in charge of Accacia lodge and Knights of St. Aldemar Commandery, in both of which bodies he was a member. The body was shipped to Wakau, Wis., for burial. Mr. Lincoln also was a member of the Elks' lodge at Brainard.

Besides his wife, Mr. Lincoln is survived by three children, Marshall and Marjorie, who reside at home, and Russell, who is in Wisconsin. One brother, N. R. Lincoln of Grand Forks also survives.

State Convention Closes; Local Legion Men Return

Oscar Paulson, Oscar Smith and Morlan Bishop returned this week from Faribault, where they had been in attendance for several days at the state convention of the American Legion. The boys report a large and enthusiastic meeting and state they were royally entertained by the citizens of the hustling southern Minnesota city.

Among the prominent speakers on the program at the convention were National Commander Owsley of the Legion and Judge K. M. Landis. Both delivered masterful addresses which were much enjoyed by the former service men.

Mr. Smith and Mr. Bishop made the trip by car and returned by way of New Ulm, where the former visited for a few days with his mother.

Open Road Next Winter.

Snow fences are to be built along many trunk highways this fall toward keeping the main roads open next winter, as far as possible with reasonable expense, Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, announced this week. Field engineers and superintendents are listing places where it is believed the snow fences will be effective. In some localities farmers are leaving a few rows of corn standing to serve as snow fences.

Mrs. Larson's Mother Dies.

Mrs. George Larson, wife of the pastor of the Zion Lutheran church, received a telegram Sunday evening from Colfax, Wis., bearing the sad news of the death of her mother. Mrs. Larson left Monday evening for Colfax to be present at the funeral.

TOURISTS FROM VALLEY POINTS VIEW WINNIPEG

Warmly Welcomed and Royally Entertained by People of Canada Metropolis.

Delegates Seek Co-operation of Farmers in Valley Beyond Border.

With flags of Canada and the United States flying, 250 members of the Red River Valley Development association drove into Winnipeg Sunday evening. The association, which is composed of business men from the Minnesota and North Dakota side of the Red River Valley, makes a tour every year, but this is the first time its members have chosen to cross the Canadian border. The tourists were met at Emerson by a welcoming committee composed of Mayor S. J. Parmer, A. C. Emmett, president of the Manitoba Motor League, and Mayor E. Casselman of Emerson. After the dinner in Emerson, the party drove to Winnipeg, arriving at their headquarters, the Marlborough hotel, at about six o'clock.

Fifty-three cars were in the procession, 28 of which were from Crookston. The remainder were from Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls, St. Hilaire, Warren, Hallock, Grand Forks and East Grand Forks. The majority of tourists were accompanied by their wives and families.

The following made up the Thief River Falls delegation: Captain A. Hoveland and wife, E. M. Bennes and wife, L. R. Johnston and wife, A. R. Kohn, Chas. Lieberman, Mrs. G. Halvorson, Miss Doris Halvorson, L. C. Pope and C. H. Jung. All of them speak in the highest terms of the trip and the reception tendered them by the people of Winnipeg. S. E. Hunt of Red Lake Falls, president of the association, spoke enthusiastically of the trip while in Winnipeg.

"We have wanted to take a tour into the Canadian side for some time," he said, "but this year was our first opportunity. It is particularly fitting because the tour this year is more than the usual annual affair, being in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the discovery of the Red River Valley by Major Stephen H. Long.

"Fundamental purposes of the association are of just as much interest to farmers and business men north of the border as they are to us. We are primarily concerned with developing the Red River Valley to its fullest, and that is what counts with our Canadian neighbors too.

"Just as we have found on our side that diversified farming is absolutely essential to profitable development of the Red River Valley, so are you finding it here. Just as we have found the value of goods, so are you on the Canadian side finding it. There are many things on which, as neighbors, we can labor in co-operation and profit by our joint experiences. We are hoping that this trip will help to strengthen and promote this feeling on both sides."

Officers Take Two Men in Hand for Stretching Provisions of Dry Law

Sheriff O. L. Ihle last Saturday night arrested F. W. Mack, employed as cook in the Thompson cafe, on a charge of having liquor in his possession. Mack was picked up at Hazel on information furnished the sheriff and brought to Thief River Falls. He was given a hearing in municipal court before Judge N. W. Tarrant, who assessed a fine of $100 and costs, which was paid and the prisoner released.

The same evening Deputy Hans Lokken at Hazel, took in tow a young man on the same charge. The prisoner gave his name as Jas. Purcell and his home as Grand Forks. He stated that he had been employed in repair work on the dam at Red Lake Falls. Judge Tarrant also handed this violator a $100 fine and the prisoner claims that he will be able to raise the money within a few days. In the meantime Purcell is a guest of Sheriff Ihle at the local "Moonshiners' Convention Hall."

SUGAR BEETS AND SUGAR FACTORIES.

(Editorial.)

Much unn.cessary alarm and an unwarranted state of depression have been in evidence among certain people in Thief River Falls since news reached the city last week that the Northern Sugar company proposes to begin soon the erection of a beet sugar factory at East Grand Forks. Those in touch with the situation, however, see nothing in this report to become discouraged over. They maintain, and rightly so, that instead of complaining, people here should rejoice to think that the beet industry in the valley is growing to proportions which promise in the near future a factory almost at their very doors.

The offer made to East Grand Forks by the sugar company last week is nothing new to local men conversant with the situation. Identically the same offer was made six months ago for the location of a factory here, but the Thief River Falls committee quickly came to the conclusion that it would be an utter impossibility to raise the half million dollars and told the officials so. Whether the promoters of the factory at East Grand Forks will be able to raise the required amount remains to be seen, and chances appear to be very much against them doing it. Selling five hundred thousand dollars worth of stock in a sugar beet factory is no small task under present conditions, and the East Grand Forks committee will likely discover this before they have progressed very far.

Here is another thing for Thief River Falls people to think about. The limit of beet sugar factories in the Red River Valley is not placed at one establishment. On the contrary—and this statement is based on an assertion made here by Mr. Douglas himself—it is the intention of the Northern Sugar company to build three factories in the valley as soon as the production of beets seems to warrant. One of these, said Mr. Douglas, will be built in Thief River Falls, the second at East Grand Forks, and the third probably at Moorhead. Another thing which should not be lost sight of is the fact that the Northern Sugar company in no wise has complete control of the situation. The concern has competitors, two or three of them being large and successful manufacturers. It does not seem reasonable that these people are going to stand idly by and let pass an opportunity to increase their business. Taking everything into consideration, it appears that a factory is certain to be built in Thief River Falls in the near future.

And here The Tribune comes to the aspect of the situation which to it seems most important of all: Why all this fuss and worry about a beet sugar factory? Of course, a factory would be a nice thing for Thief River Falls, and it would also be of some benefit to local growers by increasing profits through a saving in transportation costs. But let no one forget for an instant that the important thing right now is making provision for an increased acreage of sugar beets in this territory next year and the years following. This is the part of the program which should receive immediate and earnest attention.

Instead of going about with a long face and a forlorn expression bemoaning the fact that East Grand Forks is to have a sugar factory wouldn't it be a much better plan for every mother's son to put his shoulder to the wheel and do his bit toward getting the beet industry firmly established in the territory adjacent to Thief River Falls? There is work to be done in this direction and lots of it. It must be remembered that beet growing here is still in its infancy and if it ever is to become a permanent and profitable industry, this section must raise beets. large quantities of beets, and good beets. To attain this result in a reasonably short time requires action—concerted effort. Here is where every man can accomplish something really worth while, a thousand times more than he can by spending his time in lamentation over the prospect that East Grand Forks is to have a sugar factory before one is built in Thief River Falls. Let everyone keep in mind that a factory is a secondary consideration. Raising beets comes first, and when this section of Minnesota has demonstrated that it is in dead earnest about raising sugar beets no apprehension need be felt with regard to marketing facilities—even to the extent of a factory in Thief River Falls. This is merely another illustration of the law of cause and effect. Let no one think it practicable to attempt a reversal of this law. It never has been reversed and never will be.

It has been demonstrated during the past two or three seasons that Pennington county and the territory surrounding possess in a pronounced degree the soil and other conditions necessary to the successful and profitable raising of sugar beets. The only thing needed now is sufficient acreage to make it an object for a sugar factory to locate here.

Let's get this thing right. More attention to sugar beet acreage and less worrying about a factory. Isn't that the sensible thing?

Two Automobiles Badly Wrecked Saturday Night In Crash on Hazel Road

Five Young Men of Thief River Falls Experience Lucky Escape When Cars Collide.

Two badly smashed automobiles is the result of a collision on the road between Hazel and St. Hilaire last Saturday evening. Five young men of this city, who figured in the accident, are justified in considering themselves fortunate that they still are counted among the living.

Bert Umland and Stephen Arneson, in a Haynes car, were on their way to Hazel, while Hjalmer Bundy, Charley Herron and Charley Dostal, in a Ford, were coming in the opposite direction. Both cars were going at a fair rate of speed and came too close together in attempting to pass. The Ford turned completely over from the force of the impact and all of the occupants were pinned underneath, while those in the Haynes suffered only a severe shaking up. Help quickly arrived on the scene and released the lads who were under the Ford. It was found that none had suffered serious injury, although they were quite badly bruised and scratched up.

The Haynes car was badly wrecked, both front wheels being torn off and the front axle broken. Fenders and running boards also were badly twisted and shattered. The Ford came out of the deal quite badly shot to pieces and will require considerable repair work before it is again in shape for use.

Although the injury to the automobiles entails a considerable loss, those who figured in the accident are jubilant to think they escaped with their lives. It was, indeed, little short of a miracle that none of them was killed outright.

New Lodge Secretary.

E. F. Dolan was last week elected secretary of the local Elks lodge to fill the unexpired term of T. J. Austad, whose death occured some time ago. Mr. Dolan was secretary of the lodge for several terms a number of years ago and is therefore familiar with the duties of the position.

Masons and Eastern Star to Hold Joint Picnic at Squaw Point September 3

Members of the local Masonic and Eastern Star lodges are looking forward to the Labor Day picnic, which is an annual event of much importance and interest among the fraternity. This year the Masons from Red Lake Falls, with their families, have signified their intention of spending the day here, and it is hoped that all will be able to come.

The main purpose of these picnics is to provide an opportunity for getting together and getting better acquainted. Also it is a fitting close to the summer vacation with its outdoor activities, and promotes lodge spirit and zest for fraternal work during the fall and winter months to come.

The usual custom of each family bringing its own lunch basket will be followed this year. The committee on refreshments will have an ample supply of baked beans, coffee, milk, cream, pop and ice cream, all of which will be free. A committee on entertainment is busy on a program of races, games, etc., and there will be no idle moments during the day.

All should be present at the 12 o'clock dinner hour, after which the fun begins. Same old place—Squaw Point, Monday, September 3.

Arranges Grain Sales.

Wm. J. Brown, of Thief River Falls, president of the American Wheat Growers Associated, spent Tuesday in the city and while here made arrangements for the handling of the grain that farmers in this neighborhood have agreed to dispose of to the Minnesota Wheat Growers' Co-operative Marketing Association through local elevators. Mr. Brown believes that at the present time the federal government should come to the aid of the farmers, by enacting wheat price legislation but is of the opinion that the farmers will be so organized by the time next year's crop is harvested that they will be able to handle the marketing situation without further help from the government.—Warren Register.

DELEGATION TO DAIRY SHOW IS ARRANGED HERE

Ten Prominent Dairy Farmers of Pennington County Compose Party.

Thief River Falls Business Men Give Proposition Encouragement.

At the Commercial club meeting and luncheon last Thursday, Louis Klima, of Steele county, representing the Northwest Dairy Exposition committee, was the principal speaker. Mr. Klima was here in the interest of organizing a delegation from Pennington county to attend in a body the Dairy Exposition, which is to be held in conjunction with the state fair this year.

Through the action of the Commercial club a delegation of ten representative dairymen will visit the exposition as guests of the club. The dairy show is of great interest and benefit to Pennington county farmers, and club members feel that anything which adds to the welfare of the dairying industry also deserves the club's support and encouragement. Another reason for arranging matters so that these men all visit the show as a solid delegation is the added publicity to be received by the county in this way. Anything which is of benefit to Pennington county farmers cannot fail to help the business men also.

The Pennington county delegation to the Northwest Dairy Exposition is to be composed of the following representative dairy farmers: Hans Anton, F. B. Conklin, Waldie Christensen, Jens Kierk, Hans Rued, Knute Ystesund, Peter Engelstad, John Kilan, H. C. Woolson and Stuart McLeod.

These men are all engaged in dairying and diversified farming and have for years been spreading the gospel of the dairy cow in Pennington county. Their visit to the dairy show will without doubt give them much new information concerning their principal vocation and thus will place them in a better position than ever before to conduct their farms to the limit of efficiency. It also should furnish them with an abundance of new material for use in advocating better farming methods among their neighbors.

Veteran Chief Clerk of House Guest of Relatives

Oscar Arneson Used to Come to Thief River Falls Frequently as Head of State Land Department.

Oscar Arneson, of St. Paul, veteran chief clerk of the Minnesota House of Representatives, accompanied by Mrs. Arneson and son Fred and daughter Clarice, arrived in the city Monday afternoon to be guests at the Miller-Arneson wedding which was solemnized yesterday.

Mr. Arneson, who has been chief clerk of the House for sixteen years, has seen most of the prominent men of Minnesota come and go for the past decade. In former years he used to visit Thief River Falls quite frequently as head of the state land department. He notes with satisfaction that many changes for the better have occurred in this city, notably the paved streets, and he commented favorably on the many beautiful farms he saw in Pennington county as compared with many other sections of the state.

Mr. and Mrs. Arneson, who drove up from St. Paul, will return to the Saintly city tomorrow, going back by way of the State Park.

Bird Dogs May Be Trained First Half of September

Chicken hunters may train their bird dogs between September 1 and September 15, this year, both dates inclusive, despite the fact that the last legislature passed a law changing that part of the hunting laws, according to an announcement issued by Carlos Avery, State Game and Fish commissioner.

The last legislature amended the law relating to the training of dogs but an error was made in engrossing the amendment. Consequently the bill as signed by the governor was not the same as passed by the legislature and is declared by the attorney general to be invalid. This leaves the law of 1919 in effect, which permits the training of bird dogs between September 1 and September 15.

EDWIN RUST, HUNTED MURDERER OF SOUTH DAKOTA SHERIFF, IS SHOT DEAD BY ST. PAUL POLICE

Captured in St. Paul on Charge of Stealing Auto; Woman Companion Furnishes Clue.

Fighting desperately to the last, Edwin Rust, 21 year old murderer and gunman, was shot to death in a pistol fight with St. Paul detectives early Friday. Wanted principally for the slaying of Sheriff I. C. Fulker, of Aberdeen, S. D.,Rust's hiding place in a residence in the midway district was ferreted out by the police with the aid of a woman. For six weeks—ever since he leaped from a train near Wolverton, Minn., after shooting Sheriff Fulker—Rust had lived quietly at 2111 Dayton avenue.

Only a few hours before he was killed, at 5:40 a. m., Rust had escaped from detectives who were taking him to the central police station on a charge of auto theft. It was after this escape that the police identified him as Rust, and in hunting him out resorted to the time-worn police maxim—"find the woman."

Posing as Peter Thorson, Rust had been attentative to Mrs. Sigrud Larson, a domestic employed in a physician's home nearby. She was with Rust when he was arrested on the auto theft charge. Enroute to the police station, his hands manicled, Rust drove head first from the police car and escaped into the darkness amid a hail of bullets.

The officers, unaware of Rust's identy, arrested him when he drove up to a garage in a stolen automobile with a woman companion to whom the police say he had been paying attentions. On the way to the police station Rust, handcuffed, dove from the automobile and darted into an alley where he disappeared.

The dectectives, assisted by the woman, then located Rust's residence at 2111 Dayton avenue and as two of them entered his room the fugitive opened fire. Two shots were wild and in the return fire of the detectives Rust was struck in the neck, chest and hips. He crumpled to the floor and was dead when the detectives reached his side.

The killing of Rust brings to an end a search of two months in which every state, county and city official of the Northwest had participated following his escape subsequent to the shooting of Sheriff Fulker, who was taking him from East Grand Forks, Minn., to Aberdeen, to face a robbery charge.

After killing the sheriff Rust jumped from the train, robbed a motorist of his hat and $1.10 and then vanished. He was reported seen at various places in the Northwest and at Little Falls, Minn., where an officer repored he had engaged in a gunfight with a man thought to be the fugitive. The man escaped.

A reward of $500 for the arrest of Rust dead or alive was at once offered by the commissioners of Brown county, South Dakota, and since then officers throughout the Northwest have been on the lookout for the man.

Rust was said to have had a long criminal record in California and had been paroled from the Folsom prison near Sacramento.

When the sheriff's slayer jumped from the police automobile he was handcuffed. The police were unable to learn what method he used to remove the manacles.

Rust had been living at the Dayton avenue address since August, under the alias of Peter Thorson, the police said, and dyed his blonde hair black to escape detection.

The officers did not learn of the real identity of the man until after the gun fight, questioning of the woman by Chief of Police Sommers in the interim having elicited the information.

When Rust was arrested last night on a charge of auto theft, he attempted a coup similar to that which ended in the death of Sheriff Fulker.

Rust was being taken to the central police station, riding between two detectives in the police car. At that time his identity was not known. Rust dropped his hat to the floor of the car and asked one of the officers to pick it up. When the officer stooped over Rust made a move to slug him with his manacled hands, but was stopped as the other detective pressed a revolver against his neck.

Rust shot Sheriff Fulker as the latter stooped over to adjust the manacles on Rust's ankles at the slayer's request.

It was when the policemen reached the central station and had remarked on the prisoner's attemp to brain the detective that it was noticed to be similar to the killing of Fulker. This resulted in the man's identity being established, for pictures of Rust were taken from the police files and identified by the detectives and by the woman who was with Rust when he was taken on the auto theft charge.

After Rust dove from the auto the police believe he communicated with a companion who sawed off the manacles. The police believe the friend is Owen Letterman, an escaped convict and Rust's pal. Letterman and Rust escaped from the prison at Folsom, Cal., May 18, 1923, stole an automobile and came to Minnesota. Letterman was arrested at Aberdeen and sawed his way out of jail there. The police are searching for him.

L. Rust of East Grand Forks was notified of his son's death in St. Paul. He had wired the St. Paul authorities asking that the body be returned here for burial.

Detectives Thomas A. Brown, Staley A. Cassidy and Austin McNelly located Rust in the home of J. Tracy, where he had taken a room, saying he planned to attend college his fall.

Shown the room Rust occupied, Brown burst open the door and leaped inside. Cassidy was at his heels. McNally had been sent to guard the rear of the house against escape. Brown said Rust must have heard them downstairs for the bed was empty though it had been used.

"I stepped over to the closet door." Brown continued, "and as I opened it I turned a little and there I saw Rust standing behind the door we had entered."

"His gun was leveled at me. I shouted, 'There he is' and jerked my gun out of my pocket. Rust and I fired almost together. I could feel the bullet go past my cheek and crash through the door behind me. I jumped behind the door and Cassidy leaped apparently hit, but as Cassidy moved across the room. Rust had slumped, he shot again from where he sat.

"Then Cassidy and I both let loose and we emptied our guns. Rust sat with his eyes open and we did not know whether he was dead or not. He looked mean and still had his gun pointed straight at us. I jumped across the room and jerked the gun out of his hand. 'I guess we got you that time, Rust,' I shouted. There was a grunt from him. That was all. He never said a word from the time we entered. He just shot and died."

Canada Pays Tribute to Late President Harding

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Linder and Mr. and Mrs. Halvor Robberstad went to Winnipeg last Saturday to take in the Ringling circus.

On their return home they stated that every flag in the city of Winnipeg was at half mast as a mark of respect for President Harding, who died at San Francisco.

This is one of the greatest respects that one nation can extend to another and shows what perfect peace and harmony exists between the Dominion of Canada and the United States, a peace which is mutual and not forced upon either country at the point of bayonets or other war devices, the true peace which comes only through perfect friendship. Be it always thus.—Warroad Pioneer.

Moonshine Blast Shakes St. Paul to Foundation and Nearly Starts Fire

Powerful Stuff Explodes When Match Is Tossed Into Sewer Carrying It Away.

Moonshine mixtures poured into a sewer in front of St. Paul Central police station, after the purity squad had completed a series of raids, exploded when a passerby tossed a lighted match into it, startled the loop district, blew off manhole covers, lifted an automobile from the pavement and started a fire in sewer pipes.

Two alarms were sent in, calling out a large amount of fire apparatus to fight the blaze, which spread through the sewer mains from the center of the city as far as the river.

About 50 gallons of redistilled alcohol and moonshine were confiscated by police in a raid at 674 Broadway street, St. Paul. The stuff was emptied into the gutter.

The first explosion blew off two man hole covers, and a second blast dislodged two more. Buildings were shaken and the automobile, standing near the scene of the blast, was lifted clear of the pavement, police said.

Halma Expects to Adopt Steps to Become Village Within Very Short Time

At a meeting held Monday night at Halma it was decided to take steps to incorporate the village. They are considering getting the high line electric service and in order to do that will have to incorporate.

Mr. Brecken, in speaking of it, said that while they had not decided anything about the high line, they figured it would be a good thing any way to incorporate as the village was growing.

Incorporating will not have any effect on the taxes unless they levy large sums of money for town improvements. They expect to present their petition to the county commissioners next week.

Farming Proves Popular With Montana Veterans

According to a report recently made by the Helena, Montana sub-district office of the U. S. Veterans' bureau, the "back to the soil" movement has many adherents among the disabled veterans of that state.

soldiers who have been approved for

This report shows that 225 disabled vocational training have selected some phase of agriculture for their vocation. This is approximately one-fifth of the entire number of men who have accepted training.

This marked preference for agriculture among the veterans is probably due to the fact that a large proportion of them were farm boys before entering the army and to their inherent desire to control their own activities and enjoy independence of employment.

The average farm course is thirty months in length and the institutional part of the men's instruction is given at the State Agricultural college. This is supplemented by project training during the spring months on land owned by the trainees.

If the man is not a land owner, he is assisted in obtaining title to a tract that is suitable. At present several large tracts of land, near Eureka Montana, are under consideration for colonization purposes. Five vocational men and their families are already settled here. Favorable arrangements have been made with a banking institution to finance the men until they are firmly established in their farming operations.

The actual number of disabled veterans who are receiving practical training on farms in Montana this summer, is 170. Their projects are located in practically every county of the state that is suited to farming. Reports indicate that they are making excellent progress. Instructors from the State College of Agriculture and supervisors from the U. S. Veterans' bureau, visit the men at intervals to assist them and see that their work is progressing satisfactorily.

The lines of agriculture being followed are stock raising, dairying, poultry and bee raising, horticulture and general farming.

Batting Averages Made by Thief River Players During Baseball Season

Team Comes Out Ahead Financially Under Efficient Leadership of Local Managers.

Below is given a table showing the batting average for the season of the individual players on the Thief River Falls baseball team. Under the management of Theo. M. Thronson, Wm. Sheedy and "Spider" Yost the local team will be able to close the year with a balance in the treasury, something new in the annals of baseball here. This shows careful and efficient management.

The club has been engaged in 16 games so far this season, of which the boys have won 12 and lost four. The management and players have reason to feel proud of this fine record.

Body of Missing Bagley Woman Found; Sunstroke Pronounced Death Cause

Bagley, Minn.—The body of Mrs. Sarah Ann Butt of this city, aged 76, who became lost in the woods near here three weeks ago, while berry picking, was found by two men who have been constantly searching for her. The body of the woman was found lying hidden in tall grass where she had evidently lay down to get a drink at a small stream. Death was pronounced due to natural causes. Sunstroke is believed to have been the immediate cause.

The body had been dragged about two rods by a bear, and fresh bear tracks were found beside the body.

Stimulated by a reward of $100 offered by this county and another $100 offered by the woman's sons, between 300 and 500 persons, searched the woods to find her after she disappeared three weeks ago. This large searching party worked three days and then gave the job up as hopeless, but many individuals kept on looking.

Cut Weeds Along Road

Weeds on state highway right-of-ways will be cut this month by the patrolmen, acting on special instructions from St. Paul offices of the highway department. Repealing the weed inspection law, the 1923 legislature provided for the cutting of obnoxious weeds on state highways before Oct. 15 each year. Patrolmen are instructed to cut the weeds now when other work is comparatively light and burn them under permits to prevent reseeding.

Playing the favorite is not always a winning project.

Warroad Winner in Sunday Game Against Locals

Gets Long End of Seven to Two Score in Excellent Exhibition.

Best Players in Territory Hired to Help Beat Thief River Falls.

The Thief River Falls baseball team journeyed to Warroad, away up on the Canadian border line, last Sunday to play a game with the Warroad team. The game came off according to schedule—and the locals were forced to content themselves with the short end of a seven to two score. Warroad treated the visitors in a fine style and the boys speak in highest terms of the hospitality of their northern neighbors.

Taking everything into consideration, the Thief River Falls lads did well to hold their adversaries down to seven runs. They went into the game with a weak lineup, using several young players and one Middle River man who had never played with the team before. To add to the difficulty they were pretty well tired out after making the hundred mile automobile trip from Thief River Falls to Warroad.

Warroad was loaded for bear and strengthened their team with some of the best baseball players in the northern part of the state. It is said that four men from Hallock, one from International Falls, one from Baudette and one from Bemidji occupied positions on the Warroad team last Sunday.

At that had it not been for a number of errors and "going up in the air" in the third and eighth innings on the part of the locals, the game would have been a mighty close one. The Warroad bunch garnered three runs in the first blowup and four in the second, while during the remainder of the game they were held scoreless.

Following is the box score of the contest:

REAL COMMUNITY SPIRIT.

The Thief River Falls Commercial club at its meeting last Thursday decided to invite a delegation of representative Pennington county farmers to attend the Northwest Dairy Exposition, which is to be held this year in conjunction with the Minnesota state fair. All transportation and entrance expenses are to be paid by the Commercial club.

It is felt that the Northwest Dairy Exposition will be of great value in the dissemination of information pertaining to the dairy industry, and for this reason the Commercial club desires that as many Pennington county farmers as possible be there to absorb the gospel of the dairy cow. It is not in any sense a charity proposition on the part of the club. On the contrary, it is a business venture, pure and simple. While all of the farmers composing the delegation no doubt are able and willing to pay their own way to the show, yet the fact remains that without organized effort many of them would not take the time required to make the trip. Under the urge of the business men of Thief River Falls, however, the farmers composing the delegation will go to the dairy exposition as a unit representing the county, and will naturally be extended more courtesies and will receive more benefit from the trip than could possibly be accomplished even if all attended as individuals. Much favorable publicity for the county also will result from these men going as a unit representing Pennington county at the show.

The Tribune is heartily in accord with every move which has for its purpose the improvement of the dairying industry in this section. It feels that the Commercial club is doing the right thing in thus encouraging Pennington county farmers to attend the dairy exposition. The community spirit shown in this matter also is highly commendable. It proves that farmers and business men are working hand in hand for the future prosperity of the county, a method which is absolutely necessary if the best results are to be obtained.

HONORING A MEMORY.

The fine way, and honorable way, to honor a man after death, is to remember his good deeds and good utterances, and to forget the things we disagree with. There will be little good in wearing a long face today, if tomorrow your mind is a blank to the good deeds or words of the late President. If the Arlington address of President Harding is not remembered by the American people, then one of the great, new thoughts, born out of the hurly-burly of the World war will be lost, or if the courage required to veto the makeshift bonus bill is lost sight of, then tears and fears today can never make up for the damage done by forgetfulness tomorrow.

Harding reached a new milestone in human progress when, at Arlington, he promised Americans everywhere that public opinion would demand conscription of wealth, property, service and industry for any future war, as well as the conscription of human beings. Let that idea become accepted everywhere and the end of war will be at hand. That one little kernel of an idea, once considered radical, will grow and develop because Harding, conservative president of the greatest republic, had the courage to recommend it. That one idea, becoming accepted knowledge, and recognized thought, will do more to end war than all the courts of the world.

Let people who disagree with Harding and his politics study the one big outstanding act of his administration, the vetoing of the Soldiers' Adjusted Compensation Act. Harding knew the bill could be passed and also that it could not be fulfilled. He knew that it was a big bluff at giving deserving men adjusted pay. He knew that the country was not prepared for additional debt. He knew that the right thing to do was to kill the bill in order that service men could get a real adjustment later on. He knew that he could curry favor with four million men and the families of four million men by a scratch of the pen. He knew that the Republican party might profit at the expense of the nation if he signed this pretext toward justice. With everything to gain personally and nothing to lose, except the loss to the nation, he was guided by his interest in the nation as a whole. It was a big and manly act, and yet because of it he takes on the hatred of millions of misinformed. By this just judgment he saved the soldiers their future right to a real claim which can be paid and he saved the nation a great debt at an opportune time. By so doing he sacrificed himself for the country as truly as any martyr shot or stabbed.—Bemidji Pioneer.

THE COW AND PROSPERITY.

Louis Klima of Owatona, Steele county, who visited Thief River Falls last week and spoke before the Commercial club meeting Thursday noon in the interest of organizing a delegation from Pennington county to attend the Northwest dairy show next month, made The Tribune a call while in the city. In the course of his conversation Mr. Klima cited a few facts and figures from his home county which should prove of value to Pennington county people who are interested in the advancement of dairying and diversified farming. Steele county is no more favorably situated nor does it possess one single advantage not enjoyed by Pennington county.

According to Mr. Klima, Steele county, with its per capita bank deposits of nearly $400, is the world's richest agricultural community. Owatonna, a city of 7,800, is the county seat. The county comprises 12 townships with an area of 432 square miles. It is one of Minnesota's smallest counties and has a population of 18,000.

On the 1,800 farms of Steele county, may be found 18,000 cows, or an average of ten for each farm and one cow for each man, woman and child in the county. Twenty-three co-operative creameries are operated with an annual production of about five million pounds of butter. This butter when marketed brings into the county about $2,500,000 annually, or an average of nearly $140 for each inhabitant. To make this statement clearer, Mr. Klima stated that seven trains with 39 cars or more to the train or 278 cars would be required to take the butter output of Steele county to market, making one train of over three miles long. This butter if made into pound prints and laid end to end would reach from the Twin Cities to Chicago and more than half way back again.

Steele county leads all American counties in butter production per square mile. Its creamery butter production is greater than the combined output of the states of Alabama, Arkansas, Arizona, Connecticut, Delaware, Louisiana, Maine, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Maryland and West Virginia.

A great many of the cows in Steele county are purebreds, and 22 per cent of all the sires are purebred animals. The bank deposits in the eleven substantial banks have reached nearly seven million dollars and have increased at the rate of more than a quarter million dollars each year for the past eight years.

Diversified farming has made it possible for this county to produce annually 56,000 tons of hay, 187,000 bushels of potatoes, 95,000 bushels of barley, 1,776,000 bushels of corn, 260,000 bushels of spring wheat, 1,870,000 bushels of oats, 55,000 hogs, 402,000 chickens and 861,000 dozen eggs.

Steele county is, indeed, a shining example of what can be accomplished on a small area of land by means of diversified farming and dairying. Pennington county is headed in the right direction and should, with all its people working together and with that object in view, be able to equal Steele county's record in dairying and diversified farming within comparatively few years. Many of our farmers are on the right track now and more are seeing the light every day.

The sugar beet industry in this section is another thing which should make it easier for Pennington county to reach a basis of solid agricultural prosperity. Sugar beet cultivation fits in nicely with dairying and should give the latter added impetus. Now, all together, let's see how soon we can equal Steele county's record.

The Tribune congratulates Brother Ludwig I. Roe of the Montevidio News upon his election as State Commander of the American Legion. The Legion also is to be commended for the wisdom shown in choosing this sterling young American and brilliant country newspaper man to head its state organization. Editor Roe saw much active service in France during the late war and has been prominent in the ranks of the Legion since that body came into being.

MEXICANS—THE BETTER KIND.

A recent issue of the Wells Forum-Advocate contained the following item: "A surprising incident on the street Tuesday was the sight of three Mexican beet workers standing with battered hats in hand before the picture of the late President Harding, that was in the window of the Stiles jewelry store, where a beautiful memorial display had been arranged, with the flag draped in the foreground. There was a whole sermon to be found in that silent tribute. Yet, someone remarked the other day that they were undesirable citizens."

There are many Mexicans employed in the sugar beet fields near Thief River Falls. They are hard-working and industrious, and attend strictly to their own affairs. The Mexican who comes this far north to work is an entirely different type from the worthless variety found in southern sections of the United States.

Small oil producers contend that getting the governor of South Dakota to start the gasoline price war which resulted in a drop of 6.6 cents per gallon throughout the Northwest was only a clever move on the part of the Standard Oil to put the little fellows out of business. The vast resourses of the large company make it possible for that concern to stand the drain indefinitely, they insist, while the small fry will soon go to the wall. That, according to the men who take this view of the matter, is exactly what Standard Oil is trying to accomplish. Whether or not there is any basis for this charge The Tribune is unable to state. One thing is certain, however. The general public isn't particularly disposed to hand out sympathy to any of the oil concerns. Most consumers feel they have been held up unmercifully in the past and not many tears will be shed should oil stock dividends dwindle slightly on account of the recent cut in the price of gasoline.

If Pennington county and other sections of the Northwest were blessed with a larger number of farmers with the intelligence and ability to apply it possessed by our Hans Anton, there would be less agitation for extra sessions of congress and other means to provide relief for agriculture. Mr. Anton is not a visionary in any sense of the word. On the contrary, he is a hard-headed farmer of good judgement who reasons things out and act accordingly. He preaches the doctrine of diversified farming and dairying at every opportunity, and his own success should prove beyond any possible doubt the soundness of his logic. Mr. Anton is engaged in a form of community boosting which will be more generally appreciated by everybody a few years hence than it is at the present time. The Tribune is fully cognizant of the valuable service this energetic advocate of better farming is rendering to Northwestern Minnesota and trusts that his sphere of influence may be increased as the years go by.

The action of the council last week in providing for the purchase of the tract commonly known as Tindolph Point for park purposes will meet with the hearty approval of a large majority of Thief River Falls citizens. With small expense this can be made into an ideal place of recreation during the summer season. Alderman Andrew Ness has been instrumental in bringing about a partial improvement of the bathing beach there and the large number of people who enjoyed a cool dip in the river at this point during the hot weather proves that his efforts are appreciated. With the park board in charge of the property, however, considerable improvements are planned and the entire tract will be converted into an ideal small park. The Tribune ventures the prediction that Tindolph park will prove a favorite recreation spot for a large number of Thief River Falls people next summer.

Pennington county seems to be drying up. The drought increases as the season advances and some people are worrying to beat the band for fear the whole county will eventually turn into dust and blow away. Sheriff Ole L. Ihle and his corps of assistants are entitled to credit (or blame, depending upon the viewpoint) for bringing about this condition of affairs. It is getting so that the vending of moonshine liquor in Pennington county may properly be classed among the hazardous occupations.

Those political dopesters who predict a quiet presidential campaign next year evidently do not realize that a Tin Lizzie rattles considerably at high speed. And if they think that the race can be made without a Ford being entered, they are cherishing a vain hope, that's all.

One good look at the picture of Lenin's wife, which was shown in a news reel at the Lyceum theatre last week, disclosed to The Tribune scribe a mighty valid reason why Lenin turned Bolshevik. It is an apt demonstration of cause and effect.

After traveling all over the universe from Hongkong to Bagdad, from Paris to New York, north, south, east and west, the former associate editor of The Tribune found his ideal mate among the fair damsels of Thief River Falls. We admire his judgement and submit that it goes to prove the contention of this great family journal to the effect that the best of everything is to be found at our very doors. Go where you will, stop, look and listen, but you've got to come back to Thief River Falls to find what you were looking for in the first place.

Heeding the demand of The Tribune, which represents in all things the forward looking element of Thief River Falls, the Great Northern has decided to build a new depot forthwith. Hereafter The Tribune and the Great Northern will dwell in perfect amity. Now if someone will come along and build a sugar factory and if Uncle Sam will build a new postoffice here—a structure which is badly needed—The Tribune will again be at peace with the whole world.

MILITARISM AND CRIMINALS.

The chief rehabilitation officer of the American Legion recently made public an estimate that at least 26,000 American soldiers are in prison for criminal acts. He contends that most of these should be in hospitals because their crimes were due to war shocks and weakened physical and mental conditions.

The chief officer's statement is a very forceful argument that modern military discipline has a tendency to deprave the soldier instead of making him a better man. Here is what he says:

"The average man who went into the war was peace-loving up to that time. Suddenly he was taken from his pursuits and made to become a bloodthirsty animal, taught to ruthlessly kill and with killing his principal work. Then, after months of killing and bloodshed, the tocsin of peace was sounded and the soldier was told that he was once more a free man to take up again his peaceful mode of living. But that could not be done immediately. Some of the men had killed until killing became a habit. They had been cared for with that as their only occupation until it was hard for them to return to former ways of living and take upon themselves once more the task of being good citizens."

The statement of the rehabilitation officer should be a powerful argument against teaching militarism in public schools, advocated by a small minority in every state in the Union.

LABOR MORE CONSERVATIVE.

As labor unions employ co-operation and develop voluntary arbitration of differences with employers they must necessarily become more conservative.

Using their funds for organizing banks is a growing idea.

The idea has merit and there are 11 co-operative labor union banks in operation.

They all offer the members "banking-by-mail" facilities.

Grand Chief of Locomotive Engineers, Warren S. Stone organized the first labor union co-operative bank—a great success.

Labor union banks are becoming epidemic and every few days the organization of a new link in the chain is announced.

The resourses of the labor banks total forty millions.

The Cleveland Engineers' bank has bought into the Empire Trust Co. bank of New York and Chief Stone sits on the board of directors.

The Chief of the Locomotice Engineers has broken into Wall street.

In addition, Chief Stone has a magazine, a coal mine, a Washington, D. C. legislative and publicity bureau, and a political organization.

None of us believes in war, but did you ever near anyone commend a coward? The animal not versed in the arts of self defense and the practice of self preservation will soon become extinct.

A homely person may be able to redeem his face by his conduct.

The people of Ireland love peace. They love it so well they fight for it all the time.

High taxes don't worry people. It's paying them that causes the grief.

"The man in overalls," says an exchange, "gets $18 a day laying brick, while the country editor who works 16 hours a day gets only a bare living." Well, why don't you don a pair of overalls, go to laying brick and stop your damn growling? —Olivia Times.

Farmer Organization, For First the Time in History, Advertises to Sell Wheat

Attractive Page Ad. in Northwestern Miller Shows Progress of Farmers in Big Business.

A page ad in the current issue of the Northwestern Miller in which the American Wheat Growers Associated, Inc., announce their facilities for handling wheat in the home market and for export, probably heralds the beginning of a most important era in the farming industry, namely that of scientific orderly marketing on the part of the farmers themselves.

This is undoubtedly the first instance in the history of the country when wheat has been offered for sale by a purely farmers' organization and the men in charge of the huge selling agency are hopeful that it marks the end of destructive marketing of grain.

The advertisement names the nine state organizations of which the American Wheat Growers Associated is the exclusive sales agency, namely, Colorado, Idaho, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Oregon and Washington. The extent of the operations of the big farmer-controlled selling agency may be noted from the fact that sales offices are maintained at Minneapolis, Portland, Seattle, Duluth, Spokane, Lewiston, Kansas City and Omaha. A foreign sales office is maintained at London, at 34 Leadenhall street.

The present year marks the beginning of widespread recognition on the part of big business forces of the United States of the farmers' sales agency. The hostility and suspicion of the past have given way to better understanding. This has been brought about by the large volume of business handled during the past three years by the Northwest Wheat Growers Associated, which was succeeded by the American, and the efficient and businesslike manner in which wheat was placed on the market.

Further recognition of the farmers' organization came when the government loan agencies stepped into the breach with ample finances. It is now very generally recognized that with its modern equipment for testing the milling value of all wheat, its system of marketing agencies at home and abroad, amply financed, the biggest farmer selling organization ever devised is well on its way to the ultimate goal—namely, the fixing of grain prices at a figure which will show fair profits over the cost of production.

Minnesota trunk highways are being improved and maintained with a third of the money that automobile owners would be compelled otherwise to spend for extra tires, gasoline, car depreciation and like items. Present Indications Are That Great Throng Will Attend Sapiro Meeting

Record Breaking Audience Certain for Meeting at Crookston on Monday, September 10.

A crowded house will welcome Aaron Sapiro when he speaks at Crookston on Sept. 10, according to C. G. Selvig, chairman of the inter-county committee, organized to urge on farmers and business men generally, the importance of hearing this national authority on co-operative marketing discuss the far-reaching importance of the potato marketing campaign, now under way.

"Every member on the committee is doing excellent work," said Mr. Selvig, "and all indications point to one of the largest meetings that has been held in this vicinity in recent years. Farmers in this section have read a great deal about the California plan of co-operation and about Mr. Sapiro. They know Sun-Kist oranges and Sun-Maid raisins. They realize the same idea that has placed those products on the markets of the world is being extended to other commodities in all parts of the country, especially potatoes in Minnesota. They want to hear the man who took the Danish idea of co-operation and perfected it for use in the United States, tell his own story. And they are going to come out to the meeting. I look forward to a crowded house and my only fear is that our meeting place will not be large enough."

Arrangements have been made for Mr. Sapiro to talk for 15 minutes from WLAG, the Twin City radio broadcasting station, on the evening of Sept. 6. He will be on Northwest Farmstead's lecture program, beginning at 7:30.

Foolish Alarming Suggestion.

We are hearing much loose talk in Minnesota these days about feeding wheat to live stock. Even national Farm Bureau leaders are quoted as saying that when wheat is 85 cents a bushel, farmers can realize a dollar of value by marketing it in the form of pork.

That might be true if hogs sold for more than they are bring, but under present conditions it is not true. Pound for pound, wheat will not produce more pork, beef or mutton than corn. Furthermore it cannot be fed as corn can without being ground. Finally animals, especially cattle and sheep, do not like wheat as well as corn. While wheat carries a little higher percentage of protein than corn it is not suitable as a lone grain ration.

Everything considered, Minnesota farmers would do well to market their wheat in the usual manner unless it drops considerably lower or hog prices rise. To suggest turning hogs into wheat fields is about as foolish as the annual talk of using corn for fuel.—Minnesota Star.

Canning Factory Starts.

Work at the canning factory was started Monday, August 6, and will continue for a period of four weeks. A force of 65 people is employed and the daily output is approximately 50,000 cans. Again a continuous stream of wagons, loaded with green corn can be seen passing down Main street on the way to the canning factory. Nearly 100 tons of corn have been brought in. John Lucas, the manager, states that the expected output for the season will be 33,000 cases. Shipping of the canned goods will not be done until later.—Montevideo News.

It was a young wolf and the lights of the car doubtless hypnotized him, leading to his death. The following day Emil appeared at the office of the county auditor and collected the bounty.—Wadena Pioneer-Journal.

CONGRESSMAN FRANK CLAGUE IS THIEF RIVER FALLS VISITOR

Second District Congressman Discusses Plans for Bringing Relief to Middle West Farmers.

Hon. Frank Clague, who ably and fearlessly represents the second district in congress, stopped off in Thief River Falls last Friday evening on his way to Winnipeg. He came here from Mahnomen where he addressed a meeting of farmers and business men at a district stabilization session.

The congressman browsed around town all evening incognito and he had retired when the editor of The Tribune discovered him at the Evelyn. "Come on up, Jim," said the congressman. And so it happened that a common country editor and a congressman who had been a district judge, speaker of the house and member of the legislature sat around till the wee 'sma hours talking about the big affairs of the Republic, the said congressman attired only in an old night shirt and a pair of breeches.

The congressman had just that day wired President Coolidge from Mahnomen for the 'steenth time asking him to convene congress in extra session in order that ways and means might be considered for bringing relief measures to the grain farmers of the middle west.

"But," said Mr. Clague, "the new President is not the kind of man easily appealed to in a matter of this kind. He is by and of the East. His knowledge of farming is confining to the side hills of Vermont, and his understanding of the problems of the country were gained from the smoke stacks of the manufacturing districts of Massachusetts.

"So it is going to be quite a problem," languidly observed the congressman

An extra session of congress could accomplish much at this time in the opinion of the second district congressman. He firmly believes that congress could re-establish the grain corporation with ample funds at its disposal for the purchase of wheat. That such action on the part of congress and a statement from the grain corporation that it would purchase wheat at $1.50 per bushel would have the desired effect in 48 hours. Wheat would go to $1.50 and no hardship would result to the millers or consummers, nor would the country have to invest in a dollar's worth of wheat in the estimation of Mr. Clague, who insists there is no surplus this year. But if there is a surplus, says Mr. Clague, the amount is so small as to be negligible.

The Tribune was somewhat surprised to find Mr. Crague committed to the idea of permanent price fixing of wheat by congress.

Mr. Clague will return today from Canada and will immediately begin a campaign to arrange for a conference of senators and congressmen at some convenient point in the middle west in a further attemp to convince the President that quick and determined action must be taken if the grain farmer is to receive any benefit this year.

"President Coolidge is confronted with the opportunity of a lifetime," ventured Mr. Clague. "He can stop the coal barons in their tracks and if need be take over the coal mines, thus bringing fuel relief to all classes in the United States, and then he can form a stabilization board which will bring relief to the middle west, all in one fell swoop. If he should do this he will be acclaimed the hero of the hour. Incidentally he will save the Republican party an awful licking and nobody but Coolidge will have a look in next year."

"Are you going to run for governor next year, Frank?" asked the editor of The Tribune.

"I like your section of the country first rate and I may come back this way and drive around for a few days just to look at your farms which I understand are among the finest in the state."

"Are you going to run against Magnus Johnson for the Senate next year?" next attempted the scribe.

"I understand you have some fine dairy cattle in Pennington county. Their fame has reached the southern border of the state and we are quite jealous. I wish I had time to look them all over, as good dairy cattle are my special hobby."

"Do you think the Farmer-Labor party will clean out the state capitol next year?"

"I suppose the new Canadian liquor laws will affect you some here in Thief River Falls, being so close to the border? Is it any easier to procure liquor now than it used to be?"

The hour was late. The futility of further inquiry was plainly apparent.

"Good-night, Frank."

"Good-night, Jim."

Open New Move on Auto Tax Slackers in County to Force Dues Payments

Local Car Owners Rally in Big Army Out to Force Tax Delinquents to Pay License Fees.

Around Thief River Falls and every other city and town—in all parts of Minnesota, a special volunteer police force is starting out this week to do an emergency job in record time. It will finish the undertaking when the last motor vehicle tax slacker has paid up taxes and penalties, perhaps court fine and costs, and with 1923 tags on his machine, is convinced that auto taxes must be paid.

"The motor vehicle taxes are the only taxes on cars and trucks and the only direct taxes for state highway purposes which greatly benefit this county," it was pointed out. "The man who can afford to run a car has little excuse now for dodging the tax which goes for better roads to reduce his repair, gasoline and tire bills. Over 400,000 Minnesota owners have paid the tax and it is not fair that the 12,000 or 15,000 others sharing benefits equally should longer evade payment."

A state law provides that any citizen finding a motor vehicle on the highway without proper tags may arrest the driver and take him to court. If desired, cases may be reported to the local director or to the county attorney or sheriff, whose duty it is to enforce the law.

Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, suggested the plan after overhearing a slacker call a citizen who had paid his tax "a sucker" and boast that he was "getting by" without paying.

"The plan may not prove popular with the 15,000 slackers," he said, "but will appeal to more than 400,000 citizens who have paid their car taxes and command their active resistance."

"Great idea and no reason why we can't put it over for our own benefit and in short order," said G. Roy Hill, secretary-manager of the Minnesota Automobile association, pledging the active support of every automobile club member in the state. "Our members won't wait for police stars or special commissions but will start out on newspaper notices."

James E. Markham, deputy attorney general, gave assurance that local officials, notably county attorneys and sheriffs, will give prompt assistance and suggested that any lack of response on their part be called to his attention, addressing him at the state capitol, St. Paul.

The state highway and legal departments have been assisting the secretary of state to effect registration of all Minnesota motor vehicles, but it is expected that the plan just starting over the entire state will produce better and quicker results.

Minnesota Potatoes Are Gaining Favor for Seed

Northern Minnesota seed potatoes, seen growing by men from other states, as a result of the potato tour organized by the extension division of the University Department of Agriculture and completed at Duluth on August 10, are in greater favor than ever with the outside world.

The reason is that men who came to see the conditions under which Minnesota seed potatoes are grown and the state of the crop went away convinced that the product of Minnesota's certified seed potato fields, as well as many other potato fields, are "some potatoes."

H. M. Kilgore, a large dealer from Plant City, Florida, in which state seed potatoes are usually imported from Maine, after being with the party a week, making a speech to a group of farmers, said: "Hereafter I shall have nothing but certified seed potatoes. I am through with taking chances. I believe that Florida users of seed potatoes will be willing to pay a premium on high class stock from this region rather than take unsatisfactory stock from other parts of the country; that is, if freight rates compel the payment of a premium. And I believe growers in other southern states would be of the same mind."

Racer Killed Near Glenwood

Word was received by Morris people late Saturday of the death of Earl Johnson of Jenkins who had passed through Morris late in the afternoon in his Ford racer. His car collided with a Willys-Knight sedan at the top of a hill near Glenwood, the crash resulting in the death of Mr. Johnson and a serious cut on the arm for H. B. Bezanson, the driver of the sedan.

The cars met on the crest of a hill as the Johnson racer, returning from fairs in South Dakota, was making fast time to keep up with the companion racer driven by D. R. Curo, also of Jenkins. It was thought by eye witnesses and those on the scene shortly after, that the first car raised so much dust that neither Bezanson nor Johnson could see the trail, hence the collision. The Ford was going about 70 miles an hour and the force of the impact drove the small car underneath the sedan, and buckled the frame of the sedan until it made a right angle. The Ford was underslung so that it struck low on the other car.

Mr. Bezanson was cut severely high up on his arm but a nurse in the car, who was not injured, succeeded in stopping the flow of blood, due to cut arteries and the man's life was thus saved. The other driver had severe internal injuries, apparently in the lungs and one arm was broken in three places.

Caught With Liquor.

L. E. Craig of Fisher and S. Becker of this city were caught by the police this week while in the possession of and transporting liquor. When arrested they tried to destroy the evidence, say the police, by taking the corks from the bottles and pouring it out. They were not quick enough for the officers and were caught with the goods. They were sentenced by Municipal Judge Hendricks to $95 and costs or 90 days in the county jail. They paid their fines.—Crookston Times.

S. V. Arneson Wedded to Miss Merrian Miller Tuesday at High Noon

Former Service Man and Bride Will Settle on Pacific Coast After Motor Trip Through Southern States.

One of the prettiest home weddings of the season was solemnized on Tuesday, August 21, at high noon, when Miss Merrian Miller became the bride of Mr. Sophus V. Arneson, former associate editor of The Tribune, the vows being spoken in the presence of near relatives at the home of the brides' mother, Mrs. Betsy Miller, at 509 Duluth avenue south.

The ceremony took place before an improvised altar of baskets of pink gladiolas and white asters. The ring service was used by Rev. Chas. Gerlinger, who officiated. Ella Miller, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Philip Larson, nephew of the groom, was best man.

The bride was gowned in cocoa brown satin back crepe trimmed with lace and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the groom. The maid of honor wore a gown of midnight blue crepe back satin with apron effect of accordion pleated satin and ecru lace. Her bouquet was pink roses and lilies of the valley.

Before the ceremony Miss Dorothy Bottelson, intimate friend of the bride, sang, "I Love You Truly." The wedding party entered the tastily decorated parlor to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Mrs. Nate Harris. Following the ceremony Miss Ella Miller, sister of the bride, sang "When Song Is Sweet," and "At Dawning." A four-course dinner was served following the ceremony, the two large tables being decorated with sweet peas and pink candles.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding were Messrs. E. N. and O. A. Larson of Litchfield, Minn, uncles of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Arneson and children of St. Paul, Mrs. H. W. Frederichs of Monrovia, California, Miss Vernice Elofson of Litchfield, Minn, and Roy Miller of Wagner, S. D.

The bride was a member of the graduating class of 1917 of the Thief River Falls high school and attended the University of North Dakota. During the past year she taught in the commercial department of the local high school.

Mr. Arneson has been associated with his brother in the publication of The Tribune for the past two years, and for a time was publisher of the Goodridge Banner. During the World War he served 18 months overseas. At the conclusion of the war he was selected by Sculptor Davis of New York as a typical American Doughboy from the army of occupation and a statue, which is a striking likeness, now graces the Soissons cemetery, the largest American cemetery in France. Before coming to this city he was variously engaged on newspapers in New York and Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Arneson started yesterday for the Yellowstone Park amid a shower of rice and old shoes, a large delegation of wedding guests accompanying them noisily as far as St. Hilaire, where the chase was abandoned. They will motor through the southern states until midwinter, when they will seek a newspaper location somewhere on the Pacific coast.

Both of the contracting parties are well known here and it goes without saying that they will take with them wherever they go the sincere well wishes of their scores of friends in Thief River Falls.

Fewer Marriages Now But More Stay Wedded. Census Records for Countv Show

Clerk of Court Adolph Eklund recently received from the census department a report showing by counties the comparative number of marriages and divorces taking place in Minnesota during the years 1916 and 1922. These figures, taking the state as a whole, indicate that a larger percentage of marriages ended in the divorce court in 1916 than was the case in 1923. In the former year 22,800 marriages were reported in the state and the divorces numbered 1,956. In 1922 these figures had increased to 24,248 and 2,588 respectively.

Pennington county has a record of 120 marriages in 1916, while in 1922 the number fell to 97. Divorces fell off in even a larger ratio, the number dropping from 12 in 1916 to 8 in 1922. Thus it would appear that although Pennington county people are not getting married so often as they were a few years ago, they stay more permanently hitched after the knot is tied.

Records for other counties in this section of the state are as follows, the first figures in each case being for 1916: Marshall, marriages, 154, 128; divorces, 12, 4; Red Lake, marriages, 61, 57; divorces, 1, 2; Polk, marriages, 420, 380; divorces, 25, 18.

C. F. Erickson, Lars Heckne, Mrs. Ida M. Court and daughter Frances, all of Hibbing, motored here last week and were week-end guests at the C. F. Erickson home.

Olesen Family Moves to Northfield to Make Home

Their daughter, Mary, will be a student at Carleton college, and Mr. Olesen, who has been superintendent of schools at Cloquet, will have a position with Carleton college.

DeParcq Improving.

William DeParcq, who has been confined in the Physicians hospital for the past two months owing to the serious injuries received in an automobiel accident, is gradually regaining his strength and it is thought he will be removed to his home within a short time. The young man has put up a wonderful fight and has won the admiration of everyone who has watched his struggle for life.

Commissioners to Meet.

A special session of the board of county commissioners has been called for Tuesday, August 28, the meeting to take place in the court house in Thief River Falls. Among the matters to be given attention is the inspection of the new concrete bridge on State Road No. 4 west of St. Hilaire.

Sidewalks Repaired.

A crew of men has been at work the past week repairing sidewalks at several points in the business section of the city. Most of the walks repaired were in extremely bad shape and the work was urgently needed.

Judge Renders Decision.

Judge Grindeland last week rendered a lengthy and complicated decision in the case growing out of the plumbing contract in the Dudley building on LaBree avenue. The question arose over the payment of the contract of the Union Plumbing and Heating company, with the Kelly-How-Thomson company and M. F. Murphy as intervenors. Judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiffs while Mr. Dudley, the defendant, was allowed credit for a number of counter claims. Costs and disbursements in the case were assessed against the defendant.

DAIRY EXPOSITION ADDITION TO FAIR

Another Great Educational Feature Swells 1923 Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Dairy Exposition Program.

A score of great fairs within a fair—this is what the mammoth Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Dairy Exposition, September 1 to 8, will be this year.

"The World's Greatest State Fair" has added another new exposition to its program in the staging of the First Annual Northwest Dairy Exposition, which succeeds the National Dairy show held in Minnesota in 1921 and 1922. In size of premiums and number of cattle exhibited, the Northwest Dairy Exposition will be larger than any national or international dairy show ever held in the world.

The state fair this year will present more than 260 acres of exhibits, valued at millions and millions of dollars. The money offered for educational exhibits amounts to more than $145,000, compared with a little more than $128,000 a year ago. The big increase in prize money reflects the tremendous growth of the fair, and proves conclusively how much larger the 1923 exposition is to be than any former one.

The livestock show will not be excelled by any staged in any other part of America this year. Premiums amounting to more than $70,000 are offered for cattle, horses, swine, sheep, and poultry. The very cream of the greatest dairy cattle herds of the country is coming to attend, first, the Northwest Dairy Exposition, and second, the National Dairy Show at Syracuse, New York, three weeks later.

One half of all the counties in the state will stage county exhibits at the state fair this year, or more than three times as many as in 1922. A gigantic cow, sculped from plaster paris, thirty feet long and fifteen feet high, and symbolizing the relation of agriculture to dairying, will grace a pedestal in the center of the Agricultural Building. The biggest corn and commercial exhibit ever seen in Minnesota will be placed in the same building, a new feature.

Demonstrations and exhibits by 1,000 boys and girls in person, enrolled in club work, will be a daily attraction. Eighty acres of farm machinery, thousands of women's exhibits, a collection of the world's greatest paintings, a fruit and vegetables exhibit consisting of hundreds of thousands of specimens, a new electrical building, butter and cheese of highest quality, and a score of other exhibits will comprise the 1923 educational program.

Don't forget the dates—September 1 to 8.

Prevention of Pneumonia Aim of Big Exhibit

Exhibit Housed in Public Health Building at State Fair.

First Step in Campaign Intended to Cover the Entire State.

A pneumonia-prevention exhibit is to be one of the features in the Public Health building at the Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Dairy Exposition, Sept. 1-8.

This exhibit is a first step in an extensive campaign in Minnesota against pneumonia and the other respiratory diseases, it is announced by Mrs. Frank T. Cavanor, superintendent of the Public Health department of the fair.

Presenting the exhibit, which will include all the latest information and figures relating to the respiratory diseases, will be three of the public health organizations in Hennepin county, the Visiting Nurses, the Hennepin County Tuberculosis association and Dr. F. E. Harrington, Minneapolis health commissioner and director of health in the Minneapolis schools.

The exhibit will tell the story of the child in his relation to respiratory diseases through the various seasons and will use a colored background made up of various scenes and supplemented with figures to accomplish this.

A special feature designed to impress the facts upon the minds of the state fair visitors, is a huge wheel which will rotate constantly, representing the entire cycle from the arrival of the common cold in the fall, through the grippe, flu, pneumonia and tuberculosis of winter, and the lighter colds of spring, showing the increased death from the lowered resistance of winter, which is the result of too close confinement in homes where the air is dry and hot, instead of indulging in out of door sports which help to keep away disease in winter.

The exhibit will picture the child playing out of doors in summer at 70 degrees when colds are almost nil and will carry him through the year, showing the reason for his illness and what could be done to prevent them, the most startling thing about the picture being the figures of children with tuberculosis wearing only loin clothes and yet indulging in healthful and comfortable outdoor play at a temperature of 5 degrees below zero.

It is because outdoor ventilation is lacking in the steam-heated flats in which the majority of persons, especially in the city, that the respiratory diseases develop in such alarming numbers, according to Mrs. Cavanor. The average apartment, she points out, has a temperature of 80 degrees, so that members of the family are subjected to colds and more serious diseases when they go out into the outside air.

"The great need," she says, "is outdoor ventilation in these rooms. If a patient developes pneumonia, give him preventative treatment at once by opening the windows, the preventive measures thus becoming the treatment."

The Visiting Nurses will put on the part of the display which shows the children playing out of doors in summer and the patient in bed with windows open so that practically out of door treatment is being given. In the background of this display will be pictured the nurses' home at Glenwood.

The display showing a closed room poorly ventilated, of a type found often both in farm houses, in small towns and in the larger cities, and which is the cause of respiratory diseases, will be under the direction of Dr. F. E. Harrington, who also will have in his exhibit an open-air school, emphasizing its importance as a preventative and cure for colds, grippe, flu, pneumonia and tuberculosis.

The Hennepin County Tuberculosis association will show the Glen Lake sanitarium, children affected with tuberculosis fighting to regain their health by playing in the open air at 5 degrees below zero, wearing only loin clothes.

Telephones in Minnesota Reach Total of 424,000

Three hundred and fifty-nine connecting companies and 659 rural companies which operate farm lines only, co-operate with the Northwestern Bell Telephone company in Minnesota to give state-wide as well as nation-wide telephone service.

The Bell company and the Tri-State Telephone company, together with the connecting companies, all of which join with each other, operate more than 424,000 telephones in the state.

The Bell company operates 117 central offices in the state with 172,740 telephones, according to statistics compiled June 30, and the Tri-State company operates 40 central offices and 86,874 telephones. Their connecting companies operate 489 central offices and 147,544 telephones owned by farmers that connect with the Bell lines.

The long distance wire owned by the Bell company in Minnesota would stretch two times around the world.

The Truth About Gasoline Prices

THE Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has announced an immediate reduction in the price of gasoline of 6.6c per gallon applicable throughout the entire territory in which it does business.

It asserts that the retail prices thus made are below the cost of production and distribution.

The Governor of the State of South Dakota, buying distress gasoline below cost of production, and charging against the State no adequate cost of distribution, is selling gasoline to the public in the State of South Dakota at 16c per gallon.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana), operating on its established policy that the customers who purchase its goods should never be compelled to pay a higher price than that fixed and maintained by any competitor, quality and service being duly considered, has met this price.

Other State Executives and Officers of municipalities, with entire propriety, have suggested that any prices made in South Dakota be made applicable in their States. Competitors in other states and communities over the territory, also buying distress gasoline below cost of production, have also cut the prices hitherto established and maintained, in substantial amounts.

In establishing the above price, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is not endeavoring to injure any of its competitors in any way.

It deprecates the stand taken by some of its competitors that the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is endeavoring, by reason of meeting these cuts in price and these demands for lower prices, to put its competitors out of business.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) does not wish to put any competitor out of business because it feels that competitors are necessary to the successful conduct of its business. It will welcome a change of attitude on the part of all parties concerned resulting in a reasonable price for gasoline which will enable not only it but all of its competitors to enjoy a reasonable profit.

It recognizes that the majority of its competitors are fine business men, entitled to the fairest treatment both by the public and by this Company.

The present situation is an exact parallel to one where the butcher, the grocer, the druggist, the dry goods and shoe merchants and every other retailer would be forced to sell at less than the wares cost.

How long would it last? What would a condition like this do to all of us—if it persisted and spread?

We want no monopoly—seek none. We want your trade—but only on the basis of quality and service—not as the result of impossible prices.

We want competition—you want us to have it. It makes the scales of business balance.

These are not idle words. They mean just what they say.

CANCER EXHIBIT WILL BE SHOWN AT STATE FAIR

Offers Only Opportunity for Persons in This Section to View It.

Dread Disease Increasing in America, Declare Those Knowing Situation.

A remarkable exhibit on cancer, which is killing one out of every 10 persons over 40 years of age, will be shown this year at the public health building of the Minnesota state fair and Northwest Dairy exposition September 1-8, it is announced by Mrs. Frank T. Cananor, superintendent of the public health department of the fair.

The exhibit is the same one shown at the recent meeting of the American Medical association in San Francisco by the American Society for Cancer Control and the only oppotrunity for persons in this part of the country to see it will be offered at the state fair. The exhibit contains the last authentic information on the subject of cancer as gathered by experts and shows that 90,000 persons in the United States alone are dying each year from the disease.

During the World war the United States actually lost 80,000 soldiers. How many persons know that during the same period 180,000 persons died of cancer in this country?

The statement seems a startling one but the figures are correct, according to the American Society for Cancer Control, which offers in the exhibit information of much interest to physi[illegible]ians and nurses as well as laymen.

[illegible]-operating in presenting the ex[illegible] will be the Hennepin County [illegible]ealth association and the [illegible] Society for Cancer Control, Dr. George A. Soper of New [illegible] the managing director. Dr. Wiremen Cook is the chairman [illegible]ennepin county and Dr. E. S. [illegible]udd of the Mayo clinic, Rochester, chairman for the state.

"Lose No time!" is the slogan for the exhibit, for, unless the disease is treated in its early stages it is incurable. To explain facts about the disease, the Hennepin County Public Health association will supply an especially trained public health nurse who will answer questions and distribute literature adapted to the needs of physicians and surgeons and leaflets on mouth cancer for dentists, as mouth cancer often results from ill-fitting teeth.

Because educational work has cut the number of tuberculosis cases in two, the American Society for Cancer Control believes it possible to cut down the number of cancer cases by education of an intensive character.

In 1920 in the United States, it is interesting to note, cancer caused 72,931 deaths. Deaths from other causes were as follows: Falls, 10,523; automobiles, 9,103; suicides, 8,959; railroads, 6,406.

There were therefore 62,492 deaths from accidental causes in 1920, about 10,000 less than from cancer.

And yet the public generally has not realized the inroads the disease has made—which is the reason why the exhibit is needed. Rental expenses of the exhibit will be borne by the public health department of the fair.

The exhibit is in panel form and, although it is a national exhibit from the New York headquarters of the American Society for Cancer Control, it was made by the Arrow Advertising company of Minneapolis, and is done in oil, which makes it more attractive to the fair visitor.

It is at 35 years of age that cancer begins to reap its great toll. Both sexes and all conditions of persons are liable to it, which is why it is necessary for all to learn the warning signs of cancer.

All hairy moles, badly-healed scars or protruding warts may be potential cancer. Any benign growth or tumor of any kind may become cancerous, the exhibit points out to the public. Cancer may develop in practically any organ or part of the body. The most common places are the mouth, nose, throat and tonsils, breasts, stomach and intestines.

It has been learned that normal cells, under certain conditions, may change into cancer cells. Just as a peaceful citizen sometimes runs wild for no apparent reason, so the good little cell in the human body sometimes runs wild, for no known cause —and starts the dread cancer disease.

There has been an annual increase of 2½ per cent noted in the number of cases of cancer discovered in the United States—but this may only mean that cases are being properly diagnosed and that which formerly was not recognized as cancer now is pronounced to be such.

The established methods of treating cancer, once the trouble is recognized, are surgery, x-ray and radium. If the cancer is confined to the part in which it develops and is curable, or has extended only to the nearby structures, its entire removal offers the most hope, cancer experts say. The use of x-ray and radium often accomplishes a great deal in conjunction with radical surgical removal, Dr. Verne C. Hunt of the Mayo clinic, Rochester, states.

Horseshoe Is Unlucky.

The "ancient and honorable game of pitching horseshoes" is generally considered [illegible]fe and sane" pastime, but Mr. Paradis, employed with the road grading crew west of town, found it otherwise Wednesday. At the noon hour, he with others, were tossing the shoes and this man, thinking his opponent had pitched both horseshoes, reached down to pick up the one just after the second one had left the other player's hand, and was struck upon the left side of the head, the shoe inflicting an ugly gash from which the blood flowed freely for a time. He was brought in by Foreman Prenevost by car for medical attention. Three stitches were required to sew up the cut, but no serious consequences are liable to develop.—Fosston Thirteen Towns.

Oversupply of Labor.

The Sun published at Long Beach, states that that city is overrun with people who have journeyed overland via motor with the expectation of finding employment there. It is said that many of these people, in some instances entire families, are without financial means, and the situation had reached a point where the Commercial club had advised that notice be sent broadcast throughout the nation that no more laborers were wanted at Long Beach, as there were hundreds now there and unable to obtain employment.

Early Morning Blaze at Middle River Destroys Big Store and Post Office

Local Fire Department Fight Bravely to Prevent Flames Spreading to Other Buildings.

Saturday morning about 3 o'clock the citizens of the village were aroused by the ringing of the fire bell, and after a hurried dressing and rushing down town found the H. A. Hall store building burning. The alarm was given by Mrs. Covert, who resided in rooms over the store. In a very short time members of the fire department were at the fire station ready to fight the demon that was rapidly spreading throughout the entire rear of the building. It soon became evident that all efforts to save the building would be useless and their efforts were given to the protection of nearby buildings that at times were on fire from the sparks that were carried by the roaring draft.

The rear of the Carlson building west of the burning building was partially damaged by the flames, but the persistent efforts of the fire laddies kept the flames under control.

The building occupied by the Yngve Hardware Company was in the path of the flames and with a stream of water playing on its sides it was saved from the fate of the Hall building.

The postoffice located in the west side of the building was moved by willing hands and only the fixtures were destroyed by the fire. No mail was lost.

Mrs. Covert, who resided over the store room, lost everything she possessed in the way of household goods, clothing and fixtures. She was not even able to save any of her clothing.

At the time of the fire Mr. Hall, the owner of the stock of merchandise, was at Nashwauk, where he had gone to look up a location to move the stock. He arrived the following day after being notified of his loss. Stock and fixtures are a total loss and estimated at about $14,000, with some $9,000 insurance.

Mrs. Covert carried no insurance and her loss will amount to at least $1,000.

The postoffice is temporarily located in the Woodman hall. Later it will be removed to some permanent building designated by the postal authorities.

At present Mr. Hall has an office in the building occupied by Jens Offerdahl, the shoemaker, where he will be glad to meet those who have accounts with him for settlement.

The origin of the fire is unknown. It is a serious loss to both Mr. Hall and Mrs. Covert.

The building was owned by John Roestadt and valued at $4,00. Only $1,700 insurance was carried.—Middle River Pioneer.

Fire Protection Said to Be Requisite of Building

In practically all of the building that is being done in mid-western cities and on middle west farms today, there is general insistence on better construction.

Materials that are more permanent than those in general use a few years back are now in constant demand. One of the points to which special attention is being paid, on the farm as well as in the city, is that of making buildings fireproof.

Perhaps the easiest and most economical provision for fireproofing, the building contractors say, is to use gypsum in one form or another for the wall and ceiling material.

Gypsum is rock that is mined and processed. It will not burn, ignite or transmit heat. Rooms that are walled and ceiled with it have a very high degree of fire-resistiveness. Inasmuch as 85 per cent of the fires that destroy dwellings and household goods originate within the house, according to statistics furnished by the National Underwriters, it is of the greatest value to have the walls and ceilings of a material that will not communicate fire, but will act as a barrier to the flames and contain them for an appreciable time within the room where the fire starts.

Because it has this natural fire-resistive quality, along with other advantages, there is an increasing call in this section for the fireproof wallboard known as sheetrock. This wallboard is made from gypsum. It comes all ready for use. Just nailed to the joists or studding, it makes standard, permanent, rigid, non-warping and fireproof walls and ceilings. Great quantities of it are being used throughout the middle west in homes, hotels, stores, warehouses and farm buildings.

CO-OPS WILL HAVE STATE FAIR BOOTH

All Farmer Marketing Organizations to Explain Their Plans of Operation.

Co-operative marketing organizations in Minnesota are to have a joint Bureau of Information at the State Fair, Sept. 1 to 8. J. S. Jones, secretary of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, has obtained two booths in the south wing of the agricultural building for this purpose. Here, headquarters of the Farm Bureau Federation will be established for the week and all commodity organizations in the state have been asked to prepare an exhibit, showing their plan of operation, the effectiveness of cooperation in their particular field and to keep a specialist on duty to answer questions.

The Minnesota Potato Growers' Exchange, the Minnesota Co-operative Egg Marketing association and the Minnesota Co-operative Wool Marketing association have already accepted invitations extended by the state federation. Other co-operatives are expected to participate.

The egg and poultry exhibits will be composed of charts showing the manner in which their plans of organization will help, not only the producer, but the community at large as well.

St. Paul Man Visits City In Interest of Veterans' Bureau Work for Buddies Organization Now Training Disabled Veterans in Many Professions and Useful Trades.

Fred W. Zeller of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau of St. Paul, was in the city this week in the interest of the disabled ex-service men. Mr. Zeller said that the U. S. Veterans' bureau is training disabled war veterans who have been approved for vocational training, in various trades and professions including electricians, machinists, power plant operation, auto mechanics, watch making, jewelry engraving, building draftsmen, linotype operators, shoe repairing and others.

"Local business men have always co-operated splendidly with the Bureau," said Mr. Zeller. "They have given us assistance that has been most valuable, and our training record in this part of the state may be attributed to their whole-hearted and unselfish support. Our big problem in the future is going to be to find suitable positions for the men as they complete training. We have had difficulty in placing a few of the men, and employers are asked to get in touch with the U. S. Veterans' Bureau, St. Paul, when in need of help of any kind. Our men are learning more than a hundred different trades, and the probability is that we can supply their wants.

"It should be remembered that the veterans have been thoroughly trained and that the handicap of their disabilities has been overcome by proper training."

Receivership Demanded for Equity Packing Co.

A third attempt in less than eight months to put the affairs of the Equity Co-Operative Packing company, Fargo into the hands of a receiver, was started in Valley City Monday. Judge M. J. Englert then appointed George E. Brastrup of Courtney, N. D., temporary receiver and set Saturday, August 18, as the date on which to show cause why such receivership should not be made permanent. Louis Ball of Plummer, Minn., a creditor to the extent of $3,800, is one of the petitioners.

It was said by President C. W. Reichert of the company that this latest action probably is a friendly one taken with the sanction of a majority of the board of directors.

Mr. Reichert declared he had not sanctioned the move but admitted he would not oppose it as he had done in the other receivership actions and won out.

Organize Plans to Help Farmer Regain Footing

Red River Valley Development Association Seeks Concerted Effort.

Consider Grain Farmers of Northwest Entitled to Immediate Aid.

Special committees of the Minnesota Red River Valley Development association have been hard at work on two matters of importance from which it is hoped benefits of considerable worth will be derived. That which is perhaps of most importance is the obtaining of relief for grain growers in the Northwest. In all four of the northwestern states numerous groups have been promoting one or another plan for effecting relief.

Many requests or demands have already been made upon the administration leaders at Washington but in disorganized manner, and are believed to have served only to cause the administration to look askance on the proposals rather than favorably.

The Development Association is not endeavoring to promote the adoption of any paticular plan but at the request of North Dakota leaders has been trying to bring about the formation of a delegation representing all of the states concerned in the matter to lay the situation before the federal administration.

Minnesota leaders, without regard to political affiliation or personal views on the best plan to be advocated for relief have expressed practically unanimous readiness to co-operate with leaders of other grain raising states in trying to get the federal government to see the need of justice of affording immediate relief in some form.

The other matter that is receiving very earnest attention is that of the farm loan situation. Reports were made which at first appeared to indicate a tendency in some circles toward unnecessary rigidness in the matter of loan re-payments. This being brought to the attention of the state Agricultural department, a number of meetings have been held at points variously located throughout the Valley at which bankers, farmers and merchants were in attendance. These meetings disclosed that while there were instances where farmers could not make interest or loan payments, there was absolute confidence in the valley's ability to eventually pay and readiness on the part of bankers and merchants to stand morally and financially behind the farmers to the fullest possible extent. One particular outcome of these meetings is hoped to be the making by the newly created States Rural Credits Bureau of an increased number of loans. These are re-payable by smaller payments and extended over longer periods of time than the ordinary mortgage loan and can, on this account, be of much help to the farmers who can not meet ordinary loan payments just now on account of low crop returns.

Committees are being organized in each county on which will be one banker, one farmer and one merchant. Through these committees it is planned to make representation to loan organization officers of the valley's needs and its stability and so through giving satisfactory assurance to them, secure assistance for all farmers who are at all reasonably entitled to it.

Larry Semon Up to Old Tricks in New Picture

Larry Semon started life as a traveling showman with his father's vaudeville troupe and later became a cartoonist on several of the New York dailies. Among his other accomplishments Larry learned to draw by slinging blots of ink from a pen to a canvas several feet away. In this manner he is able to cartoon famous characters.

The old trick occurred to him while making one of the sequences for "The Counter Jumper," which will be shown at the Lyceum theatre on Sunday and Monday. It would give him just the punch he needed for the opening scenes of this big comedy of the Northwest. So he clothed the idea in action and produced a sequence that is startling and funny.

As the clerk in the trading post Larry flecks drops of ink from a pen in such a mannner that they fall upon the bald head of the sheriff, who is asleep at the end of the counter. In this way the comedian makes eyes, nose and mouth. Then he upsets a bottle of ink, and with the blotter with which he cleans up the smear tears off pieces for eyebrows. A fur piece dropped from a balcony above furnishes the beard.

Injunction to Stop Road Improvement Plan Denied by District Court Judge

Grand Plain Township Officers Upheld in Case Involving Placing of Drainage Culverts.

A decision of more than local importance was handed down this week by Judge Andrew Grindeland of Warren, in the case tried here last April, involving the disposal of surface water where it is necessary to drain roads.

The action was brought by Jay Payne of Grand Plain township, Marshall county, against the town board and the road overseer for the district. The plaintiff claimed he suffered damage due to water backing up on his land by reason of culverts which had been placed in the public road adjoining his farm, and sought relief in court.

The court finds that the culverts were necessary for the proper construction and drainage of the highway and that they are properly installed for the purpose of draining the highway and as such are public utilities. Accordingly the plea for an injunction was denied and the case dismissed, the defendants being given judgment for costs and disbursements. A stay of 30 days was entered for appealing the case.

Judge Grindeland in his memorandum quotes a recent decision of the supreme court as follows: "The truth is that nearly every drainage ditch diverts surface water, to the injury of others, to a greater or less degree; and to hold, in accordance with the request of the plaintiff, that it cannot lawfully be so diverted, no matter what the reason or necessities of the case may be, would seriously embarrass the building of public roads and the drainage of agricultural lands in the Red River Valley and other parts of the state."

The judge also says the evidence in this case fails to bring it within that class of cases where the court would be justified in interfering with the maintenance of the culverts by injunction.

Johnny Hines as Comedian Makes Big Hit Everywhere

There are many popular comedians in the screen world, but when it comes to a fun maker who brings out the true essence of the American youth, Johnny Hines, the star in the new feature comedy, "Sure Fire Flint," billed at the Lyceum theatre next Sunday and Monday, is in a class by himself. Mr. Hines is the typical American boy. Having lived and been brought up in a small town where a youth is free to play boyish pranks as every true blooded American lad does, Johnny has instilled in all his pictures just that class of comedy that is real and free from stinted stunts. It is almost safe to say that Johnny Hines is the most popular comedian among the juvenile set of picture goers. His comedy is clean and natural. He plays just the sort of pranks any boy would play at a party, on his teacher, or on his boss. He is one of those fellows, who in his fun making, can take a joke upon himself as well as play it on the other fellow. In none of his pictures does he want to be the "whole show." He likes to see others get a chance. For that reason his manager, Charlie Burr, who produces all the comedian's pictures, surrounded him with a notable cast. They are men and women of note and reputation, and while Johnny is the star, he delights in seeing others share with him all that is worth while.

Not only has Johnny Hines a tremendous following in the United States, but already he has become very popular abroad. The young folks in Latin America look upon him as the true American youth, filled with all its free spirit. In fact many of these young folks judge the American boy as Johnny Hines pictures him in his comedies. He does stunts natural, as if they were part of the boy himself. He plays in only American comedies because he knows the humor of the American youth, and that is just what he wishes to portray.

Big Block of Government Insurance Is Reinstated

Veterans of the world war are manifesting great interest in government insurance. A recent canvass among the veterans taking vocational training in four schools in St. Paul, Minn., resulted in insurance to the amount of $254,000 being re-instated and converted into standard forms of policies.

This should serve as a reminder to all ex-service men that now is the time to re-instate their government insurance for the longer they wait the higher the rate, besides the risk of dying and leaving their families unprotected. It is best to play safe and re-instate immediately. All insurance must be converted by March 6, 1926.

Goodridge Banker Figures in Lucky Automobile Spill

J. P. Jensen, cashier of the Goodridge State Bank, one day last week figured in an automobile accident from which he was lucky to escape alive. As it was, he received only a few minor bruises and did not suffer any serious injury.

He was driving along the road a short distance north of Goodridge and in attempting to pass a team his car, a Ford runabout, skidded in the loose sand and turned completely over, pinning Mr. Jensen underneath. The engine did not stop but Mr. Jensen was able to reach the switch and shut it off, and he was released from his uncomfortable position in a few minutes by people who arrived on the scene. Aside from a smashed top and broken windshield, the Ford came out of the scrape as good as ever.

New Political Organization.

Last week in St. Paul an organization was formed under the title of Federation of Farmer Labor clubs of Minnesota. Officers of the new league are: N. S. Randall, president; Julius J. Reiter, vice-president; Joseph Gilbert, secretary, and L. A. Fritsche, treasurer. Initiation dues are $2.25 and annual dues $3, making the total cost $5.25, somewhat less expensive than was the Nonpartisan League. Wives of members may join for 50 cents and are not required to pay annual dues. Of the $2.25, some 75 cents is for subscription to club papers that may be designated or acquired. The president and secretary have long been connected with the Nonpartisan League, and this new league will probably take the place of the Nonpartisan League in Minnesota.

Checking Up on Auto Tax Dodgers in Thief River Falls and County About

State Inspector Assists Local Authorities Round-Up of Tax Delinquent Motor Vehicles.

Enforcing the motor vehicle tax laws in this vicinity, H. J. Cater, a special state official assigned to the work, is assisting Sheriff O. L. Ihle in the local drive against auto tax slackers. The special officer will remain until all the cars without 1923 licenses are listed. Penalties are being collected and prosecutions are to follow continued non-compliance, Mr. Cater said.

All registered cars on which no new license applications were received by the secretary of state are being carefully checked up, according to the state representative, and no property is exempt from the sheriff's levy to enforce payment. Where the sheriff fails to collect the tax, the law provides the amounts are to be deducted from his fee bills by county commissioners. Heavier penalties are now in effect for delays in registrations and notices of transfers, applications being required within three days of sale dates.

"The man who can afford to own an automobile should be able to pay the tax on it, especially when it is now in lieu of personal property and all other taxation and money goes on the roads," said Mr. Cater. "More than 400,000 car and truck owners have already paid 1923 taxes and there is no excuse now for failure to display the right license plates."

He added that many cases are found where sets of tags are split, to serve on two machines, and tags are changed between cars, and in these the courts are imposing extra heavy fines. Regardless of whether it is used on the highways, every motor vehicle owned in Minnesota is subject to the license tax which now replaces all other taxes. Besides increasing penalties, persons operating unlicensed cars are liable to arrest daily, and this is one consideration for the close check being kept on cars now, according to the officer.

All Farmers Should Hear Aaron Sapiro in Speech to Be Delivered at Fair

State Fair Address to Afford Producers Opportunity to Hear National Leader.

Every farmer in Minnesota should hear Aaron Sapiro talk on commodity marketing and the need for strong business organizations at the Minnesota State Fair, Sept. 6, says J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation. Mr. Sapiro is to be the principal speaker on the annual State Fair Farm Bureau day program.

"Minnesota's business men have had an opportunity to hear this noted leader discuss remedies for the present economic problem in agriculture," said Mr. Reed. "We have arranged for him to speak at the State Fair, and to make six meetings in the potato growing sections, because we realize the need of producers understanding the co-operative marketing idea which he advocates.

"Apart from the fact that he is a powerful speaker and a man who attracts thousands wherever he appears, his speeches in Minnesota will be especially significant at this time because of the difficult period through which we are passing, in our progress towards better markets. No man who hears Sapiro will regret it, no matter how far he comes. Mr. Sapiro talks on a vital subject—marketing and organization—in terms that are understood by everyone, especially the farmer."

Farm Bureau headquarters at St. Paul this week announced that Mrs. Cutler of Logan, Ia., has accepted an invitation to appear on the Farm Bureau day program with Mr. Sapiro. She is to talk on woman's part in Farm Bureau work.

Farmers attending the State Fair will be able to travel for a fare and a half for the round trip.

Half California's Total Farm Output Is Sold by Co-Operative Companies

Prosperity in That State Credited Entirely to Selling Agencies Owned by Producers.

Fifty per cent of California's annual half billion dollars worth of agricultural products is marketed co-operatively, according to the last report of California Division of Markets. California's agricultural prosperity is credited to this method of marketing, according to students of the movement.

New marketing associations set up by the division of markets include the California Cherry Growers' association built up during the last year from a 20 per cent control of the product to 40 per cent of the acreage in northern California. Prior to the completion, growers were offered 6 cents, but the association had in control a large per cent of the acreage and being conversant with production conditions, was able to fix and maintain a price of 9 1-5c per pound. It is estimated that the growers received about $200,000 more than they would have had they not been organized.

The California onion output is valued at close to $3,600,000. The Coachella Valley Onion Growers' association organized as a non-stock, nonprofit association and representing barely 5 per cent of the acreage, was reorganized so that today the association controls fully 75 per cent of the valley output. This organization work is done by the state of California through its division of markets. It is estimated that during the last few years barely 60 per cent of the crop has reached the market. Associations expect to remedy these conditions.

Lettuce growers in the Imperial valley have also suffered heavily through unsystematic method of marketing and growers estimate that fully one-third of their 5,000 car production remains unsold as a rule. The Imperial Valley Vegetable and Melon Growers' association has hitherto represented only about 10 per cent of the valley output. The state division of markets has more than trebled the membership. Other industries about to be organized include 60,000 milk goats and a large sugar beet area. The almost amazing success of the co-operative marketing movement in California is leading the entire agricultural industry into organization.

AREA TESTING TO START IN MEEKER

Intensified War on Tuberculosis Will Begin September 17, Cotton Announces.

Area testing to stamp out tuberculosis in Minnesota under a law passed and an appropriation made by the last legislature, will start in Meeker county on Sept. 17. This will be followed by a second campaign in Traverse county, to start Oct. 15.

The tests will be under the direction of C. E. Cotton, secretary and executive officer of the State Livestock Sanitary board, co-operating with county Farm Bureau officials.

In Meeker county, 32 veterinarians will be used to inject the tuberculin on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays. Readings will be made on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. Provision is made for the men to work Sundays to be sure the ground is well covered.

Arrangements have been made for farmers to drive each veterinarian and to provide him with board and room, so that the work can be carried on from early in the morning until late at night, as it is necessary to complete the first test as quickly as possible.

Every animal in the county will be tested before the campaign is concluded. After the diseased animals are determined, suitable quarantines will be established to prevent re-infection.

The Traverse county campaign will be carried on in the same manner, though with fewer veterinarians.

Load of Seventeen Means Nothing to Rattling Tin Lizzie of Uncertain Age

Aitkin People Have Packing of Automobile for Tourist Purposes Down to a Science.

Seventeen people in a Ford!—Yo! Ho! and a tin can opener.

That's the spectacle that was presented to the people on and in "Main Street" Wednesday noon.

Sardine packers could learn a good lesson by taking a couple of quick glances at this picture of solid comfort—mostly solid, because the body was resting directly on the axels and there was no chance for anybody to bound around, as every bit of available space was filled. A little girl was sitting on the back door on one side, with her feet on the rear fender. One man was wedged in between the hood and front fender, and hanging onto a light. Two boys were in similar positions on the other side of the car. Outside of this the running boards only carried a wash boiler, a set of double-trees and a dog.

There were four people in the front seat besides the driver, and eight in the back seat, or rather, in the space between the rear of the front seat and the upholstering of the back seat.

There were two families in the party and besides the four grown people there were 13 children, ranging in ages from 20 down to one or less. They had left Aitkin, Minn., that morning and were headed for Webster, S. D., which place they expected to reach the same evening.

Outside the cargo of 17 human beings and a dog, the wash boiler, double-trees, etc., all the Ford carried besides the regular equipment and a spare tire or so, was a complete camping outfit, strapped onto the rear of the car, and a large-sized can opener hanging on the radiator, which we presume was to help in extricating the passengers when they reached their destination.

They certainly were packed in "oil" right and it is practically certain that if they wanted to take deep breaths, they had to do so in turns.—Sauk Centre Herald.

TRAIN MANGLES THIEF RIVER BOY FALLING UNDER

Edward Horejsh Dies as Result of Injuries Sustained Yesterday Afternoon.

Falls Under Moving Freight Train While Attempting to Steal Ride.

Edward, the 14-year-old son of John Horejsh of this city, died this afternoon at 1:30 in the Warren hospital as the result of injuries received yesterday when he was run over by a freight train at Alvarado.

Young Horejsh, in company with his brother Emil and Roland Halvorsen, were beating their way to the harvest fields of North Dakota on a freight train. At Alvarado the boys got off and when the train started Edward lost his footing in attempting to board it and was thrown beneath the wheels. The boy's left shoulder was crushed to a pulp by a car wheel passing over it and he was badly bruised about the head and one hip besides suffering internal injuries.

The train was stopped immediately and the lad picked up by the crew. Conductor Kielty and Engineer Robarge uncoupled the engine and rushed the injured lad at all possible speed to the Warren hospital. It is stated that just 35 minutes elapsed from the time the accident occurred until the hospital was reached.

In an effort to save the boy's life one arm was amputated at the shoulder, but he gradually grew weaker and passed away this afternoon as above stated.

No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral, but it is known that the body will be brought to Thief River Falls for burial. The boy's tragic death is a severe shock to his father, who was with him when he died, and to his brothers and sisters. His mother died several years ago.

Clean Sweep in Premium Winning at Bemidji Fair Record of Neset's Flock

Local Poultry Fancier Wins Everything Worth While in Rhode Island Red Department.

Olaf Neset, well known local breeder of Single Comb Rhode Island Red chickens, has good reason to feel proud of the record made by the birds he placed on exhibition at the Bemidji fair last week. There was nothing to it—the famous Neset Reds simply made a clean sweep and captured everything in sight in the way of prizes. Two years ago Mr. Neset also had a number at the Bemidji fair and at that time made a splendid showing.

The Neset Rhode Island Reds returned this year with the following prize tags attached: First and second cock, first cockerel, first, second and third hen, first second and third pullet, first and special on old pen, and sweepstakes for the best hen in the show.

Mr. Neset has been engaged in the raising of high class poultry for a number of years as a side line and his flock has established a reputation extending far and wide. His latest feat in capturing so many prizes at Bemidji naturally is very gratifying to him.

Meeting of City Council This Week Mostly Routine

Routine business occupied the attention of the city council at its meeting last evening. The various monthly reports of the city departments were read and accepted, and the regular grist of bills passed upon and paid.

C. M. Carlson received $2,093.24 in payment for the postoffice alley paving job, which was recently completed, while Colsaet Brothers were paid a balance of $880.16 on a sewer contract completed last year. Considerable discussion took place with regard to the famous "crack" in the filtration plant but no definite steps were taken to settle the dispute. It was claimed that part of the building has settled an additional three-eigths of an inch the past month.

Construction Gang Makes Dirt Fly on Depot Site

The last doubt remaining in the minds of Thief River Falls people with regard to the new Great Northern depot was effectually dispelled this morning when a gang of men and teams appeared on the site and proceeded to tear up the earth in great shape. Mr. McAdams, who has the contract for the construction of the new depot, says that the work will be carried on with all possible speed.

Work on the new Canadian Northern depot at Baudette started last week and it is now a race to see which will first be completed.

Winter Shows to Be Discussed at Big Commercial Club Meeting on Thursday---All Should Be There

The chief topic of interest to be discussed at the meeting of the Thief River Falls Commercial club tomorrow (Thursday) is the course to be pursued with regard to the Winter Shows. This question has been hanging fire for a long time and definite action one way or the other must be taken without further delay.

The movement for a Winter Crops Show to be held in this city was started last April and committees were at that time appointed to identify themselves with the various phases of the undertaking. During recent weeks, however, the movement seems to have been lost sight of and nothing of any consequence has been done. This spirit of inactivity cannot longer be tolerated if anything worth while is to be accomplished. The matter must be thoroughly threshed out and a definite course of action decided upon.

Let every member of the Commercial club and any other citizen of the city or surrounding country who has an opinion on the subject come to the meeting tomorrow and express that opinion. Nothing can be accomplished in any other way. It is a question which concerns everyone.

It was originally planned that eleven counties in Northwestern Minnesota should participate in the shows. The idea was to make of it a dairy show, a poultry show and an agricultural exhibition, as well as embracing boys' and girls' club work. While no details were worked out, the plan was declared feasible by those favoring it.

Remember the big question is to be decided at the Commercial club meeting tomorrow and come prepared to do your part.

To Attend Reunion.

John Kivel, in spite of his 86 years as young and spry as any of the Thief River Falls pioneers, left last week for Reedsburg, Wis., on a visit to relatives. Mr. Kivel is a veteran of the Civil war and during his stay in Wisconsin will attend the Old Soldiers' reunion to be held in Milwaukee, where he no doubt will spend many pleasant hours with his pals of former days. Most men of half his years would shy at some of the trips Mr. Kivel undertakes each year without batting an eye.
